A New Jersey pedagogue justifies the corporeal punishment of pupils on Biblical grounds. He says that when the Queen of Sheba came so far to learn of Solomon, it is manifest she must have been struck with a ruler.

Composer—"Did you stay late at Lady Tittup's?" Friend—"Yes. Heard Miss Bang play again. I was delighted with her execution." Composer—"Her execution! That would have pleased me; she deserved it for having brutally murdered a piece of mine."

"Why don't you trade with me?" said a close-fisted tradesman to a publisher the other day. "Because," was the characteristic answer, "you have never asked me, sir, I have looked all through the papers for an invitation in the shape of an advertisement, but in vain; I never go where I am not invited."

X's mother-in-law is very sick, and X. consults a friend as to what doctor he should call. "Shall I try a homœopath or an allopath?" "My dear fellow, it is six of one and half-a-dozen of the other. The allopath kills his patients; the homœopath lets his die." "Then I will call an allopath—the poor woman will suffer less."

Trials never come singly. It was only last week that we learned that the coal supply would be exhausted in a little over nine million years, and now news comes that the planet Vulcan is lost. We can hardly think any one would be mean enough to steal Vulcan, but the nights have been dark lately and there are a good many tramps about.—Norwich Bulletin.

A silly young man in Bethel, N. Y., thought he would shoot a dog with a piece of gas-pipe loaded with powder and lead, and a plug in the end to serve as a breech-pin. When everything was in readiness, the young man fired at the dog and shot himself in the hand, with the plug, which was just what everybody but himself would have expected. The dog, with a surprised look, trotted away down the street, and his would-be exterminator went and had his wounds dressed.

SLANG PHRASES.

"Brace up and have some style about you,"
And "How is that for high?"
"Shoot that," or "Cheese it,"
Then tell them to "Mind your eye."
"He's a sick pill of misery,"
And "Don't you forget it,"
"They've gone up spout," "You'd better sell out,"
And "Give us a rest on it."
"I'll put a tin ear on you,"
"You know how it is yourself;"
"Wipe off your chin," and "Pull down your vest,"
"Not if I know myself."
"That's what's the matter with Hannah,"
"Or any other man."
"That's too thin," "Bully for you!"
And "Beat that if you can,"
"You'd better sell out," and "Go West,"
Or "I'd put a head on you,"
"I ain't that kind of a hairpin,"
And these are only a few.

Murdered for Two Dollars.

In Grantsburg, Burnett county, Wis., Ole Hanson and Barney Tholliffson quarreled over an indebtedness of $2. After the quarrel Tholliffson went home, a mile and a half distant, Hanson dogging his footsteps, and shooting him through the window while he was eating supper, two women and an old man sitting at the table with him. The shot took effect in Tholliffson's breast, and he died on Tuesday morning.—St. Paul Dispatch.

RUSSIA.

Her Wants and Claims.

There is at the present time, says the Cincinnati Commercial, a great amount of loose reasoning in reference to the wants and claims of Russia in particular, and the Eastern question in general. Lack of trustworthy information in regard to the country of the Czar, its resources, population, government and customs; our own comparative slight intercourse, coupled with the fact that a greater part of our information is viewed through English spectacles and prejudices, are sufficient excuses for this.

There are many who believe Russia has hostile designs upon England's power in India and the East; others that she desires to establish the Greek Church to the exclusion of the Jesuits in all Sclavonic countries and in Turkey. While these might be more or less the remote effect of hostilities, and a general war, and even while they may now cut no inconsiderable figure in the knotty Eastern problem, we are frank to confess that they do not compass or fathom Russia's purpose, nor are either of them sufficient to justify Russia's taking up arms. It must be borne in mind in the first place that Russia will not go to war for an idea, as England did in the Crimean contest, for which, according to John Bright, she paid 40,000 lives, £100,000,000, and loaned to insolvents in the Bosphorus as much more; and in the next place her financial condition is not such as would justify her in so doing. Russia's annual deficit is larger than Austria's, her finances are muddled, and her statesmen lack the ability to straighten them. In 1881, the total interest-bearing debt was £135,350,000; but in addition there are upward of 750,000,000 roubles issued in paper bills of credit, together with a large floating debt, the amount of which is unknown. Therefore, lacking the needful funds which are the sinews of war, any serious interference with England's India possessions may not be looked upon as alarming at present.

When it is considered that a conquest of India by Russia would involve long and tedious marches over lofty mountain ranges, exposed to exhausting and enervating climates, over poorly-watered and trackless wilds of sand, for over 2,000 miles away from any solid base of operations at Oxenburg, some of the difficulties will be seen. Then met by a large force at the Indus, which could be transported from England via Suez better than Russia could reach there by land. Then defeat would be annihilation, and victory might be stripped of any solid or abiding benefits.

1. Russia wants free and unrestricted access to the ocean, in that her trade and industry may be developed. As Alexander I. expressed it, she wants "the keys to her own house." Peter the Great thought he was amply repaid for his long and bloody contest with Charles XII., of Sweden, when he gained the Baltic provinces. Now the issue from the Baltic is blocked by the power that commands the sound and the belts, and departure from the Black sea by the Turks at Constantinople. These are Russia's two vital points, and hence her interest in affairs at Copenhagen and Constantinople.

2. Russia wants an adjustment of the Sclavonian question—that is, the struggle of the Sclave people of Southeastern Europe for unification and freedom based on the principle of nationality. The Sclaves number upward of 40,000,000, professing the same faith, speaking the same language. If we except about 1,000,000 free Servians and 4,000,000 Roumanians of the principalities who are free, we have the balance who are tyrannized over by all alien races. Some are held under military sway in Austro-Hungary, while 13,000,000 in Roumelia are lorded over by Turkish barbarians. Is it strange that Russia regards the condition of the Sclaves with feelings of more than ordinary interest? Bound by ties of language, religion, and propinquity of territory, her opposition to the Turks, and aid to the down-trodden Christians, means something more than the establishment of the Greek Church to the exclusion of the Papal. In May, 1867, M. Bolit, a Croatian agitator at a Pan-Sclavonic meeting, honored by the presence of Count Tolstoy, the Minister of Education, M. Pogzeboff, the Mayor of St. Petersburg, and other eminent persons, used the following language: "The battle of Sadowa has decided the destinies of the European East. In consequence of it the German world has been separated from the Sclavonian; what remains to be done is to solve the Sclavonian question—a task to be fulfilled by the Sclavonians themselves—and chiefly by Russia. Russia, gentlemen, is no longer Russian, it is Sclavonian; nay, Pan-Sclavonian. The resources at her disposal are material but also moral. Sclavonic Russia is no menace to civilization, but only prepares Europe for witnessing the reunion of the Sclavonian family." If this means anything, it is that, since Austria is no longer under the protection of Germany, there is nothing to hinder Sclavonians from utilizing her for these Pan-Sclavonic purposes under Russian auspices. This, then, is what Roumelia means when she declares for independence, and, in the light of the above, the demands of the Czar are something more than for a mere extent of territory or the embroiling of humanity in contest over a cross or a crescent, a St. Sophia or a Maho

MERCHANT'S Gargling Oil has won for itself a world-wide reputation as a liniment useful in rheumatism, sprains, bruises, burns, scalds, etc. This preparation was first manufactured in 1833, and since then has steadily grown into the favor and confidence of the people. The long term of years during which it has constantly been brought to the notice of the public, together with its immense sale, give evidence of an inherent value which cannot be doubted. An objection to its use—that of staining the skin—has been entirely removed, so that it now leaves no stain whatever. Although called "Family Oil," and prepared intentionally for human flesh, it answers as well for beasts; and will be found one of the best remedies for all purposes, where a liniment is required, that has ever been manufactured.—"The Druggist," New Lebanon, N. Y.

WHEN a Wisconsin convict attempts to escape, or attacks a prison official, ten years is added to his term.

An African King's Reception.

Col. C. C. Long, of the Egyptian army, now visiting with his family friends in St. Louis, gives the following account of his reception at the court of King Mtesa, to which he had penetrated with two attendants only:

My reception by this strange and mysterious King was unique. Covering the hilltops that characterize the mountainous districts of the lake regions were thousands of the people of Uganda assembled to welcome "the Great White Prince," as they called me. King Mtesa, surrounded by his courtiers and harem, as I arrived, sent a messenger to ask me to appear before him and show him the strange animal upon which I was mounted. I was riding the first horse that had ever been seen in Uganda. At a quickened pace advancing toward the King and courtiers they fled precipitately before me, while I, turning my horse, regained the hill from which I had descended, and, throwing my foot from the stirrup, in the act of dismounting, I was surprised to see the people scatter in every direction in dismay. I learned from the interpreter that they had supposed, up to that moment, that I and the horse were one animal—that I was a kind of a centaur. I was presented the next day to the King—a tall, graceful man, dressed in a flowing Arabic robe, bound at the waist by a girdle to which a cimeter was suspended, and with sandaled feet, who eyed my horse with affrighted glance and retreated toward his throne. Prostrate bodies covered the entrance and floor of the hut. It was here that the King held audience with his different shieks and chiefs, and the heads of the different branches of his Government. The ceremony ended in a slight inclination of the head of the King to his messengers, who, unrolling from their heads neatly-bound cords, threw them around the necks of the assembled throng at the door, and dragged them, hallooing and struggling, away to an executioner, who, as the fancy struck him, had them poniarded or choked to death, or had their brains dashed out. This is a sacrifice which is made to all African kings.

Tweed.

The New York Herald publishes an account of Tweed's sojourn in Cuba. It appears that he, with his companion, "Hunt," suddenly landed on the coast near Santiago on the 11th of June; that they went to Santiago, where Tweed was detained until July 25 for the purpose of an investigation by the Spanish authorities of his passport, under the name of John Secor, from the American State Department, which bore date early in April, some four months after the escape from the Ludlow street jail. The escape to Vigo and his arrest there are well known. "Hunt" is now said to be Tweed's son-in-law, Mr. Maginnis, of New Orleans, with whose appearance a photograph of Hunt agrees perfectly.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing from the Philadelphia Exposition, says: Of machines for cleaning, separating and grading grain—the most essential of farm implements—there are a goodly number, of various degrees of merit, on exhibition in Agricultural Hall. Some of them have a specialty for doing one kind of work, and others for another kind; some work well but slowly; others rapidly but clean the grain less thoroughly. But for combining all excellencies—for doing the best and the most rapid work—none have attracted the attention of practical farmers here like the A. P. DICKEY FANNING MILL, OF RACINE, WIS., the leading Fan of the West, where 60,000 are in use, 4,000 having been sold this season. Nine sizes, costing from $28 to $60, and cleaning from 40 to 400 bushels hourly, supply every want of the farm or the warehouse. It is the grand outcome of forty-five years' experience in Fan-making.

The Judges on Agricultural Implements confirmed the opinion I expressed last summer, of the great superiority of a Harvesting Machine, by giving it the only premium in its class, though all the leading Harvesters of the country were here competing—an award reflecting the opinion of all intelligent and impartial visitors who have examined these machines. I refer to ESTERLY AND SON'S HARVESTER, on which the binders ride, which is manifestly superior to all other Harvesters on exhibition. They also received the first and only premium on their Broadcast Seeder and Cultivator, and a premium on their Self-raking Reaper. They are made at Whitewater, Wisconsin.

IN the case of a robber at Boston, an officer swore positively to knowing that the prisoner had been prowling around nights for over a year past. The man thereupon charged the officer with perjury, bringing as proof that he was only released from State prison in June.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

THE season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. For all diseases of the throat and lungs it should be used internally and externally.

THERE can be no mistake about it. "Matchless" plug tobacco takes the lead. Old fine-cut chewers say it gives better satisfaction and is cheaper than fine-cut. You cannot be imposed upon, as each plug has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." on a wooden tag. Try it once and you will always chew it. Manufactured by the Pioneer Tobacco Company, New York.

PIMPLES on the face, rough skin, chapped hands, saltrheum and all cutaneous affections cured, the skin made soft and smooth, by the use of Juniper Tar Soap. That made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, is the only kind that can be relied on, as there are many imitations, made from common tar, which are worthless.

IN consequence of the many inferior imitations, the manufacturers of the celebrated "Matchless" brand of plug tobacco have been compelled to protect themselves by a trade mark. Every plug now has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." thereon. The Pioneer Tobacco Co., 124 Water st., N. Y., are the manufacturers.

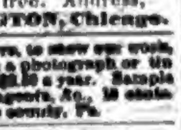
LUNG fever, common cold, catarrhal fever and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

PREMATURE loss of hair, which is so common nowadays, may be entirely prevented by the use of BURNETT'S COCOAINE.

$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.

YOUR own Likeness in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 15x18, from a photograph or tin type, free with the Home Journal, $2.00 a year. Sample of our work and paper, terms to agents, &c., 10 cents. L. T. LUTHER, Mill Village, Erie county, Pa.

If you want to do your own printing, [illegible] cheapest and best hand and self-inking printing presses. [illegible] TWO DOLLARS, [illegible] FIVE DOLLARS. [illegible]
YOUNG AMERICA PRESS CO., 53 Murray St., New York.



REMARKABLE LETTER

From a Gentleman Known and Honored from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast.

MESSRS. WEEKS & POTTER, Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.: Gentlemen,—I have for some months felt it a duty that I owed to suffering humanity to write you, stating the great benefit that I have derived from the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. For more than 20 years I have been afflicted with this very troublesome complaint. I have tried all the remedies that I could find, but without material or permanent benefit. Last fall the disease had arrived at that state that I must have relief or die. The entire membranous system had become so inflamed, and the stomach so disordered, that it was a doubtful matter whether I could go to the Pacific coast, or if I did go whether I should live to come back or not. I saw an advertisement of this medicine, and although being very incredulous about specifics or nostrums of any kind, yet in sheer desperation I tried this, and was at once benefited by it. The changes of climate, a chronic disease of the liver, and my age—over 70—may prevent my entire restoration, but the benefit I derive from its daily use is to me invaluable, and I am hoping to be completely cured, and at last arrive at a respectable old age.

If this statement of my case can be of any service to those afflicted as I have been, and enable you to bring this remedy into more general use, especially on the Pacific coast (where it is much needed), my object in writing this note will be obtained.

Very truly yours, HENRY WELLS, of Wells, Fargo & Co.
AURORA, N. Y., June, 1876.

Each package contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for use in all cases. Price $1.00. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists throughout the United States. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS

For Local Pains, Lameness, Soreness, Weakness, Numbness and Inflammation of the Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Spleen, Bowels, Bladder, Heart and Muscles, are equal to an army of doctors, and acres of plants and shrubs. Even in Paralysis, Epilepsy, or Fits, and Nervous and Involuntary Muscular Action, this Plaster, by Rallying the Nervous Forces, has effected Cures when every other known remedy has failed.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price 25 cents.

Sent on receipt of price, 25 cents for One, $1.25 for Six, or $2.25 for Twelve, to any part of the United States and Canadas, by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston.

FOR SINGING SCHOOLS!

Make them doubly interesting by introducing

THE ENCORE

By L. O. EMERSON, 75 cts.; $7.50 per doz.

THE ENCORE

Contains a First-Class Elementary Course, with the best kind of exercises, airs, tunes in one, two, three or four parts, for practice.

THE ENCORE

Contains 100 pages filled with bright, wide-awake, easy glees and four-part songs. Thus it is a good Glee Book as well as Singing School Book.

THE ENCORE

Contains 80 of Hymn Tunes and Anthems of the best character.

Mr. L. O. EMERSON,

(Half a million of whose books have been sold), has never been excelled as composer and arranger of music exactly adapted to the public taste. His "tact" in this matter is infallible. Then try

THE ENCORE.

For sale by all prominent dealers. Specimens mailed, post-free, for 75 cts.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 BROADWAY, New York.
J. E. Ditson & Co., Successors to Lee & Walker, Phila.

$3.00 FOR $1.00.

THE CHICAGO LEDGER

All the great weekly newspapers of the size and character of THE CHICAGO LEDGER charge $3.00 per year, while THE LEDGER costs but $1.00.

The LEDGER is the BEST Family Paper in the United States, ably edited, handsomely printed; containing every week choice completed stories, an installment of an interesting illustrated serial, and general reading for old and young, for the farmer, for the housewife, and for all classes. Special care is taken to make its tone uniformly chaste and moral. Send $1, and 15 cents for postage, and your address to

THE LEDGER, Chicago, Illinois.

FOR SALE—CHEAP FOR CASH—One Second-Hand HARDY PAPER CUTTER, in good order. Also, one 8-inch HOE CARD CUTTER (new). The above will be sold very cheap for cash. Address CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 114 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

I will mail this BRACKET SAW FRAME with 12 Saws, ten nice Patterns, and full directions for Scroll Sawing, on receipt of $1.25. Satisfaction guaranteed. Finest quality of Saw Blades mailed for 20 cts. per dozen, for 600 in 5. Send stamp for price-list of prepared woods, designs, Fleetwood and Dexter Scroll Saws. Everything at bottom prices.

JOHN WILKINSON, 55 Lake Street, CHICAGO.

IN PRESS—OUTFITS READY THE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED. A graphic pen-picture of its history, grand buildings, wonderful exhibits, curiosities, great days, etc. Profusely illustrated, thoroughly popular, and very cheap. Must sell immensely. 5,000 AGENTS wanted. Send for full particulars. This will be the chance of 100 years to coin money fast. Get the only reliable history. HUBBARD BROS., Pubs., 82 LaSalle st., Chicago, Ill., or 147 W. 4th st., Cincinnati, O. CAUTION. Be not deceived by premature books, assuming to be "official," and telling what will happen in August and September.

Guarding the Mails Agents Wanted 200 SUPERB ENGRAVINGS. OR SECRET SERVICE in the Post-office Department, by P. H. WOODWARD, eleven years in the service, and Chief Special Agent under P. M. Gen'l JEWELL. The most reliable and thrilling book on detection ever written. Wonderful Exploits of the Secret Service Agents in the pursuit and capture of Postal Thieves. Now having an unparalleled sale. Our large illustrated circular free. Dustin, Gilman & Co., Hartford, Ct., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O.

Whether You Travel or Not, INSURE AGAINST ALL KINDS OF ACCIDENTS, BY A YEARLY POLICY IN THE TRAVELERS LIFE AND ACCIDENT INS. CO. OF HARTFORD, CONN. Agents Everywhere.

WOOD'S IMPROVED HAIR RESTORATIVE

What It Does!

It restores quickly, Grey Hair to its glossy Natural color. It has the effect of Restoring the Hair to prematurely Bald Heads. It Removes Dandruff, Humors and all Eruptions from the Scalp. It prevents Irritation, Itching and Scaly Skin. It Restores Dryness of the faded, dry, harsh and falling Hair. It renews, dresses, softens and gives color to the growth of the Hair. It accomplishes more desired effects in a short time than any Restorative ever made, always leaving the hair soft, lively and glossy, whether used as a Dressing upon the natural hair or upon the hair in an unhealthy condition; thus rendering it, for the Old and Young, an article of unequaled excellence. No preparation offered to the public produces such wonderful results. Try it! Try it!! Call for "Wood's Improved!" as it contains no injurious qualities.

HAIR

It was originally introduced 20 years ago by Prof. O. J. Wood, but the recent change of ingredients in this article is making a demand for it in all parts of the United States, Canadas and foreign countries.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO CONSUMERS!

The great radical improvement introduced in this article has induced us to take the agency and advertise its virtues to the world. Its effects as a Restorative are what has been long sought for and wanted for many years, being more decided and satisfactory than has ever before been attained. No Druggist in the world knows its composition, and cannot make it; therefore when you call for it, "Wood's Improved," do not let any unprincipled dealer convince you that he has a Restorative or Renewer as good, or something similar, as there is none like it! Insist upon having "Wood's Improved," and take no other, for your money! It will not be long before all dealers everywhere will have it. If you should fail to find it, you can send $1.00 to us by mail for a bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and we will send it to you, prepaid, to any Express Station desired.

HAIR

Address C. A. COOK & CO., Chicago, the Sole Agents for the United States and Canadas, who will fill all orders and supply the Trade at Manufacturers' Prices. J. B. KIMBALL, Proprietor.

☞ Sold in Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Paul by all Wholesale Druggists, and by Retail Trade generally.

J. & P. COATS

have been awarded a Medal and Diploma at the Centennial Exposition and commended by the Judges for

"SUPERIOR STRENGTH —AND— EXCELLENT QUALITY —OF— SPOOL COTTON."

SEAL. A. T. GOSHORN, Director-General.
J. R. HAWLEY, Pres.
ALEX. R. BOTELER, Secretary pro tem.

AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY CENTEN'L EXHIBITION It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 38 copies in one day. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

SOMETHING NEW! SELLS READILY!

Patent Revolving Album.

Send for circulars. AGENTS WANTED. TAFT & SCHWAMB, No. 100 Nineteenth St., Chicago, Ill.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

A dose of Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient has removed the agony of rheumatism, and its continued use entirely healed the patient. Rheumatism is but little understood. Some empirics resort to embrocations, which are really dangerous. It is now acknowledged to be a blood disease, resulting from acidity. This aperient corrects all such acidity, and thus cures the disease. All rheumatic sufferers are advised to try it. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Pleasant and Profitable Employment. "Beautiful!" "Charming!" "Oh, how lovely!" "What are they worth?" &c. Such are the exclamations of those who see the large, elegant new Chromos produced by the European and American Publishing Company. Every one will want them. It requires no talking to sell the pictures; they speak for themselves. Canvassers, agents, and ladies and gentlemen out of employment will find this the best opening ever offered to make money. For full particulars, send stamp for confidential circular. Address F. GLEASON & CO., No. 738 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS AUTOMATIC

Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.
Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.
Trade Mark in base of every machine.

SILENT SEWING MACHINE. Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c. Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co., (Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York.

LANDS FOR SALE

960,000 Acres in Southwest Missouri.

FIRST-CLASS STOCK FARMS,

Excellent Agricultural Lands,

and best TOBACCO REGION in the West. SHORT WINTERS, NO GRASSHOPPERS, good Market, and a Healthy Country.

Prices $2.50 to $10.00 an Acre.

TERMS: One-tenth down, balance in seven years at 7 per cent. interest.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

to the lands furnished purchasers. For circulars, guides, maps, etc., address

A. L. DEANE, Land Commissioner, St. Louis

Highest Honors AT THE CENTENNIAL! MASON & HAMLIN Cabinet Organs Unanimously Assigned the "FIRST RANK IN THE SEVERAL REQUISITES" Of Such Instruments!

MEDALS OF EQUAL MERIT have been awarded all articles deemed worthy of recognition, so that it will be easy for many makers to advertise that they have received "highest medals." It is by the JUDGES' REPORTS, ONLY, that competing articles are assigned their comparative rank in excellence. From these reports the following is an extract:

"THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.'S exhibit of Reed Organs and Harmoniums shows instruments of the FIRST RANK IN THE SEVERAL REQUISITES OF INSTRUMENTS OF THE CLASS, viz: Smoothness and equal distribution of tone, scope of expression, resonance and singing quality, freedom and quickness in action of keys and bellows, with thoroughness of workmanship, combined with simplicity of action." (Signed by all the Judges.)

The MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are thus declared to RANK FIRST, not in one or two respects only, but in ALL the IMPORTANT QUALITIES of such instruments; and they are the ONLY organs assigned this rank.

This triumph was not unexpected, for the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest honors in competitions in America, there having been scarcely six exceptions in hundreds of competitions. They were awarded HIGHEST HONORS and first medals—PARIS, 1867; VIENNA, 1873; SANTIAGO, 1875; PHILADELPHIA, 1876; and have thus been awarded highest honors at every World's Exposition at which they have been exhibited; being the only American Organs which have ever obtained any award at any competition with best European makers, or in any European World's Exposition!

Insist on having a MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN; do not take any other. Dealers often recommend inferior organs because they are paid larger commissions for selling them.

NEW STYLES, with EXTENDED TOPS, very elegant, and other improvements, exhibited at the CENTENNIAL, and in new cases in great variety. Prices very lowest consistent with best material and workmanship. Organs sold for cash or installments, or rented until rent pays. Every Organ warranted to give entire satisfaction to every reasonable purchaser or THE MONEY RETURNED. ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES sent free. MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.—154 Tremont Street, Boston; 25 Union Square, New York; 80 and 82 Adams Street, Chicago.

$10. $25. $50. $100. $200.

ALEXANDER FROTHINGHAM & CO., 12 Wall Street, New York, Bankers and Brokers, invest in Stocks of a legitimate character. The firm numbers among its patrons thousands who have become rich through Frothingham & Co.'s fortunate investments. Stocks purchased and carried as long as desired on margin from three to five per cent. ☞ Send for Circular.

Potter's American Monthly, 50,000 Subscribers for 1877. ILLUSTRATED: Best Family Magazine in the Country, at $4 for 1877. Five copies one year for $15; 10 copies for $25; 20 copies for $50, and a copy of Potter's Bible Encyclopedia, quarto, 3,000 Illustrations, price, $25, given to the person sending this club. For sale at all News stands, at 35 cents a number. Special Terms to Agents. J. E. POTTER & Co., Phila., Pa.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast, Is the Grand Old MUSTANG LINIMENT, WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

WHY IS IT? "The Illustrated Weekly" has such an extensive circulation? Not alone that it is the most popular family journal published, but because the Four beautiful copyrighted Chromos we give subscribers are the most valuable ever made. Intelligent male and female Canvassers and Agents can earn $100 and more a month working for us. The German edition is the only strictly family German illustrated paper published in America. Don't delay until to-morrow, but send at once for circulars and terms to CHAS. CLUCAS & Co., 112 Monroe Street, Chicago.

ORGAN THE "ESTEY" LEADS THE WORLD

[Established 1846.]

J. ESTEY & CO. Brattleboro, Vt. ☞ Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

THREE CENTENNIAL MEDALS AND THREE HONORABLE MENTIONS are given to Boynton's Gas-Tight Furnaces. (Cast or Plate Iron—suited for Bituminous or Hard Coal or Wood). Especially adapted for heating Dwellings, Churches, Schools, Etc. Are Powerful in Heating, Economical in Fuel, Heavy and Durable, and perfectly Gas-tight. Will do a greater amount of heating than any other Furnace sold. Over 20,000 in use at present. Most prominent churches in the country heated by these durable Furnaces. Boynton's "Tile" Open-Grate Stove. The most attractive library stove ever made. Estimates given for heating. Correspondence solicited. Send for circulars. RICHARDSON, BOYNTON & CO., Manufacturers, No. 234 Water St., New York. BLISS & WALLS, West'n Agts., 84 Lake-st., Chicago, Ill.

$6 a Day to Agts. Sample free. H. Albert, [illegible], Me.

$10 a Day. Employment for all. Chromo & Novelty Catalogue free. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau St., N. Y.

PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. Apparatus by mail [illegible]. Agents wanted. Scottograph M'f'g Co., Phila., Pa.

$25 A DAY to Agents. Sample free. 32-page Catalogue. L. FLETCHER, 11 Dey St., N. Y.

AGENTS FOUR $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., Philada., Pa.

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. Samples FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

REVOLVER 7 shot $3.00, 70 styles. Ill. Cat. free. WESTERN GUN WORKS, Chicago, Ill.

$2 OUTFIT FREE. Best Chance Yet. Write at Once. COLLINS & CO., 4 Clinton Place, N. Y.

20 a Week Salary guaranteed to male and female. Send stamp for circulars. E. M. Bodine, Cincinnati, O.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$200 a month. Outfit worth $1 free to Agents. Excelsior M'f'g Co., 151 Mich. Av., Chicago.

AGENTS wanted, on salary or commission. New business. Address J. B. MASSEY & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

ASTHMA. The only sure remedy. Trial package free. L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

$15 for $5 Agents Mammoth Catalogue free. E. NASON & Co., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

Club Rates of all Papers and Magazines. Big discount. Ag'ts wanted. Send stamp. Hunt & Co., Rockland, Mass.

1877 Send 25 cents to secure Samples and Agency of popular 32-page Almanac. PRATT BROS., Marlboro', Mass.

WANTED—An Active Agent to manage the exclusive sale of Cigars and Tobacco in every county. Address N. Y. TOBACCO CO., 38 Renwick St., N. Y.

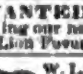
$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

$3 WATCHES. A Great Sensation. Sample Watch and Outfit free to Agents. Better than Gold. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

BOOSEY'S CHEAP MUSIC. Full Catalogues free by mail. BOOSEY & CO., 34 East 14th Street, New York.

WANTED—Agents can easily make $10 per day selling our new article. Apply early for choice territory. The Lion Fever and Ague Co., 149 Broadway, New York.



W. L. HAYDEN, Teacher of Guitar, Flute, Cornet. Agt. for Tilton Pat. Guitar, the best in use. Dealer in Musical Instruments, Music, Strings. Catalogues free. 120 Tremont St. Boston.

$50 2 $100 a month rec'd by our graduates. Students wanted. Salary paid while practicing. Situations furnished. Ad'ss N. W. Telegraph Institute, Janesville, Wis.

$10 2 $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.

AGENTS If you want the best selling article in the world and a solid gold patent lever watch, free of cost, write at once to J. BRIDE & CO., 765 Broadway, N. Y.

AGENTS wanted for "RELATION of the SEXES" New book with plain statement of facts by a wide-awake Woman. Sells at sight. Copy, with outfit, by mail, $2. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO., Chicago, Ill.

DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 133 pages, 35 cents by mail. Address So 714 Broadway, New York.

TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT. WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.

FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, (1 or 2 in each Co.) to sell a few staple articles of real merit to the farmers in their own counties. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. WORTH, St. Louis, Mo.

$55 A WEEK TO AGENTS. Something entirely new and magnificent. Send for Descriptive Catalogue. REDDING & CO., Publishers Standard Masonic Works, 731 Broadway, N. Y.

$10 2 $1,000 Invested in Wall St. Stocks makes fortunes every month. Book sent free explaining everything. Address BAXTER & CO., Bankers, 17 Wall St., N. Y.

NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS' SUPPLY CO., 261 Bowery, N. Y.

CANCERS, TUMORS, HEMORHOIDS Removed. Cured without the knife, loss of blood, and little pain. Send description and get opinion free of DR. G. B. WALKER, 129 South Clark Street. Office, Room 47, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS. Investigate the merits of The Illustrated Weekly before determining upon your work this fall and winter. The combination for this season surpasses anything heretofore attempted. Terms sent free. Address CHAS. CLUCAS & CO., 14 Warren St., New York.

A BOOK for the MILLION. MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address, Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.

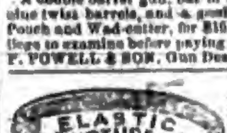
Electricity is Life. Paolis Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application to P. J. WHITE, 21 Bond Street, New York.

CIDER. "BOWKER'S PRESERVATIVE" will keep sweet the year round. A sample package, enough to keep half a barrel sweet sent to any address for 45 cents. Address H. L. BOWKER & CO., Chemists, 1 1/2 Milk St., Boston, Mass. "This does the work perfectly. Cider can be made as nice as champagne."—Boston Weekly Globe.

$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. Dr. J. P. FITLER, [illegible], says: I graduated in 1833, appointed to Professor's chair 1840; have devoted 40 years, exclusively, to Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Kidney and Liver diseases. I guarantee DR. FITLER'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY, Kidney Cordial, and Liver Pills, a permanent cure, or will refund money. Pamphlets, Testimonials and Medical Advice sent by mail, free. Address DR. FITLER, 45 South Fourth street, Philadelphia. MEDICINES AT DRUGGISTS.

HO, FOR IOWA!!! Farmers, renters and hired men of America! A choice from 1,200,000 acres of the best lands in Iowa on R. R. terms, at $3 and $6 per acre. Send a postal card for our map and pamphlet, or call on the Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph St., Chicago, or Cedar Rapids, Iowa. JOHN B. CALHOUN, Land Comm's'r.

$15 SHOT GUN A double barrel gun, bar or front action locks; warranted genuine twist barrels, and a good shooter, or no sale; with Flask Pouch and Wad-cutter, for $15. Can be sent C. O. D. with privilege to examine before paying bill. Send Stamp for circular to P. POWELL & SON, Gun Dealers, 238 Main St., Cincinnati, O.



The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure, and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay full price for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $5. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will cure more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free. POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

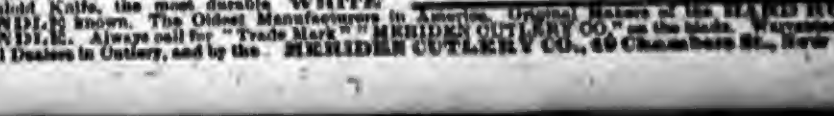
CANCER. Cincinnati Cancer Institute, Office No. 162 Plum St. Established for the cure of Cancer, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula, and Skin diseases, by local and constitutional remedies. Cancer cured without the use of the knife or caustics. This treatment has been successfully employed for many years, and in no case does the Cancer return when removed with the knife. As evidence of good faith and honorable dealing, we require no fee for our services until the patient is cured. For further information enclose two stamps for book explaining theory of treatment, testimonials from patients that have been cured, and first class city references, etc. Address L. H. GRATIGNY, M. D. Box 598. [illegible], OHIO.

EUPEON!

If you have rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, a burn, or a bruise, procure a bottle of Eupeon. It will give instant relief, as thousands can testify. For sale by all Druggists. H. A. HURLBUT & CO., 75 and 77 Randolph street, Chicago, Agents for the Proprietors.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

MERIDEN CUTLERY CO. Received the HIGHEST CENTENNIAL PRIZE.



THE "PATENT IVORY" HANDLE TABLE KNIFE.

MANUFACTURE ALL KINDS OF TABLE CUTLERY. Exclusive Makers of the "PATENT IVORY" Celluloid Knife, the most durable WHITE HANDLE known. The Oldest Manufacturers in America. Original Makers of the HARD RUBBER HANDLE. Always call for "Trade Mark" "MERIDEN CUTLERY CO." on the blade. Warranted and sold by all Dealers in Cutlery, and by the MERIDEN CUTLERY CO., 49 Chambers St., New York.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 16, 1876.

STILL UNDECIDED.

Though we have all along believed that Tilden was honestly elected on the 7th of November, yet there are three states, South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, which the Republicans want to elect Hayes. We are confident two of those have cast a majority for Tilden, but by a peculiar system of counting the vote, called a Returning Board, gotten up by carpet-baggers, in the days when they had full controll of the South we say by this peculiar system, and by no other means, they may be able to throw the electoral votes of these states for Hayes. These Boards are generally all Republicans, and the state officers are Republicans in these states, no other Southern State being cursed with the carpet-bag presence. There is only one thing that can prevent a fraud of this kind, and that is, the presence of the distinguished gentlemen who are now in New Orleans to see a fair count. Such men as Trumbull, Doolittle, Kelly, Garfield, Julian, Palmer, Noyes, McDonald, Curtain, Bigler, and others should certainly impress evil doers that a fair count must be had. If Mr. Hayes is honestly and fairly elected, he should be our next President, but if he is not, an attempt to count him in, in spite of a majority, against him, will be promptly frustrated by fair, candid men, from these states will not be known for seval days yet. As it stands now Tilden has 184 sure, and Hayes will have 185 if he gets all the doubtful states, yet to to hear from. As yet Hayes has only 166 sure.

* * *

The Democrats continue to show a Democratic majority in Florida, but the Republicans are screaming about frauds terrorism, conspiracy, Ku-Kluxism and general deviltry, and are preparing to treat with Florida on the Louisiana plan The Returning Board is very much like that of the sister State. It consists of S. B. McLin, Secretary of State; C. A. Cowgill, Comptroller, and W. A. Cocke Attorney-General. All these gentlemen are above suspicion, and, we are told, have the respect of both parties. Mr. Cocke, the Attorney-General, is a Democrat and a warm supporter of Tilden. The other two members are Republicans. Troops are beginning to arrive. The stories sent out about Alabama raiding on the northern borders, destruction of ballot-boxes, and all that sort of stuff, are designed to prepare the Republicans of the North for standing by the action of the Returning Board, no matter what it may be.

* * *

Louisiana is quiet. Northern misionaries are arriving in New Orleans, and by Tuesday morning no city in the Union will contain so much talent—so much judicial fairness. The returns of the State, as unofficially canvassed, show a Democratic majority of 8,069. There is a story from Republican sources that Hayes has carried the State, and that Packard has failed. It is feared that Packard will cause trouble by trying to pull himself through. This is rather transparent. The "irregularities" in Louisiana and the methods common to the Republican managers in preparing them are set forth in an interview with Mr. H. C. Brown, of New Orleans.

* * *

We have at no time doubted Mr. Tilden's election. We believe now that States of Florida and Louisiana are fairly his, but we firmly believe that they will both be counted against him unless the people of the country protest Discontent, turbulence and, perhaps, revolt would follow an open flagrant outrage by the Florida and Louisiana Returning Boards. Conservative and philosophical men of both parties should be prepared to promptly cry out against the first appearance of partisan rascality Give up a fair count.

* * *

Governor Tilden is in good health and cheerful spirits. A dispatch says: "His faith in the people and virtue of republican institutions is sublime. He will be firm in sustaining the verdict of the people." Meanwhile the Kellogg ring has prepared itself to take Louisiana out of the Democratic column, and Morton is howling from the Pacific Coast about the Democratic "conspiracy."

* * *

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

* * *

The lecture "Backbone" delivered by Rev. Mr. Sanders, last week, could have been gotten off in no better style than it was. Mr. S. has just enough "backbone" to tell his audience "what platform he stands on." Landgau, you can go up head.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.

The DeKalb County Teacher's Institute of 1876 assembled at 2:30 o'clock p. m., on Monday, November 6th, in Ensley's Hall, and was called to order by the County Superintendent, Jas. A. Barns, who presided during the afternoon. It was opened by a song by the members and prayer by the Rev. W. L. Sanders, another song by the Institute The Superintendent then made some remarks. Wm. H. Hoffman and Frankie Ford were chosen secretaries. The names of the members were then enrolled, after which the Superintendent conducted an exercise in Elocution. An exercise in history was then assigned, the subject "The Constitution of the United States." It was decided not to have an evening session. The Institute adjourned till Tuesday morning. There were 67 members present.

TUESDAY MORNING.

The Institute assembled in the Hall and was called to order by the Superintendent. After the roll was called, the Superintendent conducted an exercise in Elocution. There was then a recess of five minutes. After recess the Superintendent gave an explanation of the manner of electing the President and Vice President of the United States, He then assigned an exercise in History the subject, "Events of 1776," also the subject of Phylosophy, to H. A. Huffman of Arithmetic to Mrs. Thomas, and of Geography to Mrs. Zeigler. The Institute adjourned till 1:30 o'clock p. m.

AFTERNOON.

The Institute met at 1:30 o'clock p. m and was called to order by Mr. D. M. Allen, who presided. It was opened by a song. H. A. Hoffman conducted a recitation in Physiology, after which Mrs. A. E. Thomas conducted one in Arithmetic, which was followed by a recess of ten minutes. Mrs. Zeigler then conducted a recitation in Geography, after which there were some remarks as to which is the proper method of bounding states when a river flows between them. The subject Relative Pronouns, was then treated by the President, D. M. Allen, which was followed with a song by the Institute. Adjourned till 7 o'clock p. m. There were 97 members enrolled at the close of the session.

There was a social reunion of the teachers at the Hall in the evening.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Institute was called to order by the Superintendent, and was opened by singing, and prayer by Rev. S. B. Ward D. M. Allen then conducted a recitation in Grammer, which was followed by a recess of 10 minutes. Mr. Fertich delivered a lecture on elocution. Adjourned for noon.

AFTERNOON.

The Institute convened at 1:30 and was opened with a song. B. F. Fretz delivered a lecture on penmanship, after which there was recess. Mr. Long led the Institute in a song, after which Mr. Seiler made some very interesting remarks on teaching Geography. Recess for five minutes, followed by a discussion on the best method of teaching children to read and spell. The Institute adjourned till 7:15 o'clock p. m.—The enrollment of members was 175.

EVENING SESSION.

The Institute met and was called to order by the Superintendent. It was opened by singing. Mr. Seiler then read a very instructive paper entitled "Conflict Between Science and Religon" It was followed by a song by Mr. Peterson. Mr. Fertich then delivered a splendid lecture the subject being 'Manhood' in which he manifested all the essential qualifications of an orator of the firs rank. It was followed by a song, after which Mr. Fertich explained his matrimonial "status" very wittily. Adjourned till Thursday morning.

THURSDAY FORENOON.

The Institute met and was called to order by the Superintendent. It was opened with a song by the members. The Superintendent then conducted the two exercises in History that had been assigned by him at the commencement of the Institute. Recess. After which Mr. Luke delivered a very practical lecture on "School Government." Prof. Fertich then delivered a lecture on "Primary Reading." Adjourned for noon.

AFTERNOON.

Institute met at 1:30 p. m., and was called to order by the Superintendent. Song. After which T. H. Shoub conducted a lesson in local Geography. Recess. Mr. Allen then conducted an exercise in Arithmetic. Followed by a lecture on History, by Mr. Luke. Recess. Prof. Fertick then lectured on "Primary Reading." Adjourned till Friday morning, there being a lecture in the hall at night. The enrollment at the close of the session was 200.

EVENING.

Those who assembled in the hall were first entertained with a song by the choir. Mr. Sanders then delivered his lecture "Backbone." The hall was well filled with eager auditors, who gave their undivided attention to their most worthy orator. His description of Luther's firmness at the "Diet of Worms," sent conviction to every heart, of the necessity of unconquerable determination when great works are to be accomplished. His statement of the fact, that, the irresolute are to the resolute, as shadows and vapors are to the sun and wind, fleeing at their approach without resistance, was a bold and striking figure of speech that filled the audience with admiration and delight. The whole lecture was most excellent, and gave general satisfaction. It was concluded with a song by Messrs. Peterson and Otis, which elicited well deserved applause.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Institute met at 9 o'cloc, a. m., and was called to order by the Superintendent. Song, led by Mr. Reid. Mr. Olcott then delivered a very practictal lecture on "Social Culture." Recess Song by the Institute. Mr. Luke then delivered a lecture, the subject being, "The Relation the Teacher Sustains to the Pupil," after which, Prof. Fertich conducted an exercise in Gymnastics, which he followed with a short lecture on "Elocution." Adjourned for noon.

AFTERNOON.

Institute met at 1:30, p. m., and was called to order by the Superintendent. Song. Edith Jackman then conducted a recitation in Primary Reading. It was followed with an able exposition of the "Normal Method of Teaching Grammar," by Mr. Seiler, his subject being "The Verb." The Superintendent then made remarks relating to Township Institutes and school Furniture. Recess. After which Prof. Fertich delivered a lecture on Teaching. The Superintendent then addressed the Teachers in regard to reporting and other matters appertaining to their schools, after which the Institute adjourned, 'sine die.' The enrollment at the close was 228, about all of whom were, or expected to be teachers.

EVENING.

The entertainment was commenced with a song by the choir. Mr. Barns announced that Prof. Fertich would preach a sermon at the Methodist Church next Sunday evening. Song. After which Mr. Barns intorduced Prof. Fertich to the audience. The Professor then came forth on the stage and began his recitations, each being introduced with appropriate remarks. The heart of the audience first swelled big with patriotism at the recitation of "Independence Bell." It was followed with "A Patriot of the late War," after which came an extract from "Patrick Henry's celebrated oration before the Varginia Convention," which thrilled the audience with the old patriotism. Next came "No Sect in Heaven," which instructed and amused with its variety. It was followed with Dr. Nott's oration on the "Death of Hamilton," which created such an earnest sympathy for the poor widow of the General, as to suffuse some eyes with tears. The "Battle of Waterloo" was then recited, being a fine specimen of poetical recitation. The audience was then shaken with hearty laughter by the recitation of "The Editor's Guests." Then conviction was sent to every heart of the degredation of the drunkard, by "I've Drank my last Glass, Boys." The auditors were then alternately disgusted and amused by the rendering of "The Wild Fourth of July Orator," it being so well acted as to make one forget that it was being only recited and think it was real The beautiful song entitled "Moonlight on the Lake," was then sung by the choir. The audience then shed tears at the "Death of Little Joe," after which there was an earthquake of laughter produced by the rendering of "Daring Green and his Flying Machine." It was followed with the farce entitled "Gone with a Handsomer Man," which set the house in a roar. It was concluded with the comical selection, entitled "Abel Law and the Ghost." All appeared well pleased.

JAS. A. BARNS, Pres.
WM. H. HOFFMAN, } Sect's.
FRANKIE FORD, }

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson township, in DeKalb County, Indiana, that the undersigned a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application at the next session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, to be holden on the first monday of December 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on his premises, to-wit: In the building now situated in Section six [6] in said township on land bounded on the North by the township line, on the West by the right of way of the Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw Railroad Company, on the South by the right of way of the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad Company, and on the East by the right of way of the Detroit Eel River & Illinois Railroad Company containing seven tenths of an acre of land.

CHRISTOPHER BAKER.
W. H. DILLS, Atty.

Ordinance for Sidewalk Grade.

WHEREAS public convenience requires that a sidewalk grade be established on Main street, Auburn, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of Auburn, DeKalb County, Ind., that the sidewalk grade as surveyed by J. J. Van Auken (County surveyor) on west side of Maine street be established as per profile on file, and the sidewalk to be laid with the grade. Also the grade to be the same on the east side of Main street. Running north, commencing at bench mark in water table on the north east corner of building on lot No. 84 O P, from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of building on middle one third (1-3) of lot No. 80 O P, from thence to bench mark on S. E. Corner of building on South one third (1-3) of lot No. 78 O P, from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 73 O P. North Terminus. Running south, commencing at bench mark in watertable on the north-east corner of building on lot No. 84 O P. running south to bench mark on S. E. corner of building on lot No. 85 O P. from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of building on lot No. 86 O P from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 86 from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of lot No. 89 O P. from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 90 O P. from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of lot No. 89 O P. south terminus.

SEC. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

Done by the Board at their regular session Oct. 23, 1876.

Attest J. L. ROTH, Town Clerk.
F. O. RYAN, Pres.
D. Z. HOFFMAN,
JOHN OTTO,
JOHN TREESH,
Auburn, Ind. 23, A. D. 1876.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUSE!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.

AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES,

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINEW HISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at,

ZACHER'S.

SATURDAY SEPT., 2nd, '76

Grand Display of Fall Clothing.

WE HAVE SURPASSED ALL PREVIOUS EFFORTS.

Styles of 1876. Prices of 1860.

THE ARGEST STOCK EVER LBROUGHT HERE.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices,

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchases.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings, $ 1.50, 1.75, 2.00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 9c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 7c per lb.

Brown Sugar at 8c per lb,
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hands and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent, the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get; So Sugars Coffees Spices Prunes Fruits Tobaccos Liquors or anything we deal in Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits No Middle-men with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hyson 25c, 40c and 90c.
Best 90 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c

Best 90 cents,
Black or Oolong 25 and 40c
Best 60c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 60c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	11c	New Orleans clarified	9c
Coffee A.	11	" "	8c
" C.	10½c	Good brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	25 and 28
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	5c
Canned Corn per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	12c
Pitted Cherries per pound	30c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb.

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all discriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon,	1 50 in
Rye Whiskey, two years old	1 25	bottle	50c
Three year old	1 75 3 00	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, per gallon, 3 00; in bottles	80c
The $3 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.		Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound..	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va.	70c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This tobacco sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	30c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	80
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Citron per pound	35c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	16c
New Orange and Lemon Peel	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	10c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	20c
Best layer Raisons per pound	14c	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Currants per pound,	6c

And everything else in porportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Our goods will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES,

FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

School-books at Davenport's.

For bargains in lamps call on Davenport.

Trusses, sold and warranted by Davenport.

The latest edition of autumn leaves is nearly gone.

Coughing concerts are all the rage just now.

Snow fell on Wednesday night and on Tuesday.

See Robt Zacher's new advertisement elsewhere.

The Catholic church will give another excursion.

Have you got your corn husked, fellow countrymen.

Everybody is now satisfied that we will have reform.

Read Hollister & Benedick's ad. headed "Read This."

Toilet soaps and choice perfumery at Davenport's.

Sammy Pommert's assistant barber is a good shaver.

For a good cigar call for the Reliable at Davenport's.

The roads will now be muddy and the wood market light.

The election is over and now the buckwheat season begins.

Now the little shavers can get their sled ready for "down hill business"

Davenport, the druggist, is selling Lamps very cheap.

It continued to snow all day Tuesday but it was poor sleding yesterday

About to-morrow night you can go to your stake holders and get your election bets.

It is great comfort this weather when wood is scarce, to have close neighbors.

Don't forget the great play of Hamlet next Wednesday night, by A. O. Miller's troupe.

Billy Burlingame has changed his mind and is again with H. Parent in the livery barn.

Carpenters are putting the shelving in Mr. William's new store room, opposite the square.

We feel as though we ought to say to our readers that fishing is played out for the season.

Mrs Little & Fair have the cheapest hats, most stylishly trimmed hats in the city. Next to Auburn.

The finest display of Lamps we have saw is at Davenport's drug store. He is selling them very cheap.

"Gimlet, prince of Dunkirk" as the darkey said, will be given next Wednesday night by A. O. Miller's troupe.

Prof. Fertich delivered a sermon in the Methodist pulpit last Sabbath evening. The house was very much crowded.

The weather has been terrible for several days and the roads—well, travel over them and then you will know all about it.

Figaro says: "Distrust fair complexioned women with wide mouths." That is to say, if you trust them you will get bit.

Johnny Robbins says the Garrett Republicans had more money than the Democrats, hence their gain on the last election.

Ministers are making money this fall out of the matrimonial business. Others branches of the trade are quite dull, however.

The next zephyr that blows from the north with will bring to the ears of indulgent parties the price of skates and hand sleds.

Sheriff Meese moved to his new residence on Fifth Street this week. Mr. St. Clair occupies the new jail residence next week.

We learn that Colonel Hargel is at Fort Wayne. We hope he'll bounce a through train, on the Saginaw, and go passed this city a-flukin.

There was considerable betting on the election as late as Saturday last, both sides evidently sanguine of success.—The Republicans are left.

"Thou art so near and yet so far." Your could read this in the face of our Republican friends just after Florida came in for Tilden.

A new side walk has been built on one side of Eleventh street, for the express purpose for cows to keep out of the mud. Better get up town.

The Centennial arithmetic man has at last got in his work, and estimates that $95,000,000 has been left in Philadelphia by visitors the last six months. A good stake that.

Look out for It.

We are making out a statement of the accounts of a few our delinquent subscribers and we hope they will respond without delay. We have waited as long as we can, and now we must have money. Times are hard, we know but they hit us as hard as any one, and a little assistance now will be gratefully appreciated.

The crop of pumkin pies must be large this season. We saw a fellow in the postoffice yesterday with a half one smear all over his face.

There are a great many persons in the county who would be a great deal happier if they would subscribe and read their own, instead of anothers paper.

The country is suffering from two much politics. It is, perhaps, time for it to pause in its mad career when a Republican refuses to use a democratic paper for a bustle.

Mr. W. Traxler has moved to Hicksville, Ohio, and Mr. Koontz has taken the Auburn House. Mr. T. will engage in the hotel business at Hicksville, we learn.

We were mistaken last week in saying that Joe. Beugnot had done away with his lunch room. The item was written on hearsay. You can still get it dished up.

A frail citizen, living on Jackson-st., could'nt attend church Sunday on account of the raw air. But he walked three miles in the country prospecting for grey squirrels while his wife was attending.

This is an age of sudden changes, and the girl who is now making butterflies of autumual leaves; a year hence, may be gathering splinters to kindle the fire for the old man's supper.

The juvenine part of our population had a bright bonfire, on the creek bottom Saturday night, in honor of the election of Uncle Sammy. They rejoice more than the older ones

A boy has written a composition on the turtle, in which he says: "A turtle is not so frisky as a man, but he can stand a hot coal on his back much longer without squaling." So.

We would advise those boys with a clapper in place of a tongue that louge aroung this office to purchase one of Darius Green's flying machines. There is no telling what minute they'll go out of the second story window.

Hamlet, the greatest of Shakespearian plays will be produced at Ensley's Hall next Wednesday evening by A. O. Miller's splendid troupe. This will be the first occasion of a play of this kind and our citizens should not fail to attend.

GAME SUPPER.

Our citizens should remember that the the Methodist Game Supper takes place in the Lecture room of the Church to-morrow evening. Don't miss this pleasant occasion.

The Mayer House at Fort Wayne, under the excellent management of Dr. J. M. Rhoads, is doing a fine business.—Our genial friend Henry Rousculp, the gentlemanly clerk shows every attention to guests, and is always agreeable and pleasant.

The sports all took a "baky" hunt yesterday. A dog got one holed. Seven men are throwing dirt yet to dig that rabbit out, and their families have to call on the neighbors to keep warm or cut the wood with a baby in their arms. And people will wonder at hard times.

That part of road laying west of Alex Hall's farm should certainly be repaired It would pay our business men to donate something toward it. Farmers living on this road can scarcely cross this place with an empty, much less with any kind of a road.

Eugene Moon, formerly publisher of DeKalb County Democrat, was in town this week. Gene don't look as in days of yore, but has changed from a bright looking boy to a large, stout, robust looking man, and instead of that glossy brow hair, it is mixed with a silver grey It has been ten since he left.

We have some very close flancierers in this city. One of them went into a cornfodder speculation, the other day. Now, cornfodder may be nice to have around, but going twelve miles and paying a man and team three dollars, when you can buy it for two on the street, it strikes us that there was something else in the wind.

Persons living in other states now taking the COURIER, will understand that it must be prepaid Hereafter we will not send a paper to any one abroad unless paid in advance, or payment guaranteed by a responsible party in the county. Those who are taking it now should remit immediately or it will be discontinued.

Dora Comparet, who is well known to our citizens, and who has been afflicted with slight mental aberation for some years, has become hopelessly insane, and was taken to jail on Wednesday of last week. It is said that at one time he possessed more than ordinary mental powers, but at present his mind seems to be hopelessly wrecked.—Albion New Era.

The Last Excursion.

On Sunday the 19th of November will be the laying of the corner stone of the new Catholic church and the didication of the sisters covent at Avilla.—R. J. Rev. Bishop Dwenger will officiate. A train will run on the Grand Rapids R. R. and the B. & O. company will run an excursion train from Auburn Junction to Avilla; train leave at 9:15 am., Garrett at 9:30. Return, leave Avilla at 4:15 pm. Round trip from Auburn Junction 50c, Garrett 40c. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

COMMITTEE.

The entertainment given by Prof. Fertich, at Ensley's Hall, last Friday night was very creditable, and came in its proper place as a closing part of the teachers institute. His readings were both amusing and entertaining, and gave evidence of considerable talent in that line, yet not as good as some we have heard. He is more of an artificial reader than we expected to find, but very satisfactory to most of the hearers.

Flies and loafers have gone into winter quarters. And we want to say to those that quarter at this office to keep their hands in their pockets, and when tired, for a change, fold your arms and when this becomes tiresome present arms and march down stairs. We don't want you to gawk over the compositor's shoulder and read the copy he's setting Let's here you say, "I've done it the last time, boys; I've done it the last time.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.

☞Cashmere in all shades

☞New fall style Prints

☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☞Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00

☞A new line of Alpaccas and all and winter dress goods

Union-tp., Sabbath-school Institute will meet at Husselman Church on Nov. 25th, at 10 am. The following is the programme:

How to reach the young men, Rev. Baldwin. The value of the Lesson Leaves and how to use them. F. Willis. Maps of scriptive lands in Sabbath-schools, R. Clutter. The work and responsibility of S. S. Teachers, Rev Sanders. Should Sabbath schools be continued through the winter? Rev. Guist. Each of the above subjects will be followed by general discussion. All are invited.

COMMITTE.

The lecture by Rev. W. Langdon Sanders, on "Backbone," last Tuesday evening, was simply immense, and pleased and gratified the very large audience assembled. Mr. S has a very happy manner of discourse, and his sharp pungent bits never fail to tell upon an appreciative audience. Backbone is clearly a lecture of the day, and is not one of those learned attempts in abstruse matters that weary rather than edify the listener. This lecture will bear repeating.

Ladies Cloaks as low as $2.75.
Ladies Felt Hats 50c.
Children Trimmed Hats.
Fur Trimming a good assortment.
Germantown and Zephyr all shades
Water-proof and Ladies cloth.
Two Button Kid Gloves 65c.
Cambrick Dress Goods 50c.
Ladies' and Children's Furs.
Old Muffs lined.

H. H. STAMETS

INSTALLED.

Our new Sheriff, Mr. St. Clair took possession of his office last Monday, Mr. Grass acting as deputy. Mr. Meese, the retiring officer has been a very popular one, and has discharged his official duties very creditably.

Mr. Gosner, the Treasurer-elect will take his position to-day. Mr. Ensley, who has held the office for the past four years, leaves it to-day, with credit to himself, and the appreciation of our citizens generally, as an excellent, popular officer. It gives us pleasure to speak of a good officer, without regard to the party he came from.

Collecting Promptly Attended to.

We have an attorney that does collecting. He's full of buz and has all account arranged right up to the handle. The other week he was given some that you don't get the first call, as a general thing. After hoofing it around the county several times, he got out of wind, and one day returned them to the owner. After glancing at them the man was happy, and looking up at the attorney saying:

"Well done thou good and faithful servant, fork over."

"What—how—fork over what?"

"Why, sir, this money you have collected."

"Money, I beg your pardon, sir. I got nary cent."

"What. How's this. You have receipted every bill."

"Oh, well, that's nothing. I always do that for my own comfort, and then everything is ready, you know."

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money to loan and guarantee security.

He Did'nt Want his Help.

Monday afternoon a young farmer drove to the rear door of Zacher's grocery, backed his wagon up to the edge of the sidewalk, and began loading a barrel of salt. He got it as far as the wagon but could'nt raise it up. After he'd tried in vain several times, and as he was about to give it up, one of our stout ministers happened along. He stepped in front of him and said:

"Say, mister, I'll bet a quarter you can't put that salt in my wagon."

"I never bet, sir."

"Well, I'll buy the drinks if you can do it."

"I never drink."

"Take a cigar."

"Never smoke."

"Do you chew?"

"Never chew."

"You must live a miserable life. Are you a granger?"

"No, sir."

"A lightning-rod agent?"

"No, sir."

"You're a map peddler, then."

"No map peddler, young man."

"Well, I guess you don't know your own business. Lets have a wrestle. I'll give you the under hold?"

"No, I never wrestle."

"I'm going for you anyway. Look out, here goes."

And after he got up out of the middle of the road, he looked at the minister and said:

"If you want to get flopped twice out of three times, just come down to Jackson township and yo'll get your fill—don't forgit it."

"A bible tract was put in the wagon and the good man went on."

READ THIS.

A wise man has said, "man does not live to eat but eats to live." The above doubtless is a good rule, in fact, Mr. Editor, we have known places where they pretended to serve oysters (about as large as a bees' knee) where it would be a difficult matter to get sufficient to live on. Next to fine churches and fine school houses, fine restaurants are in order, and the citizens of Auburn and vicinity have reason to congratulate them selves that Messrs. Hollister & Benedict have seen this public need and have supplied it.

The appointments of the above establishment are first-class. With a spacious dinning room, napkins in fantastic shapes glittering silverware, polite waiters, who anticipate your wants, and best of all a cook that understands how to serve it up, you know, in the most dainty and approved style at once, satisfying and delighting the most fastidious epicure.

In the line of Confectionery they are not to be excelled as may be seen by the large variety in those elegant showcases, and, by the way, if you want the best cigar in town, be sure and call at this place, and you will find a good-looking and obliging gentleman leaning over the show case saying:

"Which kind would you like, sir?'

"Take the Golden Leaf."

We would say more, but you had better give him a call and you will know all about it.

STRAGGLER.

KAHN.

OVERCOATS.

We have received our fall stock of Overcoats and assure our patrons that we are offering the same at Prices Lower than ever. We have a large assortment of overcoats and have recently received additions to our stock. We invite a comparison feeling assured that our goods and prices will defy competition. By permission we refer to the following parties who have purchased overcoats of us since October 5th, and who will doubless testify to the excellent quality, low prices and the late style of our goods.

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. C. PETERSON	"
M. F. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER	"
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr.	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc.

KAHN.

Davis' Sewing Machine.

You who are contemplating buying a machine should not fail to see the DAVIS. Call at the drug store of Bodine & Siler.

Sliding Down Hill.

Yesterday morning a lot of boys were sliding down hill, on Ensley's Avenue, and Malinda Smithers saw them having a gay old time and thought it would be nice to mix herself in. Her mother forbade her going, but Malinda climbed over the cow shed and started off as happy as a school girl at recess. Bill Jones had just got his sled at the top of the hill as Malinda got there, and she said:

"Billy, when does my turn come to go down?"

"You may have this chance if you draw the sled up again?"

"All hunky," she said, and took the rope from Billy's hand.

"Gimme a start Bill," said Malinda holding on both sides of the sled.

"Here goes. One, two, three."

And away she went. When about half way down the sled struck a bare spot and Malinda stopped, the sled went on. Bound for a ride she plucked up courage and tried again. She asked Bill to start again. This time she was almost to the bottom of the hill and the sled stopped, Malinda went on. She did'nt try the third whack. Bill took her home on his sled. Mrs. Smuthers assisted her to get off her cloths, and Malinda laid in bed all that day while her duds were drying on the "clotheshorse" behind the kitchen stove.

Bill Jones has promised her big brother to have that mud hole at the foot of the hill filled up.

SOLD AGAIN.

A German was walking up Main-st., last Saturday evening when he met an anxious Republican who said:

"Well, what's the news this evening. Whose is elected?"

"Oh, dot vas no mistake. It vas Mr. Hayes,"

"Are you certain?"

Yes, dot's true. I usht a telegam got five minutes hereafter."

"That's good. Lets go and take some thing on that good news!"

So they went and the Republican called up "the house" several times, when he said:

Good night, boys. I must go and sleep to-night. I have'nt slept two winks this week."

He slept sound all night and most of the day Sunday. Monday morning when he came up town and heard of Tilden's election and thought of the money he had spent treating, he got on his must and started in pursuit of his German informant. He run a cross him on Fluk's corner:

"See here, cully, what did you tell me that Hayes was elected for, last Saturday night?'

Vell, I usht tell you vot for. Dhem Republicans dont got some zleep for a week about und I thought off I'd giv 'em didings und glad news they would some zleep get, und I thought vat mine fadder told me "young man sthant by your neighbors off you could do them some goot."

"Shake old man. The joke is on me and the treats on you. Shake"

The German held out his hand and turned and walked off in the opposite direction. When about half way across the street he looked back over his shoulder at his Republican friend and said:

"Mr. Brown, I must to work go, und off you don't see me some more. hellow.'

LEAP YEAR.

Remember, O, maiden fair! a few weeks more and leap year is gone!—for you, perchance; forever gone! How inexpressibly sad—how inconceivably heart-touching—the thought! But within these weeks, brief though the period be, much may be accomplished. Pick out judiciously, and with an especial eye to the total abstinence from those patent air brakes to the aspiring youth, beer and tobacco, the lordly, leaf and liquor-contemning young cuss upon whom you would lavish your gushing affections. Where is the girl, whether fluttering in the brocade of a princes or wearing the calico polonaise of the laborer's daughter, who would be told that three months is not time enough for the wooing and the winning of as good a husband as may be wooed and won by any other girl with no better faculties for the business? It is Shakspeare who knows—that, "that man who hath a tongue, I say, is no man, if with that tongue he cannot win a woman." This is scarcely less true that any man who hath a tongue can win a woman, it would seem to follow, from a parity of reasoning, as the cheap disputants of some of the religious newspapers have it, that the woman who had a tongue of her own—and there be few of the sweet, delicious sex to whom the gift is denied—must be very nearly akin to no woman if she cannot win a man—and win him in less than two months, too, and be ready with the assurance in the end that she won him and didn't half try. But enough.

"Canst thou love me, gentle stranger?"
Blushing like a rose she stood;
And the youth at once acknowledged
That he rather thought he could.

Fifteen Young Ladies.

In a school of fifteen girls a rule has been laid down that they shall walk out every day in rows of threes, but that the same two girls shall never come out together twice in the same row. The rule is suppose to have been carried out correctly during the six working days of the week, but when Sunday comes in is found pretty hard to send the girls to church without breaking the rule. Will some of our readers work it out.

Cash Before Delivery.

GARRETT, IND NOV. 5th, 1876.

Owe no man, is a precept that comes to us from high authority. Every day's experience proves its wisdom. It is the foundation upon which all our business relations should rest. A commercial code regulated on such a basis would place our mercantile and general trade relations, beyond the effect of failures. It would remove our affairs out of the reach of the pressure of "hard times," commercial crisis would cease to exist, and the business of the usurer would be gone.

Credit is the bane of all prosperity. It hangs around a man's neck like a yoke. It deprives him of his freedom of action in the every day affairs of life. It destroys his self-respect, and opens the way to falshood and crime in all its hideous features. In the young man it begets and fosters a taste for extravagance. He gets his clothing and other necessaries on "tick" and spends his money in "riotous living. He is encouraged in this to a certain extent, by the liberal terms offered him, by the tradesman who takes his patronage, and who look to large profits to make up for their losses. It is a speculation with them, and if they are victimized, they have but themselves to blame. But the evil does not end with them; their capital is "out" in these "speculations" and to keep up stock, they, too, have to obtain credit, and so the evil extends through every branch of trade from the small trade, with its varieties, up to the merchant prices. On the strength of it society puts on a false appearance. She shines forth in clothes that are not her own. She occupies and furnishes houses at prices far in advance of her income. In short, she lives above her means and lives at the public expense. Habits acquired in youth, cling to a man through life, and it is hard to shake them off. But when these habits bring with them in maturity the "bad debts" of early youth, living becomes intolerable. It is a pitiable sight to see a young man dodging the duns at street corners and stepping into doorways or turning into by-ways to avoid a creditor But how annoying and irritating to have the privacy of the man of position; often of official standing invaded at all hours of the day by a "dun." Every knock at his office door seems a summons to "shell out;" though a man of reputed honors lies as regularly as he eats, and much more frequently. A long use of paltry devices for putting off creditors, has so blunted his feelings so that he tells one falshood after anothe without the slightest compunctions and makes promises, knowing full well he has no means of fulfilling them. Yet this man holds a respectable position in society, and thinks himself a gentleman Poor fellow, he is a debtor; credit has stopped his manhood and left him without a vestige of real sterling character. This is the case with hundreds and thousands in every community. Young men avoid "credit" as you would a plague. Better wear no coat at all, than to strut about in broadcloth that does not belong to you. Clothed on "tick' you are a living liar. The pauper in his rags is a king in comparison with you. "Owe no man anything."

The world-wide depression under which we are all suffering at present, has at last taught a lesson. It is that to the university of the "credit system,' may be right to attribute much of our commercial distress which has been experienced. Speculation has been allowed to supplly sound and well matured commercial principles. "Mushroon" establishments have sprung up in a night, and assumed all the importance of long-standing and well established houses; accommodations have been lavishly extended, and the legitimate trade of the world, we may say, has been thereby seriously underminded. The crash came, and millions of money has passed through the hands of the assignes. A vast amount of capitol has sunk in these failures. The farmer purchases on credit and pays if he can with the yield of his crops. If the crops are favorable, he settles accounts at the end of the year, if not his note is taken on account of his next chance to pay, and so on. The merchant follows his example as much as possible, and even our best classes adopt the plan of settling their bills only once a year. The merchant is, therefore, not able to sell with a reasonable profit, as he must take into consideration his chances of not being paid and loss of interest; neither well-to-do people, nor poor, can get the benefit of low prices. That difference in the purchasing and selling prices is not larger, can only be accounted by the great competition of our country merchants and little shop-keepers, which suggests an overdoing of business. This is a sketch of the past few years of our financial and commercial depression. The credit system lies at the botton of all this wreck and ruin. What is the remedy? Common sense will suggest. Abolish the system of course in large commercial transactions This would be almost impossible, but the evil could be greatly mitigated, and small trade dealing could be readily set aside. If from the teachings of the present article, we would enforce one precept more than another, on the attention of our young men, it is this: "Owe no man anything."

J. R.

License Notice.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their regular session in December, A. D. 1876, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the north one-third [⅓] of lot number sixty-three [63] in the original plat of said town, with the privilege of having the same drank on said premises.

EDWARD ELDMAUGH.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

In a saloon fight, in Newark, N. J., one night last week, two men, Henry Weber and Henry Mason were killed, and several others badly cut.

Application has been made to Mr. Justice Osborne, at Albany, by Henry Smith, acting for the Attorney General of New York, for an order that the Continental Life Insurance Company, of the city of New York, show cause why its business should not be closed and the company dissolved, its effects distributed, and a receiver appointed to supersede the present one in the action of John A. White against the company. The order is asked for on the strength of the report of Acting Superintendent Smyth, of the Insurance Department, who has made an examination of the affairs of the company, and considers their assets insufficient to reimburse the outstanding risks. The order was granted.

THE WEST.

A passenger train going west on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad collided with a freight train, one day last week, near Shoals, Ind., killing Engineer Scott and Fireman Keifer. Some passengers sustained slight injuries, but none were severely hurt.... Dr. A. G. Long, for several years an Indian delegate in Washington, died one day last week, at Tishomingo, the capital of the Chickasaw nation. Dr. Long was at the time of his death a member of the Chickasaw Senate.... A collision took place between a "wild" engine and the west-bound passenger express on the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington railway, one morning last week, by which John Ginther, engineer of the single engine, and Moses Brashear, fireman of the express train, were killed, and two other railroad employes were severely injured. The accident occurred about sixteen miles from Louisville.

A few days since a committee of twelve from the Board of Trade of Chicago waited upon Judge McAllister, and presented him a petition signed by 8,000 citizens, asking him to resign. The cause of this request was his alleged unfairness and prejudice in rulings in the Sullivan murder case, lately tried in that city. The petition was filed by the Judge.

An attempt was made, one evening lately, to perpetrate one of the most infamous outrages which the mind of man can conceive of—that of stealing the bones and ashes of Abraham Lincoln. The scheme was frustrated, through Mr. J. C. Power, custodian of the Lincoln monument, becoming convinced, in some manner, that there were designs upon the remains. He communicated his suspicions to Leonard Swett and Robert Lincoln, who ordered a guard to be set at the cemetery. Elmer Washburn, late Chief of the United States Secret Service, Detective Tyrrell, and three other men were stationed in Oakwood cemetery on the night in question. The vandals were not arrested, but strong hopes are entertained of their capture. Ransom is the only conceivable reason for the act.

An accident occurred at Brownsville, Ind., on the Junction road, in which John Kelley, the fireman, and Benjamin Seams, the engineer of a freight train, were injured, the former fatally. A misplaced switch was the cause.

A railway accident occurred on the Hannibal and St. Joe railroad, at a point about a mile this side of Brookfield, one morning last week, by which fourteen passengers were injured, three or four of them seriously.

THE SOUTH.

An accident occurred to an Eastern train on the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, the other night, near Edmundson, caused by the forward truck of a sleeping-car dropping down and throwing it over a trestle, pulling the next car off with it, and piling the passengers up in a promiscuous heap. Two passengers were killed, and about twenty injured.

GENERAL.

The case of F. W. Gilley, Jr., applying for an injunction against the Illinois Central railroad in reference to the bonds of the Mississippi Central railroad, has been decided, a New York court refusing the injunction and sustaining the position taken by the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

A heavy flood is reported from Cuba, causing damage in some portions greater than that by the recent hurricane. The exact estimates cannot yet be made, but it is supposed that the sugar crop has suffered by both calamities, from 15 to 20 per cent. The crop will nevertheless be about as large as last year's. The tobacco crop will be retarded.... The Rev. Samuel D. Waddy, D. D., who was made President of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference in 1859, died last week.

Wm. McKee, member of the St. Louis whisky ring under sentence of two years in jail, has been pardoned by the President.... The steamboat Arlington was sunk at the Cumberland Island dam one morning last week. She will be a total loss. No lives were lost.

WASHINGTON.

Some of the prominent postoffice officials are of the opinion the Postoffice Commission now investigating the subject of railway mail transportation will recommend the re-establishment of the fast mail trains, and will support the recommendation by evidence of their necessity. It appears that the testimony taken in nearly all of the Western States is singularly unanimous in favor of the restoration of this system. It is certain, however, that none of the railroads will restore these fast mails unless increased compensation is given.

Chief Justice Waite has announced the decision of the United States Supreme Court upon the application of Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood for admission to practice in that court. The decision was in the negative, it being held that none but men may practice as attorneys and counselors before that august body.

Three men, John Wright, Sr., John Wright, Jr., and James Bodreman, were drowned while crossing in a boat from Ellis to English Bay. So says a recent Quebec, Can., dispatch.

FOREIGN.

The Armenians, some 4,000,000 strong, not of the Sclavonic race, now see their opportunity, and ask the Porte to be freed from the Moslem rule of feudal lords in Asia Minor.... Prince Bismarck is seriously ill. His physicians fear softening of the brain.... The foreign Ambassadors met at the residence of Sir Henry Elliott, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, Nov. 3, to settle upon a method of determining a demarkation line between the belligerent armies.... Decrees were recently issued at Paris pardoning or commuting the sentence of fifty-two Communists.

Contrary to prevailing reports, no correspondence has recently passed between the Governments of the United States and Spain concerning an extradition treaty. There is now no serious subject of controversy between the United States and Spain, the latter having in a spirit of friendship acceded to the views of the former for the trial of American citizens in the island of Cuba accused of crime before civil tribunals.... Cardinal Antonelli, the Pope's Prime Minister, died at Rome on Monday last. He was 70 years of age.... The merchants of Havre, dealing in salt provisions have petitioned the French Senate to abolish the duty of 4 per cent. which was added in 1874 to the duty of foreign saltings. Their petition especially refers to saltings from this country.... A dispatch from Paratchin reports that the Servian army can hardly be said to exist. It is utterly disorganized. The roads are covered with snow. Fugitives and soldiers are dying like rotten sheep.

Lerdo Tejada was declared elected President of Mexico by 131 to 45. The Pronunciados are throwing down their arms in various directions. Their resources are all exhausted, and a final collapse is expected. Oaxaca still gives trouble, but General Diaz and his followers are compelled to keep in the mountains, and are afraid to meet the Government troops.... The Duchess of Aosta, the ex-Queen of Spain, is dead.... Gen. Tchernayeff arrived at Belgrade last week, accompanied by 200 Russian officers.

The district of Backergunge, India, was ravaged by a cyclone one day last week. A thousand native houses were destroyed. The town of Dowlatkhan was submerged by the waves, and 5,000 persons are believed to have perished. The Government has sent relief to the desolated sections.... A dispatch from Vienna states that Montenegro, finding herself incapable of maintaining troops in their present position during the armistice, has opened negotiations with the Porte for a prompt conclusion of peace.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION.

The Original Amount of a Note Altered by Chemicals Cannot be Recovered.

[From the Boston Herald, Oct. 20.]

The Supreme Court has sent down a rescript in the case of the Citizens' National Bank vs. Richmond. This was a suit to recover on a note for $500, made by Lucius W. Pond, of Worcester. It appears that in August, 1875, Pond applied to the defendant to indorse the note, being a note for $500, and the defendant indorsed it for Pond's accommodation. Pond thereupon, by the use of chemicals, rendered invisible the words "five hundred" and the figures "500," and wrote over them the words "two thousand" and the figures "2,000." Pond then procured the plaintiff bank, in the ordinary course of business, to discount the note, and the bank did so, being entirely innocent of the fraud. Before this note became due, Pond was arrested and imprisoned for a large number of similar transactions. The plaintiff bank, after the maturity of the note, applied to the writing, which set forth the amount for which the note was given, a solution of nutgalls, and this application revealed that the change had been made from $500 to $2,000. The defendant was present and did not object when the nutgall was applied. The note was demanded and protested as a note for $500 and $2,000, and the defendant was duly notified as an indorser by two notices, one treating the note as $500 and another as a note for $2,000.

The case was tried in the Superior Court for Worcester county, and the court ruled that the plaintiff could not recover, and the plaintiff alleged exceptions. The Supreme Court has given judgment for the defendant, holding that "the defendant never made the note for $2,000, which was the only one that the plaintiff accepted."

From a Man-of-War to a Freighter.

War memories were revived in Erie, Pa., a few days ago, by the reappearance of the old Confederate propeller Georgian. She was built at Severn river, Georgian bay, Canada, in 1864, and sold to a Southerner, who pretended to be a lumber merchant, but who was in reality an agent of the Confederate Government. She passed through the Welland Canal into Lake Erie, bound for some Canadian port on Lake Huron, where she was to receive her guns and armament, and then proceed to Johnson's island, off Sandusky, Ohio, and liberate the rebel prisoners. The United States Government was informed of her intentions, and applied to the Canadian Government for her seizure, and when she touched Sarnia, opposite Port Huron, in November, 1864, she was taken possession of by the authorities. Suit was brought by the United States for her condemnation. On Jan. 24, 1865, the Confederate agent made a pretense of selling her to George T. Denison, Jr., of Toronto, for $13,000. On June 3, 1868, the suit was decided in favor of the United States, and Mr. Denison executed a deed conveying her to the Government without condition. The propeller now carries freight between Montreal and ports on the north shore of Lake Erie.

A Dreaded Bandit's Death.

The killing of the desperate bandit Chato Alejandro, was characteristic. He commanded 400 men. He took up a position at Huitzilac. Col. Ugalde of the Federals, attacked him, and, after a desperate fight, in which the Revolutionists lost forty in killed and wounded, and the Federals fourteen killed and eleven wounded, the Revolutionists fled, and their leader was shot through the brain while trying to escape from a house in which he had taken shelter. Chato Alejandro, whose real name was Alejandro Gutierrez, had been made a Brigadier General by Gen. Diaz. On one occasion he kidnapped the wealthy Don Santos Degollado. He asked his victim what he would give to be released, and Degollado replied that he would give everything in his possession. He then handed the bandit a gold watch, a sum of money, and other valuables. These the wretch pocketed, and calmly taking out his revolver shot his victim through the brain. His hands were red with the blood of his countrymen.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Last Fee.

Dr. Woodward, a Glasgow physician of the last century, had a patient who always had his fee in his hand to give the doctor as he felt his pulse. One day Woodward arrived only to hear that a few minutes before his patient had died. "Impossible!" cried the doctor, "he cannot be dead yet. Let me see him—some trance or heavy sleep, perhaps." The doctor accordingly went to the bedside in a darkened apartment. He felt the pulse, and also a couple of guineas in the dead man's hand, which he took quietly in his own as honestly earned. "Ay, ay! poor fellow," said the doctor, "he is dead. There's a destiny in all things." And with this tag of morality he went on his way.

Length of service in the British army often extends beyond the limits usual in this country. Attention has been directed to the case of Col. Henry Grierson, retired from the Fifteenth Foot, after a service of forty-three years in the corps, six of which were passed in it in company with his father, the late Lieut. Col. W. Grierson, who joined the regiment as Captain in August, 1804. Thus father and son served in the regiment upward of seventy-two years.

AN INDIAN DUEL.

Desperate Encounter Between Wild Bear and Crooked Neck.

[Standing Rock Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

A somewhat exciting event occurred here yesterday. It was no less than an Indian duel. On the east bank of the Missouri river, just across from this post, about 500 Indians and squaws were yesterday engaged in butchering their beef—160 head of fine, fat cattle, just received from the beef-contractor, Col. Paxton, who was present at the time—at least, until the affair of the duel made it too hot for him. Wild-Bear is a scout at the post, enlisted regularly into the military service. He is rather small in stature, but muscular and agile as a cat. He is as brave too, as any man can be, and, as far as I can learn, is mild, quiet, and inoffensive. He was engaged in butchering his beef, when Crooked Neck, another Indian, taunted him with being the friend and servant of the military, and an enemy to his own race. He said to him, further: "You ought not to come here to get our beef. Go to the military to get your beef. You helped to get Kill-Eagle to come in and surrender." Wild-Bear turned to Col. Johnson, Acting Indian Agent, who was present, and remarked: "I don't like what that Indian says to me." "Well," said Crooked Neck, "how are you going to help yourself?" I don't know what reply Wild-Bear made to this question, but, in a very few seconds, he and Crooked-Neck had ceased to butcher beef, and were engaged with great determination in trying to butcher each other. They stood face to face, about fifteen paces apart, each with a good Winchester rifle. Crooked-Neck got in two shots before Wild-Bear fired, and advanced on Wild-Bear; while the latter simply danced, or jumped, first to the right and then to the left, to avoid the shots of Crooked-Neck. Wild-Bear fired twice without effect, but the third shot was a hit, and Crooked-Neck fell to the ground. Wild-Bear advanced on him, and fired a second shot into his body; and then rushed up to him, and fired a third into his head.

Crooked-Neck had the reputation of being a quarrelsome fellow, and the Indians generally consider his death a good riddance. He was certainly a brave fellow, however. Wild-Bear came back to the post, and undressed himself; then marched in front of his lodge, and invited all the friends of Crooked-Neck to come up and get revenge, according to Indian custom. He was brought before Gen. Carlin, to make his statement, which was as follows: "I have done something that I was not ordered to do, but I think I was justified doing it. He taunted me with being the friend of the white man, the servant of the soldiers, and with being instrumental in getting Kill-Eagle to surrender. I think I did right, and hope you will take the same view of the matter." After a few good remarks on the bad policy of killing generally, the able military commander, Gen. Carlin, told Wild-Bear to go to his lodge and await results. A similar affair occurred a month ago.

Denounced from the Pulpit.

A sensational episode occurred in the Baptist Church at New Haven, Conn., last Saturday, which is attended by the members of the Winchester family, whose large works for the manufacture of arms are located in that city. The company has an extensive contract for supplying the Turkish army with repeating rifles, which are now rapidly manufactured for shipment to Constantinople.

Last Sunday, several members of the family being in attendance at the services, the officiating minister took for his subject the war troubles in the East. Reciting the stories touching the barbarous treatment of the Bulgarian Christians by the Turks, the preacher denounced the Turkish people, and gave his opinion that all Christian people should unite in behalf of the persecuted brethren in their struggle for religious and political liberty. Then he referred to the fact of the Turkish contract with the Winchester manufactory, and said that "keeping a house of prostitution was a respectable occupation compared to furnishing arms which would be used for the massacre of Christians."

Those of the Winchester family who were present were naturally outraged by this direct allusion to them from the pulpit, and there is much feeling in New Haven on the subject.—New York World.

Cremation in Arizona.

H. S. Thomson, who returned from a trip to Hardyville a few days ago, reports the death and cremation of the mother of Macadow, a noted Captain of the Mohave tribe. The wake was kept up for several days, during which time fourteen fine horses, the property of the relatives of the deceased, were burned. It is the custom of the tribe to burn all the effects of the relatives of the deceased at the time of death. In this instance a large amount of property was consumed, as the Macadow family for some years past had been unusually healthy, and consequently accumulated considerable wealth. Besides the fourteen horses mentioned, several tons of mescal, a large quantity of seeds, a considerable sum in silver coin, and all the provisions and clothing of the relatives of deceased were consumed. Even the clothing they were wearing when they commenced their march around the funeral pyre helped to feed the flames, and the mourners returned to their homes as naked as when they came into the world.—Denver News.

A Thrilling Incident on the Railroad.

The Pottsville Miners' Journal prints the following:

A thrilling incident occurred on the North Pennsylvania railroad, near Ambler station, one night recently. The western express down, crowded with 600 passengers, was dashing along at a rapid rate, while an excursion train, at equal speed, and about the same number of passengers, was flying up to meet it. The curve above Ambler station prevented the engineers from seeing each other's trains until they were almost together. One train was provided with air-brakes, which were instantly applied, while the brakes of the other train were also frantically jerked to the last notch. Fire flew in streams from the air-brakes by the terrible friction, but they stopped the train when the locomotives were but a car's length apart. Very few of the passengers knew that they had so narrowly escaped a most fearful disaster. It is said that the upward train was in fault, not having stopped the required time at Fort Washington. "The blessed air-brakes" saved many lives.

A Traveling Bank.

About six months ago a man entered the bar of the Belvidere House, corner of Calvert and Franklin streets, and called for a drink, which he took and withdrew. It was noticed at the time that he was very much intoxicated. About an hour afterward J. P. Powers, one of the proprietors, found a small valise behind the door which he supposed had been left by the stranger, and accordingly had it put away, thinking he would certainly call for it again. A few days after Detectives Mitchell and Kimmel visited the house, inquiring if a man named John L. Johnson had stopped there. Although he had remained in the bar-room but a short while, Mr. Powers recognized his visitor of a few days before from the description furnished by the detectives, and informed them of the valise left in the saloon. This was the object of their search, as it contained $35,000 in bonds and greenbacks, which were delivered by the detectives to Johnson. Nothing more was heard of him until yesterday, when Detectives Gault and Pontier arrested John Parsons, of the American House, corner Calvert and Franklin streets, upon the charge of having stolen $285 from Johnson. The latter said he was kept up by Parsons until a late hour Monday night drinking, and that when taken to his room he remembered being considerably jostled and pulled about. The case was brought before Justice Gaff yesterday afternoon and dismissed for want of evidence. Johnson hails from Pennsylvania, and has a brother in Indianapolis, Ind., who is a banker. The latter, it is said, keeps him liberally supplied with funds.—Baltimore Gazette.

Dr. Mary Walker's Pantaloons.

An item in a recent issue of a Sunday contemporary is calculated to lead the uninformed astray, while it only betrays to the knowing ones the ignorance of the writer, who asserted that Mrs. Dr. Mary Walker now wears fringe down the side of his pantaloons. She does no such a thing. A perfectly competent judge, one of her own sex, states positively that she knows that the trimming mistaken for fringe by the uninitiated reporter was nothing more nor less than guipure braid, cut bias and garnished with valenciennes braid, a la pomme de terre. The mistake shows only too painfully the danger of intrusting to incompetent men the task of writing up important matters. An error of this kind is readily copied by newspapers, but how few editors have sufficient conscientiousness to induce them to print a correction. The terrible impression is now abroad that Dr. Walker wears fringe down the side of his pants, when it is notorious that she would do no such a thing. It is all the more damaging as we are right on the eve of an election, when the Doctor's chances for office may be irreparably destroyed. We hasten to make the explanation in justice to the sex to which she belongs.—Washington Chronicle.

A Thrilling Adventure.

The Wilmington (N. C.) Star has a telegram from Henrys, N. C., giving the particulars of a most extraordinary adventure: "Last evening, just after dark, the lead horses of the stage from Ashville became unmanageable on a mountain two miles from here, and jumped headlong down a precipice fifty feet, dragging the other horses and stage with them. Mr. Nutt and wife, Mrs. William Parsely and daughters, Mrs. M. P. Taylor and children, and Maj. Engelhard, all of Wilmington, and Mrs. Brosher, of Tennessee, were the passengers. Mr. Nutt, Maj. Engelhard, and the Misses Parsley were on top of the stage. Maj. Engelhard got the young ladies off, Mr. Nutt jumping off with him, and the two assisted those inside to alight just as the stage fell over the precipice. One of the horses, holding the stage up a moment after the other three were dangling in the air, gave the necessary time to save the lives of all."

A Treacherous Tramp.

An unknown tramp, having with him a large white bulldog, accosted a citizen up the Sunnidale road the other night and asked for a match. He was told to come across for it, and he did, but just as the citizen was giving it to him the dog, hitherto unobserved, sprang out and savagely attacked him. Fortunately the gentleman had a knife in his hand, and this he plunged into the brute three times, the owner meantime standing calmly by. He finally called off his dog and the citizen walked away, considerably frightened, it is safe to assume. The tramp's intention was undoubtedly robbery, in which his brute companion was to be of assistance. Nothing has since been seen or heard of the pair.—Exchange.

British Drummers.

The uniform of our drummers and fifers in the British army must be familiar enough to the eyes of every Englishman; yet very few people imagine that there is anything beyond mere ornament in the spotted lace which adorns their scarlet tunics. But there is nothing connected with the British army which is too insignificant to bear a history of its own, and consequently we find that the blue spot which is scattered so thickly on the drummer's tunic is the celebrated fleur de lis, or French lily, which being worn by the highest rank in the royal armies of France was, as a mark of our military superiority, bestowed upon the lowest rank in the British army.

Catarrh.

A subscriber, who says that there is no such thing as a sure cure for catarrh in the head, recommends full and frequent use of water to cleanse the nostrils. When the head is very stuffy and heavy, warm water should be used with the occasional addition of a little salt. Pulverized or ground sugar, to be used as a snuff, is also recommended. Another advises the application of ground sugar with a camel's hair brush. W. A. H. says that if catarrh is not chronic, but arises from a recent cold, a liberal use of cayenne pepper at meals will effect a cure.

THE POLAR SEA.

England's Attempt to Find Its Pole a Flat Farce that Cost $750,000.

[I. I. Hayes in New York Herald.]

I have always believed in the existence of an open Polar sea. I think I stood upon its shores in 1861. I believe that sea navigable, and I am utterly at a loss to understand why the Alert and Discovery did not sail upon its waters, unless we assume that the spirit which animated Baffin, Ross, Parry, and the long list of Arctic heroes has died out with the advance of steam, the telegraph, and home comforts. Now, please remember that this great English expedition really started where I left off. The north pole was only approached by some eighty miles nearer than I approached it. It is said that the ice was eighty feet thick. In plain English, I don't believe it, and I don't understand how it happened that a grand expedition, fitted out with such a great flourish of trumpets, at such enormous cost, should have got frightened after one winter, and hurried home with the old cry that the north pole can't be reached. They did not stay there long enough to tell anything about it. To be sure, the matter of getting to the north pole is of little consequence in a business point of view. It may be of no consequence whatever, but here is an expedition fitted out expressly to do it; has unlimited time; has every possible advantage, has the unqualified support of the British Government, and enyet, frighted by one winter's experience, hurries home to report another failure. The Polaris did better, for even after the death of poor Capt. Hall it stuck until it was crushed by the ice. Had Capt. Buddington been imbued with the same emotions as actuated Capt. Hall I believe he could have steamed to the north pole, and I venture to say that, whether the Alert could or could not have gone there, one year's experience was not enough to prove it.

I am a firm believer in an open Polar sea. It is not a sea available for the purposes of commerce, but it is certainly a sea or ocean, as you may please to call it. Whatever interest attaches to it is of a purely scientific character. To pursue science requires patience, and to go with a great Government expedition, especially to make scientific discoveries, with the distinct understanding that there is no other motive, seems to me to require something more than a simple "It can't be done." So far as getting to the north pole is concerned, I am sure it can be done, and in failing to do it after only one year's trial I think the English expedition has shown a lamentable lack of English pluck. They say they had a dreadful time of it, some people were frozen and three or four of them died. That was their own fault. Traveling in the Arctic regions is not more terrible or more dangerous than traveling anywhere else. It is a matter of care and judgment. Accidents may happen, but it is the duty of a commander to see that they don't happen. I believe I have made as long a sledge journey as any one on record. I experienced a temperature during that journey of 70 degrees below zero, and yet there was never in all the sixty days occupied by the journey so much as a frost-bite to any of the party, and yet that was in the exact region where the English expedition has been, finding, as they say, eighty feet of ice. The Polaris was in the same quarter and got nearly as far north.

The Polaris met with no such ice, but met with the same evident demoralization. In my opinion there is no serious trouble about getting to the north pole, but I don't believe it can be done in one year and may be not in two, and I must say, and that most emphatically, that the results of this last of the Arctic expeditions are in no way commensurate with its pretensions or with the money spent or with its opportunities. Its like will never be seen again, and the chance for a grand achievement has been thrown away. In short, the whole thing is a failure without the explanatory clause, "We stuck till the last moment, and did what we could." They had food and all manner of stores for two years more, and should, in my judgment, have stayed there until those stores were eaten up.

In the Arctic it is generally down to 29 degrees, but even there it does not freeze unless the air is entirely calm, for water in motion does not freeze. I have been waves rolling at 50 degrees below zero, without a particle of ice in sight. The next day, when the air fell to calm, the whole sea was covered with a crystal mantle. The Arctic ocean is over 2,000 miles in diameter, and if anybody will once get over the land-clinging ice belt and into the middle of the Arctic sea he might sail there to his heart's content, and I, for one, cannot see why this English expedition should so soon have abandoned the field. There are certain avenues to this great, mysterious, unknown water.

There is the oft-tried Behring Strait, there is Baffin bay, there is the Spitzbergen sea and the Greenland sea. In this last quarter the Germans have found a new land. This land lies midway between Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla, which land I predicted many years ago in an address before the American Geographical Society. It completes the almost continuous line of land that invests the great Polar basin.

In conclusion, allow me to say that this great English expedition which so much was expected looks very like a farce. The Pandora was sent out to carry letters, which she left at Littleton island, near where I wintered in 1860-61, and, with the best intentions in the world, discovered the great expedition, not where it was expected to be, but in mid-ocean on its way home. And now, after all, the great object has not been attained. The scientific world and the civilized nations are grievously disappointed. For once they were convinced that, since the British Government had expended its best efforts and spent its means to the extent of $750,000, we should have some positive knowledge as to what nature is busy with about the north pole.

A Big Plum for Philadelphia.

The cash receipts at the gates of the Centennial Exhibition will not be far from $3,000,000. For every dollar that has been spent in half-dollar admission to the exhibition, not less than $3 have been spent in board and lodging in Philadelphia, making $9,000,000; $6 for traveling expenses, making it $18,000,000; and say $5 for some article of wear or use that would not have been purchased save for the trip, making $15,000,000; and we have from these few items alone the "tolerbul" neat sum of $45,000,000 spent by the American people upon this part of their 100th birthday fete, about a quarter of which will be left in and about the city that loves us l'ke brothers. What wonder if the country feels "awful poor" again pretty soon.

SUICIDE.

And How to Prevent It.

[From the London Saturday Review.]

It has often been said of people slightly insane, who commit or attempt suicide, that they are moved by unreasoning selfishness or vanity. Even vanity might, and so we venture to think would, be in many cases overborne by the recollection that suicide is murder, and that the person who commits it will be treated after death as a felon—his body buried without Christian rites, his family disgraced and his property lost to them. The man who could make and sign a disposition of his property with the intention of suicide clearly in his mind would be more determined on self-destruction than certainly a half of the persons who at present commit the dreadful act.

It has not, we believe, been denied by medical men that the homicidal mania is frequently restrained by the fear of punishment. But, as the law is at present worked, many cases occur in which the maniac coolly counts upon the immunity which will attend his crime. The same feeling may work upon suicides. They may, and no doubt often do, know and believe that under no circumstances will the old law be brought to bear upon their case. Among recent examples there is a large proportion in which the suicide, however insane upon every point, was perfectly sane upon everything else, and there being no restraining thought in the fear of legal consequences, has been left to commit self-murder as an act affecting himself alone. There are many men to whom disgrace pears worse than death. Such a feeling is not uncommon even among those whose intellects are considerably disordered. Stealing, adultery, blasphemy are quite impossible to many a man who will yet commit suicide. The idea of hurting another is often more repugnant than that of hurting one's self.

There are many with whom a consideration of the injury done their families would operate powerfully as a deterrent, even more powerfully than the desire to gratify the suicidal impulse. Passion is thus controlled, and the man who may stick at no crime to attain an end where his own feelings are concerned, is yet held back by the consequences his rashness may bring upon those whom he loves, or even those with whom he wishes to stand well. It is not possible to believe that every intelligent suicide—that is, every suicide whose intellect has only failed on the one point—could be shown, whether by argument or by witnessing the experience of others, that his crime would be punished by social disgrace, he might not be induced to hesitate, and, as in all diseases, time gained would be life saved.

The impulse is often transient. Restrained for a sufficient period, it dies out, and every consideration, legal or moral, which can be used for its restraint should be diligently sought out and employed. Half a dozen verdicts of "felo de se" would have a stronger influence, we are convinced, upon intending suicides, and would have a greater effect upon the annual number of cases than any medical treatment whatever.

A correspondent sends the following: "A pair of heavy, thicksoled, calf skin boots had been worn two years, creaking uproariously at every step. I could stand it no longer. I determined to conquer them, and I did it thus: I saturated the insoles thoroughly with kerosene oil, and set them aside a couple of days to exhale their fragrance. When I next put them on they creaked as badly as ever, but I had not walked half a mile before they were as silent as kittens; the soles, which before were so stiff and unyielding that I could only wear them two or three hours at a time, became soft and pliable, readily accommodating themselves to the shape of my feet, and now are as easy to wear as moccasins. I consider this a great triumph, and I cheerfully record my experience for the benefit of those who are suffering under the terrible affliction of new boots."

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	8 50	@10 50
Hogs	5 35	@ 6 00
Cotton	11½	@ 12
Flour—Superfine Western	4 25	@ 5 10
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 25	@ 1 26
Corn—Western Mixed	57	@ 61
Oats—No. 2 Chicago	45	@ 49
Rye—Western	75	@ 82
Pork—New Mess	17 00	@17 25
Lard—Steam	9⅞	@ 10
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@ 5 25
Choice Natives	4 40	@ 4 75
Cows and Heifers	2 40	@ 3 10
Good Second-class Steers	3 50	@ 3 80
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 25
Hogs—Live	5 75	@ 6 00
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@ 5 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring, New	1 08	@ 1 09
No. 3 Spring	98	@ 99
Corn—No. 2	41	@ 42
Oats—No. 2	31	@ 32
Rye—No. 2	58	@ 59
Barley—No. 2, New	76	@ 77
Butter—Creamery	30	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	21	@ 24
Pork—Mess	16 00	@16 25
Lard	9½	@ 9⅝
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 19	@ 1 21
Corn—Western Mixed	38	@ 39
Oats—No. 2	30	@ 31
Rye—No. 2	67	@ 68
Pork—Mess	16 75	@17 00
Lard	9½	@ 9¾
Hogs	5 35	@ 6 00
Cattle	2 50	@ 4 50
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 16	@ 1 17
No. 2	1 10	@ 1 11
Corn—No. 2	45	@ 46
Oats—No. 2	30	@ 31
Rye	61	@ 62
Barley—No. 2	78	@ 79
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 20	@ 1 25
Corn	49	@ 50
Oats	[illegible]	@ 37
Rye	67	@ 68
Pork—Mess	16 50	@16 75
Lard	9½	[illegible]
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Extra	1 30	@ 1 31
Amber	1 20	@ 1 21
Corn	46	@ 49
Oats—No. 2	31	@ 32
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Hogs—Yorkers	4 45	@ 5 55
Philadelphias	6 00	@ 6 15
Cattle—Best	5 10	@ 5 40
Medium	4 00	@ 4 50
Sheep	3 25	@ 4 75

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The old farm-gate hangs sagging down,
On rusty hinges, bent and brown;
Its latch is gone, and here and there
It shows rude traces of repair.

The old farm-gate has seen, each year,
The blossoms bloom and disappear;
The bright green leaves of Spring unfold,
And turn to Autumn's red and gold.

The children have upon it clung,
And, in and out, with rapture swung,
When their young hearts were good and pure—
When hope was fair and faith was sure.

Beside that gate have lovers true,
Told the story always new;
Have made their vows, have dreamed of bliss,
And sealed each promise with a kiss.

The old farm-gate was opened wide
To welcome home the new-made bride,
When lilacs bloomed, and locusts fair,
With their sweet fragrance filled the air.

That gate, with rusty weight and chain,
Has closed upon the solemn train
That bore her lifeless form away,
Upon a dreary Autumn-day.

The lichens gray and mosses green
Upon its rotting posts are seen;
Initials carved with youthful skill,
Long years ago, are on it still.

Yet dear to me above all things,
By reason of the thoughts it brings,
Is that old gate, now sagging down,
On rusty hinges, bent and brown.

—Eugene J. Hall.

Around the Farm.

In Oxford, Conn., during the past year, and mostly since the 10th of April, 160 sheep have been killed by dogs, for 150 of which the town has paid $735.50.

Rye straw, says the Springfield Republican, has lately gone up from $12 to $18 and $20 a ton, and a party is buying and baling it in Hampshire county for shipment to the Boston stables.

It is probably true that the feed stored over the stables may absorb more or less of the odors escaping from the manure, but this is an evil that may be prevented by a well-devised arrangement of flues.

It is profitable to plant trees in groves and to make woods in this State, not only for the future timber, but to enrich the soil with their leaves, or to use their leaves for manure for other land or gardens, as well as for shelter against high winds.—California Horticulturist.

Coleman, Mathes & Fulton, of Texas, own a little farm divided as follows: Big pasture, 110,000 acres; Rincon pasture, 15,000 acres; shipping pasture, 3,000 acres; Brasada pasture, 45,000 acres; Nueces pasture, 15,000 acres; Henry's Bend pasture, 17,000 acres; Wm. Quinn pasture, 4,428 acres.

The olive oil which is imported from France to this country is genuine peanut oil. Heavy frosts for a few successive years have killed the greatest number of olive trees in the south of France and in Italy, and the enterprising Frenchmen now fabricate olive oil from peanuts. We are under the impression that in our climate, where the peanut grows luxuriantly with comparatively little labor, an oil press would not only be a remunerative business, but a benefit to the whole farming population.—Quincy Journal.

A Connecticut poultry-raiser writes to an exchange: "Perhaps some of your readers who raise fowls will be interested in my experiment tried last season on a chicken with the gapes. I gave it about a quarter of a teaspoonful of kerosene, and as it seemed better for a day or two I repeated the dose, giving nearly one-half a teaspoonful for the second time. The chicken was about the size of a robin at the time, but is now full-grown, weighing several pounds. I cured chickens affected with a disease we thought cholera by giving powdered alum dissolved in water."

Hops are considered valuable as a fertilizer, but when used fresh from the brewery they ferment quickly, generating almost as much heat as fresh horse manure. The gardeners about New York use hops for their hot-beds, also for banking them up on the outside in cold weather, mulching for small tender plants, and for composting with other less-heating kinds of fertilizers. But before hops can be absorbed by plants as a fertilizer they must become soluble in water, the same as any other kind of manure. Consequently, the more thoroughly decomposed before applying the sooner will they be used by the growing plants. Still, the hops mixed in the soil may have a mechanical or chemical influence highly beneficial independent of their manurial value.—Moore's Rural.

M. Defay has discovered a preparation by means of which sandcracks or fractures in hoof or horn may be durably cemented up. Even pieces of horn can be securely joined together by its means. The only precaution necessary for its successful application is the careful removal of all grease by spirits of sal-ammoniac, sulphide of carbon, or ether. M. Defay makes no secret of its composition, which is as follows: Take one part of coarsely-powdered gum-ammoniacum and two parts of gutta percha, in pieces the size of a hazelnut. Put them in a tin-lined vessel, over a slow fire, and stir constantly until thoroughly mixed. Before the thick resinous mass gets cold, mold it into sticks like sealing-wax. The cement will keep for years, and, when required for use, it is only necessary to cut off a sufficient quantity and remelt it immediately before application.

The London Garden remarks: "The only remedy for weeds is a prompt destruction in a young state. Weeds are easily eradicated if never allowed to advance beyond the seed-leaf. Once let their roots run deep and wide, and their tops rise high, and then the weeds are masters in the garden. It provokes one to see the complacency with which some cultivators allow weeds to establish themselves in flower-beds or borders, or on roads or walks, and their subsequent futile efforts to subjugate them. Prompt destruction will ultimately vanquish the very worst of them. Plantains, grass, thistles, and docks are perhaps the most difficult to eradicate. But if, by any neglect, these have gained a strong footing in any garden constant beheading alone will destroy them. No plant can live long if never allowed to form leaves or stems, and the shortest, surest, easiest way to eradicate the worst weeds is by incessant cutting off of their visible parts."

About the House.

Doughnuts.—One pint of sour cream, three eggs, two cups of sugar, one teaspoonful of soda. Mix quite [illegible].

Stuffing for Poultry.—One cup of bread crumbs, one egg, one teacupful of mashed potatoes, butter size of [illegible], pepper and salt. The above, with the addition of a chopped onion, is excellent for goose, duck, or [illegible] of any kind.

Scotch Cakes.—Into two quarts of flour rub a tablespoonful of butter, stir in a cup and a half of milk, a cup of yeast, two eggs, and half a teaspoonful of salt. Let this rise over night. In the morning roll out and make into small, thin biscuit, let them rise and bake quickly. Dip each biscuit in melted butter before putting it in the pan, and they will readily part from each other when baked.

Substitute for a Corkscrew.—A substitute for a corkscrew may be thus made: Stick two forks vertically into a cork on opposite sides, not too near the edge. Run the blade of a knife through the two and give a twist. Another way to uncork a bottle is to fill the hollow at the bottom of the bottle with a handkerchief or towel; grasp the neck with one hand, and strike firmly and steadily with the other upon the handkerchief.

Put a handful of loaf sugar to boil with a gill of water in a saucepan; when it boils add the rinds of three oranges minced finely or cut into very narrow strips. Let the whole boil five minutes, add a wine-glass of brandy, and pour the sirup (hot) over half a dozen whole oranges, peeled and cored—or cut up into any form you like. The oranges should be left in a basin with the sirup till quite cold, and then piled up on a dish and served. They look and eat extremely nice.

First-rate Coffee.—Take a coffee-cup of the best Java coffee, browned to the color of chocolate (not scorched), ground not too fine, and mix with it half an egg. Put this into a coffee-pot or boiler (which is as clean as the cup you drink from), and pour over it one quart of boiling water, stirring as you put the water in; boil slowly for fifteen minutes; then stand the boiler on the back of the range for ten minutes to settle; turn all the coffee off from the grounds at once into an urn or coffee-pot that can stand upon the stove to keep hot. Coffee loses its flavor by standing on the grounds longer than half an hour, and should be very hot to be good. Put into the cup a teaspoonful of "American condensed milk" and some boiled milk, and turn the coffee into it. No French coffee is any better.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Dying of Thirst on the Colorado Desert.

The San Diego (Cal.) World, in a recent issue, says: "From Mr. Cassem Hirche, of San Louis Obispo, who has been prospecting through Arizona, Senora and New Mexico, and who arrived here yesterday evening, on his return home, we learn some particulars in regard to the man Henry Smith, who perished on the Colorado desert some sixty days ago. Mr. Hirche, in company with some other gentlemen, came up with the unfortunate man some two hours before he breathed his last. He was perfectly sane up to the last moment, and told his story as best he could. Notwithstanding the disconnected way in which it was told, Mr. Hirche, was enabled to learn that the deceased's name was Henry Smith, and that he was on his way from California to Arizona; that he had wandered from the main road and got lost, and had been without water ninety-six hours, and that during the last twelve hours his life was sustained by catching and drinking his own as well as the urine of his two burros. After he became too weak to do this any longer, in his desperate condition he took a razor, cut his arm and drank his own blood, and finally his tongue became so swollen that he could not breathe freely. He took the razor and cut his throat on each side of the wind-pipe, thus affording a means of getting breath. He had on his person four Mexican dollars and five of Sanrita placer gold dust. He had also with him two burros, saddle and blankets. The money found on his person was paid out for his burial expenses. While rolling in the sand he had lost his pocket-book, containing $20 in greenbacks. He said that he had formerly lived in St. Louis, Mo., and that he had a sister living there now, and said that her name was Miss Sarah Smith; that she had been married, but was divorced, had taken her maiden name, and that she lived on Carondelet avenue, near the arsenal, and requested she be informed of his sad end. He picked out his burial place, gave directions as to how he should be buried, which were followed. Deceased said he was 28 years of age, born on the 19th of April, 1848, and died on the 7th of September, 1876. There was a man traveling with Mr. Smith, but he would not give his name other than John, and said he had been in Mexico some time, and did not want them to know who he was.

A Struggle with an Eagle.

Mr. John F. Carpenter, station agent at Ashton, was out duck hunting near here recently, when he saw a very large bird flying over the tree tops, about 200 yards high. He fired, and brought it down. He ran to pick it up, and found it lying on its back, alive, and with bill and talons open, ready for a fight. Mr. Carpenter attempted to take it by the feet; but the bird fastened its claws into his hands, and he was imprisoned by a wounded black American eagle. There was a severe tussle for a few minutes; but the man conquered, though his hands were very badly scratched in the fight. The eagle's wings were injured, but it is thought they are not broken, and that it will live.—Providence Journal.

Mrs. Burnham, of Atlanta, visited the Centennial Exhibition, and there met a man who said that he was Otis Delong, of Boston, and very wealthy. On the second day of their acquaintance they were married, and on the third day the bride was looking for her husband and $1,300 which had disappeared with him.

AN INFERNAL CONTRIVANCE.

The Mechanism Designed to Cause an Explosion and Wreck the New York and Philadelphia Express Train—Attributed to the Author of the Plot.

[From the New York World.]

The explosion of the infernal machine, supposed to have contained dynamite, which occurred in the baggage-car attached to the New York express, which left Philadelphia for this city Friday afternoon, was the subject of very close but fruitless investigation by the Pennsylvania railroad officials yesterday. The machine, as will be remembered, was placed in a large Saratoga trunk, checked at Philadelphia. When the train, crowded with Centennial passengers, had passed Metuchen, some twenty miles from Jersey City, a loud explosion [illegible] trunks [illegible] and [illegible] men [illegible]. Flames [illegible] burst from the pile of trunks, and it was not until the train stopped at Rahway that the fire was extinguished. The railroad officials yesterday thought it probable that the intention of the man who put the machine in the trunk was to rob the passengers or cause such destruction in the baggage-car that he could claim large damages. If the trunk had been in the lower tier of baggage the explosion would have destroyed much valuable property, and probably wrecked the train. The most careful search in the car failed to reveal the check, or any portion of the trunk which was not shattered and bent. The damage to the other trunks was trifling, and no claims have been made by their owners. Some of them were badly scorched, and the roof of the car was burned, but not to any great extent.

The Pennsylvania railroad officials professed yesterday to have obtained no clue that would lead to the detection of the author of the plot. They have so far offered no reward for the arrest of the person who sent from Philadelphia to New York the trunk in which the infernal machine was placed. They employed a number of detectives to work up the case, both at Philadelphia and New York, but they do not seem very confident, as the case presents almost insurmountable difficulties. The immense amount of baggage received at Philadelphia each day almost precludes the possibility of placing the hour or time of reception of the trunk. The machine by which the contents of the trunk was fired off was on exhibition yesterday at the office of the train-master, Mr. Watts, in the Pennsylvania railroad depot at Jersey City. During the day, a large number of visitors called at the office to examine it. It is a simple affair, rough in detail, but very well calculated to accomplish all that was desired.

The clock used resembles one of the small Connecticut clocks of Seth Thomas' make, and is about five inches square. The glass face and minute-hand had been removed. On the front face just above the dial-plate was fastened a single-barreled pistol, nearly six inches in length, with a three-inch barrel. It is of a very small caliber, and was loaded with a small copper cartridge, filled, as it is supposed, with a blank charge of powder. It was fastened to the clock by a long screw running through the hole by which the wooden butt-plates are attached to the pistol. The left-side butt-plate was removed so as to make it lie flat to the clock face. It was further fastened by a small piece of wood screwed to the clock, which pressed against the barrel near the muzzle. Just above the figure 12 on the dial-plate was a small wooden lever, working loosely on a screw. This was fastened in such a manner that when the hour arrived at which it was set to explode, the hour-hand would press firmly against the lever, turning it so that it struck the hair trigger of the pistol. The whole machine was then screwed to the bottom of the trunk, with the pistol pointing upward. The trunk was filled with gunpowder, straw, cotton saturated with some explosive, and a bottle supposed to contain dynamite. Soon after the train left Philadelphia one of the employes in the baggage-car noticed something leaking from the trunk, which on examination proved to be gunpowder. As there was smoking going on in the car, the trunk was put on the top of the baggage, and this fortunate discovery and the fact that the contents did not explode account for the slight damage done. The most probable theory advanced is that the clock was set to explode at the hour when the train arrived in Jersey City, and during the removal of the baggage in the depot when a large number of persons would be gathered around. The fact that the train was behind time, and was about due at New York when the explosion occurred, helps bear out the theory.

About half an hour after the train reached Jersey City, a large man with a heavy black mustache made a number of inquiries at the depot in relation to the matter, and asked anxiously where Silpato, the baggage-master on the train, was, and departed to visit him at his residence in Wayne street, Jersey City, but did not appear there. Yesterday the company's detectives were searching for him on suspicion that he might know something about the trunk or its owner, but no traces of him could be found.

Of course this explosion recalls the contrivance by which Thomassen intended to blow up the Mosel in mid-ocean, now nearly a year ago, in order to secure the insurance upon certain bogus packages of goods which he had shipped upon that vessel. Thomassen's infernal machine, which exploded prematurely on the wharf at Bremerhaven, was, it will be remembered, of a different construction suited to the use of dynamite as an explosive. The clock-work was provided with a pegged wheel, was so set that, at such hour as the dial and set to indicate, the pegs released a heavy hammer which fell upon a fulminate cartridge imbedded in the dynamite with which the case was filled. Thomassen, as appeared from the examination of some effects of his found at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, had deliberated several methods of accomplishing his plot, one of them requiring the use of submarine fuse, a coil of which was found in one of his trunks. The explosion of Friday was happily differed from that at Bremerhaven, in that it was not accompanied by the loss of life while some 100 deaths followed the other. Whatever may have been the motives of the man who shipped that Saratoga trunk with its terrible contents, doubtless the suggestion came from Thomassen's machine.

LIFE IN INDIA.

The next day I [illegible] the City Palaces, and shortly afterward had an audience with the Marquis of Hastings, Governor General and Commander-in-Chief of India, to whom I brought letters from his niece, Lady William Russell, [illegible], Lord Lauderdale, and Lord Holland. These served me in good stead, for there happened to be a vacancy on his personal staff, to which I was immediately appointed. The following week I accompanied Lord Hastings to his country seat at Barrackpore to take my turn as aide-de-camp in waiting. We dined at [illegible] in the afternoon. After dinner two phaetons, each drawn by four white horses, came to the door. On one side were arranged seven elephants, gaudily caparisoned, especially one destined to carry the "Lord Sahib," which bore the title of bahadur (general), and had "a livery more gaudy than its fellows." On a word from the mahout the behemoth went down on all fours to receive its load. A ladder was placed against its side; Lord Hastings ascended and bade me seat myself beside him. My first ride was not altogether agreeable. The equilateral movement of the animal in its walk too much resembled that of a ship in a heavy swell. I remember being struck with the beauty of a parasitical plant which formed a succession of festoons over our heads. The elephant was ordered to gather it for me. The delicate manner in which it separated the tender parasite from the tree with its trunk could not have been outdone by the most delicate of human fingers. [illegible] my attention was arrested by the behavior of the elephant that was to carry the Governor General. It would not stand still for a moment, but kept constantly shaking the little ornamental bells of its howdah-cloth. On inquiry I found that, the "bahadur" being indisposed, this animal supplied its place, and that its contortions arose from the pleasure it felt at the gaudiness of its apparel. When I approached the conceited beast it was making a noise with its trunk like the purring of a cat. I used greatly to enjoy these elephantine rides. It was delightful to a youngster to be on terms of familiar intercourse with a man who, as a soldier, orator, or statesman, has been before the world for nearly half a century. On public occasions Lord Hastings was the most stately of human beings; you then saw only the haughty ruler over a hundred and odd millions of fellow-creatures; but tete-a-tete in a howdah he was totally different, would talk freely on all subjects, and make no secret of his disputes with the East India Directors, who were everything in his eyes but his "much approved and esteemed good masters." But the subject that most interested me was his military life, beginning from 1773, when, as Francis Rawdon, Captain of grenadiers, he had two bullets through his cap at the battle of Bunker Hill, up to 1817, when by strategically concentrating the armies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, on a given spot on a given day, he annihilated the Pindarrees and wholly subverted the power of the Mahrattas. There was one subject in which the General and his aid-de-camp took a common interest—we were both enthusiastic admirers of Shakespeare. As we were tolerably well up in our author, we used to recite to each other our favorite passages, and occasionally with such emphasis that I often wondered what the mahout must have thought of our seeming altercations. Like Horace Walpole, Lord Hastings was a stout apologist for Richard III., and differed from the view that his favorite bard has taken of his character. He contended that Richard was to be judged by the moral standard of the age in which he lived, and not by ours; that his humanity was on a par with that of Edward IV., and that in his short reign of [illegible] he did much to mitigate the tyrannical measures of his elder brother. I was amused to hear him defend Richard for cutting off the head of his ancestor—the Lord Hastings of that day. He thought that self-preservation fully warranted the deed.—Lord Albemarle's Recollections.

Remarkable Escape from Death.

The genius which is supposed to preside over the lives of drunken men, says the Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald, interposed to prevent a shocking accident at the depot last Saturday. For some time before the departure of the San Bernardino train, J. North was disporting himself about the depot in a maudlin state of intoxication. When the train started, he attempted to get aboard, but missed his hold and fell between the car and the depot platform. The space here intervening is only about eighteen inches wide, and North, being extremely thin, failed to get through to terra firma, where in all probability he would have fallen beneath the wheels and met a terrible death. The car being in motion on one side and the platform stationary on the other, the man went rolling along in obedience to the principles of friction, much after the fashion of a flour barrel or a rolling-pin. Strange as it may seem when extricated he was sound of wind, limb and body, and almost sober, [illegible] which [illegible] his hand was broken. It was a close pinch for a fat man, and we would not advise anybody else, drunk or sober, to try it.

The Pistol.

A recent dispatch from Philadelphia says: "Early this morning William K. Hastings, who is supposed to be a resident of Jackson Court House, Jackson county, Ohio, committed suicide by shooting himself in the forehead at League island. The body was taken to the Morgue, and on making an examination, a note was found in one of his pockets, which read as follows:

"'My watch give to Ike; live on and prosper. This terrible mystery will never be brought to light. I hope to God you may live to see the day the truth is not known, and I am helpless.'

"There was neither signature nor address to the letter; consequently no clew can be obtained as to the circumstances leading to the act."

POLAR RESEARCH.

Failure of the Last Arctic Expedition.

The British Arctic expedition has returned, having failed, as has every other of the numerous expeditions that within the past [illegible] years have been made to make the long-sought northwest passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The vessels that went out upon this expedition—the Alert and the Discovery—were by all odds the staunchest and best equipped that ever sailed for the Arctic seas on a voyage of discovery. Both were steamers of the most approved model, and equipped with [illegible] so [illegible] with everything that ingenuity and experience could suggest and money buy to provide for the comfort and safety of those on board. Besides being loaded down with supplies, they were accompanied by a third ship with a full cargo of supplies, which was discharged at Disco, where a depot was established. The expedition was under command of Capt. Nares, one of the best officers in the British navy, and an experienced Arctic navigator. The crews were selected from among a large number of men who had sailed the Arctic seas, and back of all was the British Government, ready to do all that could be done to insure the success of the expedition it sent out.

The expedition sailed from Portsmouth on the 29th of May, 1875, with the expectation that during the summer of that year the Alert and her consort could steam to the pole. But with all the resources at his command and concentrating these upon one vessel, the Alert, Capt. Nares found it impossible to penetrate further north than the 82d parallel. From there a detachment was dispatched northward over the ice by sledges. But such were the obstacles encountered that in seventy days they succeeded in penetrating one degree and twenty minutes further northward, though traveling 200 miles to accomplish it, when they reached 83 deg. 20 min. north, and were within 400 miles of the pole. They found ice 150 feet thick; the temperature for a fortnight was 59 below; once it fell to 104 below the freezing point, being the most intense cold ever experienced by human beings—at least by any who survived to report the fact. There were times when the sledge party could not advance one mile per day through the towering walls formed by the lapping of the great ice-ledges. The sufferings of this party were intense. Peterson, the interpreter, died from frost-bite. Three others died on the sledging expedition, and the survivors who reached the ship, after terrible suffering, returned only to report the impossibility of reaching the pole or of working the northwest passage. The expedition settles that there is no open Polar sea; that President Land, laid down in the maps of Capt. Hall, does not exist, and that the northwest passage does not exist.

The expedition passed beyond the verge of animal life. In those icy solitudes was neither bird nor beast; not even the Polar bear, nor the Arctic fox, nor the seal, were to be found, while while they were far beyond any tribe of the Esquimaux. Yet there were discovered coal fields, showing indubitably that in the vast cycles of the past, so many ages ago that the imagination can scarce comprehend it, the temperature was warm enough, from the earth's internal fires, for centuries upon centuries' growth of the ferns, which in other great cycles were transformed into the coal. The chief result of the expedition, however, is to demonstrate that the open Polar sea, and the Polar continent, and the northwest passage are myths; and that the periling of life in bootless Arctic explorations should cease.

BOTCHING THE AWARDS.

Is the American System a Failure?—Secret Action of the Centennial Commissioners—No Signatures of Judges to the Reports.

[Philadelphia Cor. New York Tribune.]

The pith of the system of awards has been punched out by the action of a rump of the Centennial Commission in secret session, so that little more than an empty and valueless form is left. This may seem like a strong statement, but it is borne out by all the facts the public can get at. For six weeks a small fraction of the Commission, clothed with all the powers of the whole body, has been tinkering with the reports of the judges in the interest of unsuccessful exhibitors, and with the aid of a newly constituted group of Judges on Appeals is preparing a supplementary list of awards. Now a good deal can be said in favor of making some additional awards. Among tens of thousands of articles it is probable that some may have been overlooked, and some palpable errors may have been inadvertently committed by the judges. Rightly constituted, a Board of Appeal Judges would seem to be a proper adjunct to a system of dealing out honors at a great exhibition. The fault of the Commission is that, in order to give the reports of these judges the same weight as those of the regular judges, and to cover up their own tinkering with the regular reports, they have at one blow broken up the whole carefully-devised and admirable system of signed reports, bearing the names and resting upon the responsibility of the judges making them. The very meat and marrow of the system adopted for the Centennial was that in case of each award the examining judge should make a written report stating the merits of the article for which it was recommended; that he should affix his signature to the report, and that the other judges of the same group should add theirs as approving it. Successful exhibitors were to be furnished with copies of these reports, with liberty to publish them. The reports, signed in most cases by experts of established reputation, were to be the real prizes, not the trumpery medals or the paper diplomas. After the Commission began to change some of the reports at the instance of exhibitors, it was seen that it would not do to send out these doctored documents, to be disavowed perhaps by the judges whose names were affixed; nor could the signatures of the regular group judges be placed to supplementary awards which they had no hand in making; so it was determined to change the whole system. The signatures are, therefore, to be suppressed on all the reports, and the awards are to go out signed by Director General Goshorn and Secretary Campbell instead of by the judges.

All Sorts.

[illegible] Red-headed girl, how's your mother?

A St. Louis paper speaks of a "mad dog owned by Mr. Henry Opperman."

"Read anything continuously," says Dr. Johnson, "and you will be learned."

The London Sunday Society has expressed itself in favor of opening educational [illegible] on [illegible].

[illegible] Andre's remains were taken from America and interred in Westminster Abbey in 1821.

A physician in Jacksonville, Ga., stabbed an antagonist in a fight with knives, and then saved his life by dressing the wound.

A negro slumbering on the sunny side of a haystack, in Whitfield county, Ga., the other day, was mistaken for a bear by a couple of colored men, and filled with buckshot.

Twenty years ago an Augusta (Me.) man invested the sum of $80 in Wisconsin lands. On Tuesday morning he received by mail, for the same property, a check for $1,800.

The new bug that eats carpets is an eighth of an inch long, is shaped like an egg, and is covered with fine bristles. Nothing pleases him better than to get into a suit of woolen clothes.

The Bishop of Manchester recently remarked that Lord Bacon was right when he said that a little science might make a man an atheist, but a larger knowledge of it brought man back to God.

A bridal party, on the way from church in Florissant, Mo., was saluted by the discharge of firearms, after the old German custom. One man used a revolver recklessly, and sent a bullet through the bridegroom's leg.

The fast train, called the Great Western Flying Dutchman, over the Bristol (England) railway, was lately noticed to emit streams of sparks from the wheels, and it was necessary to stop it for a while, until things got cooled off.

A Binghamton man is suing for a divorce from his wife on the plea that she has a glass-eye that is always open nights, and the "aspect makes him nervous." He coaxed her to close it with red sealing-wax, but that only increased his terror.

A Portland money-lender has come to grief, and deservedly. He procured and loaned a man $3,915 and got in return notes and a mortgage for $4,400 on five years at 8 per cent. and $107 besides in cash. A jury has found him indebted to the needy borrower in the sum of $1,138. Such a verdict is worth more than a dozen usury laws.

Gen. Tchernayeff, commanding the Servian forces, telegraphed lately to London that, on retaking a position he had lost, he found a number of Servian prisoners nailed to the earth by stakes, the feet and part of the bodies burned to a cinder, the ears cut off, the entrails displayed, and the faces distorted by agony. These atrocities were committed by regular troops.

During the last twenty years the British Government has added 573 ships to the navy by building, and has purchased 44 more. It has sold 110, broken up 125, and 31 have been lost. The number of ironclad vessels is rapidly increasing. The large ironclads are now all armed [illegible], and several have lately been sent to Malta for the Mediterranean fleet.

A clergyman in Quebec recently seized a bride as security for the non-payment of his fee. It was in vain that the husband called him the personification of meanness, and spoke about the difficulty attending the progress of a rich man toward the new Jerusalem; the parson held to his bond. The bridegroom had to give security for $1.25 ere he could take his bride to poverty and bliss.

UNDER THE ROSE.

I am cold and I am light
As the fleecy, floating snows.
If a thorn ran through my heart
You would only see the rose.
Fickle, shallow, thoughtless, gay?
And you truly think me so?
You may view the ocean's foam,
But its depths lie far below.
Come and stand by me awhile,
Where no other friend has been;
I will open wide my heart—
[illegible] show you all within.
What!—you start and turn away,
And the tears begin to fall?
Ah! my heart!—you thought it gay?
It is broken—that is all.

—From Scribner.

A Solano county (Cal.) man beat his wife so unmercifully that she died within a week. When the funeral passed through Knoxville, the husband was in a saloon shaking dice, and took off his hat and hurrahed. Early the next morning the brute was discovered lying in Knoxville creek, nearly dead, with boulders piled on top of him. A good Samaritan released the wretch, but it is thought the people will make it very warm for him if he remains in that neighborhood.

A Custom-House Fiend.

M. Vivier, the eccentric Frenchman who has made it the business of his life to worry the custom-house inspectors of all European countries, has returned to France. His wont formerly was to pack a huge trunk full of trowsers straps, such as are worn with gaiters, using hydraulic pressure if it were necessary to cram five bushels into a three-bushel space; then to lure the inspector to open it as a suspicious package, when naturally the contents were overset, and the whole force of the custom house was occupied for hours in putting them back. A powerful Jack-in-the-box was another device of his that was very successful. His latest performance at Boulogne is thus narrated: "M. Vivier placed his [illegible] traveling sack on the counter. 'What's in this traveling bag?' 'Two rattlesnakes,' said M. Vivier, meekly. The inspector jumped back and said it was unnecessary to open it. 'And in this valise?' 'Three more rattlesnakes,' softly responded M. Vivier. The inspector knitted his brows for a moment, consulted a tariff, and replied in an awful voice, 'That makes five rattlesnakes—there is no duty on rattlesnakes unless there are six or more. Pass the gentleman's luggage!'"

NOW IS THE TIME TO SECURE

BARGAINS!

Having Bought the

ENTIRE STOCK!

of GOODS of

Miller and Casebeer,

at the Assignees sale. We shall conduct business at the

OLD STAND

and offer

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS

In order to close out the same.

JAMES CASEBEER & CO.

Auburn Fruit House

The Largest Stock of GROCERIES & PROVISIONS ever opened out in DeKalb County

AT PRICES THAT DEFY COMPETITION

TEAS!
COFEES!
SUGAR!
Dried Fruits

ALL AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Dont Fail to Call and examine PRICES

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS.

HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heatin Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of always on hand at lowest prices.

HARDWARE STRE

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c, than ever before brought to Auburn. We are selling at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. DeWald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them; They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterens
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In American and Swiss Watches,

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that, I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine WatchesaSpecialty

Ladies Gold Watches,

Jewelry,

Clocks, Silver Ware!

GOLD PENS,

Ladies GOLD Chains,

Gents Chains,

Gold and Silver Rings,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich SoutlernRR

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom
Butler	1:56 p.m.	x 2.35 a.m.	* 37
Waterloo	2.09 "	2.46 "
Sedan	2.14	2.53
Corunna	2.27	2.57	8 36

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.20 pm	x 2.35 a m	7:10 a m
Sedan	2.58	2.45 "	6:22 "
Waterloo	2:21 "	2.28 "	6.25 "
Butler	2.46	2.57 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card April 16, 1876.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex
Pittsburgh	1 45 am	5 40 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm
Rochester	2 53 "		10 10 "	2 10 "
Alliance	5 10 "	8 40 pm	1 10 pm	5 50 "
Orrville	6 46 "		3 00 "	7 23 "
Mansfield	8 48 "		5 15 "	9 24 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	12 20 am	5 50 "	9 55 "
" lv.	9 40 am	12 25 am	6 10 pm	10 00pm
Forest	11 08 "	1 26 "	7 48 "	11 30 "
Lima	12 01 pm	2 20 "	9 15 "	12 40am
Ft. Wayne	2 10 "	4 25	12 01 am	2 50 "
Plymouth	4 12 "	6 15 "	3 00 "	5 00 "
Chicago	7 20 "	9 20 "	6 50 "	8 20 "

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 20 pm	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 25a
Plymouth	2 00 am	12 05 pm	9 00 "	9 25
Ft. Wayne	6 40 "	2 20 "	11 35 "	12 25p
Lima	8 50 "	4 20 "	1 50 am	2 50 "
Forest	10 08 "	5 23 "	3 06 "	4 15 "
Crestl's ar.	11 40 "	6 45 "	4 40 "	5 55 "
" lv.		7 05 pm	4 50 am	6 00a
Mansfield	11 28 pm	7 33 "	5 20 "	6 40 "
Orrville	2 16 "	9 25 "	7 12 "	9 10 "
Alliance	3 50 "	10 57 "	9 00 "	11 25 "
Rochester	5 59 "	1 04 am	11 12 "	2 14p
Chicago	7 05 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	3 20 "

Trains Nos. 3, 5, 6, run daily. Train No. 4 leaves Chicago except Sundays. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect July 9—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Cincinnati
Louisville	4 00pm
Indianapolis	6 35pm
Ft Wayne	10 35 "		4 p
Auburn	11 29 "		5 20
Waterloo	11 44 "		5 37
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 45 pm	5 30	6 15
Reading	1 46 "	7 00	7 24
Bankers	2 12 "	7 12	7 48
Jonesville	2 29 "	7 56	8 05
Jackson	3 35 "	9 25	9 20
Detroit	6 35 "	12 00	3 20 a
Grand Rapids	10 15 "	5 20	6 30
Lansing	6 08 "
Saginaw	9 10 "
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 40 a m
Lansing	10 55
Grand Rapids	6 00 "	11 55
Detroit	10 05 "	2 50p
Jackson Dep	12 40 pm	6 00	6 45a
Jonesville	1 45 "	8 00	7 55
Bankers	2 02 "	8 20	8 11
Reading	2 15 "	9 00	8 29
Ar Angola	3 07 "	10 00	9 30
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	3 48 "		1 17
Auburn	3 58 "		1 30
Auburn Junction			1 36
Fort Wayne Arrive	4 50 "		6 40p
Indianapolis	10 50 "		1 10
Louisville	9 20 am		8 05a
Cincinnati			11 00p

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 3, 1875.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Exp.	Ac.& E.	Accom.
lv New York	*8 pm		*2 55pm
Philadelphia	1 am		6 00
Baltimore	†	6 20pm	10 10
Washington		7 35	11 30
Wheeling	am	*8 00am	12 30
Bellaire		8 28	1 17
Barnesville		9 40	2 38
Cambridge	3	10 44	3 42
Zanesville	6	11 48	4 50
lv Columbus	7 05	12 10pm	4 15
New Ark	*6 35	2 30	6 25
Mt Vernon	7 48	3 22	7 32
Mansfield	9 24	1 [illegible]	9 06
Shelby	10 10	4 25	9 55
Chicago Junction	10 40	5 00	10 35
Tiffin	11 34	6 13	11 20
Fostoria	12 01pm	6 42	11 43
Deshler	12 55	7 48	11 36am
Defiance	1 47	8 51	1 27
Auburn	3 00
Auburn Junction	3 03	10 40	2 43
Garrett	3 25	11 00	3 00
Avilla	3 38	11 15
Milford Junction	4 40	12 24am
Walkertown Junction	5 44	1 43
Chicago	8 10	4 40	10

GOING EAST.

Chicago	†8 52am	†5 08	†9 40
Walkertown Junction	11 50	8 06	1 15
Milford Junction	12 51pm		2 38
Avilla	1 52		3 55
Garrett	2 20	10 30	4 20am
Auburn Junction		10 35	4 25
Auburn	2 25
Defiance	3 34	11 45	5 47
Deshler	4 22	12 36am	6 30
Fostoria	5 12	1 26	7 40
Tiffin	5 36	1 49	8 13
Chicago Junction	6 40	2 45	9 30
Shelby Junction	7 25	3 17	10 10
Mansfield	7 55	3 40	10 35
Mt. Vernon	9 28	4 51	1 59
Ar Newark	10 25	5 40	1 00pm
Lv Zanesville	11 50	6 30	2 30
Cambridge	12 50am	7 20	3 21
Barnesville	1 55	8 14	4 31
Ar Bellaire	3 00	9 20	5 30
Wheeling	5 10	10 35	6 50
Washington	†5 20pm	9 20pm	7 00
Baltimore	6 50	10 00	8 50
Philadelphia	12 00	2 35am	*1 20pm
New York	4 15am	6 15	5 10

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALL AND SALOON.

On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, whi will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. A kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

CHICAGO ROCKISLAND

AND

Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for

JOLLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENON LACON, PEORI, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE Of CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows;

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	5 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all point in Kansas, Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement o Palace Drawing room and Sleeping cars, which fo external beauty, and interrior arrangements fo the comfort, convenience and luxury of passenger are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars o the kind in the world.

Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines':

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	465 Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	471 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	490 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	261 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hannibal, Quincy, Keokuk,

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA, COLORADO AND CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New England.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (810 miles), and between Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles,)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOTS & SHOES

Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repairing promptly attended to.
Remember place
At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

M Boland

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 23rd, 1876. Number 49.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year.........$2. | Six Months,......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
a Square	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	60 00
ne Column......	15 00	40 00	60 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

RICKEL and TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Moody.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellow's Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowen.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Good sample rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.

B. SCHNIDERS, Prop'r.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2,00 per day.

Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk.

O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

A. J. NICHOLS,

Wishes to inform the people of Auburn and vicinity that he has opened up a first-class

Watch, Clock & Jewelry Store,

in Bodine & Siler's drug store opp. the Swineford House. Parties wishing anything done in that line I would be pleased to have them call and see. Also fine engraving done.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an export corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

Shearer & Wilson.

THE above named gentlemen are conducting a Paining Mill on South Jackson street They are prepared to execute all kinds of scrol work, re-sawing turning matching and moulding of all discriptions, and can, in consequence give the best figures possible, having this advantage over competitors. Their work for the past is a sufficient recommendation as to their competency and responsibility. They also take contracts for all kinds of wooden work.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

IT IS HERE.

WHAT

The Largest F Stock of Fine

Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this line of good can get them from 100 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

He prepared to send out rigs at anytime and a Reasnable prices.

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements—

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

re now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are cry reasonable and we solicit the public to give call an ascertain our prices.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the larhest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. do and see hislargestock

THE RED SIGNAL.

"The closest run I ever had in my lite," said an engineering friend of mine to me one day, "was once when I was a fireman on a freight train on the N. Y. & E R. R. The engineer I ran with was a Scotchman, by the name of Joe. Williams, and as a general thing, he was one of the kindest and most obliging men I ever came in contact with. I was a green hand at railroading when I first started with him, but so patiently and assidiously did he instruct me, that in three months time I could run the engine—in fair weather, as the sailors say—almost as well as he could himself. I was never weary of trying to understand everything about the machine, and he was never weary of teaching me and in this way we beguiled the tedium and monotony of many a long trip."

"Joe had only one fault—I say only one, and I really believe his qualities were all virtues with the exception of this—he drank. That is, he did not habitually drink to excess, but he was over fond of his stimulants, and occasionally would take so much as to make it extremely hard not to deviate from a straight path. I remember one morning in the early part of June, some children with whom we were acquainted by sight stood at the top of a steep grade, and as we slowly passed they threw on the engine a really handsome bequet, with a note attached donating the flowers to the engineer. Joe was fairly delighted He shouted back his thanks and then thrust his roman nose into the posies voraciously. At the next station he procured a tin horn, croked up one end, wedged the flowers in the other, having filled it with water, and then fastened the whole arrangement on one side of the cab house, where they rode safely to the ene of the route.

On the back trip Joe got slightly tight, and while in this catamose state, his bump of gratitude was so enlarged that he bought a big package of candy some six or seven pounds, I should think, and brought it on board for the benefit of his flower girls. He kept it under his seat until just as we were passing the house where the children lived, and then he got up, and with a huge effort he pushed it off, and down it went under the wheels of the engine and, of course, was run over by the whole train, and ground into the finest dust.

"Confound the luck," muttered Joe as he carefully lowered himself on his seat again, 'It might just as well gone the other way as to have rolled in there, I should think, but I s'pose they'll get some of it anyhow.'

'But the time I refer to now was the Fourth of July. We were running what was called the morning freight, and had to start every day by half past four o'clock. On this morning Joe was late. I had got the engine out on the track ready for business, and was just debating in my own mind whether I had not better run down to the depot and hitch on to the train, when suddenly the missing gentleman came up, and I could see by his appearance that he had been celebrating the Fourth with rather more than his usual degree of success. He planted his feet firmly and squarely and walked with a firm decided step, as if he was not altogether certain of his footing or his relation to surrounding objects, but was bound to go through anyhow.

'All right?' said he without raising his head, as he came up to where I was leaning against the running board.

'All right, I believe,' I replied.

'A curious all right,' he returned stooping down and taking a hasty view ot the undergear, 'there's a nut loose on one of them center bolts, at any rate.'

'He was not so drunk but he could see that. In a few minutes we got started, picked up our load and were fairly off. It was a clear morning and bid fair for a fine day, but about sunrise it began to get misty, and we were soon enveloped in one of the heaviest fogs I ever saw.

At H——, Eben Capron, another engineer, who was off of duty for that day got on with us. He was going home to spend the Fourth, and ours was the first conveyance that came along. When he saw that it was all Joe could do to carry himself straight, he offered to run the train for him as far as he went, but Joe declined.

'I am responsible for its safety,' he said, 'and I will put it through all right if the danged old steam don't give out.'

Thicker and ticker came the fog, until we could scarcely see the length of two cars ahead Joe was very careful indeed, and did not run as fast as is usual at such times. In fact he went to slow that at last Eben commenced to banter him on the prospect of getting to the end of his route sooner than could naturally be expected.

'Well, look here,' said Joe. 'I'm drunk and you know it, and if I should go fast and run the train off the track, I reckon you'd both of you swear it was the fault of the drunken engineer.'

So you see candor was one of Joe's virtuous bumps.

By the time we got to C——the fog had partly lifted. Here we had a good deal of switching to do, and just as we were ready to start the conductor came forward and said:

'Nothing for P——; keep straight through to E——. You have gone so confounded slow that you are almost an hour behind time. I would have hurried you up if it hadn't been for the fog. All right, go ahead,,' and he waved his hand and started back towards the rear car.

'Well, I'll go fast enough for you, if that is what you want,' muttered Joe, in a voice so loud as to be heard by the conductor.

'What did you say,' asked the conductor.

'I said if it clears away I guess I'll be able to make up the time before I get to S——.

'Well.'

Of course that was all that he could say, so he kept on back, and Joe grasped the handle and continued his reflections.

'He'd have hurried me up if it hadn't been for the fog, eh? Wonder if I wouldn't have hurried up if it hadn't been for the fog. Blast him! I've got a good run now and I will give him enough.

'Don't bust the boiler, Joe,' said Eben laughing.

'No fear of that, she'll stand two hundred and not strain. Pile in more wood and keep the fire jumping for it's the Fourth of July,' said Joe.

'Faster and faster we went until we had attained a speed of about thirty miles an hour At this juncture the conductor began to be a little afraid, for it is still so foggy that we could not see over half a mile ahead, and he signaled a little slower.

'Ah ha, you are scared, are ye?' grimly remarked Joe, and with a slight exertion of his brawny arm, from over which his greasy sleeve had hastily been rolled, he added another five miles to our already frightful speed. At this Eben felt called upon to remonstrate.

'Joe you are getting to wild. Do you know that you are driving now nigh on to forty miles an hour?'

Well, I shan't go any faster, I think if I keep at this gait I will soon make up for lost time.'

'Yes, but you may run us all off the track and break our necks.'

'That's the way with you, Capron, you are always afraid of your neck.'

'Well, I've got a reason to be, for I really believe you are drunk.'

'What makes you think so,' inquired impurturbable Joe.

'Because you are tearing along this misty morning at double your ordinary speed.'

'Well, now, Capron, I have known you to drive a third faster than we are going now.

'Yes, but I wasn't running a freight train though, and it wasn't a foggy morning either.'

'Humph, I'd like to know if a freight car can't run as fast as—'

He was interrupted again by the conductor signaling a little slower.

'There, do you see that, you will have the conductor here pretty soon,' said Eben.

'Well, the fact is, there's a vessel at P———waiting to pass, and I want to get over the bridge before it is opened.'

You see the river there was navigable and was crossed by the drawbridge, and very often we had to stop on one side and let the vessel pass. When it was open there was a red ball hoisted in the day time and a red light at night.

'Then you are nearing it,' continued Eben, 'for there is the last post before you reach the river, and—supposing the draw is open. Joe! you had better slack up.'

'What for? The signal isn't raised.'

'But you could not see it for the fog.'

"Oh pshaw, there isn't any fog now. I—'

'Yes, there is a fog now. For God's sake, Joe, don't murder us. Here let me take your place until we get across the river.'

But Joe wouldn't do it.

'I can manage the engine well enough said he, 'I'll risk—'

The sentence never was finished. He was standing up looking out ahead, when all at one, as if he had been struck by a cannon shot, he dropped into his seat, and his face turned as white as a sheet, while the black streaks of soot and grease stood out in horrible contrast. He had seen the red signal! Eben and I both saw it at the same time and while I whistled down brake, he grasped the lever and reversed the engine. It was plainly evident that it would be impossible for us to come to a full stop before we reached the bridge, but when men have death staring them in the face, as we had, their very instinct prompts them to do whatever they can to avert the threatened destruction, and our only recourse lay in stopping the train, which, if it did not save us, would at least prolong our lives for a few seconds.

'And the conductor thought the same thing, for he crazily signaled 'stop,' after he had heard the whistle, and when the train was running by its own momentum. When I first say the fatal ball I felt as if some one had suddenly pulled my heart by the roots, but in the next breath I believe I was as cool as I am at this moment. My soul seemed to be strung up to such a height as to be level with the emergency, and I could see nothing but the danger ahead and the means of averting it.

'As to Joe, he saw that everthing was done, or being done, and he sat there like a block of marble. His drunkeness was all gone. I suppose that in a single second after he saw the signal he was as sober as he ever was in his life. His first words were—and he spoke just like a man talking in his sleep:

'Well, boys, I'll never get drunk any more as long as I live.'

'No, I suppose not,' replied Eben, as he gave the lever another jerk, 'for probably you won't live more than a quarter of a minute. I wouldn't give a pin for the lives of either of us, if we go down that embankment.'

At this Joe got up and took another look at the situation.

'My God!' said he in a whisper, 'we're gone, sure as the draw is open, and there's a sloop just passing.'

'Well, jump,' returned Eben, in a quick voice, 'I'm enough to run the engine into the river, you'll pr—'

'Jump yourself, if you want to,' Joe answered; 'I hope I shall die, if the train gets smashed But—that craft isn't moving, she is broadside to—the end of the bridge is swing towards us unless my eye-sight—'

'That's so, they are shutting it. God help us, we may be saved yet.'

Sure enough, the bridge was rapidly swinging into place. The tender had evidently seen us coming, and was trying to close the draw against we came up, but it was a doubtful case. We had got so near now that we could see the man on the bridge working as if his own life, not ours, depended upon his efforts. Eben was hugging the lever with all his might, and Joe had convulsively grasped one of the forward faucets as if to study himself, and for the last five seconds of that awful suspence I do not believe there was a single heart beat on the engine. It seemed as if every nerve and every fiber stood still in quivering anticipation. Three ticks more of the clock and we should have rolled over the abutment, but with a dull thug the bridge swung to its place and we were on it, and passing over safe and sound.

'God bless you Smith!' shouted Joe to the bridge tender as we run past, and he waved his cap in wild, volatile joy.

As soon as we were fairly over the bridge, Eben sank back in his seat as if totally exhausted, and it seemped as if Joe cound hardly stop pouring out his thanks to him for his timely aid.

I felt weak, too, now that the excitement was over, and for some time was scarcely able to lift a stick of wood. We afterwards learned that the bridge was open to let a small vessel pass, but the bridge tender heard the train, and knew by the sound that it was coming at an unusual rate of speed. Suspecting that something was wrong he signaled the vessel to stop, and closed the bridge as quick as he could, and as it proved, just in time to save us all from destruction.

As to the conductor, he was so grateful for not having an opportunity to jump from a way car, that at the next station he telegraphed the matter to the officers of the road, as a consequence Joe was suspended from duty, but upon his faithfully promising that he would not drink another drop of anything intoxicating while he was in their employ, he was in a few days reinstated again in his old position, and I believe, kept his word. When I came out here he was running on the night express, but I think, even now, that he never sees Eben Capron without begging his pardon for getting drunk in a fog, and coming so near taking him into the river.

* * *

When a Chicago girl received a dispatch from Wisconsin, announcing that her lover was going off with consumption, she telegraped to his friend: 'Has poor Jeffry kept up his life insurance?' The friend telegraphed back: 'Policy for $10,000 in your favor is paid up till May 9th, 1877. Poor Jeffry cannot last after the first cold snap!' The young lady then wondered philosophically how she would look in black, and telegraphed to Jeffry: 'Darling, I will be with you on Tuesday, never quit you during life. Lurline.' 'It will be a sad loss to you, my love,' said her mother. 'Yes, ma,' sobbed the girl, 'but the loss is fully covered by insurance.'

"Only Waiting."

Mr. Saxtonbury has money in the savings bank, and the wife generally has charge of the bank-book. She happened to open it the other day, and was surprised to find that he had got hold of the book and drawn $50 only the day before without having said anything to her. When he came home to supper she asked him if he couldn't spare ten dollars.

'Can't spare a shilling,' he replied; 'never was so hard up in my life.'

'What has become of that $50 you drew from the bank a fews days ago?' she demanded, trying to catch his eye.

'That money—fifty—dollars—ahem. That money I bet on Indiana,' he hesitatingly replied.

'And you lost it!'

'No, my dear, I won $100 with it. I did not want you to know anything of it until I brought home the seal-skin jacket, but as you have found out, why I must explain.'

'When do you get the money?' she anxiously asked.

'Oh, it wont be long. The official count has been made, and as soon as the returns are sent to the Secretary of State he will forward the official majority to Washington, and the Secretary of the Navy will telegraph me the result. Do you prefor brown or black seal.

'I will take brown, my dear,' she smilingly replied, 'and I do hope the returns will be here by Saturday.

Days will pass, weeks will glide away and long next May, atter that good woman is almost worn out with anxiety, Mr. Saxtonbury will suddenly ascertain that he lost his $50 insead of winning $100, and promise to ger her a silk dress in the fall.—Detroit Free Presar

* * *

She Stopped Her Paper.

She came bouncing through the sactum like a canon ball, and without pausing to say, "How d'ye do?" she brought her umbrella down with a mighty crash and shouted at the top of her voice:

"I want you fellows to stop my paper that's what!'

"All right! madam."

"Stop it right off, too!" she persisted, whacking the table again, for I waited long enough for you to do the square thing!'

She quieted down a moment as we rapidly ran our fingers down the list of names, and when we reached hers and scratched it out she said;

"There now, mebby you'll do as you ought to after this, and not slight a woman just 'cause she's poor. If some rich folds happen to have a little red headed, bandy-leged, squint-eyed puny, wheezy squaller born to them, you puff it to the skies and make it out a darling little angel; but when poor people have a baby, you don't say a word about it, even if it is the squarest-toed, blacest haired biggest-headed, noblest littles kid that ever kept a woman awake at night. That's what is the matter, and that is why I stopped my paper.'

And she dashed out as rapidly as she came.

* * *

The small-pox seems to be dying away in San Francisco, but a severe and somewhat fatal diphtheria is coming, and which is extending more or less over the States. There is much throat disease in California now, caused by the late sudden change of weather—and at any rate it seems almost epidemical. Many here, says the Sacramento Bee, have been expecting that when the wet, cool weather came the small-pox would spread from San Francisco into the interior, but so far there are no indication thereof—and the mild weather now prevailing in San Francisco may help the authoritis to stamp out the distemper before the real wet weather sets in, and thus save the interior from the scourge.

* * *

An infernal machine of some kind, inclosed in a flimsy Saratoga trunk exploded in the baggage-car of an express train from Philadelphia to New York, over the Pennsylvania railroad, on the evening of the 27th ult. The car was set on fire, but was soon quenched. Parts of the machie were found in the wreck, consisting of a small pistol and fragments of clock-work.

* * *

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

NUMBER 9 TO NUMBER 1.

BY ETHEL LYNN.

"Well, Marian, fair eldest sister,
I've come. You are sorry, I know,
For I'll yell, like the other eight babies,
Now grown to a down-sloping row,
And I'll hiccough and stare and fall over,
And tear ev'ry novel and note;
I'll grab at your ear-rings and bracelet,
And twist off the tie at your throat.

I'll wake up at 6 in the morning,
And cry to get up and be dressed,
When poor little mother is weary,
And needs ev'ry moment of rest.
I'll hit little Ann, if I choose to,
I'll take Kitty's doll by its clothes,
And I'll hammer it over the fender
Till it hasn't a scrap of a nose.

I'll make the cat dance in your basket,
And tangle your knitting and wool;
I'll muss up my father's shirt-bosom,
And give Tommy's white hair a pull.
I won't have to be whipped for it, either,
As you were. You poor "Number One,"
You got all the discipline over,
While I come in time for the fun.

For the mother, you see, is so weary,
And tired of nine little cares,
And papa too busy to mind us
Whilst struggling with business affairs.
But then, when your heart is nigh broken,
And, weary and worried, you cry,
I'll come with my own little apron
To wipe off the tear from your eye.

And putting both fat arms around you,
I'll kiss your soft, velvety cheek,
And I'll tell you I'll try to be better,
As plain as a baby can speak.
And then, "Number One," you will hug me,
You know, to your warm, loving breast,
And will never tell mother your trouble,
But leave her to health-giving rest.

And if I wilt down in the summer,
And, tooth-cutting, whimper and pine,
Don't I know how your tenderest touches
Are waiting for small "Number Nine?"
Ah! if I should slip out of trouble,
To the bright other side of the sky,
And your arms, that are tired, were empty,
Don't I know how you'd, sorrowing, cry?

It's queer how they love us—we babies—
It don't seem as tho' we could pay;
And yet, how the arms close about us
To keep the dark shadow away!
Just wait a few years, sister, darling,
I'll grow up as quick as I can;
And then, won't I smooth the rough places
For you, when I've grown up a man?

AFTER THE FIRE.

BY ANNA SHIELDS.

The fire, from which we date in the family, it being the great event therein for years, seemed at the time it occurred the climax of a series of misfortunes that had been falling for five years upon our devoted heads.

First, we lost a dear father, who left the family already mentioned, namely, mamma, Meta, Freddie and myself. Meta was but 14 when father died, I 12, and Freddie but 3 years of age. There was no money for us after the business was closed, and mamma thankfully accepted an offer of her Uncle Gordon's to be his housekeeper, and so secure a home for all of us.

Such a home! Uncle Gordon Crofts was a man nearly 70, strong and vigorous, with a most ungovernable temper, miserly and suspicious, who had lived alone for about forty years. What sudden spasm of generosity made him open the doors of his wretched, tumble-down old house to us, we never knew; but certainly he repented the arrangement as soon as his proposal was accepted.

Not one meal passed our lips that we were not reminded of its cost; not an article of our poor clothing was renewed without deep groans over our extravagance, and we were put out at once—Meta and myself—to learn trades, I being apprenticed to a milliner, Meta to a bookbinder.

I know now that scant as our wages were they really covered the expense of our poor food and worse lodging; but in those days we were too young and inexperienced to venture to dispute our uncle's oft-repeated assertion that we were "eating him out of house and home." As for poor mamma, with all the housework, sewing, washing and cooking upon her hands, surely she earned the little she spent.

But in spite of our poverty and hard work, Meta blossomed from a thin, gawky girl into a maiden beautiful, modest and tender, a sweet flower amidst our thorns. I was never even pretty, and I fairly worshiped Meta's golden curls, soft, brown eyes, and clear complexion. She was slender, not very tall, but graceful in every gentle movement.

When Brent Ellis discovered Meta's attractions she was 18, and still working at her trade in the bindery, which Brent's father owned. Another trouble followed quickly upon this little romance, for old John Ellis, after storming and raging like a maniac at the presumption of one of the "hands" in daring to be sufficiently attractive to win the love of the son and heir of his magnificence, dismissed Meta at an hour's notice.

As he owned the only book-bindery establishment in the town, and Meta knew no other trade, affairs looked black enough for us.

Brent himself was as true as steel, and wanted Meta to marry him at once, promising every devotion of which true love is capable. But, in spite of her gentleness, Meta had some pride, and with quiet dignity refused to enter any family where she was unwelcome. Mother, too, at this crisis, informed Brent that his visits had better cease, and Meta did not speak one word of dissent.

I stormed, of course. I always do storm when I am angry, but nobody ever came round to my opinion, no matter how I raved, and John Ellis certainly did not. To be sure, he did not hear me, or that might have made some difference.

Midwinter found us in this strait. Meta out of employment, helping mother about the house, and patiently bearing Uncle Gordon's sneers at her idleness and fine-lady airs; I trimming hats and meekly handing over my wages to our uncle; Freddie still at the town-school, but with an apprenticeship looming in the spring.

In January Uncle Gordon was taken ill, the first serious sickness of his life. He would have no doctor till absolutely forced to call one in, by increasing pain and weakness, and, when the long-delayed examination was over, it proved to have been made too late.

In just one month after his first pain our uncle died, leaving a brief will conferring all his property, the house included, upon our mother, his "well-loved niece, Sarah Morton."

But where was the property? Not a dollar was deposited in the bank, not an inch of real estate was held in his name, save the miserable lot of land upon which the house stood, and which barely yielded vegetables for the table.

We turned the house upside down and inside out, but not one dollar rewarded our search. Finally we sadly concluded that the stinginess we had seen, the lamentations we had heard, were the result of real, downright poverty, and not the affectations of a miser reluctant to open his purse.

And we struggled along somehow, mother sewing a little, Meta doing house-work, and I still at the milliner's. We did not starve. That is the record of the next four months—a struggle for mere bread, and the saving of actual existence, nothing more.

And, to cap the climax, came the fire.

It was a night in June—a clear, starlight night—when heaven seemed to smile upon earth, and I, though weary enough, was sleepless. Meta lay by my side, wakeful as myself, and told me, in soft whispers, that she had met her lover that day, when on some household errand, and he had urged her sorely to consent to marry him, though his father had not relented.

"I don't know but I would," I said. "After all, he is a man, and must be able to care for you somehow. This life is killing you."

And as I spoke Meta cried:

"I smell smoke!"

"Smell it!" I cried, starting up. "I see it!"

There it was, coming in at the cracks of the worn-out door, little threads at first, bu filling the room rapidly.

We caught up some clothing and rushed to the door. As we opened it the flames burst out on the landing and staircase, forcing us to retreat. Mother and Freddie slept in rooms beyond ours on the other side, and we rushed across to them. It took but a moment to rouse them, and we all four scrambled, half-dressed, from Freddie's window to a shed, and so to the yard.

By this time the neighbors were wakened, the fire-bell was ringing, and the whole block about us was glowing in the flames shooting up from our old house to the sky.

Fancy, if you can, the group we formed, as we stood huddled together in the yard, and watched everything we owned upon earth being licked up by greedy tongues of flame, swallowed in clouds of smoke. Meta and I could see our bedroom closet and the scanty stock of clothing there, and count the dearly-purchased articles as they were consumed.

"My poor black alpaca," Meta said, watching the lurid trimming creeping up the skirt. "We might have snatched that. It hangs on the door."

"See my bandbox toppling over," I said. "The bonnet will have flame-colored feathers in two minutes."

Mother was too much crushed to share in our grim jesting, and Freddie was trembling with excitement and terror.

The firemen did their duty bravely, but were too late to save anything, and dawn found us homeless, with nothing left of our house but blackened walls and a tall chimney, clearly defined against the rosy sky of a June sunrise.

Then—I shall love him all my life for that—as we stood utterly desolate and destitute, Brent Ellis, who had worked like a giant at the fire-engines, came, all blackened and streaming with sweat, and said:

"Marry me, Meta, now, this hour, so that I may have a right to shelter all of you. Come, love, come. I have a little fortune of my own my father cannot touch, and it will keep us from want, if no more."

But Meta only thanked him gently, and clung closer to our mother. We began to realize our scant raiment in the daylight, and were glad to accept the offer of a neighbor for temporary shelter. Others came forward, and we had soon an incongruous assortment of cast-off clothes at our disposal, and arrayed ourselves as we best could, presenting a ludicrous appearance enough, if any of us could have raised spirits enough to laugh.

But we were not exactly hilarious! Utter and entire destitution seemed to have fallen upon us, at last, after our long fight with that traditional wolf who had prowled so near our doors for the last five years. We salted our cups of charity-offered coffee with our tears, and were blind to the charms of griddle-cakes hospitably pressed upon us.

Neighbors flocked in to offer advice and consolation, and we were touched by most generous offers of home and food from several, until we could "look around."

Where? What could we look for? Our only home lay in ashes, our sole possessions were entirely consumed!

For three days we were numbed by despairing sorrow. "We" means the three women, for Freddie seemed to look upon the whole business as a pleasurable change in the monotony of his existence. He had not been so well fed—indeed, I may say well stuffed—in five years; for all the neighbors called him in, whenever he passed, to offer tit-bits. He had an entire suit of clothes that were out-grown by one of the richer boys, and, fitting Freddie, clothed him better than he had been clothed since his father died; and, best of all, he took holiday, nobody having sufficiently recovered their wits to send him to school.

As soon as the ruins of our home were cold enough to admit of visiting, parties of boys began to dig in the ashes for half-burned property, and Freddie harrowed our sensitive feelings fifty times a day by rushing in with buttons, scraps of metal, and ruined treasures of every description.

Meta and I summoned up sufficient energy on the third day to visit my employer, who agreed to take my sister for a short time as saleswoman. We came back to our temporary home, somewhat encouraged, to find Brent had been there, and fully enlisted mamma on his side.

While she was repeating his arguments, and Meta listened with a smile of quiet happiness at her lover's constancy, Freddie burst in.

"Come—quick! quick!" he cried. "We've found a big iron box under the chimney-place; I can't lift it, it is so heavy. Oh, come!"

He was fairly dragging mamma from her seat, and, hastily throwing a shawl around her, she followed him, Meta and myself bringing up the rear.

Truly enough, there was a large box under the chimney-place, in a hollow, bricked all around, which had evidently had an opening we had never seen. It was large and heavy, requiring the united forces of the family to pull it from its resting-place, and carry it to the barn, where we put it down upon the floor.

There was no key, but a strong look, and after long deliberation we sent for a hatchet, and by dint of much perseverance and strength burst it open. Within—as by that time we half expected—we found Uncle Gordon's hoarded treasures. Bonds to the amount of fifty thousand dollars, with the coupons untouched for six years; some six hundred dollars in gold; a case of uncut gems, not very valuable; a package of private letters; an old-fashioned watch and chain; and a miniature portrait of a lady, opening out a field for our speculations as to some romance of the past we had never suspected in our uncle's life.

There was no one to dispute our mother's claim to the property, all safely deposited in bank before sunset and our troubles seemed, at last, to be over.

John Ellis, whom I hate most cordially, and shall while I live, called upon mamma in a few days, and most graciously withdraw his opposition to his son's marriage. We took his condescension for exactly what it was worth, but were more than happy at the thought of rewarding Brent's faithful love.

Our new house, built upon the site of the old one, is but a roomy, two-story cottage, but homelike and cosy, and our house-warming was the wedding of Brent and Meta, where Freddie and I officiated as groomsman and bridesmaid, and dear mamma seemed to throw off twenty years of her age when she put on her lavender silk dress and wound her heavy hair in a coronet upon her head, in honor of the bridal.

Brent would have none of mamma's money settled upon his wife, but was a loving adviser as to its investment for our support, and we make occasions for present-giving toward the housekeeping treasures of the young couple, to keep up something of a fair division of the income.

Freddie plumes himself greatly upon the fact that his bright eyes discovered the hoard that so improved our fortunes; and it has become a habit with us to date all events in our family history as having occurred "before the fire," or, "after the fire."

His Pathetic Article.

On the Bay City train coming down yesterday was a passenger whose strange actions drew the attention of every one in the car. He had a newspaper in one hand and a handkerchief in the other, and he would read for a minute or two and then turn away and weep. After this action had continued for some time one of his fellow-passengers approached him and tenderly remarked:

"My friend, you seem to feel sorrowful."

"So I do," was the choked reply.

"Have you had some great bereavement?"

"Not very lately. I was reading a pathetic article in this paper, and it calls up old recollections."

"Let me see it," asked the gentleman, and taking the paper he found that the article commenced with: "All persons are hereby forbidden to trust my wife after this date, as she has left my bed and board," and so forth. He didn't know what to say in reply, and as he handed the paper back without a word, the grief-stricken man remarked:

"I haven't been so affected in fifteen years!"

"Why, what has this to do with you?" was the surprised query.

"Th-there's a fond wife turned out on—on the world," replied the weeper; "no home, no cash, no credit. Poverty drives her to sleep in a barn. During the night she rolls off the hay-mow, strikes on the fanning-mill, breaks her neck, and is found dead the next day! The husband and seven children gather around the body, and—and—but can you imagine that scene and not weep? Lend me some of that tobacco and leave me alone with my grief. I feel like a spring break-up, and I know it's better for the system than quinine."

They stood back and let him grieve, and he didn't seem to get over it a bit until he saw a dog-fight on the platform at a station. That entered his soul like a ray of sunshine, and as the train moved on he stood up and said:

"I'll bet any cadaver in this car $5 that the wall-eyed dog gets licked!"—Detroit Free Press.

An Extraordinary Marriage.

At the Liverpool Court of Passage, recently, a case of breach of promise of marriage was heard. The plaintiff, Miss Jane Callaghan, aged 30, had been at one time a young lady of considerable personal attractions, and was not now devoid of good looks. She was daughter of a respectable widow, who carried on the business of a furniture broker, and the defendant was a bric-a-brac collector or merchant. He was a Persian by birth, and he trafficked principally in articles derived from the East, and carried on large and lucrative undertakings. The defendant promised to marry her on several occasions, and, although not a Christian, he had, at all events, some strange notions as to the solemnity with which marriages in this country were sanctified. He objected to the Christian ceremony, and proposed to marry her according to what he called the "Eastern rite." She was simple enough to believe him, and the mode in which he performed this extraordinary ceremony was as follows: He took down a sword, and, having unsheathed it, he pronounced some cabalistic words in Persian, and went through a long and intricate ceremony. He then swore upon the sword, and made her do the same, following up this by drawing up a nuptial declaration in his own language, and finishing by saying that they were married according to the Eastern rite. He promised that he would take her to Paris, where he would marry her according to the Christian religion. This promise had never been fulfilled, but, having been deceived by it, she had given birth to a child in 1871, and was now again about to become a mother. The jury found for the plaintiff; damages, £75.—Liverpool Post.

EXTRAORDINARY TRIUMPH of science. This new principle, new way to cure cough and consumption, Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. As rapidly as the globule dissolves in the mouth, a healing gas if formed and inhaled, which cures throat and lung disease. Trial boxes, 25 cents, by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut st., St. Louis.

CASTING A BRONZE STATUE.

How the Work is Done—Molding Conrad's Figure of a Soldier for Hartford.

The lower half of Conrad's statue of a soldier, to be erected in Hartford, was cast in bronze in Fischer's foundry, Forsyth street, on Saturday. The upper half has been finished. The figure is heroic in size, and represents a young Union infantry soldier in uniform, including overcoat, and carrying a musket. The casting of a large piece in bronze is a delicate operation, requiring care and artistic skill. The making of a plaster mold from the original model, then a plaster figure from that mold, and finally from the figure a sectional mold into which to run the metal, requires many weeks of skilled labor. The element of luck enters largely into the culminating attempt to cast, as flaws in the metal often cause failures, imposing weeks of additional labor. Consequently the dozen workmen employed on Saturday were visibly anxious, and a knot of spectators employed the entire afternoon in interestedly watching the process.

The large box, called a "flask," containing the mold, clamped firmly with iron, was let down with a crane into a cavity, and flowed over, so that only a funnel protruded. This was close to a great brick furnace, in which the bronze was heating over a great, roaring fire. The metal, as it was slowly converted into liquid, was closely observed by the foreman. A glimpse through an aperture showed it boiling furiously like water, and so hot that an iron bar stuck into it became red almost instantly. When the iron could be withdrawn without any bronze clinging to it, the compound was deemed ready. An immense metal bucket, attached to a powerful crane, was swung under the end of a spout, the furnace was tapped, and a molten stream ran out. Sparks flew in every direction, faces were shielded hastily from the heat, and the dusty plaster images of Franklin, the Vanderbilt bas-relief and other relics of previous jobs were made to glow. The bucket was nearly filled, a turn of the crane took it over the flask, and the liquid was, by tipping th bucket, poured into the mold, from which the suddenly-heated air rushed through vent pipes with a noise like escaping steam. Some of the bronze slopped over and set fire to the wood floor, and the water that quenched the blaze made so much steam that nothing else could be seen for five minutes. The casting was perfect.—New York Sun.

The Greatest Banks.

The paid-up capital of the Nevada Bank, $10,000,000 in gold coin, stands, with the exception of the Bank of Commerce of New York, unequaled by that of any bank of the United States. The Bank of Commerce has also a capital of $10,000,000, but it is in currency. The largest bank in Canada is the Bank of Montreal, with a capital of $12,000,000. The Merchants Bank, in the same city, has a capital of $8,000,000. The following is a list of the only banks in the United States with a capital of $5,000,000 and upward; Bank of Commerce, New York, $10,000,000; Nevada Bank, San Francisco, $10,000,000; C. R. R. and Banking Company, Savannah, $7,500,000; Bank of California, San Francisco, $5,000,000; Merchants' Exchange Bank, San Francisco, $5,000,000; American Exchange, New York, $5,000,000; Fourth National, New York, $5,000,000. It will be seen that San Francisco now stands on a par with New York as a great banking center, and the indications are that in time the bullion trade of the world will be controlled by that city instead of London, as heretofore. The Nevada Bank, only a year in existence, has been such a success that it enters on its second year with doubled capital and the best wishes of the mercantile community.

A Cloak of Feathers.

There is an industrious young lady in the country who is making a cloak almost entirely of partridge feathers. It will be a unique piece of clothing, and very pretty and comfortable, though it requires an immense amount of labor and perseverence to put it together. In it will be at least 10,000 feathers of different sizes, the lower portion of the cloak being made of the tail feathers, and then ranging up, the breast feathers come next, while the variegated plumage around the neck of the bird will encircle the white throat of the lady. It will require about 100 partridges to fill out the regular course of feathers, which are placed in layers similar to the way in which they grow on the bird. When finished, the cloak will be valued at $50, though in New York it would be worth probably double that amount. The birds are shot by her brother Bill, who pops them over whenever she wants them, only asking that she will nicely cook what is left for himself to make a square meal off of them.—Kingston (N. Y.) Freeman.

Duck-Hunters Hiring Whole Lakes.

During the last two years, says the Sacramento Record-Union, professional duck-hunters have hired the lakes in the vicinity of Sacramento for the hunting season, and prevented amateurs from shooting thereon. In some instances they made money by the transaction, but as a general thing did not. The result promises to be that the competition for the possession of the best shooting grounds will cause the rent to become so high that the hunters will not have as large incomes as they did before they began renting. The amateur shooters of the city are considering the desirability of forming clubs for the renting of lakes next year—the larger the club the greater the acres of property leased, and, as they have considerable feeling over what they style the "freeze out" policy of the professionals, it is probable that, if the organization of clubs is carried into effect, those that shoot for the market will have a brisk competition in the bidding for possession of lakes.

Thirty Mischievous Boys.

Boys are boys even so far away as Madras. Some of the students of the Doveton Protestant College at Vepery recently cut out the bottom of the acting principal's chair, and replaced it in its frame rather ingeniously by means of a few pieces of rattan. When the worthy gentleman ascended the platform and seated himself in the chair the bottom fell out, and he was forced to assume a most angular and awkward attitude. As soon as the boys recovered from a delirium of convulsive emotion, the good man set to work to discover the offenders, but was astonished by the density of ignorance which was manifested at every desk. He finally decreed that there should be no Saturday half-holiday until the mischief-makers were discovered. When Saturday came, thirty of the senior boys absented themselves. On the following Monday the principal, with vengeance in his eye, gave every one of the truants a tremendous thrashing.

SOCIAL SPIES.

A Peculiar Phase of City Life.

Sometimes a spy is employed to "shadow" a spy; a detective is used to watch a detective. In such cases the two spies combine in the common interest of cheating their employer. Very often the private detective "puts up a job" on some wealthy person or corporation. A shrewd detective last year contrived for four months to be kept on the track of a "suspected" individual, who was always leaving a trace, but never to be found. In the search for this individual the detective crossed the Atlantic twice, traveled through England, France, and Belgium—stopping for ten days in London, and a week in Paris—traveled over 4,000 miles in this country, lived at all the best hotels, drew $10 a day and his expenses, which were $10 more, and never found his man, for the very good reason that the suspected party had never existed. "How not to do it," is a very important part of the modus operandi of a private detective. If he is paid to hunt up a party in a lawsuit he will not hesitate for a consideration not to find that party, even though he is where he could lay his hands on him at any time. If he is employed to report the proceedings of a party he can manufacture just such "proceedings" as that "party" wants to have reported—for a consideration. A missing man need never be found—if he only finds and fees the detectives. One private detective makes the greater part of his annual income by acting as "roper-in" for gambling houses. During the war his commission on the money spent by the victims he "steered in" to a popular Broadway game netted him thousands upon thousands of dollars. Other private detectives do not hesitate in their capacity, as agents for business houses, to recommend people to worthless houses, who pay them a tangible commission. The "expense account" is the great joy and placer of the private detective. He charges from $5 to $8 per day for his services (he was wont during anti-panic times to get $10 and $12), but when he is sent out of town, or when he is engaged on a "delicate" job, he charges "expenses" besides, and under this head of expenses he does not hesitate to include (in his own mind) clothes, knickknacks, wines, cigars and sundries—though he sums up these little items in the bill in his own way. A bill was recently rendered by a private detective of $80 for eleven days' work, while expenses were set down at $103. The bill was paid, though all the work and all the expenses would have been amply compensated by $40, and the expenses were nil. There are two sorts of detectives—those who are excellent "pipers," first-class "shadowers" or spies—and men for "general business." The "pipers" must be patient, observant and untiring, while the "general business" must be quick-witted, ready for any emergency, able to play any part that may be desired. "Piping" is the mechanical portion of the detective system, while "general business" is the artistic. With either class the great object is to avoid being found out—i. e., "dropped" or "tumbled" on. A few years ago the private detective business in New York city followed the usual rule, and spread "up town." A private detective bureau was, a few years ago, opened on Fourteenth street. The best customers were either fashionable wives who wished their husbands "shadowed," or fashionable fathers who feared that their daughters were associating with questionable characters. On several occasions the services of the detectives were called upon suddenly to follow and "pipe" some woman who had been seen with some suspicious person at a matinee. There was plenty of this sort of work, but, after all, the "social" side of the private detective business was not so lucrative as the "commercial." So the office was moved down town again, in which section of the city are at present congregated all the private detectives of New York.

Coloring Human Hair by Eating Eggs.

The much-vexed question, How to get gold hair, is solved at last. While the Germans shrink from being held a fair-haired nation, who knows, but the sufferers, what other nations have gone through to win the hair despised by Prussia? Ladies have borne unheard-of torments in pursuit of this fictitious gold. One who had to be turned round in the sun for hours during the process, bore with stoic fortitude the terrible headaches involved each week, nor ever complained of what she had to pay, though, after all, she was scarcely even electro-plated. Some run other risks, in robbing Teuton corpses of their long, fair locks; and all is ineffectual while eyes and skin remain to give the lie to hair. Now, no more dyes, migraines, or wigs will be necessary. Everybody may sport the "glad gold hair"—nay, blue eyes, too, and snowy skins. All you have to do is to go and live on an island and eat penguins' eggs—and the more you eat the fairer you will get. None need despair, for hair too dark to turn to gold turns red, and red hair, being more the rage than flaxen, tant mieux. The isle in question is one of the Crozet group, on which the survivors of the unfortunate Strathmore were wrecked last year, and rescued after six months' durance vile. They had little to eat but penguins' eggs (and doubtless the eggs without the island would be of no avail), but the slight inconvenience of a sameness of food would be readily encountered by the votaries of fashion. A survivor writes: "The eggs did every one a great deal of good. * * * A most remarkable thing was that every one had fair skins and light hair, dark faces and hair being quite changed, black hair turning brown or red, and fairer people quite flaxen." If some enterprising Englishman does not immediately set up a hotel on this enchanted spot, we shall never give John Bull credit for knowing how to make his fortune.—London Echo.

WAITING.

A sprightly son of Gallia's clime—
Did once, in choice Parisian, state
That everything must come in time
To him who knows the way to wait.
I will not charge with gross untruth
The wit who gave the saw to fame,
But I have waited since my youth
For hosts of things that never came.

For years I've waited for a girl
Who quietly to church would go,
And there become my "priceless pearl,"
Without the usual nuptial show.
I think a wedding feast a bore—
I sought a maid who'd think the same.
My dream of bliss, alas! is o'er.
I waited—but she never came.

I had a vote and kept it, till
Some honest candidate arose,
Who'd bow beneath no leader's will
To join with either "Ayes" or "Noes;"
Some man who, spite of party strife,
Took justice as his highest aim.
I never voted all my life.
I waited—but he never came.

I longed to grasp the hand of one
Who'd be an honest, faithful friend—
As constant as the rising sun,
And love me with no selfish end:
Who, when misfortune cast me down,
Would still in all things be the same.
I've not a friend in all the town.
I waited—but he never came.

I hoped to see the golden days
When honest men would fare the best—
When modest worth would win the bays,
And virtue boldly rear its crest—
When o'er the dark and dismal land
The torch of Truth should brightly flame.
I thought those days were near at hand.
I waited—but they never came.

Pith and Point.

DOESN'T a man contract a debt when he pays part of it?

MRS. PARTINGTON says Ike has bought a horse so spirituous that he always goes off in a decanter.

IF a writer should attempt to turn bad prose into poorer rhyme, could he be accused of making bad worse?

"DID it rain to-morrow?" a Dutchman inquired of a Frenchman. "Me guess it was," replied the wise Frenchman.

"I AM glad that I am once more on terra cotta," said a masculine Mrs. Partington, as he stepped off from a Cunarder at East Boston dock.

"WHY didn't you put on a clean collar before you left home?" called out an impertinent young fop to an omnibus driver. "'Cause your mother hadn't sent home my washing," was the extinguishing reply.

SCENE in a New York police court: Judge—"Prisoner, I find you guilty of intoxication in the public streets. The punishment is $10 or ten days. Which will you take?" Prisoner—"I will take the $10, your honor."

A HOUSEKEEPER sent Bridget out one morning to buy some heads of lettuce. She returned with postage stamps. When asked how she made the mistake, she pertly answered, "An' sure, wasn't I told to get heads of letters?"

A CENTENNIAL critic being asked by a Graphic correspondent which he liked best, the statoos or the picters, replied: "I donno hardly, Zeb, but on the hull praps I like the statoos best, cos you kin go all round the statoos, but you can't see ony one side o' the picters."

"OH, mamma, that's Capt. Jones' knock! I know he has come to ask me to be his wife!" "Well, my dear, you must accept him." "But I thought you hated him so!" "Hate him! I do—so much that I intend to be his mother-in-law." Revenge is sweet, especially to women.

A MAIDEN lady said to her little nephew: "Now, Johnny, you go to bed early, and always do so, and you'll be rosy-cheeked and handsome when you grow up." Johnny thought over this a few minutes, and then observed: "Well, aunty, you must have set up a good deal when you were young."

A BURGLAR broke into a palatial residence, chloroformed the inmates, got possession of a United States bond-looking box, and carried it three miles into the country before he ventured to open it, and then, when he found in it only a cut paper pattern for a lady's night dress, he threw his dark lantern into the creek, and, swallowing his skeleton keys, died in abject mortification.

A YANKEE in Paris, who was listening to the boasts of a lot of English and French artists about the wonderful genius of their respective countrymen, at last broke out, saying: "Oh, pshaw, you git out! Why, there's Bill Devine, of our village, who kin paint a piece of cork so exactly like marble that the minute you throw it into the water it will sink to the bottom just like a stone!"

MR. LONGFELLOW CROFFUT, of the Graphic, presents this view of a well-known red man:

"I'm the Sitting Bull you've heard of,
Those is Mister Custer's trappings.
Now, behold! thy child is hungry—
Simple infant of the forest
Hungry as a famished wildcat—
Stomach like a hollow poplar;
Tighter draw my beltum—no good;
Canteen nixy fiery water;
See! I tip him topsy-turvy
And there ain't a bit of smellum.
Injun hungry! Injun thirsty!"
And he hammered on his stomach.

THEY were in town the other evening, enjoying each other's society, and exchanging cuds of gum with each other. "Jerusha, where'd you git your gum? your'n's sweeter'n mine," said he; and as she told him where she made her purchase, he exclaimed, "By Jinks! that's where I got mine, too; but"—he added, in a lover's passionate tone—"it's 'cause you've chewed it's what makes it so good."

EDITH (that dreadful young flirt)—"Do you know, coz, I think I shall marry!" Cousin (with designs in that quarter himself)—"Really! You amaze me! Soon?" Edith—"Well, perhaps in a month or two." Cousin—"And may I ask the name of the happy man?" Edith—"The what?" Cousin—"The man, the—er—what is it?—the intended?" Edith—"Ah, by the way—yes—I must begin to think of that, too, mustn't I?"

RHEUMATISM is more common and distressing, especially in this country, than almost any other disease; and, at the same time, it may be asserted that it is as little understood and as unsuccessfully treated. Physicians, in many cases, are unable to cure it, even in their own person; yet such are the unparalleled virtues of the celebrated Merchant's Gargling Oil, that the most obstinate cases at once yield to it.—Springfield (Mass.) Daily Union.

THE dying of animals is now quite a common branch of the dyer's art. Some time ago a French woman, of the kind that choose notoriety, drove in Paris four gray horses dyed a brilliant magenta.

The Condor.

Prof. Orton gives some little space, in his recent volume on "The Andes and the Amazon," to an account of the condor, of which he thinks, contrary to the general opinion of ornithologists, that there are two distinct species. The great condor is the largest of the birds of prey—full-sized males having a height of four feet, and an expanse of wings of about nine feet. A specimen now at Vassar College measures from tip to tip of the wings nine feet. An old male in the Zoological Gardens of London has a stretch of eleven feet; but Humboldt never found one to exceed nine feet, nor Darwin to exceed eight and a half feet; and, from his own observation, Prof. Orton concludes that the largest condors do not go beyond, if they even reach, a spread of twelve feet. The general color of the condor is black, with white upon the wings and at the tip of the bill, and a ruff of downy white feathers encircling the neck. The young birds are dark-brown, and do not assume the white frill and the white feathers in the wings until after the first molting.

Associated with the great condor is a smaller vulture, having brown or ashen plumage, destitute of the white markings distinguishing the larger bird, and without the caruncle worn by the male condor. This has been by some ornithologists regarded as a distinct species, although the decision is now nearly universal that it is the young condor. In his study of the condor, during his travels in the Andes, Prof. Orton was led to believe that the "condor pardo" and the "condor negro," as the two species are called by the natives, are in fact distinct. They are so considered by several intelligent observers who have had the best opportunities in sojourn and travel in South America for forming a correct judgment. Actual proof is still lacking, and this may be long delayed, as the inaccessible regions where the bird nests and rears its offspring render a minute study of its life history extremely difficult.

The condor ranges along the west coast of South America, from the Straits of Magellan to about eight degrees north of the equator. Darwin notes the fact that the bird is found only in the vicinity of perpendicular cliffs, and concludes that its habits require the seclusion and safety of precipitous and lofty crags. During the greater part of the year the condor frequents the lower country along the coast. It searches for prey at evening or morning rather than at midday, and several perch together at night on the same tree. In the breeding season, which in Chili is in November and December, and in the valley of Quito several months later, the birds retire to inaccessible places in the mountains, and there, on the bare rock, with little or no preparation in the way of a nest, deposit two white eggs three or four inches long. The period of incubation covers six or seven weeks. The young are covered with down until full grown, and are not able to fly for nearly two years. During their first molting, Prof. Orton states, the birds are in caves and are fed by their elders.

"The ordinary habitation of the royal condor," says Prof. Orton, "is between the altitudes of 10,000 feet and 16,000 feet. The largest seem to make their home around the volcano of Cayambe, which stands exactly on the equator. Flocks are never seen, except around a large carcass. It is often seen singly, soaring at a great height in vast circles. Its flight is slow and majestic. Its head is constantly in motion, as if in search of food below; its mouth is kept open and its tail spread. To rise from the ground, it must needs run some distance; then it flaps its wings three or four times, and ascends at a low angle until it reaches a considerable elevation, when it seems to make a few leisurely strokes, as if to ease its wings, after which it leisurely sails upon the air. In walking, the wings trail on the ground, and the head takes a crouching position. It has a very awkward, almost painful gait. From its inability to rise without running, a narrow pen is sufficient to imprison it. Though a carrion-bird, it breathe the purest air, spending much of its time soaring three miles above the sea. Humboldt saw one fly over the Chimborazo. I have seen them sailing, at least, 1,000 feet above the crater of Pichincha."

Darwin writes of the flying powers of this royal bird: "When the condors are wheeling in a flock round and round any spot, their flight is beautiful. Except when rising from the ground, I do not recollect ever having seen one of these birds flap its wings. Near Lima, I watched several, for nearly half an hour, without once taking off my eyes. They moved in large curves, sweeping in circles, descending and ascending without giving a single flap. As they glided close over my head, I intently watched, from an oblique position, the outlines of the separate and great terminal feathers of each wing; and these separate feathers, if there had been the least vibratory movement, would have appeared as if blended together; but they were seen distinct against the blue sky. The head and neck were moved frequently, and apparently with force; and the extended wings seemed to form the fulcrum on which the movements of the neck, body and tail acted. If the bird wished to descend, the wings were for a moment collapsed; and when again expanded, with an altered inclination, the momentum gained by the rapid descent seemed to urge the bird upward with the even and steady movement of a paper kite. In the case of any bird soaring, its motion must be sufficiently rapid, so that the action of the incline surface of its body on the atmosphere may counterbalance its gravity. The force to keep up the momentum of a body moving in a horizontal plane in the air (in which there is so little friction) cannot be great, and this force is all that is wanted. The movement of the neck and body of the condor, we must suppose, is sufficient for this. However this may be, it is truly wonderful and beautiful to see so great a bird, hour after hour, without any apparent exertion, wheeling and gliding over mountain and river."

The condor gorges itself with food until it is incapable of exertion, and then retires to its favorite perch, to remain in a state of stupidity until the process of digestion is completed. Prof. Orton testifies that "its gormandizing power has hardly been overstated. I have known a single condor," he relates, "not of the largest size, to make way in one week, with a calf, a sheep and a dog. It prefers carrion, but will sometimes attack live sheep, deer, dogs, etc. The eye and tongue are the favorite parts, and first devoured; next, the intestines. I have never heard of one authenticated case of its carrying off children, nor of its attacking adults, unless in defense of its eggs."

In captivity, it will eat everything except pork and cooked meat. When full fed, it is exceedingly stupid, and may be caught by the hand; but, at other times, it is a match for the stoutest man.

There has been much discussion as to the sense with which the condor discovers its prey. Some experiments would seem to show that it is its wonderfully keen vision which enables it to detect from afar the occurrence of carrion; and, again, incidents appear to prove that the sense of smell serves as a guide. Darwin subjected several caged condors to tests which afforded evidence that the sense of smell was less acute than in the case of the dog. The testimony for and against the acute smelling powers of the condor is, as Darwin remarks, very evenly balanced.

A Fastidious Beggar.

He was very gentle in manner, he had a mild blue eye, and a nasal twang, relieved by a lisp, charmingly beautiful not to hear. His pull on the bell was gentleness itself; and when Mrs. Spriggs decided to answer the ring she felt certain it was some amiable friend. The "good mornings" were said with a heartiness only to be acquired by a long self-denial and training. "Have you an overcoat, missus? I'm a poor man—a widower with seven small children—five that I have adopted out of pure charity—and I thought I'd drop in and see about a coat."

Mrs. Spriggs' heart moved with pity. She felt that she could never stand to be a widow long, and she joyfully replied: "Oh, yes! I have one of Mr. Spriggs, that he had made to order last March."

"Oh! then it is not of the late style!"

"Oh, no! I'm sorry to say one of those dreadful tramps stole his best."

The man's face flushed up some as he asked: "Buckhorn buttons or gutta percha?"

"Gutta percha," said Mrs. Spriggs.

"Oh, they have a disagreeable odor."

"Oh, well," said Mrs. Spriggs, noticing his look of disappointment, "it's a very nice coat. I'll run up and get it out of the camphor."

"No, no, you need not. Camphor I detest, and gutta percha buttons! Au revoir, madame," and he passed down the steps, the very picture of grand manhood.

"Inclose Stamp."

For a man who has a large city correspondence and has constitutional objections to paying out his coin to the Federal Government, the following branch of business is picayunishly profitable: Advertise for a clerk in some daily paper, state that the salary is $80 per month, and wind up with "inclose stamp." A benevolent looking old party, with "specs" on the bridge of his nose, has adopted that method, and on the first instant secured one hundred and fifty stamps, and no one knows how many more the next day. He thus receives good interest on his fifty-cent investment, and the poor clerks have to pay it. If there is a meaner man in the city let him show up.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Then and Now.

The following letter from Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, written twenty years ago, is quoted to show the difference between the charges of lecturers now and in former days:

"My terms for a lecture, when I stay over night, are these: "Fifteen dollars and expenses, a room with a fire in it, in a public house, and a mattress to sleep on—not a feather bed. As you write in your individual capacity, I tell you at once all my habitual exigencies. I am afraid to sleep in a cold room, I can't sleep on a feather bed, I will not go to private houses, and I have fixed upon the sum mentioned as what it is worth to me to go away for the night to places that cannot pay more."

At our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

Differences in the elements are apt to lead to blows.

Shot-Guns at the Centennial.

The display of shot-guns in the main building is very fine, and is examined with much interest, daily, by a large number of visitors, desirous of ascertaining which is the best gun for practical use. It is but simple justice to say that Parker Bros., of West Meriden, Conn., received the first premium—Grand Medal and Diploma—for their breech-loading, double-barreled shot-gun, at the Centennial Exhibition. This confirmation of the popular judgment of it, as the best shot-gun in the market, is due to its superior shooting qualities, and to the perfection of its mechanism and workmanship. Its merits are so widely known, and demand for it so general, that a notice of it is of far more interest to those wishing to buy the best shot-gun than to Parker Bros. The prices range from $50 to $300. But their lowest-priced guns are warranted to shoot as well as their highest-priced ones. Their chief salesroom is at 97 Chambers street, New York.

For a third of a century the Parker Bros. have been well known as manufacturers of various classes of goods, and during this long period their name has been a guaranty for integrity, fair dealing, superior workmanship and skill. Ten years' experience in gun-making, with persistent efforts to make the best gun possible, has crowned their labors with the most signal success, and won for the Parker Gun the reputation of being the best in the world.

A correspondent, writing from the Centennial Exposition, tells of the following wonderful feat of CIDER MAKING.

At the Centennial trial of cider machinery in Agricultural Hall, Oct. 26, the Boomer & Boschert Press Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., made 116¾ barrels of cider in 9¼ hours, with one press, averaging a barrel of cider from less than 7½ bushels of apples. Thousands witnessed the trial, and expressed their satisfaction with the masterly manner in which the work was performed.

There can be no mistake about it. "Matchless" plug tobacco takes the lead. Old fine-cut chewers say it gives better satisfaction and is cheaper than fine-cut. You cannot be imposed upon, as each plug has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." on a wooden tag. Try it once and you will always chew it. Manufactured by the Pioneer Tobacco Company, New York.

A New Cereal.

Among the novelties exhibited in Agricultural Hall, Philadelphia Exposition, was a new cereal, weighing 60 pounds to the bushel, as easily grown as corn, and more productive, excellent for table use, for stock and fowls. It is of South American origin, but has been acclimated in the State of Michigan since 1872, where it produced from 75 to 150 bushels an acre, and will ripen where corn will ripen. Its stalk and leaves resemble corn, it is planted three or four feet apart, six to eight kernels in a hill, grows seven or eight feet high, the kernels being in a cluster, seven or eight inches long, at the end of the stalk, which curls over and hangs down like the top of a seed onion. The kernel is a little larger and rounder than rice, which it much resembles. It appears to be a very desirable addition to the cereals of the North, and is to be sold only in small packages, with cut of grain on each package, and sent by mail, to prevent imposition. It is called

PAMPAS, OR UPLAND RICE.

C. B. Kress, of Jackson, Mich., grower and sole proprietor, will send, post-paid, to any address, sufficient to produce one bushel for 50 cents, or three packages for $1.00.

Burnett's Flavoring Extracts.—The superiority of these extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from the poisonous oils and acids which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavors now in the market.

Chapped hands, face, pimples, ringworm, saltrheum, and other cutaneous affections cured, and rough skin made soft and smooth, by using Juniper Tar Soap. Be careful to get only that made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, as there are many imitations made with common tar, all of which are worthless.

In consequence of the many inferior imitations, the manufacturers of the celebrated "Matchless" brand of plug tobacco have been compelled to protect themselves by a trade mark. Every plug now has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." thereon. The Pioneer Tobacco Co., 124 Water st., N.Y., are the manufacturers.

Collins' Voltaic Plaster is a gentle and constant Electric Battery closely and continuously applied to the skin by the adhesion of the Plaster, and is capable at all times of affording the most grateful relief in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Sciatica.

A case of chronic rheumatism of unusual severity, cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, is noticed by one of our exchanges. A large bunch came out upon the breast of the sufferer, and appeared like part of the breast bone. Used internally and externally.

The sweetest word in our language is health. At the first indication of disease, use well known and approved remedies. For dyspepsia or indigestion, use Parsons' Purgative Pills. For coughs, colds, sore or lame stomach, use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

A Youth's Publication.—For half a century the Youth's Companion, of Boston, has been published. It was started in 1827, and is to-day one of the brightest and most vigorous papers with which we are acquainted.

$3.00 FOR $1.00.

THE

CHICAGO LEDGER

All the great weekly newspapers of the size and character of THE CHICAGO LEDGER charge $3.00 per year, while THE LEDGER costs but $1.00.

The Ledger is the BEST Family Paper in the United States, ably edited, handsomely printed; containing every week choice completed stories, an installment of an interesting illustrated serial, and general reading for old and young, for the farmer, for the housewife, and for all classes. Special care is taken to make its tone uniformly chaste and moral. Send $1, and 15 cents for postage, and your address to

THE LEDGER,
Chicago, Illinois.

Highest Honors
AT THE CENTENNIAL!
MASON & HAMLIN
Cabinet Organs
Unanimously Assigned the "FIRST RANK
IN THE
SEVERAL REQUISITES"
Of Such Instruments!

MEDALS OF EQUAL MERIT have been awarded all articles deemed worthy of recognition, so that it will be easy for many makers to advertise that they have received "highest medals." It is by the JUDGES' REPORTS, ONLY, that competing articles are assigned their comparative rank in excellence. From these reports the following is an extract:

"THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.'S exhibit of Reed Organs and Harmoniums shows instruments of the FIRST RANK IN THE SEVERAL REQUISITES OF INSTRUMENTS OF THE CLASS, viz.: Smoothness and equal distribution of tone, scope of expression, resonance and singing quality, freedom and quickness in action of keys and bellows, with thoroughness of workmanship, combined with simplicity of action." (Signed by all the Judges.)

The MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are thus declared to RANK FIRST, not in one or two respects only, but in ALL the IMPORTANT QUALITIES of such instruments; and they are the ONLY organs assigned this rank.

This triumph was not unexpected, for the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest honors in competitions in America, there having been scarcely six exceptions in hundreds of competitions. They were awarded HIGHEST HONORS and first medals—PARIS, 1867; VIENNA, 1873; SANTIAGO, 1875; PHILADELPHIA, 1876; and have thus been awarded highest honors at every World's Exposition at which they have been exhibited; being the only American Organs which have ever obtained any award at any competition with best European makers, or in any European World's Exposition!

Insist on having a Mason & Hamlin Organ; do not take any other. Dealers often recommend inferior organs because they are paid larger commissions for selling them.

NEW STYLES, with EXTENDED TOPS, very elegant, and other improvements, exhibited at the CENTENNIAL; elegant new cases in great variety. Prices very lowest consistent with best material and workmanship. Organs sold for cash or installments, or rented until rent pays. Every Organ warranted to give satisfaction to every reasonable purchaser or THE MONEY RETURNED. ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES sent free. MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.—154 Tremont Street, Boston; 25 Union Square, New York; 80 and 82 Adams Street, Chicago.

EUPEON!

If you have rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, a burn, or a bruise, procure a bottle of Eupeon. It will give instant relief, as thousands can testify. For sale by all Druggists. H. A. HURLBUT & CO., 75 and 77 Randolph street, Chicago, Agents for the Proprietors.

Pleasant and Profitable Employment.

"Beautiful!" "Charming!" "Oh, how lovely!" "What are they worth?" &c. Such are the exclamations of those who see the large, elegant new Chromos produced by the European and American Publishing Company. Every one will want them. It requires no talking to sell the pictures; they speak for themselves. Canvassers, agents and ladies and gentlemen out of employment will find this the best opening ever offered to make money. For full particulars, send stamp for confidential circular. Address F. GLEASON & CO., No. 738 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

Chicago Business Directory.

AUCTION AND SALE ROOMS OF HORSES, CARRIAGES AND HARNESS.
WESTON & CO.'S, 196 and 198 E. Washington, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 10 a. m.

AUCTION MART FOR THE SALE OF HORSES, HARNESS AND VEHICLES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION AT AUCTION AND PRIVATE SALE.
NORTHWESTERN TATTERSALLS, 7 to 9 Monroe.

AWNINGS, TENTS, TWINES AND CORDAGE.
GILBERT HUBBARD & CO., 202 to 208 South Water.

DESIGNER AND ENGRAVER ON WOOD.
J. MANZ, 92 LaSalle, cor. Washington.

ENGRAVER AND DIE SINKER, STENCILS AND STOCK.
L. BOCHE, 171 E. Randolph.

ENGRAVER, SEALS, PRESSES, STEEL AND BRASS STAMPS, STENCIL TOOLS AND STOCK.
O. H. HANSON, 38 South Clark.

ENGRAVERS ON WOOD, Etc.
SEARS BROS. & CO., S.W. cor. Clark and Washington.

FLOWERS AND STRAW GOODS—SPECIALTY.
DALY, HENROTIN & CO., 144 and 146 Wabash-av.

GRASS AND FIELD SEEDS.
ALBERT DICKINSON, 117 and 119 Kinzie.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—WHOLESALE.
EDWIN HUNT & SONS, 58 and 60 Lake.

HEAVY HARDWARE—WHOLESALE.
KIMBARK BROS. & CO., 80 to 84 Michigan-av.

HOTELS.
WOOD'S HOTEL, 116 & 118 Fifth-av. Enoch Wood, prop., late proprietor of Wood's Hotel, State-st.

WILSON'S PATENT ADJUSTABLE CHAIR FOR INVALIDS, IRON FOLDING BEDSTEADS, ETC.
M. KLEIN, 237 South Dearborn. Send for circular.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION
A WEEKLY PAPER FOR YOUNG PEOPLE
AND THE FAMILY

THE COMPANION aims to be a favorite in every family—looked for eagerly by the young folks, and read with interest by the older. Its purpose is to interest while it amuses; to be judicious, practical, sensible and to have really permanent worth, while it attracts for the hour.

It is handsomely illustrated, and has for contributors some of the most attractive writers in the country. Among these are:

J. T. Trowbridge,	Louisa M. Alcott,
Edward Eggleston,	J. G. Whittier,
James T. Fields,	Louise C. Moulton,
Rebecca H. Davis,	C. A. Stephens,
Mrs. A. H. Leonowens,	Harriet P. Spofford
Edward Everett Hale,	Julia Ward Howe.

Its reading is adapted to the old and young: is very comprehensive in its character. It gives Stories of Adventure,
Letters of Travel,
Editorials upon Current Topics,
Historical Articles,
Biographical Sketches,
Religious Articles,
Stories of Home and School Life,
Tales, Poetry,
Selections for Declamation,
Anecdotes, Puzzles,
Facts and Incidents.

Subscription Price, $1.75. Specimen copies sent free. Please mention in what paper you read this advertisement.

PERRY MASON & CO.,
41 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,
Is the Grand Old
MUSTANG LINIMENT,

WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

J. & P. COATS

have been awarded a Medal and Diploma at the Centennial Exposition and commended by the Judges for

"SUPERIOR STRENGTH
—AND—
EXCELLENT QUALITY
—OF—SPOOL COTTON."

SEAL.
A. T. GOSHORN, Director-General.
J. R. HAWLEY, Pres.
Alex. R. Boteler, Secretary pro tem.

THE BEST YET

The Sunday School Times, of which H. Clay Trumbull and George A. Peltz are editors, and John Wanamaker is publisher, will, in 1877, contain critical notes on the International lessons, by Profs. Tayler Lewis and A. C. Kendrick; a popular exposition of the lessons every week, by the Rev. Newman Hall, of London; and a practical application of the lesson truths, by H. Clay Trumbull. This plan secures fuller and better lesson helps than can be obtained elsewhere. The Times is sent to new subscribers, three months on trial, for 25 cents; one year, $2.15. For seven cents there will be sent a specimen copy of the Scholars' Quarterly, the best Sunday school lesson help for scholars published. Specimens of the Weekly Lesson Leaf sent free. The most complete leaf of any; although it is sold at so low a price. Address
JOHN D. WATTLES, Business Manager,
610 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET,
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.

Secures Health and Comfort of Body, with Grace and Beauty of Form. Three Garments in one. Approved by all physicians. AGENTS WANTED. Samples by mail, in Coutil, $2; Satteen, $1.75. To Agents at 25 cents less. Order size two inches smaller than waist measure over the dress.
Warner Bros. 763 Broadway, N.Y.

Guarding the Mails — Agents Wanted
200 SUPERB ENGRAVINGS.
OR SECRET SERVICE
in the Post-office Department, by P. H. WOODWARD, eleven years in the service, and Chief Special Agent under P. M. Gen'l Jewell. The most remarkable and thrilling book on detection ever written. Wonderful Exploits of the Secret Service Agents in the pursuit and capture of Postal Thieves. Now having an unparalleled sale. Our large illustrated circulars free. Dustin, Gilman & Co., Hartford, Ct., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O.

WOOD'S
IMPROVED
HAIR RESTORATIVE
What It Does!

It restores, quickly, Gray Hair to its glossy Natural color. It has the effect of Restoring the Hair to prematurely Bald Heads. It Removes Dandruff, Humors and all Eruptions from the Scalp. It quiets Irritation, Itching and Scaly Dryness of the Skin. It Restores faded, dry, harsh and falling Hair. It renews, dresses, softens and gives vigor to the growth of the Hair. It accomplishes more desired effects in a short time than any Restorative ever made, always leaving the hair soft, lively and glossy, whether used as a Dressing upon the natural hair or upon the hair in an unhealthy condition; thus rendering it, for the Old and Young, an article of unequaled excellence. No preparation offered to the public produces such wonderful results. Try it! Try it!! Call for "Wood's Improved!" as it contains no injurious qualities.

HAIR

It was originally introduced 20 years ago by Prof. O. J. Wood, but the recent change of ingredients in this article is making a demand for it in all parts of the United States, Canadas and foreign countries.

ANNOUNCEMENT
—TO—
CONSUMERS!

The great radical improvement introduced in this article has induced us to take the agency and advertise its virtues to the world. Its effects as a Restorative are what has been long sought for and wanted for many years, being more decided and satisfactory than has ever before been attained. No Druggist in the world knows its composition, and cannot make it; therefore when you call for it, "Wood's Improved," do not let any unprincipled dealer convince you that he has a Restorative or Renewer as good, or something similar, as there is none like it! Insist upon having "Wood's Improved," and take no other, for your money! It will not be long before all dealers everywhere will have it. If you should fail to find it, you can send $1.00 to us by mail for a bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and we will send it to you, prepaid, to any Express Station desired.

HAIR

Address C. A. COOK & CO., Chicago, the Sole Agents for the United States and Canadas, who will fill all orders and supply the Trade at Manufacturers' Prices.
J. B. KIMBALL, Proprietor.

☞ Sold in Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Paul by all Wholesale Druggists, and by Retail Trade generally.

FOR SINGING SCHOOLS!

Make them doubly interesting by introducing

THE ENCORE

By L. O. EMERSON. 75 cts.; $7.50 per doz.

THE ENCORE
Contains a First-Class Elementary Course, with the best kind of exercises, airs, tunes in one, two, three or four parts, for practice.

THE ENCORE
Contains 100 pages filled with bright, wide-awake, easy glees and four-part songs. Thus it is a good Glee Book as well as Singing School Book.

THE ENCORE
Contains 50 of Hymn Tunes and Anthems of the best character.

Mr. L. O. EMERSON,
(Half a million of whose books have been sold), has never been excelled as composer and arranger of music exactly adapted to the public taste. His "tact" in this matter is infallible. Then try

THE ENCORE.

For sale by all prominent dealers. Specimens mailed, post-free, for 75 cts.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
J. E. Ditson & Co., Successors to Lee & Walker, Phila.

1855. 22d Year. 1877.
Progressive! Comprehensive!
WESTERN FARM JOURNAL
CHICAGO, ILL.
A Mammoth Weekly for Country and Town.
A Practical Agricultural Newspaper.
Largest on the Continent!

Its columns are replete each week with fresh, interesting and valuable matter for every branch of FARM INDUSTRY, while the departments devoted to the FIRESIDE, YOUNG FOLKS, CURRENT TOPICS and NEWS receive such especial attention as to render the JOURNAL, in the truest sense, a complete paper for the FARM, the FIRESIDE, or the HOUSEHOLD.

In the issue for Jan. 1st, 1877, will be commenced a high-class, instructive serial story, written expressly for the Western Farm Journal, entitled

THE LESSON FOR LIFE.

☞ It will be read with absorbing interest, as well as profit, by all classes. WRITE FOR ADVANCE SHEET OF EXTRACTS. We want every man and woman in the country to subscribe for the paper and to act as our agent this season. Single subscriptions, $2.00 a year; only $1.50 in clubs. No special authority to act needed. Send in your own subscription and then others as fast as obtained. DON'T DELAY! All subscriptions received during 1876 will run to end of 1877. SAMPLE PAPERS, POSTERS and CIRCULARS Free. Address
WESTERN FARM JOURNAL,
126 Washington Street, Chicago.

THE IMPROVED ARMOUR
FAMILY KNITTING-MACHINE
KNITS A COMPLETE STOCKING
ANY SIZE.

Also Double-Striped MITTENS and a Great Variety of FANCY WORK.

Price $40.

But to introduce our machine into all parts of the country, we have determined to sell Two SAMPLE MACHINES Only in each county, for $19 EACH.

The number will be limited, as each sale at the low price is simply to introduce the machine.

AGENTS Wanted to continue the business. Order early, and secure one. This machine was awarded First Prize at New York and Ohio State Fairs last year; also at several County Fairs.

Address ARMOUR KNITTING-MACHINE CO., Watertown, New York.

Full instructions for operating accompany each machine. The ordering of two machines secures the county agency.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS
AUTOMATIC

Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.
Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.
Trade Mark in base of every machine.

SILENT SEWING MACHINE.
Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.
Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.,
(Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York.

LANDS FOR SALE
960,000 Acres in Southwest Missouri.
FIRST-CLASS STOCK FARMS,
Excellent Agricultural Lands,
and best TOBACCO REGION in the West. SHORT WINTERS, NO GRASSHOPPERS, good Market, and a Healthy Country.
Prices $2.50 to $10.00 an Acre.
TERMS: One-tenth down, balance in seven years at 7 per cent. interest.
FREE TRANSPORTATION
to the lands furnished purchasers. For circulars, guides, maps, etc., address
A. L. DEANE, Land Commissioner, St. Louis.

$5 a Day to Agts. Sample free. H. Allen, Boston, Me.

$10 a Day. Employment for all. Chromo & Motto Catalogue free. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau St., N. Y.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

20 a Week Salary guaranteed to male and female. Send stamp for circulars. E. M. Bodine, Cincinnati, O.

REVOLVER 7-shot $2.00, 70 styles. Ill. Cat. free. Western Gun Works, Chicago, Ill.

$25 A DAY to Agents. Sample free. 32-page Catalogue. L. FLETCHER, 11 Dey St., N. Y.

AGENTS FOUR $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., Phila., Pa.

PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. Apparatus by mail $1. Agents wanted. Smithograph M'f'g Co., Phila., Pa.

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. Samples FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

DEAFNESS RELIEVED. No medicine. Book free. G. J. WOOD, MADISON, IND.

AGENTS—For 400 Papers & Magazines Wanted. C. W. Bennett, (Ass'n Ag't,) Quincy, Ill.

POPHAM'S ASTHMA SPECIFIC, Best in the World. Trial package free. T. POPHAM & CO., 19 S. 6th St., Phila., Pa.

$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

$3 WATCHES. A Great Sensation. Sample Watch and Outfit free to Agents. Better than Gold. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

WANTED—An Active Agent to manage the exclusive sale of Cigars and Tobacco in every county. Address N. Y. TOBACCO CO., 38 Renwick St., N. Y.

$10 2 $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent post-paid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.

$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.

$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

AGENTS wanted for "RELATION of the SEXES" New book with plain statement of facts by a wide-awake Woman. Sells at sight. Copy, with outfit, by mail, $2. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO. Chicago, Ill.

NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS' SUPPLY Co., 261 Bowery, N. Y.

WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $90 a month and traveling expenses paid. GEM MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.

MONEY Made rapidly with Stencil and Key Check Outfits. Catalogue and samples FREE. S. M. Spencer, 117 Wash. St., Boston, Mass.

OPIUM HABIT CURED AT HOME. No publicity. Time short. Terms moderate. 1,000 testimonials. Describe case. Dr F. E. Marsh, Quincy, Mich.

WANTED—energetic salesmen; hotel and traveling expenses paid by Company. A rare chance for permanent employment. Ad's Union Industrial Works, Cincinnati, O.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 40 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, (1 or 2 in each Co.) to sell to the farmers in their own counties a few staple articles of real merit. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. Worth, St. Louis, Mo.

$10 2 $1,000 Invested in Wall St. Stocks makes fortunes every month. Book sent free explaining everything. Address BAXTER & CO., Bankers, 17 Wall St., N. Y.

FOR SALE—CHEAP FOR CASH—One Second-Hand HARDY PAPER CUTTER, in good order. Also, one 8-inch HOE CARD CUTTER (new). The above will be sold very cheap for cash. Address CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 114 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 132 pages, 35 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.

YOUR own Likeness in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 8½x7¾, from a photograph or tintype, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 4 months for $1. One agent made $90.00 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.

$100 in Greenbacks
To be given away for the largest clubs of subscribers to the MICHIGAN FARMER. For particulars, address JOHNSTONE & GIBBONS, 44 W. Larned-st., Detroit, Mich.

PATENTS Procured. TOTAL COST $55 Including Gov't Fee. Send for Pamphlet to KNIGHT & KNIGHT, Washington, D. C.

A GIFT By an arrangement with the Publisher we will send every reader of this Paper a sample package of Transfer Pictures free. Send 3c. stamp for postage. They are highly colored, beautiful, and easily transferred to any object. Agents wanted. J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York.

Wanted Agents for "Navins' Explanatory Stock Doctor," a full treatise, with prescriptions, on horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry. 800 pages, bound in leather, illustrated. The best selling book published. Liberal terms. Address J. B. Yeagley, Pub., Indianapolis.

EMPLOYMENT.
ANY PERSON of ordinary intelligence can earn a living by canvassing for The Illustrated Weekly. Experience is not necessary—the only requisites being, as in all successful business, industry & energy. Send for particulars. Address Chas. Clucas & Co. 14 Warren St., N. Y.

PAOLI'S CHAIN BELT
Electricity is Life. Paoli's Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application, to P. J. WHITE, 27 Bond Street, New York.

$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. DR. J. P. FITLER, being sworn, says: I graduated [illegible] I guarantee DR. FITLER'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY [illegible] Address DR. FITLER, 45 South Fourth street, Philadelphia. MEDICINES AT DRUGGISTS.

TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT. WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.

TELEGRAPH Railroad and Express business taught. Situations guaranteed or money refunded. Send stamp for circular. Address WESTERN UN. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Box 790, Freeport, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY
CENTEN'L EXHIBITION
It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 38 copies in one day. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

A BOOK for the MILLION.
MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address, Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.

$10. $25. $50. $100. $200.
ALEXANDER FROTHINGHAM & CO., 12 Wall Street, New York, Bankers and Brokers, invest in Stocks of a legitimate character. The firm numbers among its patrons thousands who have become rich through Frothingham & Co.'s fortunate investments. Stocks purchased and carried as long as desired on margin from three to five per cent. ☞ Send for Circular.

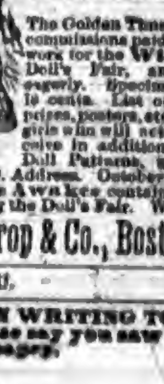
$15 SHOT GUN
A double barrel gun, bar or front action locks; warranted genuine twist barrels, and a good shooter, or no sale; with Flask, Pouch and Wad-cutter, for $15. Can be sent C. O. D. with privilege to examine before paying bill. Send Stamp for circular to P. POWELL & SON, Gun Dealers, 238 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

BOSS WELL AUGER
O. MARTIN

$40 TO $60 A DAY made by operating the BOSS WELL AUGER. Bores a hole from 20 to 40 inches in diameter, 100 feet a day easy. Send for illustrated catalogue. Elevates the dirt without removing the [illegible]
O. MARTIN,
Patentee & Proprietor,
Bloomfield, Iowa.

Potter's American Monthly,
50,000 Subscribers for 1877.
ILLUSTRATED: Best Family Magazine in the Country, at $3 for 1877. Five copies one year for $15; 10 copies for $25; 20 copies for $50, and a copy of Potter's Bible Encyclopedia, quarto, 3,000 illustrations, price, $25, given to the person sending this club. For sale at all News stands at 25 cents a number. Special Terms to Agents. J. E. POTTER & Co., Phila., Pa.

The Wide Awake Magazine.



The Golden Time for Agents! Liberal cash commissions paid. Boys and girls are all at work for the Wide Awake Doll's Fair, and subscribe eagerly. Specimen numbers, 10 cents. List of Doll's Fair prizes, posters, etc., free. Little girls who will act as agents receive in addition a full set of Doll Patterns, upon sending their P. O. Address. October and November Wide Awakes contain rules in full concerning the Doll's Fair. Write to

D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

C. N. U. No. 46

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 23, 1876.

Just think of it, Tilden has a majority of THREE HUNDRED AND SIXTY SEVEN THOUSAND votes, the largest ever given to any President.

The Chicago "Tribune," a Republican paper, has this to say of the Louisiana election: "If we can get at the difficulty in Louisiana correctly, the dispute is chiefly over five parishes or counties, and whether the returns of these shall be counted at all, or, if counted, how they shall be counted.

It is alleged that these five parishes had a large registered vote, three-fifths or two-thirds of which was Republican, but that on election day the greater part of the colored Republicans, being intimidated by the White Liners, ran off and did not vote, while the Confederates remained and voted. The following figures will illustrate the situation, which give the result of the vote in 1874 as well as in 1876. The vote of 1874 was said to be full and fair for both sides:

Parishes.	—Vote in 1874— Dem.	Rep.	Dem. majorities in 1876
East Feliciana	147	1,688	1,753
West Feliciana	501	1,360	465
East Baton Rouge	1,558	2,446	606
Morehouse	654	1,017	528
Ouachita	766	1,674	1,071
Total	4,334	8,185	4,417

At the election in 1874 these parishes gave a Republican majority for State Treasurer of 3,861. They now give a Democratic majority of 4,417, which exceeds the Democratic vote cast in 1874. The Democrats admit that had the Republican vote been polled the Republicans would have had a large majority. Now the controversy stands: On the one hand the Democrats insist on the vote being counted in exact accordance with the number of tickets cast; on the other hand there are two propositions: First—That the vote of these parishes be wholly disregarded and thrown out, on the grounds of intimidation, by the Canvassing Board. Second—That the vote polled be counted, but that the Canvassing Board reckon also as polled the votes of those absenting themselves from fear of bodily harm. The average Northern voter has no precedent for such a condition of things as this. In the first place deadly intimidation is not known in the North, and, in the next place, it will be difficult for a Northern man, of any party, to understand how 2,000 votes of one party in a county can be so successfully "intimidated" by 1,000 as to be unable to approach the polls, though the latter were protected, or supposed to be, by the United States Supervisors. It will be difficult to pursuade the people of any Northern county that the majority, numbering 900 voters, should so intimidate in East Florida, numbering 1,800, that none of the latter dare show themselves at the polls. We assume that those who did not vote were legal voters and know of no right recognized by any law of any state where the votes of legal voters, lawfully polled, can be rejected and they disfranchised. We do not believe, therefore, that the moral sense of the American people will consent to or tolerate that the election of a President of the United States shall be determined and decided by throwing out the votes of several thousand legal voters, legally polled in any State of the Union. We take it, therefore, that the votes actually polled in these five "bulldozed" parishes of Louisiana will be counted, no matter what may be the result produced upon the election by so doing.

If the fact be as stated, and we have tried to collate them fairly from the statements of both sides, the Republicans of Louisiana and of the country have to bear the consequence of the panic which seems to have so stricken the colored voters in these five districts. We look upon it as calamity, because we know of no legal remedy. There is no precedent known to any election law that we ever heard of where the votes of persons not voting, and not offering to vote, counted, no matter how strong may be the presumption that if such votes had been polled they would have changed the result. In 1874 the Democrats elected at least fifty members of Congress in Republican Districts because Republicans stayed away and did not vote. For the same reason the Democrats elected the Governors of several States and a majority of the Legislature in several States in 1874. No such thing as offsetting the vote actually polled, by that not polled, has ever been recognized at any election in any State in this country.

It is claimed by the Democrats that their party will have a majority of the whole vote of the State, over and above their vote in these parishes; but while this ought to settle the matter, it may not do so, if the counting of the non-polled vote be insisted upon by the other side. "If, however, the Democrats do not have a majority except by counting the votes in these five parishes and the result in the State depends on their being counted or not counted, then the issue will be a direct one, and one upon which the country will promptly reach a judgment, and no canvassing Board will dare attempt to put the judgment of the nation at defiance; and the American people will never engage in a civil war to uphold the counting of votes never cast or offered to be cast, or to be reject lawful votes loyally cast and recorded on the poll-list.

A Fair Proposition Refused.

It will be remembered that a few days of the Presidential election, when there was doubt as to the returns in the three doubtful States of South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, it was suggested to President Grant, that Representative men of both parties of the North, be requested to go South and see that a fair count was had. The President accepted and named a number of distinguished Republicans, who complied with the request. Mr. Hewitt acting for the Democracy, had an equal number of distinguished gentlemen to do the same, and they all met soon after in New Orleans. In due time the gentlemen representing the Democratic side made a proposition for a fair count as will be seen in another column in this paper.

Read that carefully, and see if it is not a very fair proposition. Yet the next day the Republicans came out with a reply that they could not interfere in the cause of justice and have a fair count, that the Returning Board of the State only had jurisdiction in the matter, and they thought it best not to interfere. What do you think of that, gentle reader The object is to count Hayes in, whether decided or not, and this giving the Returning Board full power, shows how desperate the game is.

* * *

The Republican party was howling during the whole canvass over the attitude of the South in the late contest. One of the most emphatic and oft-repeated points made by their orators and organs was the unanimity with which this section of the Union espoused the Democratic side, and the tendency of feeling in favor of Tilden among the depraved people of this benighted and altogether dangerous region was held to be a sufficient evidence of his treasonable sympathies during the late war, and of his fell purposes for the future in the event of his election. The North was invoked to go solid for Hayes, because the South was going solid against him.

Ordinance for Sidewalk Grade.

WHEREAS public convenience requires that a sidewalk grade be established on Main street, Auburn, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of Auburn DeKalb County, Ind., that the sidewalk grade as surveyed by J. J. Van Auken (County Surveyor) on west side of Maine street be established as per profile on file, and the sidewalk to be laid with the grade. Also the grade to be the same on the east side of Main street. Running north, commencing at bench mark in water table on the north east corner of building on lot No. 64 O P. from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of building on middle one third (1 3) of lot No. 66 O P. from thence to bench mark on S. E. Corner of building on South one third (1-3) of lot No. 68 O P. from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 73 O P. North Terminus. Running south, commencing at bench mark in watertable on the north-east corner of building on lot No. 64 O P. running south to bench mark on S. E. corner of building on lot No. 63 O P. from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of building on lot No. 62 O P from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 616 from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of lot No. 60 O P. from thence to bench mark on S. E. corner of lot No. 57OP. from thence to bench mark on N. E. corner of lot No. 54 O P. south terminus.

SEC. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

Done by the Board at their regular session Oct. 23, 1876.

Attest J. L. ROTH, Town Clerk.
F D RYAN, Pres
D Z HOFFMAN,
JOHN OTTO,
JOHN TREESH,
Auburn, Ind. 23, A. D. 1876.

MARK THESE FACTS.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day.

"My nausea of a morning is now cured"

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left.

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compells me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER,

And all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureaux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

*.*Sold at the manufactore of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Office, 112 Liberty Street, New York.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of BOOKS, BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albion, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Storescps, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.

Jahnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti articles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

HARD UP.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Always the friends of the people, have never

FAILED

To regulate prices to suit the times

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUSE!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.

AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES,

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at,

ZACHER'S.

License Notice.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their regular session in December, A. D. 1876, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the north one third [1-3] of lot No. sixty-three[63] in the original plat in said town, with the privilege of having the same drank on said premises.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson township, in DeKalb County, Indiana, that the undersigned a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application at the next session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, to be holden on the first monday of December 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on his premises, to-wit: In the building now situated in Section six [6] in said township on land bounded on the North by the township line, on the West by the right of way of the Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw Railroad Company, on the South by the right of way of the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad Company, and on the East by the right of way of the Detroit Eel River & Illinois Railroad Company containing seven tenths of an acre of land.

CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

W. H. DILLS, Atty.

Ladies Cloaks as low as $2.75.
Ladies Felt Hats 50c.
Children Trimmed Hats.
Fur Trimming a good assortment.
Germantown and Zephyr all shades
Water-proof and Ladies cloth.
Two Button Kid Gloves 65c.
Cambrick Dress Goods 50c.
Ladies' and Children's Furs.
Old Muffs lined.

H. H. ST AMETS

ENGLISH INK for Printers.

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of Ink made by us.

EXCELSIOR PRINTING INK CO., MANUFACTURERS,
(Formerly of London, England),
184 & 186 MONROE ST., CHICAGO.
And 13 Barclay Street, New York.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchases.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings,$ 1.50, 1.75 2,00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st. Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 9c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 7c per lb.
Brown Sugar at 8c per lb,
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hands and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent, the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent, the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get: So Sugars Coffees Spices Prunes Fruits Tobaccos Liquors or anything we deal in Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits No Middle-men with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hyson 25c, 40c and 90c.
Best 80 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c
Best 90 cents.
Black or Oolong 25 and 40c
Best 85c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 80c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	1 ½	New Orleans clarified	9c
		" "	8c
Coffee A.	12	Good brown	8c
" C.	11c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	[illegible] and 28
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	5c
Canned Corn, per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	12c
Pitted Cherries per pound	35c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb,

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all discriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon, 1 50 in bottle	50c
Rye Whiskey, two years old	1 25	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, per gallon, 3 00; in bottles	50c
Three year old	1 75 3 00	Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c
The $1 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound..	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va	75c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This tobacco sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	20c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	50
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Citron per pound	25c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	16c
New Orange and Lemon Peel	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	10c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	20c
Best layer Raisons per pound	14c	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Currants per pound.	6c

And everything else in porportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Our goods will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES

FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

KAHN.
OVERCOATS.

We have received our fall stock of Overcoats and assure our patrons that we are offering the same at Prices Lower than ever. We have a large assortment of overcoats and have recently received additions to our stock. We invite a comparison feeling assured that our goods and prices will defy competition. By permission we refer to the following parties who have purchashed overcoats of us since October 5th, and who will doubless testify to the excellent quality, low prices and the late style of our goods.

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. C. PETERSON	"
M. F. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER	"
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr,	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc. KAHN.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 32c.
—Eggs 18c.
—Butter 16c.
—Potatoes 60c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $8 50.
—Live Chickens 4c.
—Wheat $1.03 @ 109.
—The COURIER $3.00 a year.

Best School Paper at Houser's.

Go and see Davenports new goods.

The season for soaked feet has 'arrived.'

Go and see those fine albums at Houser's.

Rain and mud don't astonish anyone here.

The growing wheat looks unusually well.

Everybody is on the political ragged edge.

Don' fail to attend the Thanksgiving dinner.

The roads are in a bad condition for hauling.

Kansas fever is raging among a few citizens.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Headquarters for School Books at Houser's.

We are admonished that winter is approaching.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Edward Picker is in the city visiting his parents.

New sidewalk ordinances this week. Business.

Headquarters for School Books at Housers.

Look out now for cold weather. It started in yesterday.

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the slate line, noiseless and beautiful.

Go and see those fine Albums at Houser's.

Mr. James Casebeer, of Hicksville, was in town Tuesday.

Shelves, Show-cases and Counters crowded with Holiday goods at Houser's

120 daily papers sold at Houser's News Stand last Saturday.

Local news will be read with more interest now that the election is over.—Send 'em in.

Snyder had one of his large windows broken. A paper in its stead says that "None of Your Business" broke it.

A hundred and twenty daily papers sold at Houser's news stand last Saturday.

Shelves, show-cases and counters crowded with Holiday goo ds at Houser" book store.

Our old prophet predicts a cold winter, and advises all to prepare for the emergency.

The man who is stealing wood around town mus'nt think that he is not suspicioned.

The Steuben "Republican" says:—"We've got 'em we have!" What, the jimjams! We hope not.

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the State line, noiseless and beautiful.

Just received a large lot of Albums for the Holidays, at Davenport's. All sizes, styles and prices.

"To indulge in the illusions of hope" has been a favorite pastime during the last week.

The Presbyterians will hold service in the German Methodist church on south Jackson, next Sabbath evening.

Two weeks ago Weamer showed up his goose for Hayes, and last week he asked, "Hurrah for who?"

The public generally should understand that the best assortment of Boots and Shoes in town is to be found at Ryan's.

Billy Rickel's champion coach dog eats pie when he can't eat bread. For full particulars see our fashionable tailor, Mr. Yesbera.

The dramatic performance last night was splendid and all present were pleased. Don't fail to attend to-night and see the fun.

"I once basked into prosperity but am now plunged into utter destitution," is the way a tramp boiled down the story of his life.

The saw mills are lying dormant, owing to the bad condition of the roads.—It is imposible to do much hauling the way the roads are.

Judge Tousley will commence his term of office by holding court at Angola next week. He has received his commission.

The question is where can I buy the cheapest. Try Ryan, who we are sure can sell you boots and shoes at very low rates for cash.

Now that winter is near you must not forget that a splendid line of boots and shoes are to be found at the lowest cash prices.

The ladies of the M. E. Social return thanks to those generous hunters, who brought in such an abundence of good game for their supper.

A poetical volume makes a neat and appropriate Holiday gift. Davenport has just received copies of all the best authors.

See Housers new advertisement elsewhere. Our merchants are letting the people know what they have to sell for the holidays.

"Hard up" is the head of a new advertisement in this week's paper, of the popular clothing house of Sam, Pete & Max, Fort Wayne.

The Defiance Democrat made the best showing of poultry we have seen this year. It it is a fair representation of that county, which gave over 1800 Democratic majority.

Charley Baxter misrepresents the citizens of this place when he says that they got into a fight over the election.—The contestants wre all on our side Charley's side too.

The daily papers have been in great demand for several weeks, but nothing for a certainty has been said through their columns as to who is our next President.

Mr. James Anderson has re-moved again to the Paterson house. Jim is no hand to stand still, and always being on the move he has worked up one the finest blacksmith and wagon trades in the county.

Mr. Nodine, at Waterloo, made an assignment at Waterloo, last week, and also Mr. Hall. That's right, go down in the vortex of hard times and still cry "Hurrah for Hayes."

After figuring the matter all over we find we have no ill feeling against any human being except the nam that invented the kind of shoes that holds a fellows pants up whenever he sits down and gets up again.

William Pitt Kellogg, who was himself counted into office the most disgraceful fraud known to American politics, is preparing to count in Ruthford B. Hayes? How do the people of the North like it?

Davis' Sewing Machine.

You who are contemplating buying a machine should not fail to see the DAVIS. Call at the drug store of Bodine & Siler.

A Republican exchange says, it is sad to see the Democracy hang around the election bulletin-boards and whisper to some kind-hearted school boy: "I say, bub, what does it read now?"

And its sad to see a Republican gaze upon those bulletin-boards with intense delight, and go off to the nearest corner grocery and announce in wild glee that Novia Scotia has gone for Hayes.

The Albion New Era of last week says Mr. Tom Sprott, a young attorney of Auburn, spent a few hours in Albion on Thursday last.

No party ever before in the history o this country endeavord to hold on to the Government when the people had given it notice to quit. A party of "moral ideas ought to have nicer notions of the ownership of property.

This is an anxious time for the defaulters and thieves in the Government service whose crimes are yet undetected. Every one of them is hoping and praying that the Returning Boards will count in Gov. Hayes.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad through Ohio and Indiana, have adopted a new name, the road through these States having been consolidated. It will hereafter be know as the Baltimore Ohio and Chicago R. R. Co.

The best meal served up in this down for a long time was that at the game supper at the M. E. Church last Friday evening. It was simply splendid, and everybody enjoyed it. The net receipts were about $60.00.

The Press says for Centennial visitors Waterloo took the prize banner in the county.

How many, Baxter? We can name fifty from Auburn who attended the show.

The Duty of patriotic citizens is plain It is to councel fairness, Justice, right. He who seeks to excite the passions of the people at this critical period of our country's is a foe to the welfare of a common country.—Ligonier Banner.

A one-half interest in the Plymouth Democrat is offered for sale, on account of the protracted ill-health of the senior partner, Dan McDonald. It is a fine opening for an enterprising man, and it is one of the best offices in Northern Ind.

The death is recorded of Ossian E. Dodge, a writer and traveler of some reputation who is know also in musical and dramatic circles in the United States. He paid $500 for a single seat ticket to one of Jenny Lind's concerts at Boston.

If the Presidential election cannot be settled by the ballots would'nt it be a good way to make one of the candidates President and Vice president? If not why not?—Hicksville Ind.

Certainly. We are in favor of Tilden & Hendricks.

The late Democratic trustee of Centre township, Marshal County, Indiana, has proven a defaulter in the sum of $7-000.—Republican paper.

And the late Republican trustee of Clay township, Howard County, has proved a defaulter in the sum of $8,000 He goes one better.

That Democratic thunder in Columbia City, on Saturday evening, was heard 25 miles westward.—Columbia City Post.

Yes, and the next morning several in this place were inquiring where in thunder that cannonading was last night.

J. W. Bixler, Esq., of Kendallville, the newly elected Prosecutor for this circuit, will not take his office until the last of next October, nearly a year hence. In the meantime Wm. B. McConnell, Esq , will, unless he resigns for a bigger thing, hold the office up to that time.—Steuben Republican.

The New Era says, the presbyterian church of Albion, which by the way is one of the finest buildings of the kind in Northern Indiana, was dedicated on Sunday last with appropriate ceremonies, under the direction of Rev. J. T Pollock, of Tiffin, Ohio, assisted by Rev. Mr. Fowler, of Waterloo, Ind.

In some respects the record of the Republican party is a noble one; in others it is infamous. But it is apparently to be reserved for this party to inflict upon this country the crowning disgrace of attemping to count in a President. No party ever before did anything so shameful.

A report has being going the rounds of the local papers that Mr. Creditor a Dentist of Angela, had been charged with an attempt to commit rape, and had left the town. We gave no credit to the story, and the result will doubtless prove that the whole thing is a fabrication to injure a worthy citizen.

Iowa claims to be the banner Republican State, Hayes' majority in that State is over 60,000, and the entire Congressional delegation is Republican.—Hurrah for Iowa!—Rep. paper.

Kentucky claims to be the banner Democratic State, Tilden's majority being over 75,000 and the entire congressional delegation Democratic. Hurrah for Kentucky.

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

The 13th District.

We give the following as the vote of this district in the two last election:

	Williams	Harrison		Hayes
DeKalb....	186	....	179	....
Elkhart....	....	269	....	849
Kosciusko	....	578	....	508
Lagrange	....	990	....	958
Marshall	608	....	707	....
Noble	27	....	84	....
Steuben	....	1251	....	1252
Total......	823	2078	808	3067

Mr. Baker received 57 less votes than Harrison on the State election.

Holloways Pills and Ointment—We stand aghast at the thousands hourly hurried to a premature grave, victims of having neglected the first symptoms of disease. Whether the complaint originates in the body, or be introduced accidentally through the skin—fatal results may be warded off by a timely recourse to one or both of these medicines. 25 cent per box or pot.

We are opposed to White Stockings standing hitched at the Stamets Hotel on Sunday. It don't look right, and then people ask us a good many questions about it, and the thing looks suspicious. Mr. Parent we'll have a conjuction issued if you don't veto it.

An Australian has taught a canary to sing Home, Sweet Home, by suspending it before a looking glass near a music box which performed that melody.—Supposing the bird in the glass was making the music, the bird finally caught the notes, and now warbles the whole tune.

Rhode Island went for Hayes. It also voted by the same republican majority not to extend the sufferage to foreign born citizens who had been honorably discharged from the army and navy.—That the people would support for president a man who endorses the American alliance should consent to the disfranchisment of its own soldiers because of foreign is not remarkable.

Edward Baker, Esq., having purchased the Bakery formerly owned by Baker Bros., extends his kindest thanks for past patronage and wishes a continuance of the same. Every department has been re-arranged and the lunch room is in the neatest and best of manner. If you want everything to suit you right up to the handle don't fail to give him a call.

In Burmah, if two married persons are tired of each other's society, they dissolve partnership in the following touching but conclusive manner: They light two candles, and shutting up their hut sit down and quietly wait until they are burned out. The one whose candle burns out first, gets up at once and leaves the house forever, taking nothing but the clothes he or she may have on at the time; all else becomes the property of the other person.

The rings were in favor of Gov. Hays' election before his defeat, and they are now in favor of counting him in in spite of it. Does any one suppose that there is a corrupt organization in the country that is not waiting and working for Gov. Hayes, election by count, in the face of his defeat by ballot? The Rings know that Gov Tildens' accession to the Presidency political death to them, and they, having failed to prevent it by fair means, will do their best with foul.

Special Announcement.

We have made arrangements with W. G. THOMAN, Esq., late city editor of the Indianapolis Daily Sentinel, to take our place during our absence at Washington. We can commend Mr. T. as an able writer, and a clever, pleasant gentlemen, and will have no fear but that the COURIER will be in good hands under his editorial management. We think some of remaining until the holidays only, and expect to remain at home this winter.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.
☞Cashmere in all shades
☞New fall style Prints
☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints
☞Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00
☞A new line of Alpaccas and all and winter dress goods

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money to loan and guarantee security.

The Ladies Social connected with the Presbyterian church will give a Thanksgiving dinner and supper, on the 30th inst, on the first floor of Mr. Williams' new building, opposite the Jail. Dinner will consist of everything the market affords, from a roast turkey to a pumpkin pie, oysters, cold meats, etc.

Tickets for dinner $1 a couple.
Tickets for supper 75c a couple.
Single tickets dinner 50c.
Supper 40c.

The proceeds to be applied to seating the new church. Come one and all and get a square meal and thereby assist the ladies in a commendable work.

Tickets can be obtained at Albright's and Houser's business rooms.

Married.

HAZZARD—BALCOMB—On Nov. 17 at the residence of L. Jackman, by Rev Mr. Johnson, Mr. Jas. V. Hazzard, cashier of the first national bank, and Miss Mary E. Balcomb, of Fort Wayne. We hazzard the opinion that there is much happiness in store for our friends, that the journey through life, though some what hazzardous, may yet be a pleasant and prosperous one, and that life would be a burden if there was no hazzard in the co-partnership. We know that we can extend the best wishes of a host of friends to Mr. H. and his accomplished and handsome lady.

We would call the attention of our musical friends to the following magazines published by J. L. PETERS, 843 broadway, New-York; namley:

Peters' Household Melodies, containing five or six beautiful Songs and Choruses

Peters' Parlor Music, containig several easy Piano Pieces.

La Creme De La Creme, a collection of difficult Piano Music by the best European authors.

Peters' Organs Selections, for Reed or Pipe Organ.

Peters Sacred Selections' containing Hymns, Anthems, etc., and

Peters, Octavo Choruses, containing four choice Choruses for Singing Societies. These magazines are published at the uniform price of $2 per annum, post-paid, and we have no hesitation in saying that they are unequaled in cheapness and elegance. Give your newsdealers 25 cents and tell him to order a sample copy, or send direct to the Publisher.

MR. EDITOR—We desire space in your valuable paper to return our thanks for the valuable presents received on the occasion of our china wedding, Monday evening, Nov. 20th. The following named will please accept our heartfelt thanks and kind regards: Mr. & Mrs. H. E. Altenburg, Mr. & Mrs. H. C. Peterson, Mr. & Mrs. Geo. Ensley, Mr and Mrs. G. A. Porter, Mr. & Mrs. M. L. Duck, Mr. & Mrs. J. L. Davis, Mr. & Mrs Nicholas Ensley, Mr. & Mrs. J. Stafford Mr. & Mrs. J. R. Moody, Mr. & Mrs J. W. Welsh, Mr. & Mrs. G. C. Ralston, Mrs. C. Fair, Mr. & Mrs. C. F. Crouse, Mr. G. W. Crouse, Fort Wayne; Mr. & Mrs. H. H. Stamets, Mr. & Mrs. R. H. Weamer, Mr & Mrs. I. Hague, Mrs. M. McConnell, Mr. & Mrs. J. Gilliland, Mr. & Mrs. A. Totten, Mr. & Mrs. J. L. Roth Mr. & Mrs. G. H. Hoffman, Mr. & Mrs. A. Cannon, Miss L. Ensley, Miss Etta Gilliland.

G. W. GORDON,
MARY C. GORDON.

The Times.

There are exciting times, no doubt.—But they don't compare with the bitter strife and secret intrigues set on foot to prevent Thomas Jefferson takin the oath of an office to which the people elected him in 1800.

Mr. Jefferson, so the historians relate rode down that mud road, now called Pennsylvania avenue, on his Virginia thorough bred; hitched his horse to the "palings" of the capitol grounds; went in to the Senate Chamber, with overcoat on, and whip in hand. He then took the oath of office as President, and with a flash of political electricity, borrowed from his friend Ben Franklin possibly, breathed the breath of life into the American Uonin and the American Democracy.

Governor Tilden is as profound and thoughtful a man as was Governor Jefferson.

As for his courage, read the record of his contest with Tweed and the Canal Ring. He will advise nothing that is wrong, but will lead the way in what is right.

We say to Democrats, if unfortunately the Radicals and Grant and his followers should precipitate fearful troubles, through such dregs of life as their agents in South Carolina and Louisiana, We must stand firm, doing no wrong and submitting to none. We have a man at the helm. A man brave brilliant and true.

Another Crime at Garret.

The Chicago times of last Monday contained an account of a horrid crime at Garret as follows:

On Friday of last week a woman of disreputable character came from Kendallville to Garret. A lot of roughs of Garret, partly by force and partly by persuasion, got the woman into a barn, and after permitting a number of them to have sexual intercourse with her, she refused to entertain any more of the vile wretches in that way, at which the roughs became enraged, and kicked her in the back and abdomen, inflicting injuries, from the effects of which the woman died yesterday. Some of the parties known to be implicated in the affair have skipped the country. No arrests have as yet been made, and the citizens of Garret seem desirous of hushing the matter up without any effort being made to bring the perpetrators of the vile deed to account for their crime.

The News last week gave no intimation of this terrible affair and the citizens have to depend on foreign papers for an expose if this disreputable affair. Instead of that the News whines about one Mr. Morse there one week, and then applies soft-soap the next. Either Mr Morse done nothing wrong or else Parker has not the nerve to show up this matter in its true light.

Ladies Take Notice.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity, are respectively invited call at H. H. Stamets' Millinery and Fancy Store, and examine the new and elegant Perfume and Lily White Combined. Nothing like it has ever been offered for sale in this place and is pronounced by all who have used it to be the finest and best in the market. We shall take pleasure in showing it, whether you buy or not. We have also many new novelties in the Millinery line, which we are offering at astonishing low figures, and cannot be undersold by any house in this place. Come and see us.

H. H. STAMETS,
3m. Sole Agt. for Auburn.

A Card to the Public.

For many years we have made two medicines suited to the ailments of a vast class of sufferers. Thousands of cures have been made by them, and, in fact, the word failure could not be coupled with them. But within the last two years counterfeits of our medicines have sprung up, dangerous in their close imitation of our Trade Mark. To secure the people, we have placed upon each genuine of Holloway's Ointment the fac simile of the signature of our agent, Mr. Joe. Haydock. To counterfeit is felony. We shall relentlessly pursue any one who imitates this with the utmost vigor of the law. We most earnestly beg that the great mass of the American people will aid us in our efforts to protect their health, and help us in our task of bringing these most unprincipled men to the bar of justice Uniformly refuse to purchase Medicines purporting to be ours unless Mr. Joe. Haydocks signature is attached to each box of Pills or pot of Ointment and the end will soon be reached.

The public's obedient servant.
HOLLOWAY & Co.

Township Institutes for November and December, will be as follows:

1. Union township, at district No. Nov. 30, Dec. 1, and 2.
2. Smithfield, township at No. 5, Dec. 7, 8 and 9.
3. Wilmington township, at No. 7, Dec. 4, 5 and 6.
4. Newville and Stafford townships, at Newville, Dec. 13, 14 and 15.
5. Richland and Fairfield at Corunna, Dec. 21, 22 and 23.
6. Concord, at Spencerville, Dec. 28, 29 and 30.

Others will be published as soon as time and place are settled.

Teachers should bring their Grammars, Arithmetics, Geographies and attend promptly.

JAMES A. BARNS.

In the Chinese department at the Centennial, there were several wax figures representing specimens of Chinese humanity, all in a row. When our friend Davenport arrived at the point where they stood, on a recent visit there, one of the living Chinese happened to be standing on a line with the wax figures, and so true to nature were the figures that he did not notice any difference between the living heathen and the statuary. Presently the live man moved away. Davenport in astonishment turned to his wife—"Thunder and lightning, see that wax figure walk."

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the north and south sides of Union street, commencing on west side of Main street, running west on north side of lot No. 54, north end of lot No. 34 and 7, O. P. on north side of lots No. 27, 54, 107, 134, and south side of lots No. 135, 108, 55 and 28 in western addition, also on south end of lots No. 8 and 33, and south side of lot No. 55, O. P., all in the incorporated town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within thirty [30] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Aug. 15, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Prest.
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. E. HOFFMAN

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC 1. THEREFORE, be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the south side of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on north side of Ninth [9] street, commencing at south west corner of lot No. 9, in Ashley's second addition, and continuing on south end of lots No. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 16 and 17, in Ashley's second addition, also on south side of lots No. 143, 98, 81 and 18, western addition to said town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, State of Indian, said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within 30 days after this ordinance shall take effect, to be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber, if made of Oak, the plank to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] inches in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and one half [1½] inches in thickness, nor more than [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be not less than [3] by [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS, an emergency exists this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, Dekalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board at their regular meeting in Nov. 15, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Prest.
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. E. HOFFMAN,

Now advertise your holiday presents for sale.

Best School Paper at Houser's.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

JUDGE WESTBROOK, of a Brooklyn court, has decided to grant the motion of the defendant in the case of Moulton vs. Beecher, to change the venue to a northern county, and Delaware county will be selected unless a good reason for not doing so is given.... Information from St. Albans, Vt., is to the effect that arms and ammunition are being concentrated there by the Fenians. Maj. Gen. Smith, in Canada, is taking every precaution to have volunteers in readiness in case of an emergency.

THE suit of Mr. Francis D. Moulton against Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, for malicious prosecution, in which damages were laid at $50,000, has been discontinued, owing to the change of venue to Delaware county.

A SERIOUS riot occurred at Scranton, Pa., the other day, between the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company's mechanics on a strike and some of their number who recently returned to work. The fight occurred in the vicinity of the shops as the men were quitting work. Bars of iron, stones, and other missiles were used, and several were seriously injured.

A BILL to accord women the same privileges as men has been defeated in the Vermont House of Representatives—111 to 46.

THE WEST.

THE Chicago bank clearings for last week foot up a total of $20,548,702.04, being $1,500,000 less than for the corresponding week last year.... There is said to be an immense stampede from Deadwood, in the Black Hills, for Wolf mountain, where marvelous discoveries have been made, surpassing any in the Deadwood region.

THE Marine Bank of St. Paul, Minn., has failed. The closed doors bear the announcement of an assignment to William Rhodes. Capital, $100,000. It was the smallest, but one of the oldest banks in that city, having succeeded the private bank of Territorial days known as Deacon Caldwell's Bank.... A new road is projected from St. Joseph, Mo., to pass through Glidden, Green county, Iowa, and Pomeroy, to Minnesota; also, a road from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to intersect the Chillicothe road, on the Iowa State line, in Page county; and one from the State Line road, in Appanoose county, Iowa, which is in operation from Keokuk.

ABOUT 7,000 school children in Milwaukee, Wis., have recently been vaccinated. Small-pox is apparently not worse than at the time the last report was issued, but the deaths are still too large to be viewed with comfort.

IT is now stated that negotiations have been about concluded between John H. Lick, the trustees of the Lick fund, and various beneficiaries, which will result in an amicable settlement. The details have not yet been fully settled.... Advices from Gen. Crook indicate that he considers that the Indian war will soon be ended. He writes that he will prosecute the winter campaign with energy, so that it will close before the season is too far advanced. He says that there are hardly any Indians on the war-path, except the band under Crazy Horse, which is not very numerous, and about 2,000 Indians who are estimated to be yet with Sitting Bull, and supposed to have gone north. Even should these latter confront Gen. Crook, it is believed that he will have a sufficient force under him to contend successfully with the hostiles. But the opinion prevails strongly that Sitting Bull will not fight any more, and that the harassing he has been subjected to, and the losses he has suffered in the large numbers of followers who have deserted him, will cause him to fly northward. It is not believed that he or his followers will come into the Agencies. It is feared that Gen. Crook's command will experience similar and as great suffering now as they did last year on the plains.

WASHINGTON.

MR. ALEXANDER R. SHEPHERD, of the District of Columbia, last week, called together a number of his personal friends and creditors, stating to them that he was pecuniarily embarrassed, and submitted to them a statement of assets and liabilities, showing an excess of liabilities of upward of $600,000. A committee of five was appointed to examine into the details, and in a few days a meeting of his creditors will be called to hear the report.

THE pardon of Wm. O. Avery, one of the St. Louis whisky-ring conspirators, was signed one day last week, by the President.

A MEETING of the creditors of ex-Gov. Shepherd was held lately. Ninety per cent. of the creditors were present, and unanimously agreed to extend for a period of five years their several claims. Mr. Shepherd has turned over all his property to the Hon. George Taylor, H. A. Willard, and Samuel Cross, as trustees, for the benefit of his creditors, but with the agreement that he is to have the management of the realization of his assets. The detailed statement of his affairs showed an excess of about $500,000 of assets over liabilities. His friends confidently anticipate that he will be able to settle up his affairs long before the expiration of the time granted.... The Congressional House Committee on Appropriations will meet on the 22d of November to prepare the bills for the next year. Col. Stevens, the clerk of the committee, has been at work a month or more, and has them nearly all in form, and he thinks the committee will have at least three bills ready for presentation by the time the House meets.

THE following statement, says a special to the New York Evening Post, taken from the books of the Postoffice Department, shows the receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, and will form the basis of the annual report of the Postmaster General:

Receipts from all sources	$28,644,197.50
Increase over last year	1,632,836.91
Expenditures of all kinds	33,263,487.58
Decrease from last year	347,621.97
Excess of expenditures over receipts	4,619,290.08
Excess of expenditures for previous year was	6,472,126.99

Nearly the entire receipts of the department are derived from the sale of stamps, stamped envelopes, and postal cards, the receipts from these sources being $26,879,512.10. Among the items of expenditure the following were the principal ones, viz.:

Inland transportation	$14,745,845.95
Compensation of Postmasters	7,397,397.91
Clerks for postoffices	3,480,730.15
Letter-carriers	1,980,798.62
Railway clerks	1,328,760.19
Manufacture of stamped envelopes postal cards and wrappers	680,610.86
Foreign mail transportation	229,123.26

The revenue from money-order business was $120,000.

THE SOUTH.

A FIRE at Hot Springs, Ark., one day last week, destroyed the Hale House and the large banking house of Rumpter & Smith. Soon after, a fire was discovered in the banking house of S. P. Young & Co., which, together with the offices of Drs. Westbrook and Arnaud, and the office of Morgan, United States Receiver, were destroyed. Loss, about $35,000.

AN affray occurred at Stanton, Powell county, Ky., on the evening of the election, resulting in the wounding of seven persons, three fatally, one of whom is missing.

A LARGE fire in the depot cotton-yards of the Georgia Central railroad at Savannah, Ga., recently, destroyed one warehouse, twenty empty cars, and about 1,000 bales of cotton.

THE engineers on the Georgia railroad, belonging to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, struck for higher wages one day lately. Thirteen freight and two passenger trains were out on the road at the time.

THE business portion of Magnolia, N. C., was destroyed by fire, one night last week. Nineteen buildings, including the railroad depot, telegraph and express offices, with their contents were burned. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

GENERAL.

THREE thousand five hundred persons have been vaccinated in the West End of Montreal, and 3,000 in the East End. Only four objections were made out of 8,500 persons vaccinated.... A moose from Nova Scotia, that can trot a mile in harness in 2:20 is amusing the novelty seekers in Philadelphia.

THE Quebec Legislature was formally opened on Saturday last by the Administrator of the Government with the customary speech from the throne. His Excellency complimented the House on the fact that the loan authorized last session had been advantageously placed, and that the credit of the province occupied a high position in the English market. He said it was the intention of the Government to come to the aid of the railways in the province seeking relief. He believed the reports to be laid before the House on colonization and repatriation will establish the fact that the country continues to make satisfactory progress.... Honolulu papers received at San Francisco bring news of the arrival at Honolulu of the brig Three Brothers, with 190 of the crew of the whaling fleet abandoned in the Arctic. The statements made by the masters of the Three Brothers and Arctic, are corroborative of the story of those masters of the abandoned ships who reached San Francisco.

IT is reported that negotiations are pending between this country and foreign powers looking toward an interchange of criminals. In consequence of this, Sweeney is said to have left Paris, and Connolly is traveling under an assumed name under a British passport.... Cornelius H. Call, a freight conductor on the Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus and Indiana railroad, was shot by a tramp, at Shelby, Ohio, last week.

THE trial of the claim of Admiral Porter and the North Atlantic squadron for prize-money, growing out of the capture of Richmond, was begun recently before Judge Humphries in Washington, D. C. About $1,500,000 is involved in the controversy.... The steamer Moche, belonging to a line of steamers running between Havana and Porto Rico, was seized by a number of the passengers, and the Captain and other officers killed. They then put the rest of the passengers on shore at Romero Key, Cuba, and put to sea.

THE Western Wholesale Drug Association had a called meeting at St. Louis, recently, at which business of interest only to the members was transacted. A banquet was given by the local members at the Lindell Hotel.

POLITICAL.

ON account of the excitement concerning the election, and charges having been made that the Returning Board of Canvassers of Louisiana were unfair, the heads of the two political campaign committees requested the presence of a number of distinguished gentlemen from the North at the official canvass of the vote of that State. The following were among those invited, who have already gone to New Orleans for that purpose: William M. Evarts, John A. Dix, E. W. Stoughton and Van Allen, New York; Mr. Schaumberg, W. D. Kelley, Pennsylvania; Cortland and Parker, New Jersey; Senator Sherman, ex-Gov. Noyes, Gen. Garfield, and Judge Stanley Matthews, Ohio; C. Irving Ditty, of Maryland; J. A. Kasson, Iowa; Gen. Ben Harrison, Indiana; E. Rockwood Hoar, Massachusetts; Henry D. McHenry, Senator Stevenson, Henry Watterson, Kentucky; Senator McDonald, Gen. Love, Indiana; ex-Gov. Palmer, Lyman Trumbull, Illinois; ex-Senator Doolittle, Wisconsin; Gov. Carroll, Maryland; Senator Bragg, James O. Broadhead, Erastus Wells, Charles Gibson, Missouri; ex-Gov. Curtin, Pennsylvania. Several of those invited declined—among them Senators Logan and Edmunds, and Hon. W. F. Coolbaugh, of Chicago—but the delegation is one with whose decisions the country will feel satisfied. Gen. Grant telegraphed the following orders in relation to the canvass from Philadelphia to Washington:

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.

Gen. W. T. Sherman, Washington:

Instruct Gen. Auger, in Florida, to be vigilant with the force at his command to preserve peace and good order, and to see that the proper and legal Boards of Canvassers are unmolested in the performance of their duties. Should there be any grounds of suspicion of a fraudulent count on either side, it should be reported and denounced at once. No man worthy of the office of President should be willing to hold it if "counted in," or placed there by fraud. Either can afford to be disappointed in the result. The country cannot afford to have the result tainted by a suspicion of illegal or false returns.

U. S. GRANT.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10, 1876.

To Gen. Sherman, Washington:

Send all the troops to Gen. Augur that he may deem necessary to insure entire quiet and peaceable count of the ballots actually cast. They may be taken from South Carolina unless there is reason to suspect an outbreak there. The presence of citizens from other States, understand, is requested in Louisiana to see that the Board of Canvassers make a fair count of the vote actually cast. It is to be hoped that representative and fair men of both parties will go.

U. S. GRANT.

THE total vote of the State of Connecticut is in, with this result: Mr. Tilden's plurality is 2,989; his majority is 2,390. Hubbard's plurality (for Governor) is 3,523; his majority is 2,144. The total vote of the State is, for the Presidential tickets, 121,446; for the Governors', 121,696.... Lieut. Gen. Sheridan has left Chicago for New Orleans to take command of the troops there in person.

NEWFOUNDLAND advices report several shipwrecks with loss of crews. A brig drifted into Crow harbor, Fortune bay, with four of the crew dead and lashed to the rigging.... Chicago elevators contain 2,812,742 bushels of wheat; 746,741 bushels of corn; 430,962 bushels of oats; 173,474 bushels of rye, and 967,366 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 5,140,285 bushels, against 2,555,296 bushels at this period last year.

THE Legislature of Colorado has elected two United States Senators—Hon. J. B. Chaffee and Hon. A. M. Teller. They are both Republicans.

THE official canvass of the vote in Ohio for President has been concluded, and it is found that Hayes' plurality over Tilden in that State was 7,516.

FOREIGN.

THE port and roadstead of Cronstadt, in Russia, are icebound, and navigation is stopped. The River Dwina is frozen, and navigation is closed. The River Neva is also choked with floating ice from the Lake of Ladoga.... Gen. Loma has ordered the inhabitants of the Basque provinces in Spain to immediately deliver all their arms to the authorities.... New York city had a $50,000 fire in a Broadway business block one day last week.

THE following is the text of the speech delivered by the Czar at Moscow, in reply to an address of the citizens, on Friday of last week: "I thank you for your sentiments respecting the political situation, which is now more clearly defined than before. You know that Turkey has yielded to my demands for an immediate armistice to end the useless slaughter in Servia and Montenegro. In this unequal struggle the Montenegrins, as heretofore, have shown themselves real heroes. Unfortunately the same cannot be said of the Servians, notwithstanding the assistance of our volunteers, many of whom shed their blood for the Slavonic cause. I know that all Russia joins me in warmly sympathizing in the suffering of our brethren and co-religionists. The true interests of Russia are, however, dearer to me than all. My wish to the utmost is to spare Russian blood. Therefore I have striven and will still strive to obtain a real improvement of the position of the Christians by peaceful means. In a few days negotiations will commence at Constantinople. My most ardent wish is that we may arrive at a general agreement. Should this, however, not be achieved, and should I see that we cannot obtain the guarantees necessary for carrying out what we intended to demand from the Porte, I am firmly determined to act independently. I am convinced that the whole of Russia will respond to my summons should I consider it necessary, and Russia's honor require it. Moscow will lead the van by its example. May God help us to carry out our sacred mission."... Gen. Gonzales arrived at San Domingo, Hayti, on the 19th ult. The interior town of Santiago and seaport of Puerto Plata capitulated to the Gonzales party, and communication between the seaport and the interior is established. Gen. Gonzales has not imprisoned or banished a single partisan of the fallen Government.... It is reported from Calcutta, India, that 20,000 persons perished in the cyclone of Oct. 31, and some estimates place the loss of lives as high as 40,000. In a town of Barrishol, the capital of Backergunge district, 3,000 houses were leveled with the earth. Letters from survivors report that a great wave nine feet deep swept over the large island of Dakhin, Shanabaspore. The whole of Eastern Bengal appears to have suffered severely from the cyclone, and Calcutta narrowly escaped. The reports of famine from Bombay are worse. A water famine is feared in some districts.

CARDINAL SIMEONI, recently Papal Nuncio at Madrid, Spain, has been appointed to succeed the late Cardinal Antonelli as Secretary of State to the Pope.... Three steamers have arrived at Havana, from Spain, since the last report, with 3,000 troops and four Generals. The General-in-Chief, Martinez Campos, with staff, have left that city to take the field.... A Greek bark was run down in the English channel, one day last week, and eight of her crew perished.... There has been a hurricane at Lisbon.

GEN. MARTINEZ CAMPOS, now commanding the Spanish troops in Cuba, has issued a proclamation intended to test the loyalty of persons who have deserted from that army and joined the insurgents. The proclamation gives such men until Dec. 31 to return and take their old places in the Spanish army, failing in which they are threatened with death by the bullet in case they are captured thereafter.... The Czar has ordered the mobilization of the Russian army. A circular of Prince Gortschakoff, the Russian Premier, to Russian representatives abroad, explaining this measure, says: "The Czar does not wish war, and will, if possible, avoid it. He is, however, determined that the principles of justice which have been recognized as necessary by the whole of Europe shall be carried out in Turkey under efficacious guarantees."

A REUTER telegram from Constantinople says: "All the powers are stated to be in accord respecting the conference which is expected to commence its sitting at the end of November. The Porte has made some objection, but its adhesion appears certain, England having made urgent representations."... The British steamer City of Manchester, from Liverpool for Calcutta, was sunk off Akayah, India, recently. All hands, except the Captain and steward, are supposed to be lost.... The army which Russia will mobilize forthwith, or as rapidly as the state of the weather will permit, is stated to consist of 195,202 infantry, 26,788 cavalry, and 624 rifled cannon. It is also reported that Russia will not wait until April for her next year's contingent of 200,000 men, but will call them out at once.

The Proposal for a Conference Upon the Louisiana Canvass.

The following address has been issued at New Orleans:

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.

To the Hon. Stanley Matthews, James Garfield, John A. Logan, Wm. D. Kelley, John A. Kasson, J. Irwin Ditty, John H. Shoenberger, Wm. M. Evarts, E. W. Stoughton, John A. Dix, and others:

The undersigned arrived here yesterday. They came in answer to a telegram from Hon. Abraham S. Hewitt, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, dated at New York, Nov. 10, 1876, as follows, viz: "The citizens of New Orleans urgently request that a delegation of prominent gentlemen come there at once to counsel peace and fair and honest returns. You are earnestly requested to be one of ten or fifteen gentlemen, all widely known, to meet at the Louisville Galt House, on Saturday evening, proceeding directly south, or, if more convenient, meeting at the Charles Hotel, New Orleans, on Monday morning. Your prompt acceptance by telegraph is requested. This emergency appeals to your patriotism." The undersigned are informed you have come here at the request of the President of the United States to see that the Board of Canvassers make a fair count of the vote actually cast. While in the late canvass you gave your support to Hayes and Wheeler as candidates for President and Vice President, and the undersigned gave their support to Tilden and Hendricks for these offices, they feel assured that all good citizens of all parties regard an honest count and true returns of the vote actually cast of greater moment than the success of any candidate for office, and are ready to do all that honorable men should do to secure such return of the vote cast at the late election in the State of Louisiana, which assumes more than ever before a national importance, and upon which in this crisis may depend the very existence of constitutional government. The undersigned, therefore, in view of the unhappy controversies which have heretofore arisen from the action of the Returning Board of the State, where its action could not in any event change the result of a Presidential election, and in view of the desire of all good men that effect should be given to the will of the majority as lawfully expressed, respectfully ask you, or such of you as are present, to meet and confer with them personally or through committees, as may be deemed most wise, in order that such influence as we possess may be exerted in behalf of such a canvass of the votes actually cast as by its fairness and impartiality shall command the respect and acquiescence of the American people of all parties. Yours respectfully, John M. Palmer, Lyman Trumbull, William R. Morrison, Illinois; Samuel J. Randall, A. J. Curtin, Wm. Bigler, Pennsylvania; J. E. McDonald, Indiana; J. R. Doolittle, Geo. B. Smith, Wisconsin; Geo. W. Julian, M. D. Manson, John Love, Indiana; Henry Watterson, J. W. Stevenson, H. D. McHenry, Kentucky; Oswald Ottendorfer, New York; J. B. Stallo, Ohio; Lewis V. Bogy, James O. Broadhead, C. Gibson, Missouri; John Lee Carroll, Wm. F. Hamilton, Maryland; W. S. Sumner, Connecticut.

THE REPLY.

The following is the reply of the Republicans to the communication from the Democrats inviting a conference:

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 10, 1876.

To Hon. John M. Palmer, Lewis V. Bogy, Lyman Trumbull, James O. Broadhead, W. R. Morrison, and others, present at the request of the Chairman of the National Democratic Committee:

GENTLEMEN: The majority of the undersigned, to whom your note of the 14th inst. was addressed, only arrived in this city yesterday evening. We have, therefore, been unable to reply until this morning, and can only regret that your communication should have been given to the press immediately upon its delivery, and without the possibility of an answer accompanying. You remark that we came at the request of the President to see that the Board of Canvassers make a fair count of the votes actually cast, and ask that we meet and confer in order "that such an influence as we possess may be exerted on behalf of such canvass of the votes actually cast as by its fairness and impartiality shall command the respect and acquiescence of the American people of all parties." We join heartily with you in counsels of peace, and in the expression of an earnest desire for a perfectly honest and just declaration of the results of the recent election in Louisiana by its lawfully constituted authorities, and we may add that we know of no reason to doubt that such a declaration will be made; but we do not see the propriety or utility of a conference on the basis and subject to the limitations you propose, for we have no such duty imposed on us, and, as suggested by the clause of your note first quoted, we are at most requested to be witnesses of what shall occur in the canvass of the votes, without power or legal influence over the result, or over the means by which under the laws of Louisiana, the result is to be determined. We cannot doubt that you, upon reflection, will concur with us. We are here as private citizens, with no official powers. We, therefore, cannot supersede or modify any laws of this State, nor have we any right to control or influence any of its officers as to the manner in which they shall perform the ministerial or judicial duties imposed upon them by its law, and should we, being strangers and without official functions, attempt this, we should be condemned by the people of every State in the Union for an improper interference with local administration.

The following extract from the laws of Louisiana shows the Canvassing Board is expressly required in certain cases to exercise judicial as well as ministerial functions:

SEC. 3. That in such canvass and compilation the returning officers shall observe the following order: They shall compile, first, the statements from all polls or voting-places at which there shall have been a fair, free and reasonable registration and election. Whenever from any poll or voting-place there shall be received the statement of any Supervisor of Registration or Commissioner of Election, in form as required by Sec. 26 of this act, an affidavit of three or more citizens of any riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence which prevented or tended to prevent a fair, free and peaceable vote of all qualified electors entitled to vote at such poll or voting-place, such returning officers shall not canvass the count or compile the statements from such poll or voting-place until the statements from all the other polls or voting-places shall have been canvassed and compiled. The returning officers shall then proceed to investigate the statements of riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence at any such poll or voting-place, and if, from the evidence of such statement, they shall be convinced that such riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence did not materially interfere with the purity and freedom of the election at such poll or voting-place, or did not prevent a sufficient number of qualified voters thereat from registering or voting to materially change the result of the election, then, and not otherwise, said returning officers shall canvass and compile the vote of such poll or voting-place with those previously canvassed or compiled; but, if the said returning officers shall not be fully satisfied thereof, it shall be their duty to examine further testimony in regard thereto, and to this end they shall have power to send for persons and papers; if, after such examination, the said returning officers shall be convinced that said riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence did materially interfere with the purity and freedom of the election at such poll or voting-place, or did prevent a sufficient number of the qualified electors thereat from registering and voting to materially change the result of the election, then the said returning officers shall not canvass or compile the statement of the votes of such poll or voting-place, but shall exclude it from those returns; provided, that any person interested in said election by reason of being a candidate for place shall be allowed a hearing before such returning officers upon making application within the time allowed for the forwarding of returns of said election.

Hence, if there are any facts requiring the judgment of the board upon the validity of any election or returning as affected by such frauds or violence, it would be a manifest interference with State rights and local self-government for persons like ourselves, without official right, to attempt to influence or contest its judicial election. Had a corresponding board in the State of New York in 1868 been authorized to pass upon the fraudulent returns of votes of the city of New York in that year, and a delegation of citizens of Louisiana, however respectable, attempted to influence its judicial action upon the facts presented to it under the laws of that State, such attempt would have been universally condemned. If the duties of the Canvassing Board of Louisiana were merely ministerial or clerical, as in the case of any officer charged by law with the duty of verifying and declaring the result of any election, and investigating, with no discretion, as when the President of the Senate counts and declares the votes of electors of the several States in the election of President and Vice President under the constitution of the United States, a different case would be presented. It is, in our judgment, vital to the preservation of constitutional liberty that the habit of obedience to the forms of law should be sedulously inculcated and cultivated, and that the resort to extra-constitutional modes of redress for even actual grievances should be avoided and condemned as revolutionary, disorganizing, and tending to disorder and anarchy.

To reduce the whole question, therefore, to the mere clerical duty of counting the votes actually cast, as proposed by you, in distinction from votes legally cast and returned, irrespective of the question whether they are fraudulently or violently cast, or otherwise vitiated, involves a nullification of the provisions of the laws of Louisiana which have already been adjudicated as valid by the Supreme Court, and would be wholly unjustifiable here as well as in any other State of the Union which has provided laws to protect the rights of voters and the purity of the ballot. We cannot, therefore, concur in your proposition for a conference on that basis. Very respectfully,

John Sherman, Stanley Matthews, J. A. Garfield, Ohio; Wm. D. Kelley, Pennsylvania; John A. Kasson, Iowa; E. W. Stoughton, New York; C. Irvin Ditty, Maryland; J. H. Van Allen, New York; Eugene Hale, Maine; M. S. Quay, Pennsylvania; Will Cumback, Indiana; Ed F. Noyes, Job E. Stevenson, Ohio; John Coburn, Lew Wallace, Indiana; J. M. Tuttle, W. A. McGrew, J. W. Chapman, W. R. Smith, Iowa; Abner Taylor, S. R. Haven, J. M. Beardsley, C. B. Farwell, Illinois; Sidney Clark, J. C. Hilson, Kansas.

War Trappings of an Indian Chief.

The Smithsonian Institute received recently a valuable and interesting addition to its museum in the shape of a complete and very fine outfit of the war trappings of an Indian chief. The contribution comes from west of the Rocky mountains, but no letter of transmission or description has been as yet received. The suit consists of a very fine head-dress of red flannel, trimmed and decorated with beadwork and eagle's feathers. The long train which descends from the head and over the shoulders is also fringed with eagle's feathers. There is an undershirt which is worn next the skin. It is of red flannel also, with a black and white border, and is sewn over with elk teeth. The suit includes a pair of war leggings of red cloth, highly decorated with thick beadwork in alternate squares of dark blue and light blue beads, and with fringes of buckskin down the sides. The war-shirt, worn outside, is of buckskin, ornamented with beads and human hair, and is painted on the breast and shoulder. In addition to these articles there is a complete flowing shabraque, which is worn over the shoulders with the ends falling on each side of the wearer. It is worn only when the chief is mounted, as a chief is not fond of carrying much weighty apparel or accoutrement, and is of flannel, faced with otter skin. To this is attached the bow-case and quiver-case, which are both heavily ornamented with beadwork in various colors. There came with the suit a pair of squaw's leggings of red flannel, very thickly and tastefully sewn with beadwork. These articles could not have cost less than some $200 in the aggregate, and the thick ornamental beadwork is very costly.

How to Get Rich.

Nothing is more easy than to grow rich. It is only to trust nobody, to befriend none, to get everything and save all you get; to stint ourselves and everybody belonging to us; to be the friend of no man, and to have no man for our friend; to heap interest upon interest, cent upon cent; to be mean, miserable and despised, for some twenty or thirty years, and riches will come as sure as disease and disappointment. And when pretty near enough wealth is collected by a disregard of all the charities of the human heart, at the expense of every enjoyment, save that of wallowing in filthy meanness, death comes to finish the work—the body is buried in a hole, the heirs dance over it, and the spirit goes—where?

MLLE. BOISSONTIER, who ten years ago bathed in a bath-tub of solid silver at Paris, is now a hapless paralytic at Plepus, covered with loathsome rags, and consumed by a rage for tobacco.

END OF THE EXHIBITION.

The Ceremonies Attending the Formal Closing of the International Exposition of 1876.

A special to a Chicago paper, dated Philadelphia, Nov. 10, thus describes the formal closing ceremonies:

The light of the world's fair of 1876 went out to-day in the midst of a dreary rain-storm, a sea of mud, and a general feeling of excitement and discomfort. A grand stand, with accommodation for 1,800 persons, had been built along the western front of the main building and decorated with the flags of all the nations represented in the Exhibition. Facing this was a semi-circle of seats accommodating nearly 4,000 persons, but it became evident, early in the day that these arrangements would have to be abandoned on account of the cold and dampness, and when the rain began to come down at noon the Judges' hall was made ready for the ceremonies of the day. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, however, the attendance was much larger than the average, the cash admissions up to 1 o'clock reaching 92,000, and at 6 o'clock the turnstiles registered 106,474, including 4,466 at half price. By 1 o'clock most of the crowd had packed themselves into the area between the Main building and Machinery hall. President Grant was escorted into the Judges' hall at 2 o'clock, and then the thousands changed their base, with a rush, 100,000 people trying to get into a building that would have to stretch to hold 1,800. Invitations to attend the ceremonies had been sent to the President of the United States and his Cabinet, the Judges of the Supreme Court, the foreign legation, the Senate and House of Representatives, the Governors of the States and Territories, the Mayors of fifty-five cities, the United States Circuit Court, foreign Consuls in Philadelphia, the Judges of Awards, Centennial Commissioners and members of the Board of Finance, the Centennial Bureaus, noted American poets, orators and musicians, and enough other distinguished personages to fill one or two of the main buildings.

On the platform in the Judges' hall were the Governors of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey and Delaware, Chief Justice Waite, the United States and Foreign Centennial Commissioners, and many others. The Presidential party, a few minutes afterward, entered the main hall in the following order: Messrs. McNeil, Blake and Lynch, of the Centennial Commission; President Grant, escorted by Gen. Hawley, and Attorney General Taft, with Secretaries Fish and Cameron; the Rev. Joseph A. Seiss, D. D., and Geo. W. Childs, escorted by President Welsh and Director General Goshorn. A row of honor was then formed on the front of the platform, with President Grant in the center; Gen. Hawley, Director General Goshorn, the Attorney General, Secretary Cameron, and Geo. W. Childs on the right, and Messrs. Morrill, Fish, Seiss, Welsh, and Patterson on the left. After Wagner's inaugural march had been played, the Rev. Dr. Seiss opened the ceremonies with prayer. The orchestra then performed Bach's chorale and fugue, after which the Hon. D. J. Morrill delivered an appropriate address. This was followed by selections from the "Te Deum" by the chorus and orchestra, after which Mr. John Welsh, President of the Centennial Board of Finance, spoke at length.

The orchestra performed Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony," and Director General Goshorn was then introduced for an address. Then followed the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," by the chorus and orchestra, after which came an address by the Hon. Joseph R. Hawley. The chorus, orchestra, and many of the audience joined in the performance of "God Save the Queen," during which the original Union flag was displayed above the platform. Its unfurling was the signal for applause long and loud, and at the same time a salute of forty-seven guns, one for each State and Territory, was fired from George's hill and simultaneously from the United States steamer Plymouth in the harbor. A Federal salute of thirteen guns had been fired at the same points simultaneously at sunrise. After the music, Gen. Hawley, turning to Gen. Grant, said: "Mr. President, we now await your pleasure." The President arose and said: "I declare that the International Exhibition of 1876 is now closed." Gen. Hawley then announced that the President would give the order to stop the Corliss engine, whereupon President Grant turned toward the telegraph instrument, raised his left hand, and immediately the signal was dispatched to Mr. Corliss. It was just 40 minutes after 3 o'clock when the great engine stopped. The ceremony was ended with the Doxology, "Old Hundred" by the chorus, orchestra and audience. The total number of cash admissions to the Exhibition up to date is 8,004,214, and the total cash receipts from admissions $3,813,693.99.

A NEW ROUTE TO CHINA.

Discovery by a Swede of a New Water Communication Between Russia, China and Japan—An Open Way to the Arctic Seas.

Mr. C. Julian Dannfeldt, the chief of the Swedish Centennial Commission, has received news from his country that will be of much interest to geographers and scientific men and to all who feel interest in the problem of the Polar regions.

Mr. Dannfeldt's information is from Prof. Vordenskiold, the eminent mineralogist and geographical explorer, who visited this country as a member of the Jury of Award, and who sailed for Sweden on the 29th day of June. The explorer has already successfully performed the Siberian journey which he had contemplated. He sailed from Sweden in a small steamer chartered by two prominent merchants, one a Swede and the other a Russian, who loaded the vessel with merchandise for sale. Prof. Vordenskiold was placed in command of the expedition. He sailed from Hammerfest in the beginning of August, and after an eventful voyage succeeded in demonstrating the correctness of his theory in regard to an open way to the Arctic sea. He reports having encountered no obstacles and considers the way now quite open from Europe to China via the northern passage and the valley of the Zenessee river, by which stream communication is obtained across Siberia and almost to the frontiers of China.

An immense unmeasured area of extremely fertile and valuable soil was found in this region, all of which is accessible for immediate cultivation. The commercial value and the important results to flow from this demonstration of the feasibility of a northeastern passage to Siberia and China can hardly be foreseen or overestimated.

Vordenskiold, whose letter is, unfortunately, brief, writes that he has also obtained results of great interest to science. Dredging and scientific observations were constantly carried on during the entire voyage. Large accessions have been made to the previously obtained collections from this heretofore unknown region. One of the unexpectedly favorable phenomena of the passage, the Professor reports, was that the water was uniformly found to be surprisingly warm.

Fossil Frauds.

Every one remembers the Cardiff giant, says the New York Times, and the success which that fraudulent fossil achieved before its true character was fully exposed. It now appears that the alleged print of a human foot, which was said to have been recently discovered on a slab of Connecticut sandstone, is merely another attempt to palm off a forged fossil upon a confiding community. Not only does the print of the foot furnish intrinsic evidence that it was made by the foot of a modern Connecticut farmer, but the slab itself proves to be a lump of artificial stone. The forger first made his slab and then put his foot in it. If he had not committed the small mistake of using artificial stone the deceit might have succeeded, and geologists might have accepted it as a final and fatal blow to Moses and his cosmogony. These two instances of attempted fraud in the manufacture of fossils ought to call our attention to the fact that we are wholly at the mercy of the geologists in respect to fossils.

NIGHTMARE.

Who Eats a Late and Hearty Supper Must Pay the Penalty.

There are persons who cannot eat very rich food, or too hearty an evening meal, or late suppers, without being visited the following night by some terrible dream. It may be that they are falling from a precipice, leaping from a high window, in battle and about to be shot, wrecked at sea and drowning, attacked by midnight robbers and likely to be murdered, the hopeless victim of unrequited love, or tormented by a sour-tempered mother-in-law. Such dreams take innumerable fantastic and hideous shapes. In whatever form they come, they are designated by the comprehensive name of nightmare.

Sometimes there is but an indistinct impression of such dreams remaining after waking; at others, the recollection is vivid for days. They are always most unwelcome visitors, leaving behind them painful associations of thought. The nightmare is a hard and galling horse to ride.

At the same time, it may not be an evil untempered with good to be liable to this prompt and most disagreeable penalty for an infringement of the laws of health. The tendency is to make one more observant of regular hours and wholesome diet. Some philosophers have maintained that the most robust constitution does not afford the best chance for long life. This was the opinion of Sir George Combe, the author of a remarkably perspicuous and profound work on "The Constitution of Man." Moses Brown, of Swansea, a rich, benevolent, and highly esteemed member of the Society of Friends, who lived to the age of nearly 100, held to a similar doctrine. He said that when a young man he was so feeble that, had it been possible, he would gladly have compromised for forty years of life. His very feebleness, however, and the quick penalty he was compelled to pay for any inattention to the requirements of health had made him constantly careful of himself; and the consequence was that he lived to a great and unusual age.

A person with what is called an iron constitution may do what he pleases in the way of indulgence and excess without experiencing any immediate disagreeable effects; whereas one of less hardihood and endurance has to pay as he goes. The two have been aptly compared to the credit and the cash systems: against one the score ultimately becomes large and ruinous, and he finally suddenly breaks down; while the other, never having a long account against him, settles the more easily because he settles so often.

We are inclined, therefore, on the whole, to regard what is often spoken of, and not inaccurately as the horrid "nightmare," as, in reality, a minister to health—a useful and moral agency. At the same time, we must admit that he is a minister and a moral agent whose utility depends upon his being avoided. His place is better supplied by the sweet influences of refreshing sleep which wait on manly exercise, a wholesome and generous diet, early and regular hours, a clear conscience, and a good newspaper.

The Art of War.

Col. Valentine Baker of railway carriage note is now regularly engaged in the war office at Constantinople, and is busy organising a plan for the remodeling of the whole Turkish cavalry. If his scheme is followed out, the Ottoman mounted branch of the service will become one of the finest bodies of mounted troops in the world. Part of the proposed scheme is that, at any rate for some years to come, commands in both cavalry regiments and squadrons are only to be given to English officers, or to officers trained in English cavalry regiments. It is believed that this arrangement will not only give employment to a considerable number of half-pay English cavalry officers in Turkey, but also induce many young Turkish officers to go to England for training in cavalry regiments.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	6 60	@11 00
HOGS	5 75	@ 7 50
COTTON	12	@ 12½
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 40	@ 5 10
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 27	@ 1 28
CORN—Western Mixed	59	@ 61
OATS—No. 2 Chicago	46	@ 47
RYE—Western	75	@ 80
PORK—New Mess	17 00	@17 25
LARD—Steam	10½	@ 11

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@ 5 25
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 4 90
Cows and Heifers	2 60	@ 3 60
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 00
Medium to Fair	4 25	@ 4 50
HOGS—Live	4 75	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 60
Good to Choice Spring ex.	5 00	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring, New	1 10	@ 1 10½
No. 3 Spring	1 01	@ 1 02
CORN—No. 2	44	@ 44½
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 33
RYE—No. 2	60	@ 61
BARLEY—No. 2, New	74	@ 75
BUTTER—Creamery	30	@ 35
EGGS—Fresh	22	@ 23
PORK—Mess	16 00	@16 25
LARD	9¾	@ 10

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 22	@ 1 23
CORN—Western Mixed	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	31	@ 32
RYE—No. 2	58	@ 59
PORK—Mess	15 50	@15 75
LARD	9¾	@ 10
HOGS	5 40	@ 5 85
CATTLE	3 50	@ 5 00

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 19	@ 1 20
No. 2	1 13	@ 1 14
CORN—No. 2	46	@ 47
OATS—No. 2	31	@ 32
RYE	63	@ 64
BARLEY—No. 2	77	@ 78

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 15	@ 1 23
CORN	50	@ 52
OATS	30	@ 38
RYE	67	@ 68
PORK—Mess	16 00	@16 25
LARD	10	@ 10½

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Extra	1 37	@ 1 38
Amber	1 34	@ 1 36
CORN	50	@ 52
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 33

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

HOGS—Yorkers	5 40	@ 5 60
Philadelphias	5 60	@ 5 70
CATTLE—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Medium	4 75	@ 5 00
SHEEP	3 20	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAIS, PUBLISHER.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The Harvest Land.

The daylight waning and the darkness near;
So little done, and still so much to do!
Before me the long night of cloud and fear,
Without one star to pierce the shadows through.

I hear the rumble of the swaggering wains;
I hear the burden of the harvest song;
And, through the hazy light in happy lanes,
I see the sun-browned reapers pass along.

And I must lay my sickle down and go
From the dim fields that look so drear and lone;
Alas! that I have so few sheaves to show!
I shall not hear the Master say "Well done!"

With what regret I look back to the past,
When the long shadows loomed so far away;
And morning seemed on every wakening blast,
To waft the whispers of an endless day!

So many misspent moments, wasted hours,
Playing with pebbles on the sea-washed strand;
Searching for butterflies, or gathering flowers,
Instead of toiling in the harvest land.

And now the night, stol'n on me like a thief,
While yet I dreamt that it was scarcely noon;
Sad that the sunshine is so very brief!
Sad that the shadows fall so very soon!

O for one other hour of God's bright day
In which to work with sinew, heart, and will,
Ere yet I leave the fields and pass away
To that mysterious sleep where all is still!
—William Leighton.

Around the Farm.

WE are quite sure that in these plants (artichokes) farmers may defy droughts in producing food for hogs and fodder for cattle.—Moore's Rural.

THE Poultry World says cooked corn meal and potatoes served at regular time, for three or four weeks before slaughtering-time, is the best food for fattening fowls.

AN article that will be dear for at least another year is starch. Many mills in New England will not start up, as the stock of potatoes is so small that there isn't enough to go round.

A MAN is known by his cattle. If he is kind and attentive, and has a gentle word or pat for them, it has a soothing effect, and they will stand around and enjoy his presence, secrete more milk, and take on more fat.—Des Moines Register.

IT seems to be quite a unanimous opinion among those who have tried crosses of the Jersey with other good milking breeds that the result is a cow unequaled by any of the pure breeds for butter or cheese. We predict that this cross is destined to grow in popular favor.—Rural Home.

ACCORDING to an old soldier once serving in St. Helena, the great Napoleon had a leaning toward rural economy. He would carry a stick about as thick as a walking-stick, with an iron spud at the end, and, anywhere he went, if he saw a weed, he would always spud it up.—London Times.

HORSES and cattle require just as much light and sun influence as we ourselves do. Nothing can thrive without the benign influence of the glorious sun. Dark stables are a source of many diseases which baffle the owners, and too often the veterinarian also, as to origin. Windows should never be placed in front, the many otherwise-perfect stables to the contrary notwithstanding. Concentrated light is in many cases the cause of shying, sore eyes, etc. The windows should be behind, if practicable, but may be on the side if well back.—Country Gentlemen.

A FEW years since a sandy garden had a potato plot in it. There came a drought, during which about half of the potatoes were hilled up with rounded piles of dry dirt. The others were left until a rain had wet the ground, and then hoed with flat-top hills. In the autumn those first hoed were not worth digging, and the others yielded abundantly. On a dry, loose, mellow plains-land one planted his potatoes deep and did not hill, and had a fine crop, while his neighbor, the same year, alongside, planted near the surface, hilled high, and with more expense had less crop.—Mirror and Farmer.

IT was only a few years ago that swine breeders were vieing with each other for the greatest weight of carcass; but this is now all changed. Hogs that will weigh 500 pounds are sold at a less price per pound than those of 250 to 300 pounds. The market in England has long favored light weights. London is chiefly supplied with pigs of less than 200 pounds weight. And this tendency of the market to pigs well fatted but of small weight is just what the farmer should encourage, for it is exactly in the line of his interest. It costs more to make the second hundred pounds of a pig than the first, and still more to make the third hundred pounds, and so every pound added becomes more expensive.—Wallace's Monthly.

The Rural New Yorker does not care whether high or low authorities declare that ground moles eat nothing but insects, but says that the assertion is simply false, and any man who possesses skill enough to catch a live mole can prove it to be so. Without, says our contemporary, at this time going into any argument on this mooted question, we will simply state one fact easily determined by our highest authorities or anybody else, and that is, the ground mole will devour earth or angle worms when in confinement, or at liberty, and those worms are not insects. Furthermore, this worm, Lumbricus terrestris, is the mole's principal animal food, if our own personal observation has not led us far astray. But leaving the food out of the question, a vigorous ground mole will lift up and kill a row of plants in far less time than a thousand of our most noxious insects, not excepting grasshoppers and potato beetles. It is to be feared that our authorities who talk so glibly about the useful mole, know little of cultivating gardens infested with these pests. One season of gardening with a dozen moles per acre would satisfy them to dispense with these secret subterranean assistants.

About the House.

IF a loaf or cake has become rather too stale for the table moisten it a little and then heat it through in the oven.

TO REVIVE the color of black cloth garments, use a mixture of two pints vinegar, one ounce copperas, one ounce ground logwood, and three ounces bruised galls.

BEEF BROTH.—Cut in pieces a pound of beef, put it in a stew-pan with half a pint of cold water, a piece of carrot, one onion, a quarter of a pound of bacon cut in pieces; set on the fire and simmer twenty minutes; then add a pint of boiling water, salt and pepper; boil three-quarters of an hour. Strain and serve.

FRENCH ROLLS.—Into one pound of flour rub two ounces of butter and the whites of three eggs, well beaten; add a tablespoonful of good yeast, a little salt, and milk enough to make a stiff dough; cover and set it in a warm place till light, which will be in an hour or more, according to the strength of the yeast. Cut into rolls, dip the edges into melted butter to keep them from sticking together, and bake in a quick oven.

BEAN SOUP.—Pick over the beans, wash them, parboil them, pour off the water, and put them on in fresh water with a few slices of ham or beef. Boil them all to rags, strain through a colander, return to the pot, and add a little chopped celery, onion, a bunch of herbs, and boil slowly half an hour. Strain and serve.

CLOSING CRACKS IN CAST-IRON STOVES.—Good wood ashes are to be sifted through a fine sieve, to which is to be added the same quantity of clay finely pulverized, together with a little salt. This mixture is to be moistened with water enough to make a paste, and the crack of the stove then filled with it. The cement does not peel off or break away, and assumes an extreme degree of hardness after being heated. The stove must be cool when the application is made. The same substance may be used in setting the plates of a stove, or fitting stove pipes, serving to render all the joints perfectly tight.

THE Journal of Chemistry says the following is fatal to all sorts of vermin that prove such a vexation of spirit to the good housekeeper: Two pounds of alum dissolved in three or four quarts of boiling water. Let it remain over the fire till all the alum has dissolved. Then apply it with a brush, while boiling hot, to every joint or crevice in the closet where ants and cockroaches intrude, to all the pantry shelves, and to the joints and crevices of bedsteads. Brush all the cracks in the floor and the mopboards with this mixture. A cement of chloride of lime and powdered alum used to stop up rat-holes, and the walls and cracks and corners washed with the above-mentioned hot alum and borax, will drive away rats as well as insects.

Booth and McVicker.

We learn privately that Mr. McVicker of Chicago has gone to New York to secure the Lyceum Theater on Fourteenth street and Union square for Edwin Booth's reappearance. We hope it is true. It will give Mr. Booth a good chance to get some of his money back with Mr. McVicker's able management. If true, this will account for the demand on Jarrett & Palmer to give up the name of "Booth's Theater" for their house on Sixth avenue, which they refuse to do, having leased and managed successfully under that style and title. It is natural that McVicker and Booth should wish to acquire back the name of an establishment which was, and is still, a synonym for stage perfection, for the admirable setting of every play that has ever been produced on its boards. Mr. Booth built the house, and in it, by the lavish display and a too generous liberality, perhaps, he wrecked a handsome fortune, and for a time, at least, severely impaired his health. "Edwin Booth's Theater" might do for a name, although too similar, perhaps; but how would "The Phœnix," or "Booth's Phœnix," do for a headlight? Rather neat. Rising from the dead ashes of misfortune, you know.—St. Louis Republican.

"Home, Sweet Home."

"Clari, or the Maid of Milan," produced in 1823, contains one piece that is known in every English-speaking country—"Home, Sweet Home." Clari is a beautiful peasant girl, who has exchanged her father's lowly cottage for the splendor of a Duke's palace, and become his bride. But she pines for the simple life she has led, and as she enters, fatigued and melancholy, she sings this song. The words are by John Howard Payne, an American, and, though the music was called by Bishop a "Sicilian air," it is now generally agreed that it was really composed by him. "It is the song," says Clari, "of my native village—the hymn of the lowly heart, which dwells upon every lip there, and like a spell-word brings back to its home the affection which e'er has been betrayed to wander from it. It is the first music heard by infancy in its cradle; and our cottagers, blending it with all their earliest and tenderest recollections, never cease to feel its magic till they cease to live." The air is heard again during the play; a chorus of villagers sing it when Clari revisits her home.

The Catacombs.

Rome and the adjacent Campagna lies upon a stratum of soft, porous, volcanic rock, called tufa. It is in this that the catacombs—the Christian cemeteries of the first four centuries—are excavated. They consist of galleries, from five to eight or ten feet high, and from two to five feet wide, hewn in the rock, and connected with cross galleries, forming an intricate network of subterranean passages. Opening into these are many small chambers called cubicula, square or circular in form, with dome-shaped roof. Numerous shafts pierce the superincumbent soil, giving ventilation, and admitting light. The whole number of the catacombs now known is something over forty. A few communicate with each other, but they are mostly separate, like adjacent cemeteries in the open air. The entire extent of the galleries is estimated to be not less than 600 miles.

A New Story.

In No. 47 of the Chicago Ledger, of date Nov. 18, commences a highly interesting serial story, bearing the title "Baffled at Last." This tale will be finely illustrated, and will be found one of the most entertaining romances of the day. For the terms of the Ledger see our advertising columns, or address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

A NEW, WONDERFUL and simple way to stop consumption and cure colds by Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules, which dissolve, creating a gas which is inhaled, coming in contact, cures throat and lung diseases. Trial boxes, 25 cents, by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

SITTING BULL DEFEATED.

Graphic Account of the Battle Between the Indians and the Fifth Cavalry—Sitting Bull's Tactics—A Most Remarkable Scene in Indian Warfare.

The correspondent of the New York Herald describes the operations leading up to the battle between the troops under Gen. Miles and Sitting Bull, and describes the battle. As the General's command was on the march Indians approached with a flag of truce. A conference was held with the chiefs, but this was finally broken up by Sitting Bull, who announced his determination to fight. Both parties then retired, and Gen. Miles moved on the Indian camp. The correspondent describes:

On every knoll, dispersed through the whole field, appeared the savage forms of the Sioux. Hither and thither, to and fro, were riding perturbed horsemen like a nest of ants when routed. Even beyond the heavy mass on the divide appeared another mass, doubly massive and heavy and black, which even a glass could only make out an immense throng, without being able to detect riders. A more magnificent spectacle was never beheld, or a scene more worthy the brush of painter or pencil of artist. On the knoll immediately in front of the first were assembled the bearers of the white flag. One company and most of the officers went forward between the two forces. Indians soon swarmed to that point by the dozen; but no meeting could be arranged here, so Gen. Miles directed that it should take place on a small hillock immediately in front of his line, and that Sitting Bull draw up his line on the other side. This was substantially agreed to, and the two parties met at this point, with the two lines duly formed.

A long, earnest, and eager conference began this time, with a little anxiety on the side of the Fifth, by reason of officers and men going back and forth. This conference was even more protracted than on the day before, the Sioux showing their anxiety for the result by constantly riding to the council circle, eagerly consulting each other, and then returning to their eminence, the line of warriors that had been formed being entirely broken up by these movements. After long, anxious consultation, many of the chiefs were found willing to agree to the terms, one offering to go himself as hostage if his tribe would be allowed to hunt buffalo awhile. At this point, however, Sitting Bull angrily broke up the conference, preferring fight to yielding.

Each party retired to its own side. Gen. Miles sent a final word to Sitting Bull to let him have his answer promptly or he would open upon him with his guns. No answer was returned. As Gen. Miles and his party moved slowly back to his lines, the Indians on the plains withdrew to the heights, and crowned these and the high ground beyond the rocks in front. From the prudent precautions taken by Gen. Miles against surprise or treachery to his command, the Indians seemed to have had an idea he would rather await than make an attack, so they watched with extreme eagerness his first movements. A moment sufficed for preparation, and when the wished-for command to move forward was given every officer and soldier joyfully responded and their eagerness could scarcely be restrained. Maj. Casey, with Company A, was directed to move along and clear the ridge on the left, Capt. Carter, with Company K, to clear a high knoll on the right, Capt. Snyder, with Company F, to guard the Rodman gun, while the line advanced direct to the front. The advance was not handsomely done, owing to the too great eagerness to get forward. After advancing a few hundred yards line was deployed as skirmishers, opening up like a fan. The deployment was beautifully made in perfect order, sweeping over the ground with its long, waving line, climbing the hills and descending the valleys like a long ripple over the billows. Capt. Carter's company, which had been ordered to carry the height on the right, crowned by about seventy-five Indians, without firing, moved steadily forward, closing upon the Sioux. The latter gave way before the little line without venturing a shot. Meanwhile the main line was rapidly advancing. Company A, moving steadily, swept aside the few Indians on the left ridge. The line had now reached the creek, beyond which was the battle field.

On the precipitous rise immediately before us, composed of high, gravelly knolls, were the main body of Sioux. The ravine of the stream divided to the right, one portion running far to the right, the other extending to the north and left along the advance. On the left of this branch was a very high ridge, commanding the whole plan of the field, and distant from the ravine a few hundred yards. This was covered by Indians. The prairie beyond the heights, on which the main body of the Sioux had taken up position, was rolling, as usual, each swell rising higher for several miles. The ground on the right of the right branch of the stream was similar to the one on the left, but not so high.

The plan of the Indians, it appeared now, was to get the Fifth regiment to pass the main force, and thus become entangled in the ravines and low ground, while by crowning the surrounding heights they would be enabled to pour a concentrated fire on the mass and repeat the Custer butchery. Gen. Miles was not the man to be thus intrapped, and by Capts. Carter and Casey's moves defeated the first part of the programme. His plan was as perfect as its execution was complete.

The line was now moving out of the ravine and up the precipitous knolls, the Indians giving way gradually and easily in front, not yet firing a shot, the armistice apparently restraining both forces. The line now moved out of the ravines and up the precipitous gravel buttes in the following order: Capt. Casey, with Company A; Bennett, with B; Lymans, with I; Butler, with C; Carter, with K. In the line Lieutenants Pope and Rosseau, with H; Forbes, with G. In reserve, Capt. Snyders, with F, in charge of the Rodman gun, and McDonald, with D, in rear of the train. As the line approached the summit of the height the Sioux began their wild war dance in our front. This was the first hostile demonstration. Many might have been killed now by the Rodman gun, but that the dislike to be the first to break the armistice prevailed with Gen. Miles. The Rodman gun was pushed forward on the right, and all was moving forward in good order, when a shot from the rear passed through Lieut. Pope's company, and was at once returned by the eager men, who were tired of waiting. This company was at once ordered to clear the ravines and knolls from whence the shot came. Lieut. Rousseau, with Company K, was ordered to take the left and Carter the right ravine. At the same time the line advanced rapidly, the main front, when the Sioux dashed in circles along the front delivering a rapid fire, and then disappearing behind the swells. Their riding was magnificent, but the fire was quite ineffective. While this was taking place the flank movements advanced apace. Company K soon cleared the ravines, Carter and Lyman doing the same on the right, where they encountered heavy firing in passing through what had been the camp of Sitting Bull's band.

Meanwhile the gallant Rosseau, worthy of his great brother's reputation, moved straight up the lofty height under a rapid fire until he reached the summit and secured the key of the field. It was handsomely done, and without loss of life, aided by the booming of the Rodman. The Sioux, now driven from every important point, flanked and foiled, made wide circles, and many came around to the rear or flank and rear of Company E, which had been ordered to remain with the train until it was out of danger. These Indians in the rear took possession of each height, and dismounting did some close firing. Here Sergt. McPhelan, Company E, was wounded severely from a shot. The Indians now fired the prairies in front, and amid the lurid flames the fight continued until no Sioux remained to oppose the advance. Company E was then directed to clear the ravines on the left rear, where water was to be found, of the few Indians collected there, while the command moved back and camped on the high ridge.

In this action only two men were wounded, this being due to the fact that the fire of the Indians was so well kept down by the new arms and good marksmen. Sergt. McPhelan, shot by a sharpshooter in the rear, and one private of Company I was the total loss of the Fifth regiment. Of the number actually engaged, or the loss incurred on the side of the Indians, it is impossible to speak with any certainty. The Fifth had 398 all told, and the Indians certainly greatly outnumbered these. Sitting Bull's forces are estimated at 600 on the field, but did not take part in the fight.

It has since been heard that there were three bands, in all 1,500 warriors, of which only a few took part. Six dead Indians were seen lying on the field; but, as they had full opportunity to carry off their dead before they could be reached by the troops, it is reasonable to believe a great number were killed. Whatever their loss in killed may have been, more severe was the loss of several tons of dried buffalo meat and a large amount of camp equipage. For this they had fought, and by the loss of the fight the prestige of Sitting Bull was diminished. His punishment for the destruction of a gallant band of cavalry was accomplished by infantry alone, not a cavalry soldier or officer being on the field in this engagement. Gen. Miles displayed that superb handling of troops that distinguished him during the war, and on the Southern plains. The Indians were so completely baffled by the rapidity of his movements as to be unable to make any formidable opposition. The next morning the sun appeared early, and a fight occurred with the pickets of Company E, arising from the chasing and nearly capturing of one man who was straggling; but the Indians were speedily driven off. The main trail was then resumed and pressed rapidly to the Yellowstone. Skirmishing continued most of the day. The prairie is being fired all along the line of march, and ponies and lodge poles picked up all the way. The importance of the above engagement and pursuit will finally appear in the fact that this day the whole of the Minneconjous and Sans Arcs have surrendered and given five of their principal chiefs—Red Skirt, Black Eagle, Sunrise, Sitting Eagle, White Bull, and Foolish Bull—to Gen. Miles as hostages that they will go at once on to Cheyenne Agency. They give the number of their lodges as 1,300, but this is considerably overestimated. These chiefs leave to-night, under guard, for Cheyenne Agency, via Buford. These tribes broke from Sitting Bull immediately after the fight, he going with a few lodges toward Fort Peck. Too much credit cannot be given Gen. Miles for his energy and ability in this whole campaign.

The Nameless French Flag.

Figaro reminds us that the French army has no flags, and that on the 2d of June, 1871, the War Minister issued an order that the standards then in use were to be handed over to the artillery. In exchange, small flags without any inscriptions were served out provisionally. The provisional flags, which have now been in use for five years, only cost 25 francs apiece, while the silk standards, with their ornaments, cost 280 francs. It is not, perhaps, a question of expenditure which hinders the War Office from replacing the eagle. The fleurs-de-lys are out of the question; so is the Gallic cock, which has been monopolized by the Orleans family; the lady in Phrygian cap who symbolizes the republic, and who is playfully called Marianne, is only in favor with Radicals; and the moderate republic has neither symbol nor song. Taken alone, the tri-color belongs to the revolution, the empire, and the younger branch of the Bourbons. Perhaps it would be prudent, until the Conservative republic is more firmly established, to leave the top of the flagstaff in its present nude condition.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A CALIFORNIA man was married in double-quick time the other day. Taking his affianced with him, he drove in a buggy to the residence of a Justice of the Peace, where he halted. The Justice then went on with the ceremony, ordering the twain in the carriage to join hands, and in a minute from the time the buggy drew up to the Justice's door, the newly-married couple were off in their equipage again.

TIME MEASURES.

Some Scientific Facts of Interest to Unscientific Readers.

[From the New York Times.]

The student of science at this day will find that not only "times change," but time measures. The clock which now divides the geological "day" is not the same as that used by our fathers. Lyell's measurements are even now being superseded by Thomson's. In the first arguments of man of science against the apparent account of creation in the opening chapters of Genesis, it was assumed that the new measurements of geology were exact. They claimed a specific and vast antiquity to the world. The Biblical defenders soon discovered that the "day" of creation was like the "day of Brahma" in the Hindoo cosmogony, an indefinite period, and they, therefore, ceased to dispute the immense age claimed for the earth. The argument of the geologist was one of induction. You see deposits going on now at the rate, say of one foot for 1,000 years, and you find in England 72,500 feet of successive formation, and infer a duration of 72,500,000 years. Or an observer judges from certain ancient landmarks that denudation goes on at the rate of one foot for 6,000 years, and deposits at the same rate, and infers a period of 120,000,000 years for a single formation (the Silurian). Then the reasoning was carried further, and a form of life discovered in the oldest strata, which had been depositing during this vast period, was pronounced to possess this vast antiquity, and wherever this fossil was afterward found this antiquity was inferred. When, at length, the oldest formation in this country, the Laurentian, was believed to contain organized life (the Eozoon), with the fragments of ancient stratified rocks, a period of time appeared probable for the earth which was simply incomprehensible. For, beyond and before all the deposits we know, were the remains of ancient and slow deposits, which had been metamorphosed and finally disintegrated. These calculations, however, all contained certain errors, which, it is remarkable, were not sooner observed.

It is a number of years since a writer—Herbert Spencer, who is not a geologist, but who applied a subtle brain to these questions—maintained that similarity of deposits does not prove contemporaneity; that is, if you find a certain stratum in one country, with its characteristic fossils, you have no means of knowing that it was deposited at the same time with a like rock in another country. Chalk is now forming in the bottom of the Atlantic, precisely like that formed 500,000 years ago. Evidently this reasoning breaks down one argument for any precise antiquity of a given rock. Then it is further maintained now by geologists, contrary to Darwin and Lyell, that unlike groups of rocks are often contemporaneous. Prof. Ramsay furnished Mr. Darwin with some of his enormous measurements of rock thickness by supposing that the strata represents a continuous pile. But the deposits are found to overlap one another, and periods, such as palezoic, mesozoic and cenozoic, cover each other, and do not correspond for both sea and land, or for different continents. The measurement from this source is uncertain. In regard to the Laurentian, it is still questioned whether the Eozoön is organic, and the fragments found in it may be merely the debris of the first portion of the earth's crust which cooled. The inductive measurements are also extremely delusive. Deposits are not regular, and denudation is extremely variable. On our western coast a single stormy night will produce a devastation which years of ordinary weather had not occasioned. But the great and convincing arguments against these almost innumerable periods are derived from the investigations of the physicists. From the rate of cooling of the earth and its present form, Prof. Tait deduces an antiquity of only 10,000,000 or 15,000,000 of years. Sir William Thomson lengthens it to possibly 100,000,000. At present these estimates are somewhat wide of one another, but, as investigation proceeds, they must approach greater accuracy, and finally should give conclusions far more trustworthy than any furnished by geology. Still the error of La Place in his famous calculation in regard to the acceleration of the moon's motion shows that even astronomy and mathematical physics are not infallible.

If the antiquity of the earth be diminished by a probable argument, one mainstay of evolution is broken. The theories of development, uniformitarianism and vast antiquity are all branches of one stem. Darwin himself, whatever Huxley may say, finds enormous periods of time necessary for the changes he believes in. Organized life has changed, but imperceptibly under natural selection in the historic period, and but little more since the glacial period. The follower of Lyell cannot consistently urge a faster change in a given period once than now. If time be cut off, the philosophical evolutionist is in a dilemma. To the believer in the scriptures, the length of the "day" of creation is a matter of indifference. The sacred narrative allows boundless time for "the beginning;" the various "days" may be periods of greater or less extension, and the creations, or appearances of life in them, may correspond more or less closely with the very uncertain conclusions of modern geology, without disturbing his faith in the spiritual object and inspiration of the good.

Love Letters Written by Proxy.

The evidence in the Edwards-Keating breach-of-promise suit, which has been stimulating the prurient curiosity of San Francisco, included a great many love letters. On one occasion the defendant was so unreasonably amiable as to write: "My darling Emily: I would give all I have on earth and all of my future to be with you one half-hour." Although he seemed to be in a mood to mortgage time and eternity in consideration of a half-hour, she read the letter, seized a pen and scolded him for being an "inconstant lunar"—whatever that may be. When the defendant received this missive the defendant was watching the stock market with anxious interest, and he had no time for romance. In other words, he was long of stock and short of sentiment. So he instructed his cashier to answer the letter. It was done in this wise: "Mr. Keating directs me to say that they sin who tell us love can die; love is indestructible, but with life all other passions fly. Love's holy flame forever burneth; from heaven it came, to heaven it returneth. K. hopes to see you after the spring rise." The spring rise in stocks was what the buoyant proxy meant.

All Sorts.

ONESTI & Co. do business in San Francisco.

IN Philadelphia a boss dressmaker is called a forelady.

SQUIRREL-LOCK fur is used to line capes and cloaks. The fur is inexpensive, yet durable.

THE Minneapolis street-car company has issued half-fare tickets for school-children.

A CALIFORNIA horseman recently accomplished the feat, at Los Angeles, of riding 100 miles in four hours and forty-five minutes.

THE thickest armor-plate for vessels yet produced has just been rolled in Sheffield by Messrs. John Brown & Co. It is twenty-four inches thick.

HENRY WARD BEECHER says: "An impudent clerk can do almost as much injury to his store as the neglect of the proprietor to advertise his stock."

A DROVE of 30,000 horned cattle was recently driven from Texas to Kansas, by 700 drivers. The outfit alone cost $50,000, and the herd brought $320,000.

A YOUNG lady of Green Bay, Wis., found a husband by walking off the abutment of a bridge into the river. In other words, she is to marry the young man who saved her from drowning.

OF fourteen school-girls whose names appear in a paper printed in Minneapolis, one is a Carrie, another a Frankie, another an Addie, another a Minnie, another a Junie, another a Hattie, another a Susie, another a Nettie, and two are Nellies.

THE London Spectator says that the practice of hoarding money prevails to a large extent among the poorer classes in England, especially in the rural districts, as well as to a limited degree among eccentric and old-fashioned people of better circumstances.

WITH the exception of the pyramid of Cheops, the spire of the Strasburg Cathedral, 464 feet in height, has hitherto been the most elevated building in the world. It has now been exceeded by the lately completed spire of the Rouen Cathedral, which is 494 feet high.

AN industrious watch-dog at North Raynham, Mass., took the hydrophobia, killed a hundred fowls, put to death a number of cats, and bit eight other dogs. The dead-animal man is preparing a touching account of the tragedy, which he hopes the S. P. C. A. will publish.

LORING PASHA, the American officer who, it is presumed, lost his life on the second disastrous Egyptian expedition into Abyssinia, was Gen. W. W. Loring, formerly an officer of the United States army, and afterward a Confederate Major General. At the close of the rebellion he accepted service with the Khedive of Egypt.

PERSONS buying butter in the pails, so common now, are told upon inquiry, with the seller's blandest smile, that "there's no charge for the pail." If, after it is empty, however, it happens to be weighed, the buyer finds that he has paid fifty cents a pound for cheap tin, a heavy iron handle and a liberal amount of solder.—Boston Bulletin.

THE whole number of Popes to Pius IX. is 257. Of those 104 have been Romans and 103 natives of other parts of Italy, 15 Frenchmen, 9 Greeks, 7 Germans, 5 Asiatics, 3 Africans, 2 Dalmatians, 3 Spaniards, 1 Hebrew, 1 Thracian, 1 Dutchman, 1 Portuguese, 1 Candiot, and 1 Englishman.

HAMLET plunged his sword through the arras in Bristol, England, the other evening, and Polonius fell seemingly dead upon the stage, whereupon a gentleman started up in a high state of indignation, and, exclaiming aloud, "It is most disgraceful that all these people can sit quietly here and see an aged person deliberately murdered," bounded frantically out of the theater.

THERE was a boy in Martinez, Cal., the other day, who doubted if the other boy's gun would carry shot as far as 150 yards, and challenged proof by posting himself as a target at that distance for the other to shoot at. The doctor had several of the leaden pellets to excavate from below his epidermis, and he is presumed to have been convinced that the gun will carry 150 yards.

THE blithesome shepherd sings
His artless songs,
And echo's wandering voice
The notes prolongs.
A maiden's eye strikes mine,
My cheeks flush red,
And, like a flower oppressed,
She droops her head.
I love the mystic voice
That back again
Returns in purer tones
The shepherd's strain.
I love the maid whose soul,
Reflecting mine,
Would speak its kindling thoughts
In looks divine.
—Belgravia.

"Going to War."

The man who wants to go to St. Petersburg and enlist in the Russian army to fight the Turks was at the Central depot yesterday to see about his railroad ticket. With his hat on his left ear, pants in boot-tops, overcoat belted tightly around, and a fierce twist to his mustache, he walked up to the ticket window and asked:

"What time does the train leave for Russia?"

"Five o'clock," answered the agent, never smiling in the least.

"Good! What's the fare to St. Petersburg?"

"Five hundred dollars."

"Too much. I'll give you $400.

"We have but one rate," said the agent.

"And you won't let me go for $400?"

"Couldn't do it."

"Then I won't go. I'm a patriot from head to foot, but I can't let no railroad swindle me. I'm the bloodiest kind of a border wild-cat and Russia wants me bad, but that $100 opens a great gulf between us.—Detroit Free Press.

SOME of the young ladies in Beacon street are giving dinner parties, which they prepare themselves, fairly outdoing Prof. Blot in some lines. This certainly is a healthy sign of practical progress.—Boston Paper.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SECURE

BARGAINS!

Having Bought the

ENTIRE STOCK!

of GOODS of

Miller and Casebeer,

at the Assignees sale. We shall conduct business at the

OLD STAND

and offer

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS

In order to close out the same.

JAMES CASEBEER & CO.

Auburn Fruit House

The Largest Stock of GROCERIES & PROVISIONS ever opened out in DeKalb County

AT PRICES THAT DEFY COMPETITION

TEAS: COFEES:
SUGAR:
Dried Fru

ALL AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Dont Fail to Call and examine PRICES

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS.

HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heatin Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of always on hand at lowest prices.

HARDWARE STORE

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

than ever before brought to Auburn. We are sel'ing at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when visting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS,

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Patersns

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In American and Swiss Watches,

Lady Elgin
No 40037

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that, I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,

Jewelry,

Clocks, Silver Ware!

GOLD PENS,

Ladies GOLD Chains,

Gents Chains,

Gold and Silver Rings,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

B. W. Raymond
Elgin Ills

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern RB

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler	1:04 p.m.	x 2.25 a.m.
Waterloo	2.40 "	2.45 "
Sedan	2.14	2.53
Corunna	2.57	2.57	6 55

GOING EAST.

Corunna	3.20 pm	x 2.25 a.m	7:10 a.m
Sedan	2.58	2.45 "	6.33 "
Waterloo	2:51 "	2.53 "	6.22 "
Butler	2.46	2.57 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. B. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card April 16, 1876.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex
Pittsburgh	1 45 am	5 50 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm
Rochester	? 53 "		10 10 "	3 10 "
Alliance	5 10 "	8 49 pm	1 10 pm	5 50 "
Orrville	6 46 "		3 09 "	7 23 "
Mansfield	8 48 "		5 15 "	9 24 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	12 20 am	5 50 "	9 55 "
" lv.	9 40 am	12 25 am	6 10 pm	10 00pm
Forest	11 02 "	2 36 "	7 58 "	12 30 "
Lima	12 01 pm	2 20 "	9 15 "	12 40am
Ft. Wayne	2 10 "	4 25 "	12 01 am	2 50 "
Plymouth	4 12 "	6 15 "	3 00 "	5 00 "
Chicago	7 20 "	9 20 "	6 50 "	8 20 "

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 20 pm	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 25a
Plymouth	3 00 am	12 05 pm	9 00 "	9 25
Ft. Wayne	6 40 "	2 30 "	11 35 "	12 25p
Lima	8 50 "	4 20 "	1 50 am	2 50 "
Forest	10 03 "	5 23 "	3 05 "	4 15 "
Crestl'e ar.	11 40 "	6 45 "	4 40 "	5 55 "
" lv.		7 05 pm	4 50 am	6 00a
Mansfield	11 28 pm	7 35 "	5 20 "	6 40 "
Orrville	2 16 "	9 25 "	7 12 "	9 19 "
Alliance	3 50 "	10 57 "	9 06 "	11 35 "
Rochester	5 59 "	1 04 am	11 12 "	2 14p
Chicago	7 05 "	2 10 "	12 15p.m	3 30 "

Trains Nos. 3, 5, 8, run daily. Train No. 4 leaves Chicago except Sundays. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect July 9—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Cincinnati
Louisville	4 00pm
Indianapolis	8 35pm
Ft Wayne	10 35 "		4 p
Auburn	11 28 "		5 20
Waterloo	11 44 "		5 37
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 45 pm	5 30	6 15
Reading	1 46 "	7 00	7 34
Bankers	2 02 "	7 22	7 48
Jonesville	2 20 "	7 55	8 08
Jackson	3 35 "	9 35	9 20
Detroit	6 25 "	12 00	3 30 a
Grand Rapids	10 15 "	5 20	8 30
Lansing	6.05 "
Saginaw	9.10 "
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 40 am
Lansing	10 58 "
Grand Rapids	6 00 "	11 55
Detroit	10 05 "	2 50p
Jackson Dep	12 40 pm	6 00	6 45a
Jonesville	1 45 "	8 00	7 55
Bankers	2 02 "	8 30	8 11
Reading	2 15 "	9 00	8 29
Ar Angola	3 07 "	10 00	9 20
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	3 42 "		1 17
Auburn	3 55 "		1 30
Auburn Junction			1 36
Fort Wayne Arrive	4 50 "		6 40p
Indianapolis	10 50 "		1 10
Louisville	8 30 am		8 00
Cincinnati			11 09p

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. G. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 3, 1875.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Exp.	Ac.& E.	Accom.
lv New York	* pm		*2 55pm
Philadelphia	1 am		6 00
Baltimore	†	6 20pm	10 10
Washington		7 35	11 30
Wheeling	am	*8 00am	12 30
Bellaire		2 28	1 17
Barnesville		9 40	2 33
Cambridge		10 44	3 42
Zanesville		11 48	4 50
lv Columbus		12 10pm	4 15
New Aark	*	2 30	6 25
Mt Vernon	7 46	3 22	7 32
Mansfield	9 24	1 3	9 06
Shelby	10 10	4 25	9 55
Chicago Junction	10 40	8 00	10 25
Tiffin	11 34	6 13	11 20
Fostoria	12 01pm	6 42	11 43
Deshler	12 55	7 48	11 36am
Defiance	1 47	8 51	1 27
Auburn	3 00
Auburn Junction	3 03	10 40	2 43
Garrett	3 25	11 00	3 00
Avilla	3 30	11 15
Milford Junction	4 40	12 24am
Walkertown Junction	5 45	1 43
Chicago	8 10	4 40	10

GOING EAST.

Chicago	†8 52am	†5 08	†9 40
Walkertown Junction	11 50	8 08	1 15
Milford Junction	12 51pm		2 38
Avilla	1 52		3 55
Garrett	2 20	10 30	4 20am
Auburn Junction		10 35	4 25
Auburn	2 25
Defiance	3 34	11 45	5 47
Deshler	4 22	12 36am	6 39
Fostoria	5 12	1 26	7 40
Tiffin	5 36	1 49	8 13
Chicago Junction	6 40	2 45	9 30
Shelby Junction	7 25	3 17	10 10
Mansfield	7 55	3 40	10 35
Mt. Vernon	9 26	4 51	1 59
Ar Newark	10 25	5 40	1 00pm
Lv Zanesville	11 50	6 30	2 30
Cambridge	12 50am	7 20	3 21
Barnesville	1 55	8 14	4 31
Ar Bellaire	3 00	9 20	5 30
Wheeling	5 10	10 35	6 50
Washington	†5 20pm	9 20pm	7 00
Baltimore	6 50	10 00	8 50
Philadelphia	12 00	2 35am	*1 20pm
New York	6 15am	6 15	5 10

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALL AND SALOON.

On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, whi will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. A kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

CHICAGO ROCKISLAND

AND

Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for

JOLLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENOK LACON, PEORI, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE Of CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	5 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co, have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacifi and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all point in Kansas. Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement o Palace Drawing room and Sleeping cars, which fo external beauty and interrior arrangements fo the comfort, convenience and luxury of passenger are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars o the kind in the world.

Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	468 Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	471 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	489 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	321 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hanniba', Quincy, Keokuk,

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA, COLORADO AND CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New Eegland.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (310 miles), and be tween Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles,)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air Brake, and Miller s Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOTS & SHOES

Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repa i ing promptly attended to.

Remember place

At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we iuvite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, NOVEMBER 30th, 1876. Number 50.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,.........$2. | Six Months,......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
a Square	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	20 00
Column.........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
a Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

RICKEL and TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Moody.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellow's Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Good sample rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's. corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
B. SCHNIDERS, Prop'r.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, [Late o City Hotel,] Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Thomas Baldock.

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an expert corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kind at reasonable rates.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

A Good-Bye at the Gates.

On election day William Chestnut, of Lewistown, in company with two sons, went to the mountain to hunt. About noon the boys left for home. On their departure the father requested them to state to their mother that he might be expected home by 5 o'clock that evening. Not arriving home on Wednesday morning, 200 men went to the mountain to look for him, and in the afternoon he was found dead with a bullet-hole in his left side. The following note in his own hand writing was found by his side:

'I fell, and my gun flew back and shot me. My dear wife and children, meet me in heaven.'

How that message from the boundary land of the world to come will be cherished.

The Pursuit of Happiness Interfered With.

Barney O'Toole and Patrcik Moran stood before the bar of the Fifty-seventh street police court. Barney had a black eye and Patrick a damaged nose. Barney delivered a plain, unvarnished tale:

"Yer honor, it was all on account av the election. Pat, he said that Hayes wuz electid, an' I said that Tilden wuz electid."

"Thin sez Pat, aggravatin' loike:

"Hooray fer Hayes!'

"Hooray fer Tilden!' sez I.

"Yer mishtaken intiirely,' sez Pat.

"Yer one yesilf,' sez I.

"Whoop!' sez Pat.

"Hooray!' sez I.

"An' by the same token, we aged to settle it loike gintlemin an' decide the election at wanst. I had got one in on Pat's nose, an' Pat had landed forninst me eye, an' iverything wuz illegant; an' Tilden's prospects wuz nivver broighter, whin a poiceman came interferin' loike, an' now there's no tellin' who would hev bin electid at all, at all," and Barney and Patrick stepped down murmuring against the armed interference of the law.—N. Y. World.

A Deceptive "Widow Woman."

From the Detroit Free Press.

James Robbins, of National avenue, has been missing for three day, but there is no anxiety around his house to learn his fate.

His wife knows what caused him to disappear, and she is willing to let him get a good ready to come back. Robbins married a lone widow about four months ago, and they had not been wedded two weeks when he gave her a beating. She overlooked it then, thinking he would soon tone down, but in a week more he blacked her eyes. In brief, Robbins turned out to be a brute of a husband and the ex-widow had the sympathy of of all the neighbors. She is said to be meek and humble in spirit, and Robbins had no excuse for his brutality. Four or five days ago he knocked her down and started off up town, and the wife crawled over to a butcher's to see about having Robbins arrested. The butcher, who weighs one hundred and ninety pounds and has a fist like a maul, knew a better way than going to the police, and he unfolded a plan.

When Robbins, reached home that evening the house was dark and the butcher dessed in woman's clothes and with his jaws tied up, set in the rocking chair.

"Why in blazes isen't supper ready?" howled Robbins, as he stood in the door.

The butcher groaned.

"Grunting around again are you!" shouted Robbins. What's the matter now!"

The butcher groand again.

"You feel to high-toned to answer me do you!" growled the wife-beater "well we'll see about that. Just take this, will you!"

He struck out, but the disguised butcher caught his wrist, sprang up, and there was fun in that cottage. He choked Robbins almost to death, tied him up in hard knots and untied him drew him around by the heels and hair, and finally picked him up and tossed him over the fence into the mud. The wife-beater had kept up a steady yelling from the first attack, and as he rose from the mud and sped down the street he seemed to think that Sitting Bull's whole fighting force were after him. At eleven o'clock that night he entered a Michigan avenue saloon and told a story about six men robbing him, and half an hour later, as he was prowling around a shed to find a place to sleep, a policeman herd him saying,

"Nose smashed, eyes bunged up, sore throat, bruised all over and awful sleepy! What a deceiving person a widow woman is!"

Now advertise your holiday presents for sale.

Best School Paper at Houser's.

THE PURE-MINDED PARROT.

If it wasn't Adirondack Murray then it was some other clergyman who was hunting along the wharves the other day to find a vessel just from the African coast, hoping that some of the crew might have brought home an innocent-hearted, pure-minded parrot, which might be purchased at a reasonable figure, and trained up in the way good parrots should walk and talk. The vessel was found, and the sailors had brought back a splendid specimen of African parrot, and they didn't want but five dollars for it. The clergyman admired its plumage, thought the age was just right, inquired after its general health, and asked:

'Has the bird yet attempted to utter any words?'

'Bless you, topsails, but she talks as well as a boy ten years old,' replied the sailor.

'Then I don't want her. She has probably caught up a great many bad expressions, and she would not be a fit pet for my household.'

'Avast now!' said Jack. 'Do you suppose that a man like me, who reads the good book twice a day, would have a bad bird around him? Stand back and I'll show you what a Christian bird I've made of her.'

Giving Polly a rap on the head to wake her up, the sailor called out:

'Now, Polly, who was the first man?' said Jack.

'Adam,' was the prompt reply.

'That's so, Polly. And now tell this good man who was first cast into the lion's den?'

'Daniel,' was the answer.

'Did you ever see such a bird before?' asked Jack of the clergyman. 'While other parrots will blast your eyes and bless your parsnips, this one turns to religion and keeps her mind on heaven. Now, Polly, who was tucked away in the bulrushes when he was too small to carry sail for himself?'

'Moses—Moses,' quacked the bird.

'Isn't she a diamond?' exclaimed Jack trying to wink at the minister with both eyes.

'I must confess she is the best minded parrot I ever saw or heard of,' replied the clergyman.

'That isn't half she can do, skipper,' continued the sailor. 'Now, my dear Polly, how many commandments are there?'

'Ten,' screamed Polly.

'That's right, old gal. Now, tell the man which is the first day in the week.'

'Sunday,' was the quiet reply.

'I tell you,' remarked Jack, as he turned to the clergyman, 'I was brought up right, and I've been trying to bring that bird up right. She's worth twenty dollars to any man, but seeing you preach the Gospel you shall have her for five.'

'I guess I'll take her,' replied the minister, producing his wallet. 'As I said before the bird is one of ten thousand, and deserve credit for the care you have taken in her teaching.'

'I hope I do sir,' was Jack's modest reply, and then giving Polly a rap on the head, he inquired:

'Now, then, get your bearing and tell me who was going to offer his son as a sacrifice?'

'Abraham!' shouted the bird, shaking its feathers as if greatly pleased.

'You'll sit up nights to hear that bird talk, you will,' said the sailor. 'If I hadn't said five dollars to you I should say fifty to the next man. I never had time to learn her, but I believe I could have that bird singing hymns in just one voyage to Liverpool. She started out to sing Old Hundred, one day when we were off St. Helena, and if the captain hadn't yelled out just then, I believe the bird would have picked up the whole tune like a whistle.'

The clergyman said he would go and purchase a small cage in which to remove the bird, and he had started for the rail when Jack called out:

'Just hear one more question. I want you to appreciate this bird for what she's worth.'

The clergyman went back to the cage and Jack shook up the bird and called out:

'Polly, old gal, who did the ravens feed? Speak up sharp now.'

'Lijah!' shrieked Polly, seeming greatly angered over the shaking, and after an interval of a few seconds she continued:

'Where in h—l's them crackers?'

Jack and the good man looked at each other for a moment, and then the minister climbed slowly over the rail, never to return—not even to get his five dollars.

'See what you did!' yelled Jack, as be turned to the bird.

And all the answer that Polly made was to softly say—

'Cussum!'

Go and see those fine albums at Houser's.

TROUBLE AMONG THE GRANGERS.

Farmers Complaining of the Exactions Imposed by the National Grange.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat

There is trouble brewing in the house of the Grangers. The National Grange seems to be resolving itself into an oligarcy, revelling in luxury and fat salaries, and ignoring responsibility to anybody. Retiring within the citadel of the secret degree of Priests of Merdia, accessible to none but such as it may elect, it has, by adroit management, established a combination which is ruling the order as it wills, and taxing it onerously to support and prepetuate an aristocracy widely at variance with the fundamental principles on which the order was based.

The extravagance of this self-constituted hierarchy is burdensome. The subordinate Granges are becoming tired of its clamorous greed for money to support its luxury. No reason can be found for the frequent family journeyings about the country of those high priests of the national sponge, and their concomitant expenses, all to be paid by the bone and sinew of the subordinate membership, and there is trouble brewing. Hitherto these High Priests of Merdia from behind the dark curtains of their secret chamber having laughed at the mutterings of the rabble; but now there is foreshadowed the beginning of the end of all greatness.

The subordinate Granges are moving to cut off supplies, and already subordinate Granges in large numbers have surrounded their charters and withdrawn from the order, protesting against the extravagance and monopoly of the National Grange. Thus we find an order, established to abolish rings, monopolies and moneyed oppression, has itself established an intolerable monopoly and combination of its own. A few years ago the order in many localities fell into the hand of a few political designers and town farmers, who run it for the purpose of getting office, and well nigh run it to ruin. Scarcely has the order in this State purged itself of these leeches and mendicant sidewalk pensioners when comes forward this horde of the Priests of Merdia to be gorged and satiated with official pap.

Grunting like a Pig

The following story, which is told of John Smith (we will suppose his name to be Smith) and his son Virgil, is said to be a 'true bill:'

Smith had a promising young horse now for the first time training for the track. One day Virgil, a bright little chap, some ten years of age, was speeding the colt around the track, and was making the run in gallant style, when the colt suddenly shied and threw the boy off.

The cause of this was a young porker that had stowed himself in the brush next to the track, a quiet spectator of the colt's performances, until the latter got almost opposite him, when, hog-like, he made a violent rush, with the result mentioned.

By the time his anxious father reached the ground, the boy was on his feet unhurt. Said the father:

'Virgil, you don't know how to ride a colt, to let a little pig like that throw you off. I don't want the colt spoiled. I want him to go 'round the track, and I will show you that a pig can't prevent him.'

'I'll bet you," said Virgil, 'he'll throw you, too, if a pig makes him jump like he did with me.'

'No, he won't, Virgil,' said the elder Smith; 'you can get in the brush there, and when I ride him round you can grunt like a pig. I'll show you how it is done.'

Accordingly the colt was caught and mounted by the elder Smith, the boy meanwhile having taken his position in the brush to play the role of a pig, in which he succeeded to perfection; for when the sire, after a rattling run, had reached the proper place, he started like a young grizzly, and, tearing out of the brush, caused the panic-stricken colt to pitch his rider ingloriously in the dirt. Gathering himself up, he said savagely:

'What in thunder did you do that for? I told you to grunt like a pig, and not like a darned old hog.'

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

THE BALTIMORE & OHIO.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS AND FIGURES AS COMPILED FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF PRESIDENT GARRETT. A GRATIFYING INCREASE IN BUSINESS OVER THE AUBURN DIVISION.

Our readers will be pleased to learn that the B. & O., the last of the great lines which were built through our county, makes a very favorable showing for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30th. During this time the total earnings of the road and branches have been over fifteen millions, and the expenses of operating and keeping the same in repair over nine and a half millions. The entire mortgage indebtedness of the company is $28,163,929.90, while the surplus fund of the corporation is in excess of this by over seven millions, showing that the line is not only free from debt, but that it has a large sum in excess of all liabilities.

The report, after reviewing the condition and business of the several branch roads, concludes with that of the Chicago connection, or Baltimore, Pittsburg and Chicago railway, which more directly interests the people of this section. The earnings of this road for the fiscal year were $1,231,785.88, and for the preceding fiscal year $959,164.23, showing an increase of $272,621.65. The surplus over working expenses credited to profit and loss account is $166,793.02.

The portion of the report in respect to this road having direct bearing on the questions of through freights to the west, and indicating the policy of the road, is given in full as follows:

The opening of this extension to Chicago excited much jealousy and antagonism on the part of a number of competing lines. It was alleged that the traffic relations of the previously existing railroad system in the northwest were very seriously disturbed by this new competing element.

It is certainly true that the construction of this line gave a direct route between Baltimore and Chicago, under one proprietorship and one management, and that it broadly opened to consumers and producers a more economical and advantageous port on the seaboard than had existed for the vast regions which it reached. Those hostilities by competing companies assumed various forms; first, by illegal attempts to interfere with the construction of the road, subsequently by interference with agreements for its terminal station arrangements in Chicago, and since generally by such action in regard to rates for transportation, as would, if in their power, make the property unremunerative. But in these processes of antagonism to this sort and cheap line, the longer lines to other seaboard cities have suffered fearful losses Untenable, unreasonable and unjust demands have been made upon the Baltimore and Ohio Company to charge rates of transportation to the city of Baltimore which would ignore its immense geographical advantages as an entrepot for foreign commerce. These attacks have been based up erroneous principles are in violation of the laws of trade, and can never prevail. The interest of the producer and consumer, the interest of the whole country, demand that the great commercial cities on the seaboard shall maintain their proper advantages of geographical relations, so that the transportation of the country shall be done at rates governed by their respective advantages. The great city of New York will always command from those immense regions which have natural relations to that part their exclusive business But those Western centres of commerce which are nearest so Baltimore, and the regions connected with those centres, are entitled to the economy and advantage of their nearness to Baltimore and those centres of commerce, and those regions will expect to use and will use the channel of commerce which is nearest and most advantageous. Artificial means by which efforts are made to ignore distances will always be resisted upon broad and strong grounds which will be sustained by the common sense and plain advantage of the great population whose interests are involved in this important question.

The Chicago division of the Baltimore and Ohio road has already demonstrated its power and usefulness, and while this company will desire to no unfair advantages, it will doubtless maintain equitable and just principles.

License Notice.

Notice to the citizens of the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the Board of Commissioners of said county, at their regular session in December, A. D. 1876, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, on the north one third [1-3] of lot No. sixty-three [63] in the original plat in said town, with the privilege of having the same drank on said premises.

EDWARD ELDRIDGE

A MURDEROUS MELEE.

THE CULMINATION OF A TERMAGANTS CAREER. HOW EMMA U. MARBLE DROVE ONE HUSBAND TO SUICIDE AND BROUGHT RUIN ON HIS TWO SUCCESSORS.

The Lansing Journal of a recent date contains the following account of a midnight melee which took place near that city:

Jon P. Marble, of Meridian Township, some time ago separated from his wife, Emma U. Marble. The Marble farmhouse was occupied by Mrs. Marble, her son by a former marriage, William B. Chapman, by name, and William Martin, a man who was arrested some time ago for deserting his family. Marble for years had much trouble with his wife, and thought that he had reason to suspect a criminal intimacy between Martin and Mrs. Marble, and for months past he employed John Morley to watch the residence of the pair with a view of obtaining positive evidence against them.

On Sunday night, Morley, C. W. Ayers his son-in-law, and Marble went to the farm in a carriage, which they secreted in the woods near by. They then took their station under a tree in an open lot near the house. Marble and his comrades heard a noise on the south side of the house, and saw a wagon drawn up. Then the watchers took a circuit around the house, for the purpose of observation, and then they met under a small tree.

While lying there in waiting, according to Marble, his party was surprised by Mrs. Marble, young Chapman and Martin, all armed to the teeth, and a murderous fire was opened on them, resulting in the instant death of Ayers. Morley sprang up and retreated across the lot, followed by the assailants. He was afterwards found in the lot with a frightful wound extending accross the top of his head and his skull fractured. The barrel of the gun carried by young Chapman was afterwards found in the house, covered with blood and bent as if by striking a heavy blow.

Marble says that he remained beneath the tree where they were first seen by the assailants until the assault was made upon Morley in the retreat of the latter. In rushing up to Morley's assistance, Marble received a shot in the back, which inflicted no serious injury, as it lodged just beneath the skin. He also heard his wife cry out to her son: 'That's the old man, go for him, Will!' Chapman replied that he was shot, and the whole party from the house then beat a retreat to their domicile, leaving Marble the field with the wounded and slain.

Marble, after being left alone on the scene of conflict, at once aroused the neighbors. He also sent for medical assistance and the officers of the law. The parties to the affray were all arrested, and the house was made a temporary morgue and hospital. After the Coroner's inquest the Marbles, Martin and Chapman were taken to Mason and lodged in jail, the last named on a charge of murder and the others as accessories. There was no little talk of lynching Mrs. Marble and her paramour.

Twelve years ago the woman in this case was living in Watertown, Clinton County, with a former husband—the father of young Chapman. Chapman suspected a criminal intimacy between his wife, now Mrs Marble, and a fellow named Stead, and one night discovered the two locked up in his own house. He fired through the door and wounded Stead, and then took his own life. She next married one Fosdick, who lived near Ypsilanti, and after much trouble with him the two were divorced. Then on an unlucky day Marble made her acquaintance. He had always born the reputation of a peaceable citizen, but with his marriage his troubles began. Lawsuits, bickerings and scandles multiplied, until Marble, in his old age, felt compelled to quit his home.

Ladies Cloaks as low as $3.75.
Ladies Felt Hats 50c.
Children Trimmed Hats.
Fur Trimming a good assortment.
Germantown and Zephyr all shades
Water-proof and Ladies cloth.
Two Button Kid Gloves 65c.
Cambrick Dress Goods 50c.
Ladies' and Children's Furs.
Old Muffs lined.

H. H. STAMETS

ENGLISH INK for Printers.

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of Superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of Ink made by us.

EXCELSIOR PRINTING INK CO., MANUFACTURERS,
(Formerly of London, England),
154 & 156 MONROE ST., CHICAGO,
And 13 Barclay Street, New York.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

The Grangers' encampment building at Elm Station, Pennsylvania railroad, a few miles from Philadelphia, was totally destroyed by fire last week. Loss, $80,000; insurance, $50,000.

Wm. H. Payne's grain and flour mills and elevator, at Two Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Second avenue, New York city, was burned the other night. Loss heavy.

A joint resolution has passed the Vermont House of Representatives to instruct Congressmen to use their influence to secure the permanent resumption of specie payment as early as January, 1879.... By the sinking of a coal barge in Boston harbor, recently, seventeen persons are believed to have been drowned.

The return of William M. Tweed to the scene of his former exploits is an accomplished fact. He reached New York last week, after a long and tedious voyage from Vigo, the Spanish port in which he was discovered and turned over to the United States authorities. He was taken in a carriage from the pier to his old quarters in Ludlow street jail, and is once more in the custody of the law officers of that State.

THE WEST.

There is occasion for general rejoicing at the capture of the villains who attempted to rifle the tomb of Abraham Lincoln of its precious contents, a few days since. They were captured by the detectives at Chicago, last week.

The annual reports of the officers of the Inter-State Industrial Exposition were made to the annual meeting of the stockholders, held at Chicago on the 19th inst. The Treasurer's report for the year ending Nov. 17, 1876, shows as follows: Total receipts, $114,140.11; disbursements, $105,535.27; leaving a remainder of $8,604.84. The exposition of 1876 lasted twenty-nine days, from Sept. 6 to Oct. 9. The number of exhibitors was 541. The whole number of admissions was 217,189, not including exhibitors or employes who had season tickets. The amount accruing from sales of tickets was $66,664.50, showing an average attendance of over 7,500 persons per day.... During a performance at Moore's Opera House, in Sacramento, Cal., on Saturday evening last, the floor gave way, killing seven and wounding about 100 spectators. The Opera House was situated over a large livery stable on Second street, between K and L, and was formerly used as a State armory. It had recently been converted into a theater by putting up a gallery and a tier of boxes, making the hall capable of seating 1,000 persons. The floor was unsupported except by the usual beams. The vaudeville troupe had engaged the theater, and, it being the opening of the establishment, the house was crowded. Soon after the performance commenced a sudden sinking of the floor was noticed, accompanied by the cracking of beams, and directly the entire auditorium, carrying with it the stage and gallery, was precipitated into the stable beneath. Many of the wounded taken from the ruins are in a crippled condition, and a number will probably die.

From Northern Dakota reports have been received at Washington that Sitting Bull is being supplied with ammunition from British territory. It is said that immense quantities have been purchased up there and shipped across the country by wagons.

Chicago elevators contained, last week, 2,832,683 bushels of wheat; 422,403 bushels of corn; 435,254 bushels of oats; 167,091 bushels of rye, and 1,053,377 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 4,910,808 bushels, against 2,555,296 bushels at this period last year..... Carlos S. Greely and Henry Villard, recently appointed Receivers of the Kansas Pacific railway, took possession of all the property of that road recently under an order of the District Court of Kansas City. Robert Carr was appointed General Manager, and T. F. Oakes General Superintendent.

The Board of Indian Commissioners, consisting of Gen. O. O. Howard, Hon. W. Stickney, A. E. Barstow, D. H. Jerome and Col. Wood, appointed by the Government to confer with the Nez Perces, with a view to an adjustment of the existing difficulties relative to the possession of Willow's valley, have returned to Fort Lapwai. The Commissioners held a four days' conference with the Chief Joseph with regard to the question whether settlers or Indians are entitled to possess the valley. Good feeling and harmony characterized the conference, and it is thought the question in dispute will be amicably settled.... The Christian Convention of the Northwest held a convention in Chicago last week. Many prominent evangelists were present, and great interest was manifested.

THE SOUTH.

The Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in session at Richmond, Va., last week, unanimously approved of the results of the meeting between the Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church North and the Episcopal Church South held at Cape May last August, and resolved that "we regard the action of the commission as authoritative and a final settlement of the question at issue, and binding upon all ministers and members of the two churches."

WASHINGTON.

In the case of Admiral Porter and others, of the North Atlantic squadron, against the rams Texas and Beaufort, and ten other Confederate vessels, in which $1,500,000 was claimed, a decree was issued last week in the District Court at Washington, declaring that for want of proof the captors are entitled to but one-half of the proceeds of the prizes, and that the value of the Texas was $55,520, and the Beaufort $12,000.

The 30th day of November has been appointed a day of intercession for the missions of the Church of England throughout the world.

GENERAL.

The Methodist Episcopal Missionary Committee last week made the following appropriations: Japan, $15,000; Arizona, $2,000; contingent fund, $25,000; incidental expenses, $25,000; office expenses, $14,000; and for disseminating missionary information, $20,000.

The clearings of the Chicago banks for last week foot up a total of $21,126,033.66, being about $3,170,000 less than for the corresponding week of last year.

Mullins and Hughes, the two men arrested in Chicago recently on the charge of attempting to despoil the tomb of Abraham Lincoln of its precious contents, were indicted by a special Grand Jury of Sangamon county for two separate crimes—attempted larceny and conspiracy—and each was committed in default of bail in the sum of $11,000.

The case of D. W. Munn, Illinois Supervisor of Internal Revenue, indicted for complicity in whisky-ring frauds, came to a curious end the other day before Judge Treat, at St. Louis. A demurrer was made to the indictment by the defendant, upon the ground that it set forth that the offense was committed "in the year eighteen hundred and seventy cents," the document so reading. Judge Treat held that the date fixed must be held to mean 1870, and, as punishment would have been prescribed by the statutes of limitation, he ordered a nolle prosequi to be entered, and Munn and his surety were discharged.

There will be five German-Americans in the next House of Representatives. All of them, excepting Mr. Brentano, are Democrats. Schleicher, of Texas, is the only native German in the present House.... John Morrissey has allowed the withdrawal of election-bets in his custody on payment of the regular commission and by agreement of the principals.

POLITICAL.

It was decided by the Louisiana Returning Board to admit five representatives of each party as spectators of its proceedings, and also to allow contestants to be represented by counsel at such times as the Board should designate for hearing arguments upon disputed questions. A similar provision as to publicity was made in South Carolina, the Canvassing Board having voted to allow a committee of Democrats and Republicans to be present.... Complete returns from all the counties of Illinois give Hayes a majority over Tilden of 17,456.

The total vote of Ohio at the November election was 659,757, divided as follows for President: Hayes, 330,698; Tilden, 323,183; Cooper (Independent), 3,057; Smith (Prohibition), 1,636; Walker (Anti-Secret Society), 76; Hayes over Tilden, 7,516.... The majority for Tilden in Maryland is officially reported at 19,799.... The official majority for Hayes in Illinois is reported at 18,013.... The Returning Board of the State of Louisiana met, in pursuance of law, on the 17th inst., at New Orleans, for the purpose of canvassing the vote of that State at the recent election. The only business transacted was the reception of a plea on the part of the Democratic candidates against the constitutionality of the acts of the board, and the forwarding of a communication to the visiting gentlemen of both parties, requesting the appointment of committees to be present at the count. In response to this communication the Democrats appointed the following to remain here and be present to witness the counting of the votes by the Returning Board: John M. Palmer, Illinois; Lyman Trumbull, Illinois; William Bigler, Pennsylvania; George B. Smith, Wisconsin; P. H. Watson, Ohio.

The count for President stood, Nov. 21, as shown in the table below, with Louisiana, 8 votes, and Florida, 4 votes, to be returned:

FOR TILDEN.

States.	Votes.	States.	Votes.
Alabama	10	New Jersey	9
Arkansas	6	New York	35
Connecticut	6	North Carolina	10
Delaware	3	Tennessee	12
Georgia	11	Texas	8
Indiana	15	Virginia	11
Kentucky	12	West Virginia	5
Maryland	8
Mississippi	8	Total	184
Missouri	15

FOR HAYES.

States.	Votes.	States.	Votes.
California	6	New Hampshire	5
Colorado	3	Ohio	22
Illinois	21	Oregon	3
Iowa	11	Pennsylvania	29
Kansas	5	Rhode Island	4
Maine	7	Vermont	5
Massachusetts	13	Wisconsin	10
Michigan	11	South Carolina	7
Minnesota	5
Nebraska	3	Total	173
Nevada	3
Total electoral vote			369
Necessary to a choice			185

Virginia's majority for Tilden is 44,244. The majority in Alabama for the Tilden and Hendricks electors is 34,883.

The official vote in Pennsylvania is as follows: Hayes, 384,148; Tilden, 366,204; Cooper, 7,204; Smith (Prohibition), 3,182.

The official vote of Wisconsin at the recent election was: Hayes, 130,067; Tilden, 123,926; Cooper, 2,045. Hayes majority over Tilden was 6,141.

In Missouri, out of a total vote of 350,583, the Tilden electors received 202,687, the Hayes electors 144,398, and the Cooper electors 3,498; Tilden's majority over Hayes, 58,289; over Hayes and Cooper, 54,791.... The complete official returns of all the counties in the State of Iowa show the following figures on President: Hayes, 171,327; Tilden, 112,099; Cooper, 9,001; Anti-Secret Society, 26. Hayes over Tilden, 59,229; over all, 50,201. The total vote is 292,453.... The official vote of New Hampshire is: Hayes, 41,522; Tilden, 38,449; scattering, 74.... Mr. A. H. Green, late Comptroller of the city of New York, has been appointed Comptroller of New York State, to succeed Lucius Robinson, the Governor-elect.... Aldrich, Democratic contesting Presidential elector in Vermont, has served upon the Governor a protest against the issuing of a certificate to Sollace, the Republican.... Hayes' majority in Minnesota was 24,006. .... A New York dispatch of Nov. 23 says "Congressman Clarkson N. Potter has written a long letter to the Herald. The Democratic House, he says, will maintain that it can exclude fraudulent votes, and will exercise that power if they find it necessary. If either candidate fails to receive a legal majority of the votes in the official count, which would be the case if Louisiana was thrown out, then the House must immediately proceed to elect a President. The Herald editorially says this letter shows the Democratic programme in the case of Louisiana being counted for Hayes. The Democratic House will be present in full force, and when the Louisiana certificates are opened objections will be made to counting those votes. If the two Houses disagree, the Representatives will adhere to their own decision, and at the count will decide that there has been no choice by the Electoral College, and proceed at once to elect a President."

FOREIGN.

A Hamburg, Germany, dispatch says that the Public Prosecutor of that city has instituted proceedings against Ferdinand Keyn, late master of the German steamer Franconia, for manslaughter, in running down the British steamer Strathclyde, and causing the death of a number of persons through culpable negligence. Capt. Keyn was convicted in England for the same offense, but on appeal his sentence was quashed for want of jurisdiction.

A Reuter telegram from Calcutta states that later accounts say that 215,000 persons perished during the cyclone which passed through Eastern Bengal on the 31st of October. The Government is taking active steps for the relief of the distressed population of that district.... The Extraordinary Grand Council of Turkey resolved, on the 17th, to accept the conference. It is stated that Midhat Pasha and Sanfet Pasha will be the Turkish Plenipotentiaries.

A Calcutta dispatch of Nov. 20 gives the following account of the great tidal wave of Oct. 31: "Three large islands, namely, Hattiah, Sundeep and Dakhan Shababazhare, and numerous smaller islands included in Backergunge, Nookholly and Chittagong, were entirely submerged by the storm-wave of Oct. 31, as was also the mainland for five or six miles. These islands are all in or near the estuary of the River Megna. The largest, Dakhan Shababazhare, was 500 square miles in extent. It had a population of about 240,000. Hattiah and Sundeep, together, had about 100,000 population. Up to about 11 o'clock on the night of the 31st there were no signs of danger, but before midnight a wave swept over the country to the depth, in many places, of twenty feet, surprising the people in their beds. Dense groves of cocoanut and palm trees around the villages enabled many to save themselves by climbing among the branches. Some took refuge on the tops of their houses, but the water burst the houses asunder, and swept them out to sea. Some were carried thus across the channel, ten miles, to the Chittagong district, but the vast majority were never heard of again. The country is perfectly flat, and almost every one perished who failed to reach the trees. There is scarcely a household on the islands, and on the adjacent coast, but lost many members. The cattle are all drowned, the boats are swept away, and the means of communication with the other districts are destroyed. There is much distress among the survivors, which the Government is relieving. The Government Gazette says that wherever the storm-wave passed it is believed that not a third of the population survived. The islands have barely one-fourth of their former inhabitants. The stench from the putrifying bodies is intolerable, and a general outbreak of the cholera is expected. A correspondent says that the fear is happily not yet realized, except in Nookholly, where the disease has appeared." .... The English steamer Windsor Castle has been lost near Cape Town, Africa. Passengers and crew saved.... Her Majesty's gunboat Lapwing is reported lost in the great gale near Chafoo, China. No lives lost.

Hamilton & Son's foundry and car-works, covering about three acres of ground on King street, near the Don river, at Toronto, Can., were entirely destroyed by fire one morning lately. The buildings, with contents, were worth $250,000, and were only insured for $30,000. Two hundred men were thrown out of employment.

The British steamer Leonor and the American brig Frances Lowey, from Swatow for New Chwang, China, have been in collision. The latter was sunk, and six of her crew and passengers drowned.... The long-projected marriage between King Alfonso, of Spain, and the daughter of the Duke de Montpensier is now reported definitely arranged.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

Canvass of the Votes in the Three Disputed States.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 22.—Immediately after the meeting of the board, at 11:30 a. m., counsel of the Democratic Committee on Returns filed a motion for copies of protests, contests, etc., entered on the Republican side. The motion was taken under advisement. A protest against the rules adopted by the board was filed by the Democratic counsel. When the board went into executive session Gov. R. C. Wickliffe, elector-at-large on the Democratic ticket, was excluded from the room. President Wells said that Gov. Wickliffe could only be present in case of a contest. The latter gave notice that he would file a protest. The board went into executive session about noon, the following-named gentlemen, composing the Democratic and Republican Visiting Committees, remaining in the room: Democratic Committee—Messrs. Palmer, Trumbull, Julian, G. B. Smith, and Bigler. Republican Committee—Messrs. Sherman, Hale, Stoughton, Garfield and Kelley. The Clerk reported that returns from fourteen parishes had not yet been received. The following parishes were canvassed to-day in executive session: St. Helena—Hayes, 520; Tilden, 648; Packard, 516; Nichols, 652. St. Mary—Hayes, 247; Tilden, 1,485; Packard, 2,397; Nichols, 1,455. Tensas—Hayes, 2,307; Tilden, 464; Packard, 3,192; Nichols, 486. Terrebonne—Hayes, 1,972; Tilden, 1,389; Packard, 1,962; Nichols, 1,402. Washington—Hayes, 165; Tilden, 514; Packard, 163; Nichols, 529; Vermilion—Hayes, 277; Tilden, 902.

New Orleans, Nov. 23.—At the meeting of the Canvassing Board to-day, on motion of Gen. Anderson, the President of the board instructed the Secretary to issue orders to all Supervisors in the city to file their returns immediately. The board completed the canvass of only three parishes, as follows:

Natchitoches—Tilden, 1,761; Hayes, 2,099; Union—Tilden, 1,493; Hayes, 94; Iberville—Tilden, 957; Hayes, 2,297.

At one poll in Natchitoches the board threw out 542 votes for three Republican electors, and 173 votes for three Democratic electors, on account of informalities. The vote for the five Republican electors in Natchitoches was 1,556. In Iberville the five Republican electors received only 1,848 votes instead of 2,297, owing to the omission of names on the ballots.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 22.—The Board of State Canvassers yesterday made a report to the Supreme Court stating the persons who had received the highest number of votes for the offices for which they were candidates. Appended to the report of results was the memorandum of the board stating that in their opinion certain irregularities which affected some of the Republican candidates should be corrected, and also that the vote of Laurens and Edgfield counties, which gave large Democratic majorities, should be excluded on account of frauds and intimidations. This morning the court made an order commanding the board to issue certificates of election to all the persons who were shown by the report of the board to have received the highest number of votes for members of the Legislature, including the counties of Edgfield and Laurens. The court also to-day took up the case of the electors and issued a rule on the board to show cause why they should not correct the statements of the County Canvassers by the precinct returns in their possession. Pending these proceedings of the court, however, the board held a session and issued a certificate to all the members of the Legislature except for Laurens and Edgfield counties, thus securing a majority of the Legislature to the Republican side and the defeat of Hampton and the election of Chamberlain. The board also issued certificates of election to the Hayes and Wheeler electors and to all the Republican State ticket. The board then adjourned sine die. This action of the board has created much excitement, but the citizens are determined to rely on the courts and exhaust all legal means of redress.

Columbia, Nov. 23.—To-day the court issued an order reconvening the Board of Canvassers. It is not expected the Board will obey the order. Considerable excitement is reported throughout the State, but there has been no demonstration of violence. The action of the Board of State Canvassers is considered final by the Republicans, while the Democrats hold it has no effect, because the whole question was in the hands of the Supreme Court, and the board is guilty of contempt. They express a determination to continue the contest in the courts and bring matters to a conclusion there. Last night the Democratic counsel served a writ of mandamus issued yesterday by the court on the officials composing the board. The Supreme Court will meet to-morrow to hear the return of the board.

H. W. Purvis, Adjutant and Inspector General, and member of the Board of Canvassers, says he has resigned his office.

FLORIDA.

Tallahassee, Nov. 23.—The court before which the case of injunction against the Governor and mandamus against the Returning Board was to be tried met this morning. The Governor presented through counsel an affidavit, in which he stated that he had never made up his mind to canvass the vote, and has not stated to any one that he had done so; that even up to the present writing he had not decided he was empowered to canvass the votes.

The Democratic counsel, disregarding this affidavit, argued that the Governor had no right to canvass the electoral vote, but that such right resided in the Canvassing Board, and further that the court did not have jurisdiction over the Governor in restraining him from doing what he was empowered by law to do, but in restraining him from performing an act he had no right to perform under the law.

Gen. Barlow replied on behalf of the Governor, and denied the jurisdiction of the court. He said that an injunction issued against the Governor by a Judge on the bench would have no more effect than if it was issued by a private individual. He abjured the Judge to carefully consider the risk he ran in issuing a writ of injunction that could not be enforced by any legitimate procedure if the Governor was determined to resist it.

Gen. Barlow did not enter into the merits of the case at all, but merely stood upon the lack of jurisdiction of the court.

At the close of his argument the court adjourned.

How to Buy Meats.

To the housekeeper the question how to select meat, when she is purchasing for table use, is a puzzling one. Good and wholesome meat should be neither of a pale rosy or pink color, nor of a deep purple. The first denotes the diseased condition, the last proves the animal has died a natural death. Good meat has more of a marble look, in consequence of the branching of the veins which surround the adipose cells. The fat, especially of the inner organs, is always firm and suety, and never moist, while in general the fat from diseased cattle is flabby and watery, and more often resembles jelly or boiled parchment. Wholesome meat will always show itself firm and elastic to the touch, and exhibit no dampness, while bad meat will appear soft and moist, in fact, often more wet, so that the liquid substance runs out of the blood when pressed hard. Good meat has very little smell, while the unsound meat has a disagreeable, cadaverous smell, and diffuses a certain medicinal odor. Lastly, bad meat has the peculiarity that it shrinks considerably in the boiling; wholesome meat rather swells, and does not lose an ounce in weight.

The Situation Explained.

Everybody was undecided. No one could say with certainty that Hayes or Tilden was the next President, and in the midst of all the conflicting opinions and contradictory dispatches it was refreshing to fall into the company of a group of intelligent persons whose comprehension of the situation was general enough to give interest and weight to their estimates and conjectures. Such a group gathered on Jefferson street in front of the palace book store of Wesley Jones, late Democratic candidate for State Treasurer. There were several of the best young men of the metropolis, easily distinguished from the common herd by their languid air, and their weak mustaches.

"Aw," remarked one, "d'ye know there's a deuce of a time about this election?"

"Wha's it all about?" said a second. "I tho't th' election was ever Tuesday."

"So 'twas," said the first one; "an' the people were all satisfied Wednesday mawning 'bout the thing. Tilden was elected and the waw was over. Tha's wa't evewybody said. But the Hawk-Eye came out th' next mawning an' said 'twas a Democwatic lie an' 'at Hayes was elected, an' now they'll have to count the whole thing over again."

"Dawm the Hawk-Eye," said a third.

"It is always waising a wow about something. 'Twas the Hawk-Eye 't beat Curt and Hobbs an' the west of the boys. An' now it wants to beat evwybody on the ticket."

Another best young man broke in here and attracted the attention of the whole crowd by the startling announcement:

"Yaas, but didn't Coolbaugh settle the Hawk-Eye?"

"How'd he do that?" chorused all the rest.

"Wy, by his telegwam or something," said the last young man. "Coolbaugh says't Stone may have Louisa county'n Lee, too, 'n Tilden 'll take Illinois 'n Ohio 'n beat him yet. So the Hawk-Eye 'll have to give it up."

"Lookee heah," said another, "wha's all this talk about a college got to do with it?"

"Wy, goodness gwacious, man," replied the first speaker, "don't you know't the wepublicans want to throw the thing into the colleges because all'e students believe in hazing, and them 't'ave been hazed can be depended on to haze all the rest. That's just a Wepublican twick to cawwy th' election."

"So't is, I declare," chorused the crowd.

"See heah," said one, after a pause, "don't you know't the Wepublicans say 't 'is thing could all 'a' been fixed up yestiddy if only Bawke'd give up the Postoffice?"

"It's a lie," shouted two or three at once. "Wha's the Postoffice got to do 'ith electin' a Pwesident?"

"Well, now," said the last one, "don't get so excited 'bout that. How'd I know anything 'bout it? Tha's w'at they say."

Then there was silence, and finally one of them remarked, "Wha's all this talk about Flowida? I tho't 't Flowida was a pawt of the solid South."

"So't was," replied another, "'n Coolbaugh says 't Flowida's gone Democwatic too, 'long with Colowado. Coolbaugh cawwied Injunaplis by fo' thousand, 'n he knows more 'bout the Nashnal finances 'n any other man 'xcept Shep. Leffler."

We didn't stay any longer, but wandered away entirely satisfied that every department of the body politic was thoroughly alive to the exigencies of the hour.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

Narrow Escape.

A Denverite named Wolfe Londoner, recently returned from an Eastern trip, imparted to the reporter of the Rocky Mountain News the following incident of his journey: He was on his way west, on a train on the Chicago and Alton railroad on the night of the 6th inst., and had a berth on a sleeping car, all unconscious of danger, when the conductor awoke him and asked him to come out and see how narrowly he had escaped perdition. Wolfe followed him and found the train standing on the bridge that crosses the Mississippi at Louisiana, Mo. The conductor led him to the front of the engine, and there, several hundred feet from the shore, was a yawning chasm over 100 feet wide. The river had undermined the third pier from the shore, and still some distance from the draw, and it had gone down, carrying a whole section of the bridge with it. The time of night was 11:45, and the freight train had crossed safely at 11. The engineer gave the accustomed three whistles as he approached the bridge, and the position of the signal lights showed that the draw was shut. The engineer, whose name is P. McNamara, said that as he approached the bridge he was seized with a strong presentiment that all was not right. He could see no signal from the watchman, always kept on duty at the bridge, and proceeded very slowly. All at once, and he could not tell why he did it, the engineer reversed the engine and stopped his train. He got off to look ahead, and found the pilot within two feet of the yawning chasm. Another turn of the wheels and he never would have lived to tell the story, nor, in all probability, any of the hundred or more passengers in the five coaches, which would have inevitably plunged into the roaring torrent fifty feet below. It seems the watchman, who had passed over the bridge after the freight passed, had gone on a spree, and was found drunk in the city. The train was delayed until the next morning, and the passengers transferred.

Not one person in a dozen can tell the names of those whose busts are to be found on postage stamps. The bust on the one-cent stamp represents Franklin; twos, Jackson; threes, Washington; fives, Taylor; sixes, Lincoln; sevens, Stanton; tens, Jefferson; twelves, Clay; fifteens, Webster; twenty-fours, Scott; thirties, Hamilton; nineties, Perry. The seven, twelve and twenty-four-cent stamps are not now issued, but many of them are now in circulation.

LOUISIANA.

Further Correspondence Concerning Matters in Dispute.

The following was issued by the visiting Democrats from the North:

New Orleans, Nov. 17.

To the Hons. John Sherman, Stanley Matthews, J. A. Garfield, W. D. Kelley, John A. Kasson, E. W. Stoughton, J. Irvine Ditty, J. M. Van Allen, Eugene Hale, M. S. Quay, Will. Cumback, E. R. Noyes, Job E. Stevenson, John Coburn, Lew Wallace, John Tuttle, M. A. McGrew, J. A. Chapman, Wm. R. Smith, Abner Taylor, S. R. Haven, J. M. Beardsley, C. B. Farwell, Courtlandt Parker, Sidney Clark, J. C. Wilson.

Gentlemen: We are in receipt of your answer to our letter of the 14th inst., in which you inform us of your determination not to confer with us for the purpose of exerting such influence as we may possess in behalf of such a canvass of the votes actually cast at the election in Louisiana as by its fairness and impartiality shall command the acquiescence and respect of all parties. We sincerely regret this failure of our attempt to secure the co-operation of the citizens from other States in the furtherance of the purpose which, as we supposed, had brought them hither at this juncture. We regret it all the more because your refusal to confer and co-operate with us appears to be based upon a serious misapprehension of the language no less than the spirit of our communication. It can hardly have escaped your notice that our statement of the result to be attained by the co-operative action which we sought to bring about, was a simple reproduction of the language of President Grant—at whose request we understand you are here—in his recent order to Gen. Sherman. That language was deliberately used, no doubt, in view of the fact about which, as we conceive, there can be no dispute, that the first and most essential prerequisite to an honest and just declaration of the result of the recent election in Louisiana is a fair and impartial canvass of the votes actually cast, and it seems to us that you do the President injustice in supposing that in speaking of the votes actually cast he meant votes illegally cast, as you certainly do us injustice by the imputation of a desire to insist upon such a narrow and vicious interpretation.

In our judgment the expression "votes actually cast" of a necessity designates votes legally cast, and, as a consequence, of such votes only did we desire to secure a fair and impartial canvass. We beg leave to say, therefore, that you are mistaken in the belief that we sought unduly to narrow the basis on which we invited your co-operative action, and you are no less in error in attributing to us a purpose to interfere with the legal authorities of the State in the discharge of their duties, to claim rights and to arrogate to ourselves powers which we do not possess. In writing our letter we were fully aware that both the organization and action, whether judicial or ministerial, of the Returning Board of Louisiana, were beyond any authoritative control from without, and that it would be the height of arrogance and folly to attempt to alter the laws of a State of which we are not citizens, or to obtrude our interpretation of those laws upon those whose duty it is to administer them; but we had supposed, nevertheless, that there was an influence that might be rightfully exerted, even by citizens of this republic who are strangers in this State, and we had taken it for granted that your presence here, in response to the suggestion of the President, was a recognition of this fact. We had supposed that it was not improper for us to remind the authorities of this State, by our mere presence at least, that there are certain rules of fairness and justice which underlie all constitutions and laws, and upon whose observance must depend the acquiescence of the people of all parties in the declared result of the Louisiana election. Rules such as these: That no one can judge in his own case; that the decision in any contest ought not to depend upon the mere arbitrament of one of the parties thereto; that before such a decision is made both parties ought to be fully and fairly heard; that all questions of law ought to be decided in conformity with its established general principles, and all questions of fact upon evidence duly presented and weighed, are rules of universal recognition in all the States of the Union. The trial of causes involving public interest at least ought to be public, and all the proceedings resorted to for the purpose of determining the issues in the present electoral contest ought by their manifest impartiality to disarm the suspicion that the forms of law have been perverted into instruments for the violation of its spirit. In this connection we may be permitted to observe that while undoubtedly, as you say, a sedulous inculcation and cultivation of the habits of obedience to the forms of law is vital to the preservation of constitutional liberty, it is no less important that a refusal to yield such obedience be not provoked by using these forms as the means of subverting the very ends for which they were designed. Without undertaking to question the sincerity of the belief which you are at pains to express that you know of no reason to doubt that the Louisiana Returning Board will make a perfectly honest and just declaration of the results of the recent election in Louisiana, we deem it not improper to remind you that the presence in this city of so many citizens from all parts of the Union at this moment seems to be evidence of a widely prevalent distrust of the action of this board, and that such distrust has this foundation at least, that the constitution of the board has not been changed since its returns were set aside by a Congressional committee of which the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency was a member, and this distrust is not unnatural in view of the fact that as we understand one of the members of the Returning Board is a candidate voted for at the recent election, another the holder of an office of profit and trust by the appointment of the present Executive of the national Government, while all the members of the board are believed to be in affiliation with but one of the parties to the present political contest. In view of all this it is hardly necessary to add that the terms of our letter were not designed to prejudge the question whether the functions of the Returning Board were judicial or ministerial, or both, but simply to invite you to see with us that, whatever may be the character of these functions, they are openly, fairly and honestly discharged, and, while we thus refrained from any attempt at stating or construing the laws of Louisiana, we deemed it equally irrelevant to the subject of our correspondence with you to allude to the duties devolving upon officers other than the constituents of the Louisiana Returning Board under the laws and constitution of the United States. Whether, as you observe by way of illustration, under the constitution the President of the Senate both counts and declares the votes of the electors of the several States, his duties being purely ministerial, and not subject to the control of Congress, or whether, as has been the practice for more than eighty years, a practice inaugurated by men some of whom had been among the framers of the constitution, the votes are to be counted under the direction and control of the Senate and House of Representatives, is a question upon the discussion of which we deem it no part of our duty to enter. In conclusion, permit us to say that, notwithstanding your refusal to co-operate, we still cherish the hope that the Returning Board, warned by the history of the past, and conscious that its actions are being observed by the whole world, will discharge its delicate duty with such circumspection, fairness and impartiality as will give satisfaction to the American people. To this end we will continue to labor. Should a different result follow the action of the board, we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that while you have taken the responsibility of declining to act with us, we have done all in our power to avert the consequences which may follow. Very respectfully, Lyman Trumbull, John M. Palmer, Wm. R. Morrison, Illinois; Samuel J. Randall, A. G. Curtin, Wm. Bigler, Pennsylvania; J. R. Doolittle, Geo. B. Smith, Wisconsin; J. E. McDonald, Geo. W. Julian, M. D. Manson, John Love, Indiana; Henry Watterson, J. W. Stevenson, H. D. McHenry, Kentucky; Oswald Ottendorfer, New York; J. B. Stallo, Ohio; Lewis V. Bogy, James O. Broadhead, C. Gibson, Missouri; John Lee Carroll, Wm. T. Hamilton, Maryland; W. G. Sumner, Connecticut; P. H. Watson, Ohio; J. R. Caudert, New York.

THE FINAL LETTER.

The Northern Republicans in Louisiana made the following reply to the Democratic note of the 17th:

New Orleans, Nov. 18.

To the Hons. J. M. Palmer, Lyman Trumbull, W. R. Morrison, Samuel J. Randall, A. G. Curtin, William Bigler, J. R. Doolittle, George B. Smith, J. E. McDonald, George W. Julian, M. D. Manson, John Love, Henry Watterson, J. W. Stevenson, Henry D. McHenry, Oswald Ottendorfer, J. B. Stallo, L. V. Bogy, James O. Broadhead, C. Gibson, John Lee Carroll, W. T. Hamilton, W. G. Sumner, P. H. Watson, J. R. Caudert.

Gentlemen: We are gratified to learn that we have misapprehended the language and spirit of your communication of Nov. 14, and that we were in error in attributing to you a purpose to interfere with the legally constituted authorities in this State in the discharge of their duties. Perhaps this misapprehension was the natural result of the language employed. Your request was to "meet and confer with you, either personally or through committees, in order that such influence as we possess may be exerted in behalf of such canvass of the votes actually cast as by its fairness and impartiality shall command the respect and acquiescence of the American people." This, as we understand it, was a request to co-operate with you for the purpose of influencing the action of the Returning Board in the discharge of its duties. The President had requested us to attend here to witness, not to influence, such canvass, and knows that such request by him was not intended to limit to witnessing the count of the votes actually cast, but the entire proceedings of the board in reaching a result as to the votes legally cast to be counted. We are gratified to learn that you concur with the President and with us in this understanding. You also state you are "fully aware that both the organization and action, either judicial or ministerial, of the Returning Board of Louisiana was beyond any authoritative control from without, and that it would be the height of arrogance and folly to attempt to alter the laws of a State of which we are not citizens, or to obtrude our interpretation of the laws upon those whose duty is to administer them." We may, therefore, as we think, assume that you will agree with us that it would be arrogance equally to attempt by our concerted action to influence the proceedings or result of the courts of justice or of boards acting judicially, and hence we are gratified at being able, from the language and tenor of your letter, to assume that you did not wish to confer with us for the purpose of influencing the action of the Returning Board, but only to secure such co-operation on our part as would enable us jointly with yourselves to witness the proceedings throughout. A conference for such a purpose would now seem to be unnecessary, as we learn from a communication just received from the board, which appears to us to accomplish what by your explanatory note you desire to attain by the proposed conference. We will add that it is very apparent that if your wish is to see a fair and honest expression of the electoral vote of Louisiana, there is no difference between ourselves and you except as to our conduct in reference to that result. You have proposed a conference and active associated influence. This we regard as beyond our duty or our privilege as individuals. We shall be happy at all times to confer with you, and as individuals to co-operate in whatever shall be right, but concerted action for the purpose of influencing an official board we hold to be beyond our privilege, and we shall hope that all may come to pass which good citizens can wish without the use of any such means. We remain, gentlemen, very respectfully,

John Sherman, Stanley Matthews, J. A. Garfield, Ohio; E. W. Stoughton, J. Van Allen, New York; W. D. Kelley, Pennsylvania; Job E. Stevenson, Ohio; Eugene Hale, Maine; J. M. Tuttle, J. W. Chapman, William R. Smith, W. A. McGrew, Iowa; Sidney Clark, J. C. Wilson, Kansas; C. B. Farwell, Abner Taylor, J. M. Beardsley, S. R. Haven, Illinois; John Coburn, Will Cumback, Indiana; J. Irving Ditty, Maryland.

The Man Who Has Been to the Centennial Exhibition.

A bashful-appearing man stepped into the Enquirer editorial room the other evening, and edging up to the table of the managing editor, hat in hand, said in a hesitating way: "You like little items for your paper, I suppose?" "Certainly," replied Mr. Cockerill, "a newspaper, like life, is made up of little items. What have you to offer?" "Well," said the bashful man, playing with his hat-band, "my name is Smith—John Smith—and I've just got home." "Glad to see you back again, Mr. Smith," said Cockerill, "been gone long?" "I have been," said Mr. Smith, with a tremor of pride in his voice, "to the Centennial, and if you want to make a little notice——" "What!" cried Cockerill, springing to his feet, "you've been to the Centennial? And you've got back? Give us your hand; I'm delighted to see you. Spear, let me introduce you to John Smith. John has been to the Centennial!" Spear shook hands very warmly with Mr. Smith, and then ran to the aperture communicating with the reporters' room and shouted: "O'Shaughnessy, come in here, quick; here's a man that's been to the Centennial." Then O'Shoughnessy bounced in, followed by his assistants, all of whom embraced the bewildered Smith warmly, and expressed the gratification it afforded them to meet a man who had been to the great national Exhibition. Word got down stairs somehow, and Joe McDowell, Bill Small and Uncle Joe Shadenge came up stairs at a tearing rate, to gaze upon the individual who had been to the Exhibition. It was too much for the modest man to bear, and, murmuring something about making an item of his return if they wanted to, he hurried out just in time to meet on the stairs the foreman and thirty-two compositors, all eager to get a glimpse of the man who had "been to the Centennial."—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	7 25	@	10 75
Hogs	5 75	@	6 50
Cotton	12	@	12¾
Flour—Superfine Western	4 60	@	5 10
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 28	@	1 30
Corn—Western Mixed	56	@	60
Oats—No. 2 Chicago	45	@	52
Rye—Western	80	@	82
Pork—New Mess	17 00	@	17 25
Lard—Steam	10¾	@	11
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@	5 25
Choice Natives	4 60	@	4 90
Cows and Heifers	2 60	@	3 50
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@	4 00
Medium to Fair	4 25	@	4 50
Hogs—Live	5 75	@	6 00
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@	7 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@	5 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring, New	1 10½	@	1 11¾
No. 3 Spring	1 03½	@	1 04
Corn—No. 2	45	@	45½
Oats—No. 2	32	@	32½
Rye—No. 2	65½	@	66
Barley—No. 2, New	60	@	70
Butter—Creamery	30	@	33
Eggs—Fresh	23	@	25
Pork—Mess	15 75	@	16 00
Lard	9¾	@	10
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No 2 Red Fall	1 21½	@	1 24½
Corn—Western Mixed	42	@	43
Oats—No. 2	33	@	35
Rye—No. 2	61½	@	63
Pork—Mess	16 50	@	16 60
Lard	9¾	@	10
Hogs	5 75	@	6 10
Cattle	2 50	@	4 75
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 17	@	1 18
No. 2	1 12	@	1 14
Corn—No. 2	45	@	46
Oats—No. 2	31	@	32
Rye	66	@	66½
Barley—No. 2	75	@	76
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 20	@	1 30
Corn	42	@	48
Oats	30	@	37
Rye	68	@	70
Pork—Mess	15 75	@	16 00
Lard	10½	@	[illegible]
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Extra	1 27	@	1 30
Amber	1 26	@	1 27
Corn	50	@	52
Oats—No. 2	34	@	36
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Hogs—Yorkers	5 60	@	5 75
Philadelphias	5 80	@	6 00
Cattle—Best	5 00	@	5 50
Medium	4 25	@	4 75
Sheep	3 00	@	5 00

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. BATE, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

A Still Day in Autumn.

I love to wander through the woodlands hoary,
  In the soft light of an autumnal day,
When summer gathers up her robes of glory,
  And, like a dream of beauty, glides away.

How through each loved, familiar path she lingers,
  Serenely smiling through the golden mist,
Tinting the wild grape with her dewy fingers,
  Till the cool emerald turns to amethyst.

Kindling the faint stars of the hazel, shining
  To light the gloom of autumn's moldering halls,
With hoary plumes the clematis entwining,
  Where o'er the rock her withered garland falls.

Warm lights are on the sleepy uplands waning,
  Beneath dark clouds along the horizon rolled,
Till the slant sunbeams through their fringes raining,
  Bathe all the hills in melancholy gold.

The moist wind breathes of crisped leaves and flowers
  In the damp hollows of the woodland sown,
Mingling the freshness of autumnal showers,
  With spicy airs from cedar alleys blown.

Beside the brook and on the umbered meadow,
  Where yellow fern-tufts fleck the faded ground,
With folded lids beneath their palmy shadow,
  The gentian nods, in dewy slumbers bound.

Upon those soft-fringed lids the bee sits brooding,
  Like the fond lover loth to say farewell,
Or, with shut wings, through silken folds intruding,
  Creeps near her heart his drowsy tale to tell.

The little birds upon the hillside lonely
  Flit noiselessly along from spray to spray,
Silent as a sweet wandering thought, that only
  Shows its bright wings and softly glides away.

The scentless flowers, in the warm sunlight dreaming,
  Forget to breathe their fullness of delight;
And through the tranced wood soft airs are streaming,
  Still as the dew-fall of the summer night.

So, in my heart a sweet, unwonted feeling
  Stirs, like the wind in ocean's hollow shell,
Through all its secret chambers sadly stealing,
  Yet finds no words its mystic charm to tell.

Around the Farm.

If the farmer has no gravel bed on his farm to make walks, he frequently goes home with empty wagon, right by such deposits.

On a street in Syracuse (N. Y.) may be seen a tree, which seems to be a sycamore at the trunk, but at fifteen feet above the ground it branches out into two great limbs, one of sycamore, the other of elm.

Several firms in San Francisco attempted recently to form a "corner" in grain bags, believing that the demand would exceed the supply. They, however, overestimated the wants of the market, and made a serious miscalculation in not allowing, for the use of the bags a second time and the paper of one of the interested firms has gone to protest. The ring is said to have more than 5,000,000 bags on hand.

It is worthy of remark that among the hundreds of specifics and remedies used and recommended for the prevention and cure of hog cholera, salt and wood ashes are in almost every case leading articles—partly because swine, up to the very last stages, eat of the mixture, and partly because the concurrent testimony of ten thousand instances show results more or less beneficial to have followed their use.—Des Moines Register.

Old Grimes' hen, whose history relates that—

> "Every day she laid two eggs,
> And Sunday she laid three,"

seems to have found a rival in a biddy belonging to a Norwich (Conn.) farmer. It is said that she began her career the last part of April by laying an egg that measured seven and five-eighths by nine and three-quarters inches in circumference, and contained inside, beside the yelk and white, a perfect ordinary-sized egg with a hard shell. On the 4th of August she laid another one of the same kind—measuring seven by nine inches; and since then she laid two more, the sizes of which have not yet been published, but which have the same double inside arrangement as their predecessors.

A writer in a late number of the Mark Lane Express, in describing the ravages of certain insects upon the turnips in England, gives an illustration of the damage insectivorous birds may do to crops when searching for their natural food. The grubs found in the roots of turnips are much sought for by the rooks and other birds, but, singularly enough, however valuable their services may be at other times in devouring the larvæ of noxious insects, they cannot at this particular time be permitted to alight among the plants, as their doing so would prove certain destruction to the portion of the field on which they remained but for a very short time, and if allowed to come and go, without restriction, in extreme cases, they would not leave a single plant.

The apple-buyers who visit Western New York during the summer and autumn are making a combined effort to induce farmers to pack their fruit only in barrels of legal size, or in flour barrels. The legal barrel for apples, quinces and potatoes must contain 100 quarts, dry measure, and the flour barrel holds 106 quarts. Many coopers have been making barrels of less size, holding only ninety-two to ninety-four quarts, and it is said by the dealers in fruit that these small barrels are injuring the reputation of packers and dealers. There is a penalty prescribed by an act of the Legislature of that State to be imposed on every farmer, huckster or dealer who sells apples, pears, quinces or potatoes in barrels of less size than 100 quarts.

Never strike a horse for shying or starting when an unpleasant object presents itself, nor when their fears are excited. A soothing word, a steady rein, and a gradual introduction to the object which excites the animal will soon teach him to confide in his master and becomes fearless. We have taken a horse at 10 years old, whose nerves were very excitable, and who had become unmanageable and would run away at the sound or sight of a locomotive or railroad train or any object suddenly presented in the road, and after a few weeks' steady handling and kindly talking to on the road and in the stable had him stand and view an approaching railroad train quietly: a horse which no rein or bit would hold when once excited became manageable with a slack rein and a soothing word.

About the House.

Lemon Pie Without Eggs.—Take one lemon, one teacup of sugar, squeeze the juice of the lemon on the sugar; chop the pulp fine, add one tablespoonful of flour, and one teacup of water; mix altogether and bake with two crusts.

Celery Slaw.—One-half bowl of cabbage, the tender part of one bunch of celery, two hard-boiled eggs, all chopped fine; mix with it two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two of mustard, one-half a teaspoonful of salt and pepper. Moisten with vinegar.

A little knowledge of the laws of light would teach many women that by shutting themselves up day after day, week after week, in darkened rooms, they are as certainly committing a waste of health, destroying their vital energy, and diseasing their brains, as if they were taking so much poison the whole time.—Charles Kingsley.

—Economical Soup.—Into a stewpan put the bits and bones left from a roast, add to it a carrot cut in dice, a sweet potato cut in thin slices, a bunch of sweet herbs, a little shred cabbage, and boil till the nutriment is extracted from the meat, say an hour and a half; then into the soup put a pint of grated corn, half a dozen fresh tomatoes, an onion finely minced, boil fifteen or twenty minutes, strain through a sieve, heat to the boiling point again, and serve.

Smooth White Sauce for Boiled Mutton or Beef.—Two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of flour, one pint of milk, a little salt, one heaping teaspoonful of chopped parsley, two hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine. Mix the flour smooth with a little cold milk. When the pint of milk comes to a boil, add the flour and salt; when this is thickened, add the parsley and butter. Have the chopped eggs in a sauce-boat, and pour the hot mixture on them. Serve hot.

Eggs Preserved by Silicate of Soda—Dr. Durand, pharmacist of Blois, has discovered a very efficient means for the preservation of eggs, viz., a solution of silicate of soda. This solution, being very viscous, is kept in a liquid state by the addition of tepid water. The eggs are dipped into the solution and then dried; when they have been thus treated, and are well dried, and completely covered with the silicate solution, they can be placed in any receptacle, and may be kept for a year or more without undergoing decomposition.

To Restore the Whiteness to Ivory-Handled Knives.—Wash with soaped flannel and lukewarm water; then wipe very dry. Soak them occasionally in alum water that has been boiled and allowed to cool. Let the handles lie for one hour in this, then remove them and brush them well (say with a nail brush). After this, take a clean linen towel, dip it in cold water, squeeze it out, and while wet wrap it around the handles, leaving them in it to dry gradually, as if dried too rapidly out of the alum water they will be injured. If properly managed, this process will whiten them. Knives, after using, should be wiped with soft paper, removing the grease, etc., then placed in a deep can or vessel, keeping the handles above water, lukewarm, until washed, cleaned and thoroughly dried.

How an Elector Once Went Back on His Party.

Should Gov. Tilden or Gov. Hayes be elected by a majority of one, or even of three or four, in the Electoral College, there would be no little anxiety regarding the lives and health of the individual electors, who, by their votes, are to decide who is to be President of this great and glorious country. In connection with this thought, an historical fact of considerable interest at present is brought to mind, which shows that in the year 1821 a Presidential elector chosen by the Democratic party in New Hampshire changed his vote, went back on his party, and voted against the party candidate in the Electoral College. The Presidential elector referred to was ex-Gov. William Plummer. The candidate of his party was James Monroe, then President of the United States, who was running for a second term. In November of 1820 the party was successful, and the Democratic electors were chosen to a man in every State in the Union, among them Mr. Plummer from the Granite State. The Electoral College met on Feb. 14, 1821, and the vote was unanimous for President Monroe with one exception. To the surprise of everybody, ex-Gov. Plummer voted for John Quincy Adams. The latter, in his "Memoirs," says he was surprised and mortified that Gov. Plummer should have cast his vote for him. He had thought that, of all the electors, none were more certain to vote for Monroe than Gov. Plummer. Another writer has averred that Plummer's motive for voting against the candidate of his party was, that he did not wish to have the vote unanimous for any President after Washington. No comment on his action in the papers of the day can be found. Whatever may have been his object, it may be safely asserted that his action provides a historic precedent which would be sufficiently striking to seriously agitate a candidate whose success depended on a majority of one in a vote of 300. Supposing, for instance, that Gov. Hayes should obtain 185 electoral votes, and one of the Republican electors should take it into his head that Gov. Tilden would be a better President? Would there be any appeal against his decision if he should decide to vote for the candidate of the Democracy?—Boston Globe.

Suicides.

According to the official reports just published, there were 5,617 cases of suicide in France during the year 1874. This is at the rate of sixteen a day—an average higher than was ever before known in France, or probably in any other country. The favorite mode of suicide was by strangulation, 2,472 persons choosing death in that form. Of the remaining cases, 1,554 preferred drowning, and 1,591 sought other and various routes to the grave. The Pall Mall Gazette, in commenting on these statistics, mentions—on what it confesses is doubtful authority, however—that there are but three recorded cases of self-destruction by fire in the history of mankind. The first was Empedocles, who threw himself into the crater of Mount Etna; the second was a Frenchman, who threw himself into the crater of Vesuvius in 1820; and the third was an Englishman, who leaped into the furnace of a forge about the year 1811.

AFTER THE CENTENNIAL.

Statistics of the Great Fair—The Receipts and Expenditures, Number of Visitors, Etc.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The great Exposition has closed. The pulsations of big engine have ceased. The Turkish restaurant no longer dispenses chiccory coffee. No longer through the halls roams the young man from the country. The agent for the patent machine has quitted the lair where he laid in wait for unwary visitors. The Centennial hotels are being sold off for old lumber, and will be forgotten soon by sight-seers who are beguiled into patronizing them, and who until their latest day will not cease to call them accursed. Gone are the sight-seers from all over this broad land, and the tourists from all creation have departed, and now the balance-sheet is being struck.

Therefrom it appears that during the 159 days in which the Exhibition was open the aggregate number of visitors was 9,907,125—greater than at any of the International Exhibitions, with the exception of that at Paris in 1867, at which the attendance is claimed to have been a trifle greater than at Philadelphia. But the Paris Exposition for that year was kept open 210 days. When the drawbacks which the Centennial encountered in the excitement of the political canvass, the extreme sultry weather of the past summer, and the refusal of the railroads running into Philadelphia to reduce fares more than 24 per cent. are reckoned, the great success of the Centennial in point of attracting visitors will be fully appreciated. The following table giving the number of visitors at each of the International Exhibitions shows how in this regard the Centennial ranks:

1851, London	6,039,195
1855, Paris	5,162,330
1862, London	6,211,103
1867, Paris	10,000,000
1873, Vienna	7,254,687
1876, Philadelphia	9,907,125

In a financial point of view, the Centennial was no less a success, the aggregate receipts exceeding those of any of the International Exhibitions by over $100,000, as the figures, giving the receipts of each, reduced to our currency, show:

London, 1851	$2,530,000
Paris, 1855	640,500
London 1862	2,300,000
Paris, 1867	2,822,932
Vienna, 1873 (about)	2,000,000
Philadelphia, 1876	3,850,000

These were the receipts from admissions alone. Besides, the receipts of the Centennial from sales of concessions amounted in round numbers to $1,500,000. Those who are disposed to heap contumely upon the humble vender of pop-corn will, perhaps, modify their notion in some degree when they learn that he paid $3,000 for the privilege of selling on the grounds. For the like privilege, the lager-beer men paid $50,000, and for the exclusive privilege of publishing and selling on the grounds the official catalogue, a round $100,000 was paid, which, of course, was more than returned for advertisements. The number of exhibitors was 30,864. The following figures show how, in respect to the number of exhibitors, the Centennial Exhibition compares with the other International Expositions:

London, 1851	13,937
New York, 1853	4,685
Paris, 1855	20,839
London, 1862	28,653
Paris, 1867	42,217
Philadelphia	30,864

But the most unexpected feature of the exhibit is that, instead of sinking money, our Centennial Exhibition actually paid all expenses. The sole concern of the stockholders now is to make it pay the largest dividend. That can be done by gobbling the million and a half voted by Congress in aid of the Exhibition. It was a condition of the act of Congress that this sum should be repaid the United States before "any profits" were paid the stockholders—the design being that only in event the enterprise proved a losing one was the general Government to be called upon to contribute. In fact, it appears that, instead of the million and a half, the Exhibition returns a profit of between one and two millions. But with that desperation with which holders stick to claims against the general Government, the stockholders stick to their claim to pocket this million and a half of Uncle Sam's money, and are preparing to go into the courts to get it.

Jealousy in High Places.

An incident which occurred here a few years ago, says a London letter, may, perhaps, serve to illustrate the jealousy which exists upon the question of precedence among the different Ambassadors. Musurus Pasha had the misfortune to lose his wife, who died at a ball given by the Prince of Wales. At the first "drawing-room," or reception, held by the Queen after this melancholy event, the Minister brought his eldest daughter to fill the place of the deceased lady, and, as her mother's representative, Miss Musurus had precedence of all other ladies of the Diplomatic Corps who were present, whereupon the wife of the Russian Ambassador immediately left the palace, protesting that the daughter of the Turkish Minister had no claim to this superiority. This created, of course, intense excitement, and, after a careful inquiry into the forms and observances of etiquette, it was found that the Russian lady was in the right. However, by way of balm to the wounded feelings of the representative of the Sublime Porte, the Queen invited his daughter to spend a few weeks at the Windsor Castle, an honor which, it is said, had never been vouchsafed to any of his brother diplomats. And so the incident ended.

John Randolph.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes from Roanoke, Va., that "John Randolph, of Roanoke, was a man of many idiosyncrasies, and it is in accordance with his own desire that his grave on the beautiful hill overlooking the valley of the Staunton river is unmarked by headstone or monument. His slaves were always well treated. He had been unalterably opposed to the Missouri compromise, by which the domain of slavery was restricted; he had upheld the divine right of slavery through evil report and good report; and yet in his will occur these words: 'I give and bequeath to all my slaves their freedom, heartily regretting that I have ever been the owner of one.' Further than this, he provided for the purchase of 4,000 acres of land to be given to these freed slaves. Those who remember Mr. Randolph say that he never shaved. Once, when in England, he made an engagement to dine with a nobleman, but, subsequently receiving an invitation for the same time from Miss Edgeworth, he accepted the latter, and apologized to the nobleman, saying, 'The woman tempted me, and I did eat.'"

INAUGURATION DAY.

Something About that Presidential Interregnum.

The next Presidential Inauguration day—March 4, 1877—falling upon Sunday, it has been suggested by some that for this day alone—when neither Mr. Grant nor his successor-elect would seem to be President—a new man be selected as President pro tem, the selection to be made by and from the United States Senate. In this connection the name of Senator Blaine has been proposed, but his selection would be an impossibility, since the term which he is filling by appointment will expire at noon on March 4—leaving him entirely outside of the Senatorial candidature for this brief Presidential honor—this little His Excellency "for a cent," as one might say.

If the plan suggested above is to be carried out at all, it must be by the choice of some Senator whose term will hold over. Such an one could be thus appointed by the resignation of Senator Ferry some day previous to March 4 (when Mr. Ferry's Senatorial term will also expire), and the selection of the "hold-over" Senator as President of the Senate, which would also include the Presidency for the one-day term under discussion.

In relation to this matter, there are many who feel that no principle of morality would necessarily suffer should the President-elect take his oath of office on the day set by the constitution, whether that day fall upon Sunday or week day. Besides any other objection which might be offered to this, however, is the principle of law which regards the Sabbath as dies non, when considered in any business transaction. Then, also, we have two precedents in our national history as authority for permitting this day to lapse without action in Presidential inaugurations. In 1849 Mr. Taylor was inaugurated on Monday, March 5—the regular day having fallen on the Sabbath—and in still earlier history—in 1821—the same conditions prevailed in the inauguration of Mr. Monroe.

The almanac-makers must have been consulted in the choice of the date, March 4, as the time for Presidential inaugurations. Perhaps the venerable Franklin himself figured out and selected this date, realizing that on no other would Inauguration day fall less often on Sunday.

In this century this day has fallen upon Sunday, in 1821 and in 1849, and will fall thereon once more next March 4, being in 1877. We shall not be troubled with this conjunction again during the nineteenth century, but such as shall live long enough to "lap over" and "go through" the next century will witness the same coincidence at the inauguration of Presidents in the years 1900, 1917, 1945 and 1973.

The Mississippi Jetties.

We learn that for some time past the channel between the jetties at the mouth of the South pass has been every where more than 200 feet wide for a depth of 20 feet at an average flood tide, and that in the middle of this wide channel the depth is equal to from 22½ to 23 feet at the highest tide at the South pass, when a range of 3 feet tide, with a channel depth of 10½ feet, for from 80 to 100 feet in width, is usually reported at Southwest pass. Therefore it is seen that the jetties have given, although in an incomplete state, a magnificent channel across the South pass bar to the sea, twice as wide and several feet deeper than has ever been obtained across the Southwest pass bar.

We are informed that the works required to confine the flow of water from the main river, above the common head of the passes, into South pass, so as to secure a like deep channel entrance to South pass over the river middle ground shoal above its head, are being energetically prosecuted, with every prospect of early success. Already, notwithstanding the low stage of the river, the one-dipper dredge-boat at work there to expedite the cutting out of a deep channel entrance has succeeded, as we are assured, in obtaining a depth of inlet of from 20 to 22 feet across this shoal, which the tidal current suffices to maintain and widen. Soon, we are told, two more powerful dredges will be put to work there, and, with three boats working together, an entrance channel across this hard sand middle-ground shoal of sufficient width and depth for the largest class of ocean steamers, even at the present low river stage, may be expected at at an early date. With the river at the height it was three months ago we would have even now a clear and unobstructed channel of more than 22 feet in depth, from New Orleans to the sea, through South pass.

This long-looked and hoped-for desideratum, "an open river mouth," seems at last to be near of accomplishment, and we take pleasure in congratulating the merchants of our city on the prospect of the revival of their business interests which must result therefrom.—New Orleans Picayune.

Man Proposes, But——

One of our Nevada ranchers sent his wife East to see the big show in Philadelphia, and followed in about three months himself. The worthy couple stayed with their relatives, about ten miles from Philadelphia, for six weeks, and, upon returning to the land of sage-brush were asked for particulars in regard to the Centennial. "Well," said he, "I'll tell you how it was. My wife was visitin' round afore I went, and didn't git to the city, and when I got there brother Jim was jest thrashin' his buckwheat, and they kep' us so darned busy helpin' 'em that I didn't git to the show at all."—Reno (Nev.) Gazette.

Wise Caution.

Two Seniors, diligently ponying Plato's "Apology," met the sentence, "To fear death is nothing else than to seem to be wise when you speak not." First Senior, inquiringly—"What does that mean?" Second Senior, thoughtfully—"Well, I don't see; but we had better not fool with it, for it may lead to Pantheism for all we know. Let's go on."—Amherst Student.

CLOSE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS.

Some Previous Interesting Contests.

[From the Boston Traveller.]

Should the successful candidate owe his triumph to his having received the favors of a small State or two, he would not stand alone in the list of our consulary, for more than one man has been made the President of the United States by a meager majority—cast either in the Electoral College, or at the polls, or at both places. Our first contested Presidential election, in 1796-97, was decided so closely that the change of two electoral votes would have placed Thomas Jefferson, instead of John Adams, at the head of the nation, as Washington's immediate successor. Mr. Adams had 71 votes, and Mr. Jefferson 68. One of Mr. Adams' votes came from Virginia, and another from North Carolina; and had those two votes been given for Mr. Jefferson, he would have had 70 votes, and Mr. Adams 69—and the Virginian would have been elected by one majority. One of the electoral votes for Mr. Adams, chosen in Maryland, was obtained by only four majority; and, had it been secured for Mr. Jefferson, he would have had 69 votes, and Mr. Adams 70—and the latter would have been elected by one majority. There were 138 electoral votes at that time, or about 47 less than one-half the present number; so that, should the successful candidate on the 7th of November, 1876, receive eight majority in the Electoral College, he would be elected about as well as John Adams was elected, 80 years since. Considering who and what John Adams was, eight majority would be nothing to be ashamed of on the part of either of our candidates—and nothing to be proud of, it must be added. Mr. Jefferson defeated President Adams in 1800-01, when he had 73 electoral votes, and the President 65, or a majority of eight, equal to about 20 majority in 1876-77. In 1812-13, a change of 20 votes in the colleges would have prevented the re-election of President Madison, who received 128 electoral votes, while De Witt Clinton got 89. In 1836-37, Mr. Van Buren would have failed of an election had there been a change in 23 electoral votes, as he had but 22 over the number necessary to a choice—and Pennsylvania, having 30 such votes, gave him but a small popular majority. A change of 3,000 in that State's popular vote would have defeated him in the colleges, by sending 30 Whig electors to the Pennsylvania college. As it was, Col. Johnson, the Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency, was defeated in the colleges, because Virginia would not support him, her 23 votes being given for William Smith, of Alabama. Col. Johnson was chosen by the Senate, the only instance of the kind known in our history. Great as were the popular majority and the electoral majority given for Gen. Harrison in 1840-41, he would have been defeated in the colleges had it been possible to change some eight or nine thousand votes in the four States of New York, Pennsylvania, Maine and New Jersey. Those States cast 88 electoral votes, which, added to the 60 such votes that Mr. Van Buren received, would have given him just the number necessary to a choice; and yet there would have been a popular majority of more than 100,000 against him. The four States named gave a popular vote of almost 900,000, though their united majorities for Gen. Harrison did not much exceed 16,000—New York giving him rather more than 13,000, New Jersey about 2,300, Maine 410, and Pennsylvania 343. It was very close work, and there would have been great trouble had the Democratic vote been so increased as to defeat Gen. Harrison in the colleges, after the people had so decidedly indicated their preference for him at the polls. Some men feared that there would be a pronunciamiento. At the election of 1844-45, Mr. Polk was chosen to the Presidency through the aid of the New York electors, who were 36 in number; and as Mr. Polk had 170 votes, and the number necessary to a choice was 138—the whole number of electors being 275—he would have had 134 votes had New York decided against him. Mr. Clay had 105 votes; and, had he received New York's vote, he would have been chosen by 141 votes, or by a majority of only five votes. The Democratic popular majority in New York was small—about 5,000, we think; so that a small change there would have substituted Mr. Clay for Mr. Polk as President, and thus have changed the whole current of our political history for the last thirty-two years. The Whigs attributed their defeat in the Empire State, first, to the action of the Liberal party in running Mr. Birney for the Presidency; and, secondly, to Democratic fraudulent voting in New York city. It is probable that they were right, and that the two things were more than they could stand; but it never required much to kill the Whigs as politicians, for they were always on the verge of committing suicide.

The South.

Comparatively few people in the United States have any adequate conception of the territorial area and productive capacity of the South. The area of the former slaveholding States is about 815,000 square miles; but in all of this territory there are only a little over 100,000 square miles in cultivation, a surface merely equal to that of Alabama and Georgia. Louisiana, with a surface of more than 26,000,000 acres of land, over 20,000,000 acres of it tillable, has never cultivated 3,000,000 acres. Mississippi has never cultivated but about 5,000,000 acres, and has an area of about 30,000,000 acres. Alabama has never cultivated 6,500,000 acres out of more than 32,000,000. Georgia has cultivated about 8,000,000 acres, and has an area of 37,000,000. Tennessee has cultivated less than 7,000,000 out of 29,000,000 acres. Arkansas less than 2,000,000 out of 33,000,000 acres.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

The Australian Eucalyptus Globulus promises to be profitable timber in the South of Ireland. At Muckross, Killarney, there are specimens thirty to forty feet high, which have never been injured by frost, and in Wicklow a proprietor finds it succeeds so well that he contemplates extensive plantations of it. If it can only be induced to take to bog soil, it will be invaluable to the country.

The nickel coins struck in Germany under the new law represent a total value of between ten and eleven million dollars. This is the maximum figure allowed, and minting has been suspended.

All Sorts.

Double-decked cars are coming into use in Philadelphia.

Twenty-cent pieces with milled edges are being passed for quarters.

Pine logs sunk in the water at Nantucket fifty-six years ago are so well preserved that their "smell of pine" is still distinct.

Queen Victoria has received from the Empress of Brazil a present of a dress woven of the webs of the large South American spider.

The tramps will be delighted to hear that Boston has "a co-operative wood-yard," where labor can be given in exchange for material aid.

A Philadelphia woman's ears have just been robbed of a pair of $6,000 earrings, once the property of Napoleon III.'s frivolous spouse.

A murderer was hung in Bombay, and just before the drop fell he whispered to the executioner: "In one minute what a lot I shall know!"

> Ay, it is the Puritan's Thanksgiving eve;
> And gathered home, from fresher homes around,
> The old man's children keep the holiday—
> In dear New England, since the fathers slept—
> The sweetest holiday of all the year.
> —Bitter-Sweet.

The snappy cold of the late frosty nights reminds such cattle as have no shelter that their owners, snug in warm beds, belong to a mighty mean class of humanity.

I have a personal grievance against "Uncle Sammy" myself, because he is so short, and at 70 years still looks like a boy. I like tall, distinguished-looking men.—Jennie June.

Walter Scott wrote his name in French in the register of the Hotel du Grand Cerf, village of Anselys Normandy, on Jan. 20, 1827. The name appears there as "Gauthier Eccussais."

> Ah!—on Thanksgiving day, when from east and from west,
> From north and from south, come the pilgrim and guest,
> When the gray-haired New Englander sees round his board
> The old broken links of affection restored.

Silas Hatch, of Brewer, Me., foreman in a ship-yard, is building a centerboard yacht, thirty-six feet long, in which he proposes to take his wife and four children across the Atlantic and back.

—A young Scotch tourist, named Earnest K. L. Scott, insisted upon breathing chloroform to ease a pain in his face, at Cheyenne, W. T., a few days since, and took just enough to send him to sleep in this world and awaken him in the next.

A Glasgow clergyman hesitated to tell a dying man he would go straight to heaven, and a brother of the patient stabbed the minister twice in the head, on the ground that a preacher has no right to hang back on a thing like that.

There is a demand for some contrivance that will soften the sound of snoring on the sleeping-cars, the racket of the trucks not being sufficient to overcome the horrible nasal concert that frequently takes place in a crowded coach.

A man in Tripoli, Pa., succeeded in hiccoughing himself to death the other day. The hiccoughs began at 8 in the morning, lasted without interruption till 1 p. m., when death came. A physician prescribed laudanum, hot baths, and a dozen other things without the slightest effect.

Algiers, 500 miles southwest of Marseilles, has now communication with it three times a week; the voyage lasts about forty hours. The average winter temperature is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit; but the climate is variable. The invalid season is from November to April inclusive.

A Turk residing for the past eight months in Paris with a seraglio of eight ladies has been arrested. He at first lived very privately, and his domestic arrangements were not interfered with, but the ladies finally formed acquaintance with others, and created a scandal in the neighborhood.

A correspondent has met Mr. Heneage, of the English diplomatic service, who has just married the Princess Salm-Salm, and asked him where he was going to settle. "Oh," said he, "we don't know yet. My wife is living at Petersburg and I in London till we see how we suit each other."

The Hindoos have a superstition that if a cobra is killed some of its relatives will avenge its death. For this reason the serpents are allowed by them to multiply without any molestation. It is stated in a recent publication that in the Presidency of Bengal alone 11,416 persons died of snake bite in a year.

Has it been sufficiently noticed that the word "culture" is acquiring a bad, as well as a good, signification? So many persons have been pretending to it who have it not, and so many others have used it offensively and snobbishly, that literary men of downright honesty hesitate to claim it for themselves.

Queen Victoria has done a just and kindly thing in giving a pension of $750 yearly to the widow of George Smith, the Assyrian scholar. There is one of the advantages of a monarchy; the widow of an American scholar, however distinguished and laborious, would starve if she had only official aid to invoke.

There is a mine of ferro-manganese in Burton county, Ga., which is more valuable than Consolidated Virginia or Comstock. It is the only one in the United States, and the product is used in converting iron into Bessemer steel. It is estimated that the mine is worth in the neighborhood of $90,000,000.

Every young man in the Sioux nation carries a pocket-mirror, either of glass backed with quicksilver or of some shining metal; but an Indian maid is not permitted to look at a reflection of her face, even in the brook, for this is the masculine privilege. Almost everything the Sioux brave owns is "wakan," or sacred; but nothing that the squaw possesses is so esteemed.

The search for the $4,000,000 of treasure, supposed to have been sunk with the British frigate Hussar, off Port Morris, has been abandoned for the season, the chief diver, Sidney Cook, having gone to San Francisco, where he is to resume work on the wreck of the steamship Golden Gate, burned in 1862, from which he has already recovered $700,000.

Auburn Courier.

W. G. THOMAN, - - EDITOR.

AUBURN, INDIANA, NOV. 30, 1876.

By way of Introduction.

In taking editorial charge of the COURIER, as we do this week, we shall spare our readers the task of wading through the usual array of rhetoric often indulged in when a change of editors takes place. Having had property interests in this county for many years, we are not by any means a stranger to its citizens, or unfamiliar with its growth in wealth and intellectual improvement in times past. Our best endeavors will be devoted to furthering and advancing by all honorable means, the true interests of our county and section of the State and the well being of its citizens. In a growing county like this, possessed of fertile soil, and within easy reach of the great marts of commerce, it becomes the duty of the journalist to foster all its industries and meritorious enterprises. This the COURIER will continue to do as it has since its inception

Now that the campaign is ended, the COURIER will pay more attention to social, educational and industrial topics and news, especially such as will interest the people of this section, while national issues, now that we are in the midst of a political crisis, will receive their due share of attention. Our aim will be to make the COURIER a mirror of each week's history "its great events and minute affairs." A paper, in short, which to the citizens of this county will be of more value than any foreign publication extant, because it will deal with home topics, and be the exponent of home interests. With this end in view, we cordially invite the co-operation of the friends and patrons of the paper everywhere,

W. G. THOMAN.

J. C. Hammill, formerly of Auburn, died at Waterloo on Tuesday morning. He was a mason in good standing, and a number of the craft from here attended his funeral on Wednesday afternoon.

Governor Hendricks has gone to New York to confer with Governor Tilden, and possibly to discuss measures for checkmating radical returning boards in the South.

Workman began last week upon the work of enlarging the passenger waiting room in the Fort Wayne Jackson & Saginaw railway depot. The new waiting room will be double the size of the old one; and is much more convenient in every respect.

The Fort Wayne Gazette of a recent date, indulges in a vapid screed censuring the Supreme Court of South Carolina for partisanship, because that tribunal interfered with the Republican carpet bag Returning Board infamy. The fact is, that every member of the court is a Republican, but being possessed of a little more decency than the average carpet bag office holders, the Gazette scribe at once jumped to the conclusion that they were Democrats from that very fact.

AMONG our condensed news items on the inside of this weeks COURIER will be found an account of the appalling cyclone off the coast of India, whereby it is estimated that a quarter of million people lost their lives within the space of a few hours The calamity is one of the most disastrous which has startled the world for centuries, as the total loss of life was greater than would have been had every living soul in Indiana been swept into eternity in a single night.

Why did he Call for Troops.

Why didn't Gov. Kellogg call for troops, if the condition of things in the five "bulldozed" parishes was as he describes? It must be a terrific reign of terror that keeps every Republican vote away from the polls. Usually, while many are cowed by threats, many also are angered by them, and the result is resistance. No such condition of things existed in South Carolina, but Gov. Chamberlain got his troops without difficuity.

The suspicion will inevitably arise that it was not Democratic violence, but Republican trickery, that kept Republican voters from the polls, Kellogg has before kept his votes away, so as to be able afterward to allege intimidation and the facts are on record in the Congressional investigations. He did it again this time apparently, but he over did it. It must have been a terrific dose of "intimidation" that kept every one of thousands of Republican voters away from the polls, and it was Gov. Kellogg's duty as Governor to protect them. Come, come Governor, why didn't we have anything of this before election? Why didn't you call for troops? You've often done it before.

A Years Progress

During no year in the history of Auburn have there been more valuable and substantial buildings erected than in the one just drawing to a close. It should be remembered, too, that this has been done during a time when the depression caused by the panic was more severely felt than at any other time since 1873. Such being the case, now during the hard times, we may reasonably expect unexampled prosperity when the long looked for "revival of trade" comes.

During the building season of 1876, the following substantial buildings have been erected here: The new public school building at a contract price of $10,000 in the the aggregate; the Presbyterian church on the the corner of Twelfth and Jackson streets, which will soon be completed at a cost of $6,000 The congregation expect to ocupy their new house of worship before New Years day. It will be by far the finest and most costliest church building in the county.

In the way of business blocks, there is the new structure just completed on the west side of the Court House square and owned Messrs. Martin, Klotz, and Hollister & Benedict. The total cost is not far $15,000. The Ensley block, east of the Court House square, which is nearly completed, and the total of which will be some $10,000. The Williams & Ensley block, south of the Court House square, which will shortly be ready for occupancy, at cost of nearly $8, 000. Next comes the block used by the First National Bank, and erected at a cost of some $3,500; besides these there have been numerous other business buildings erected, though of lesser note.

The number of private residences erected makes a list too long for convenient mention. Among this number are the residences of Mr. S. U. Tarney, corner of Twelfth and Main streets, that of Mr. Clinton Headley in Rainier's Addition; each costing between $3,000 and $4,000, to say nothing of other comfortable homes erected at a cost ranging from $1,000. to $3,000 each.

To summarize the cost of public and church buildings built during the year in Auburn, has been over $16,000. The cost of business blocks erected here during the same time, has been over $36,500, not including those of a comparatively moderate cost, but only such as we named above, all being first-class structures. It will be seen that over $50,000 has been expended on public, church and business buildings during the year. It is safe to say that as much more has been expended for the numerous private residences, making a total of over $100,000.

Had these improvements been made a couple of years ago, the cost would have been much nearer $200,000 than $100,000, but with the low price of labor and material, during 1876, the cost has been much lower than would have been possible at any other time during the last fifteen years. With all the building that has been going on, there are but few, if any, business rooms which are empty or not under lease, while in almost every other town in the State such property may be seen, awaiting tenants by the scores.

Mark These Facts.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

Holloway's Pills.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day.

"My nausea of a morning is now cured "

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left.

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compells me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER,

And all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureaux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

Sold at the manufacture of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York; and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1. each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Office, 112 Liberty Street, New York.

IT IS HERE.

WHAT

The Largest F[illegible] Stock of Fine

Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this class of good can get them from 100 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

ARRIVAL OF SANTA CLAUS!

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

Where can be found a full and complete assortment of Hilliday goods, and articles suitable for Christmas and New Years presents, consisting of Fine Albums. Sterescopes, Sterescopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Persoriptions Carefully Compounded.

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place,

DAVENPORT'S.

East of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER.'

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of Standard and Miscllaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albion, Card Cases, Writing Desks. Stereseps, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Sterescopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.

Jahnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beautiful articles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

HARD UP.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

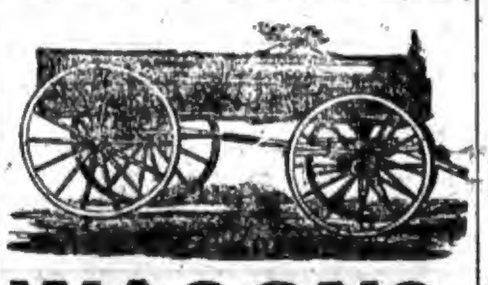
Always the friends of the people, have never

FAILED

To regulate prices to suit the times

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Indi

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

He prepared to send out rigs at anytime and a Reasnable prices.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchases.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall.

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings,$ 1.50, 1.75 2,00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen. Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 9c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 5c per lb.
Brown Sugar at 8c per lb.
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hands and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent. the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent. the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get: So Sugars Coffees Spices Prunes Fruits Tobaccos Liquors or anything we deal in Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits No Middlemen with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hyson 25c. 40c and 90c.
Best 90 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c
Best 90 cents.
Black or Oolong 25 and 45c
Best 85c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 60c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	1 ½c	New Orleans clarified	9c
		" "	8c
Coffee A.	12	Good brown	9c
" C.	11c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	30 and 28
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	5c
Canned Corn per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	18c
Pitted Cherries per pound	25c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb,

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all discriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon,	1 50 in
Rye Whiskey, two years old	1 25	bottle	50c
Three year old	1 75 3 00	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, per gallon, 3 00; in bottles	50c
The $3 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.		Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound..	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va	70c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This toba 3 6 sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	30c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	80
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Citron per pound	35c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	18c
New Orange and Lemon Peel	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	10c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	25c
Best layer Raisons per pound	14c	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Curants per pound,	6c

And everything else in porportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Our goods will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES

FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

KAHN.

OVERCOATS.

We have received our fall stock of Overcoats and assure our patrons that we are offering the same at Prices Lower than ever. We have a large assortment of overcoats and have recently received additions to our stock. We invite a comparison feeling assured that our goods and prices will defy competition. By permission we refer to the following parties who have purchased overcoats of us since October 5th, and who will doubless testify to the excellent quality, low prices and the late style of our goods:

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. C. PETERSON	"
M. F. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER	"
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr,	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"
JOHN SOMERS,	"
T. C. MAYS,	"
E. D. CLEVELAND,	"
JAMES CASEBEER	"
E. L. CASEBEER,	"
L. D. SMITH,	"
L. W. HALL, DeKalb P. O.

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc. KAHN.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 23c.
—Eggs 18c.
—Butter 16c.
—Potatoes 60c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $8 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.08 @ 109.
—The Courier $2.00 a year.

Best School Paper at Houser's.

Go and see those fine Albums at Houser's.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Headquarters for School Books at Housers.

For School Books, go to Davenport, the druggist.

Headquarters for School Books at Houser's.

120 daily papers sold at Houser's News Stand last Saturday.

A good five cent Cigar at Davenport's. Something new.

Notice the change in the Lake Shore time-table this week.

Mr. J. O. Twichell, of Chicago, is in town, the guest of M. F. Long, Esq.

Steroscopic Views of the Centennial Exposition on hand at Davenports.

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the slate line, noiseless and beautiful.

Shelves, Show-cases and Counters crowded with Holiday goods at Houser's

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the Slate line, noiseless and beautiful.

See Davenport's new stock of Stereoscopes and Views. Something very fine.

Shelves, show-cases and counters crowded with Holiday goods at Housers book store.

Davenport, the Druggist, has a very fine lot of Albums which he is selling at panic prices.

The county Commissioners will hold their December session in this place beginning Monday, Dec. 4th.

A new cross-walk has been laid across Seventh street, from the Court House Square to the business blocks on the north.

Zimmerman Brothers have been awarded the contract for furnishing the new Presbyterian church with pews.

Remember that Davenport, the Druggist, has the finest stock of Albums in own. Go and see them.

High School Examination.

Pupils, who on account of the Thanksgiving exercises cannot attend the examination on Thursday, are requested to come on Friday.

For a Holiday present, nothing is more appropriate than a sterescope and some of those choice views for sale at Davenport's.

Remember the Thanksgiving dinner and supper given to-day by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, in Hebel's building, north of the Court House Square.

The farmers have with scarcely an exception, completed their fall and early winter work in this section, and are now prepared to take matters easy during the blustering winter season.

Davenport gives his personal attention to compounding perscriptions, and can insure accuracy, neatness and dispatch. Prices always as low as possible for strictly pure drugs.

Davis' Sewing Machine.

You who are contemplating buying a machine should not fail to see the DAVIS. Call at the drug store of Bodine & Siler.

The Saginaw train from the north arrives a few minutes later than last week. On the other railways centering here no changes will be made until next Sunday, when the winter time tables will go into effect.

You can get eight finely executed gems, for fifty cents, at Gripe's Gallery, in the McIntyre block. Cabinet sized pictures 8x10, ready framed, for fifty cents at the same place, being a great reduction on former prices

J. D. Price, of Butler, has sold his entire stock of goods with accounts favoring him, to O. T. Letcher & Co. All indebted to this firm will find their accounts with J. B. Boyle, at Butler. They are requested to call and settle the same.

Dr. J. Hunt, formerly of Spencerville, and well known in the eastern part of this county, has entered upon the practice of medicine at his old home in Howard, Ohio, where he takes a share in the large practice of his brother who is also a physician.

The reports from all parts of the county show that the fields of winter wheat are looking splendidly, and that as far as is known now the indications for a good stand of this grain was never better at this time of the year.

The Social connected with the M. E. Church, will be entertained at the Lecture Room of said church on next Wednesday afternoon, by Mrs. F. E. Davenport and Mrs. M. Houston. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mrs. A. Robbins. Sec.

Four prisoners are now confined in our county jail awaiting trial at the coming session of the Circuit Court. The chances that three of them will go to the penitentiary, are said to be good. One of them is confined on a charge of stealing a horse, another is charged with stealing a watch, and the third on a charge of forgery.

The Rev. W. L. Sanders, of the Baptist church, was absent last week in attendance at the Christian Convention held in connection with the Moody and Sankey meetings at Chicago. Some 900 delegates from the north-west were present. Mr. James Griswold was the only delegate besides Mr. Sanders, from his place.

Miss Nettie Shaw, for some time connected with the Courier, returned to her home in Bucyrus, Ohio, yesterday morning. She has gained many warm friends amoung the young ladies and gentlemen of Auburn, during her stay—One in particular whom we might mention, and that friend is not of the fair sex either. For all we know, there may be an interesting ceremony about Christmas in which our young friend may take part if she has the Leasure.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—The Blood the is very essence of health and life. It furnishes the components of flesh; bone, muscle, nerve and integument. The stomach is the apparatus—the arteries, the distributors and the intestines the channels by which the waste matter is carried off. Upon the stomach and bowels, these medicines act simultaneously. 25cts, Per box or pot.

Prof. M. Seiler this week enters upon the active discharge of his duties as Superintendent of the Auburn Graded School. The Professor is a graduate of the Indiana State Normal School, at Terre Haute, one of the finest institutions for educating teachers in their profession in the country. This together with the fact that he has been for some time successfully engaged in his calling as an educator gives us the assurance that his work here will be eminently successful.

Money To Loan.

C. A O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of One Thousand Dollars and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money to loan and guarantee security.

Notice.

No one is authorised to contract debts on account of the Courier without a written order from myself. Business men and patrons of the paper will please take notice. Money on subscription and accounts may be paid to W. G. Thomas, Editor in charge.

T. C. Mays.

Ex-Sheriff Meese has moved into the residence bought by him on Fifth st. His many friends throughout the county will be pleased to learn that he has been enabled to purchase a substantial and comfortable home out of the profits of his office.

Mr. H. J. Long, formerly of this place and a number of years foreman of the Kendallville Standard. was visiting his friends and relatives in Auburn, on Monday last. He left on Wednesday night for Washington, where he takes a position in the Government printing office. Success to him in his new sphere.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.

☞Cashmere in all shades

☞New fall style Prints

☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☞Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00

☞A new line of Alpaccas and all and winter dress goods

J. R. LANNING.

Sherman Hollister, Esq., of the firm of Hollister & Benedict, returned to Auburn last week, after a brief visit to Ohio. Mr. Hollister is the owner of a fine farm in Erie county, but will bring his family here before the holidays with the intention of locating among us permanently. Our people extend to all such a cordial welcome. There is room here for more business men possessed of the same enterprising spirit as characterizes the members of the new firm, and no one will deny that our growing little city offers inducements to men of industry and capital, possessed by but few county seats in the State.

Our Home Theatricals.—The Auburn Dramatic Company will present one of the most interesting amatuer performances ever given in this place during the holiday season. The company as a whole has shown more than usual dramatic talent and the members by their frequent appearance on the stage in times past, have acquired more practice as actors than usually falls to the experience of any but professional players. At their next entertainment they will appear in the play of "Black-Eyed Susan," supplemented by the laughable farce entitled "Ireland as it is."

Sheriff St. Clair has now been in possession as Sheriff of DeKalb County for a little over two weeks, and occupies the Sheriff's residence. He has arranged all the little minutia necessary to be undergone by a new official, and is now prepared to administer the duties of his office in good style. We have no hesitation in saying that he will make one of the best executive officers the county has ever had. Mr. Thomas D. Gross, one of the oldest and best known citizens will act as chief deputy of the office. His extensive acquaintance in the the county and familarity with the public business, is a guarantee that in him the office has found one admirably fitted for a responsible and laborious position.

Mr. T. C. Mays and his wife started for the east on Monday evening. Mrs. Mays and young master Hardie will spend the winter in eastern Ohio, with the exception, perhaps, of a trip to Washington during that time. Mr. Mays himself, will proceed to the national capital after a brief rest in Ohio, so as to be in readiness to attend to his duties under the goverament during the session of Congress. And since our predecessor is not here to object to the paragraph as he certainly would if his eagle gaze should rest on the same, we may add, there are but few, in public positions, who have discharged their duties more conscientiously than Auburn's delegate to the seat of government.

A Chance for Employment.

Mr. John Zurcher, of Ohio, is at present at the Auburn House, on Main street. He is the owner of letters patent for one of the most useful and complete household articles ever invented. The invention is a mop holder and wringer, by the use of which, housekeepers are enabled to scrub floors and perform their labor without the disagreeable features commonly attending such tasks. By its use, no one need wet their hands or break their backs, as is the case with the contrivances now in use. It is an article needed in every household, and sells on first sight. Mr. Zurcher wishes to dispose of territory in his invention, in Northern Indiana, and to any energetic man he is willing to dispose of the same at a great bargain. The offer is made especially to those who desire remunerative employment for the winter, to any wishing something to do just now during the dull times, especially if they possess small capital, the opportunity is an unusually good one. Those thinking of purchasing territory will do well to call at the Auburn House at once, as Mr. Zurcher will remain but a few days. Don't fail to give him a call.

The Auburn Fruit House.

E. E. Williams, of the Auburn Fruit House, will shortly remove to his new stand, east of the First National Bank. It is no small task to remove such an immense stock as that of Mr. Williams and for a week or ten days he offers extra inducements to all making purchases in his line in order to save the trouble of removal. The Fruit House offers especial inducements to farmers and people in the surrounding towns. All such will do well to give The Auburn Fruit House a call as it can not be undersold either in Fort Wayne or any other place in this vicinity. Drop in and see his array of groceries, fruits, spices and everything needed by the thrifty house-keeper during the holiday season. The prices and quality can not fail to please the most fastidiuos.

A Praiseworthy Enterprise.

The fine new Presbyterian Church building now approaching of completion in this place, will be lighted throughout with gas after the style of the Swineford House and other buildings in Auburn. The estimated expense of the gas works and fixtures is $800. The members of the church choir have taken the task of raising this amount upon themselves—in other words to procure the chandeliers and applicances for lighting the edifice at their own expense. In pursuance of this object, the choir will give a series of concerts this winter which will be interspersed with selected readings and other entertainments. There is much fine musical talent in our town, and by this means some of our musicians and vocalists will have a good opportunity of letting people know how they have been progressing, while at the same time the concerts will serve admirably to vary the monotony of the long winter evenings. We are informed that the members of the choir have been subjecting themselves to patient drilling and practice, whereby they have of late greatly improved themselves.

Terrible Slaughter.

Not of men and women, but in the prices of boots and shoes. The proprietor of the well known Fort Wayne Boot and Shoe Store, proposes to cut down the prices of all kinds of boots and shoes to suit the times. He is resolved to knock the bottom out of high prices for good. From and after this date Mr. Lordier will make first-class Kip Boots for $4.50, and first-class calf boots for $6.00. Everything else has been marked down in proportion. This house is enabled to offer customers these remarkable low prices from the fact everything is bought direct from the manufacturers, thus saving the enormous profits to middlemen and jobbers. Another secret of the proprietors success is that he is one of the best workmen in Northern Indiana, and follows Ben Franklin's motto of minding his own business in person. The house has also the exclusive agency here of the celebrated Detroit make of ladies wear, so well known for excellence and durability. A full line in the boot and shoe trade is always to be found at this popular store, The proprietor challenges comparison in prices, quality of goods and general assortment with any and every competitor. Give him a call and be satisfied that his is the best place for boots and shoes in this part of Indiana without exception.

Mr. Philips Invests $475 in Experience.

Experience is a dear school, but the only one that fools will learn in. The papers for years have been showing up confidence, three card monte men and such, yet queer as it may seem the stock of victims is as large as ever. The latest case is that of J. D. Philips, of Hickaville. He was on his way Tuesday night to Edgerton, and while waiting at the Junction depot, a gang of five monte men began a game of that seductive amusement, and the first lick lifted from Mr. P. $5. Philips then claimed that one of the rascals held him while the others took his pocket book, containing $475, and he saw them no more, for the reason that they leaned out to the north in the darkness with great suddenness. Philips then came up town and notified deputy Sheriff Gross of his loss, who went to Baker's hotel where the gang had been staying. Mr. Gross was unable to obtain an entrance and sent for constables Miller and Shull who kept guard until morning, when the inmates were at last aroused, early on Wednesday morning the officers went in, but the bird had flown. Philips remained in town during the forenoon, and although the officers of the law did all in their power to aid him, it is not likely he will ever see his money again. The names by which the gang were known, are "Red," "Pete" and "Kentucky."

During the same evening they swindled a young man out of $10, near the depot, they, however, kindly allowed him to win back $5 so that he was out but $5. The greenhorn was on his way from Tiffin to Mishawaka.

Shearer & Wilson.

THE above named gentlemen are conducting a Planing Mill on South Jackson street. They are prepared to execute all kinds of scrol work, re-sawing turning matching and moulding of all discriptions, and can, in consequence give the best figures possible, having this advantage over competitors. Their work for the past is a sufficient recommendation as to their competency and responsibility. They also take contracts for all k

GARRETT GATHERINGS.

—Business is improving here very rapidly.

—Quite a number here are hunting up Thanksgiving turkeys.

—Our friend Mr. Fredericks was "bull-dozed" last night in the tabernacle.

—Dr. Simpson is about to unite in the holy bonds of matrimony. Good enough.

—Political excitement has all died out and our peopled have settled down to business.

—There are quite a number of wedding dresses being made at Mrs. David's dress making shop, which is a token of improvement in the way of population.

—We find in looking over our little city, quite a number of new houses under construction, which when completed will add style and beauty to our town.

—We saw a representative of the Republican Office here shortly after the outrage was committed. We don't know what he wanted, unless he was hunting up evidence in the case.

—We would like to know what sun-of-a-gun from Auburn, reported to the Chicago Times, an outrage resulting in death, committed in Garrett. The facts are, that a few scape-graces stopping here did commit an outrage on a girl who came here from Anburn, but it was nothing like reported to the Times The girl is still alive and well, and as regards Garrett trying to cover the matter up, is another falshood. The town authorities are looking up the matter and will bring the rascals to justice.

Opening of the Auburn Graded School.

The Auburn Public School will open on Monday, Dec. 11. There is much to be done in and around the new school building, but the work will be sufficiently near completion to permit the use of the rooms by that time.

GRADING.

Owing to the somewhat disorganized condition of the schools, the work of grading, presents unusual difficulties. It is hoped, however, that with the hearty co-operation of all concerned, we shall soon be able to reach such a classification of the pupils as will secure to each the kind of work which the condition of his mind enables him to perform with most advantages to himself and to the schools.

In the grades below the High School the kind and amount of work, will, in general, be the same as before. The grading, however, is somewhat different. There will be four primary and four intermediate grades, the latter including, what was formerly called the grammar grade. Ordinarily the pupil will remain in each grade one year. Under this arrangement the pupil having entered school at the age of six years, and having done the work regularly in each grade, would be ready to enter the High School at fourteen. The grades, beginning with the lowest, are named respectively,—D, C, B, and A, primary, and D, C, B, and A, intermediate.

The grades assigned to each teacher, in the new schooll building, are as follows:

A. and B. Intermediate, Mrs. A. E. Thomas; C. and D. Intermediate Miss Zeigler; A. and B. Primary, Miss J. Rush; C. D. Primary, Miss F. Ford. In the ward building. A. and B. Primary, Miss F. Clark; C. and D. Primary, Miss L. McTighe.

WHERE TO SEND THE CHILDREN.

All school children living North of Ninth street, and who are from six to ten years old, will go to the ward building. Those from six to eight years old will go to the lower room, those from eight to ten, to the upper. All other children in town will go to the new building. Those living South of Ninth street and who are from six to eight years old, will go to the North room on the lower floor, Miss Ford, teacher. Those from eight to ten years old will go to the South-east room, on the lower floor, Miss Rush, teacher. Pupils from ten to twelve years old, will go to the South-west room, Miss Zeigler, teacher. Those from twelve to fourteen years old, will go to the North room on the upper floor, Mrs. Thomas, teacher. All over fourteen years of age, who, upon examination, shall be deemed competent to do the work, will be admitted to the High School, Miss E. Murphy principal.

Owing to the fact, that the schools have been laboring under great disadvantages for more than a year, it is quite probable that but few pupils will be found sufficiently advanced to do the work of the grades into which they fall by the above arrangement. Many changes will doubtless have to be made before the schools are fully organized; but in all cases it shall be the constant purpose of the superintendent to secure to each pupil the place in which the work is best adapted to his capacity.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Jackson township, in DeKalb County, Indiana, that the undersigned a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application at the next session of the Board of Commissioners of said county, to be holden on the first monday of December 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on his premises, to-wit: In the building now situated in Section six [6] in said township on land bounded on the North by the township line, on the West by the right of way of the Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw Railroad Company, on the South by the right of way of the Baltimore, Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad Company, and on the East by the right of way of the Detroit Eel River & Illinois Railroad Company containing seven tenths of an acre of land.

CHRISTOPHER BAKER.

Ladies Take Notice.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity, are respectively invited call at H. H. Stamets' Millinery and Fancy Store, and examine the new and elegant Perfume and Lily White Combined. Nothing like it has ever been offered for sale in here and is pronounced by all s pit who have used it to be the finest and best in the market. We shall take pleasure in showing it, whether you buy or not. We have also many new novelties in the Millinery line, which we are offering at astonishing low figures, and cannot be undersold by any house in this place. Come and see us.

H. H. Stamets,
8m. Sole Agt. for Auburn.

The presidential outlook is unchanged up to the time we go to press. Gen. Wade Hampton's house has been burned in South Carolina, by radical incendiaries, but peace and good order prevails in the doubtful states. with the exception of a few dastardly outrages of this kind prepetrated by the carpet bag scoundrels.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Rebecca Davis, plaintiff and Samuel Davis defendant, require me to make the sum of three thousand nine hundred and fifty three and 73-100 dollars and with interest on said judgement and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

SATURDAY the 23 day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1876

The north half of the northeast quarter of section thirty six, town thirty-four (34) range thirteen (13) east, also three acres in the east half of the north-west quarter of the same section, and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the center of the State Road on the east line of said tract, thence north forty rods, thence west twelve rods, thence south forty rods and thence east twelves rods to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said Judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said Judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By Thos. D. Gross Dep.t.
Auburn, Indiana, November 28, 1876.
W. H. Dills, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein William B. Taylor, James Rogers, and Calvin A. Croninger, Plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Defendent, requiring me to make the sum of Nine hundred and seventy-four dollars and fifty-eight cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, the 23 day of December, A. D. 1876,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number ninety-three (93) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the south-west corner of said lot and running thence north five and one-half feet, thence east on a line paralell with the south line of said lot, eighty feet, thence south five and one-half feet, thence west to the place of beginning, and a part of lot number ninety-four (94) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the north-west corner of said lot, and running thence east along the north line of said lot eighty feet, thence south four feet, thence west fourteen (14) feet, thence south eighteen (18) feet, thence west to the west boundary line of said lot thence north to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dp't.
Auburn, Indiana, November 29, A. D. 1876.
Rose & Hartman, Att'y's, for Plaintiff.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

Whereas, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Sec. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the north and south sides of Union street, commencing on west side of Main street, running west on north side of lot No. 54, north end of lot No. 34 and 7, O. P. on north side of lots No. 27, 54, 107, 184, and south side of lots No. 185, 106, 55 and 28 in western addition, also on south end of lots No. 8 and 33, and south side of lot No. 55, O. P., all in the incorporated town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within thirty [30] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

Sec. 2. Whereas an emergincy exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn Courier, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Nov. 15, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. Ryan, Prest·
Ephriam Berry,
John Treesh, Trustees.
D. Z. Hoffman

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

Whereas, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained. said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Sec 1. Therefore, be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the south side of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on north side of Ninth [9] street. commencing at south west corner of lot No. 9, in Ashley's second addition, and continuing on south end of lots No. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17, in Ashley's second addition, also on south side of lots No. 143, 66, 61 and 16, western addition to said town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, State of Indian, said sidewalks to be built as follows; Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within 30 days after this ordinance shall take effect, to be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber, if made of Oak, the plank to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] inches in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and one half [1½] inches in thickness, nor more than [12] inches wide placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be not less than [3] by [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

Sec. 2. Whereas, an emergency exists this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn Courier, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board at their regular meeting in Nov. 15, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. Ryan, Prest.
Ephriam Berry,
John Treesh, Trustees.
D. Z. Hoffman,

THANKSGIVING.

BY E. NORMAN GUNNISON.

O'er all the borders of the land
I hear a happy voicing,
That [illegible] Thanksgiving is at hand,
The echo of rejoicing.
The children throng from different ways
The homestead once more seeking,
And find in these Thanksgiving days
A joy beyond their speaking.

And Mary brings her first-born child;
And Charley from the city,
A little boyish still, and wild,
Is full of freaks and witty;
The girls are drawn aside in pairs—
It seems as if in dozens—
And yellow lounge and rocking-chairs
Are filled with country cousins.

The apples glow upon the hearth,
The nuts are cracked for eating,
The young enjoy the things of earth,
The old are gone to meeting.
The pie is yellow on the shelf,
The turkey slowly browning,
The housemaid chatters to herself,
Half smiling and half frowning.

At last the dinner-hour is seen]
And each, a seat possessing,
Waits with hushed lips and reverent mien,
While father asks the blessing;
The cider foams within the glass,
For no good thing is lacking,
And grown-up boys and old-time lass
The olden jokes are cracking—

The jokes which never can grow stale,
And never should be fewer;
Each repetition cannot fail
To make them fresher, newer;
And merry laugh to merry jest
Brings back from roof and rafter
The latest still, the very best,
And greeted with fresh laughter.

We watch the olden features dear,
Seeking to find time's traces,
And loved ones come from far and near
To fill the vacant places;
We think of dear ones gone before,
And joy to see the living;
And sunshine creeps across the floor,
And this is our Thanksgiving.

We thank the dear God for his gifts,
He fills our cup with pleasure;
Whatever comes, His hand uplifts
The sunshine's golden treasure;
And in the chill days of the year
We gratefully remember
The rays which burned in summer clear,
Still brighten our November.

Let others see His chastening hand,
And seek his pathways blindly;
We view His plenty in the land,
And know He dealeth kindly.
Fill up the grate, and heap the board
With treasures of His giving,
The mellow autumn's ripened hoard,
The blessings of Thanksgiving.

Around are some with silver hairs
We know when earth seemed dearer,
Who, standing on life's altar-stairs,
Have grown to heaven nearer.
Oh, beautiful the locks of snow,
Above the table bending,
Which only wait the time to go,
And whiten for ascending.

The day is passed in happy games—
Puss-in-the-corner, nimble;
The apple-seeds one party names,
While others hunt the thimble;
But blindman's buff comes on at night,
Far happier than the others;
With handsome eyes and hidden sight
It banishes its brothers.

A push, a shove, and on the floor
The merry party tumble—
One bangs her head against the door,
But none are heard to grumble.
Ah! half our lives at blindman's-buff
We play, and never know it;
We bind our eyes with flimsy stuff,
The rhyming of the poet.

The night draws on, the mirthful fun
Grows faster still, and faster;
The guests fall off, as one by one
The sleepy eyelids master;
The old folks give the farewell grasp,
The young folks after,
And sleep has folded in its clasp
The eyes which brimmed with laughter.

The silence creeps with soft-shod feet
Above each dreaming sleeper,
And makes, with festive memories sweet,
The night-time fancies deeper;
They hear a near and glad refrain
Of happy, chiming jingle,
Of holidays to come again,
The laughter of Kris Kringle.

The midnight comes, Thanksgiving's o'er,
The hours are onward rifted,
Still tending toward the distant shore,
Where all life's days are drifted;
Time flies; we part with those we love,
Nor meet, perchance, while living—
God grant that in the home above
We yet may find Thanksgiving.

TWO THANKSGIVINGS

Eighteen and Twenty-eight.

CHAPTER I.

Betrothed? Yes.

Folks looked and wondered a little; but then folks would gossip about everything. There was no stopping their tongues, and Lilian Travis had'nt the least notion of placing a restraint upon her lover, simply because she was engaged to him. That might be possible for some natures, but to hers never. True, on several occasions she did experience a singular sinking at the heart when, coming suddenly upon her promised husband and the bewitching Ida Harris, she found them in a cosy tete-a-tete, Ida, at least, impatient of interruption. Did she show her annoyance? Not even by the sign so unfailing, a change of color. Her very blood was held in check by an indomitable will, a pride so superior to ordinary attacks upon it as to be in the largest sense exceptional.

Farmer Travis was a rich and prosperous farmer, with more land than he knew what to do with. His wife had gone home many years before, and Lilian was his only child, and as thoroughly idolized as ever fell to the lot of only child to be.

It was with a sorrow too deep for words that he finally gave his consent to his daughter's union with Archibald Glenburn. Not that he had any objection to the young gentleman; on the contrary, he was profoundly sensible of and grateful for the admirable qualities of his prospective son-in-law.

The marriage was proper enough, if he could only have kept his child at home. This would be, of course, impossible. Mr. Glenburn was a rising lawyer, and his clients in New York city were a full day's journey from the farm.

The day before Thanksgiving! Cold and blustering outside, but in the great, roomy country-house it was all warmth and cheeriness. The presiding genius had touched and retouched everything from top to bottom, from the cake and pies in the kitchen to the hanging-baskets and special adornments of the sitting-room and parlor.

The piano was open, and his favorite music ready on the rack, for the lover was hourly expected.

As she arranges her abundant dark hair, and puts the finishing touches to the lace on her neck, let us see if we can analyze her thoughts.

They are not altogether happy. In the midst of all human joys a flavor of bitterness arises from beneath. And what was here?

Gossips had been busy, as a matter of course, when her engagement was known, and it was said, so openly that it had even reached her ears, that during the past summer her cousin, the gay, heartless, but showy Ida Harris had done all in her power to win Archibald's own.

And gossip said that she had succeeded! Was it really so?

Lilian started to find herself insensibly recalling little incidents of her cousin's visit, which had not been in the least to that person's credit.

The farmer had gone to the depot.

"It is too cold, child, for you to go," he said, as Lilian made ready to accompany him. "The wind is as keen as a razor, and it's an up-hill journey anyhow."

"Very well," she replied, placidly.

Not even to her father could Lilian Travis show her great anxiety to meet her intended husband.

So the birds had more seed, the tidies an extra pull, and the pictures another dusting. The new pieces were every one tried, and at last came the farmer's hearty "Whoa!"

Lilian's heart beat quickly, but she made no motion to stir.

What was that?—a woman's voice.

Lilian's heart almost stopped now.

"Where in the world is Lil? Here, Archie, take my bag! Mercy! my arms are almost broken, and my hands are just like sticks."

The sitting-room door opens with a bang, and the "sticks" find their way about the neck of the now self-possessed hostess. Archibald brings up the rear with carpet-bag, umbrella, overshoes and waterproof.

Lilian wonders if she is always to be so bitterly disappointed, but she returns her cousin's unusual caress, and smilingly offers to unload her lover, whom she thinks she never saw looking quite so handsome and quite so awkward since she has had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Where is the tenderness of that welcome she has so delightedly anticipated? To be sure, Archie draws her to him and kisses her forehead silently. She feels sure he is just as glad to see her as she is to see him, but of course nobody can act naturally when Ida is around.

"I hadn't the remotest idea of coming," Ida rattled on; "but when Mr. Glenburn was to our house about a week ago, and I found he had decided to come, I wanted to come with him, oh, so much! Mercy! am I not a perfect fright?" and the fair speaker brushed back the golden curls and pursed up her rosy lips till Lilian was fain to admit that she looked more kissable than ever.

So Archie visited at the Harrises. She supposed he must call occasionally, but not an intimation of it had she received from him.

"I don't mean to go up-stairs until I get completely thawed out. But, as I was saying, when I found Mr. Glenburn had really made up his mind to come—"

Lilian wondered if the old adversary was really trying to make her jealous. So there had been a doubt about the gentleman's spending Thanksgiving with her? This was news also.

"I determined that I would come. I had to forego two parties to do it, Lilian; but I had rather be here with you than anywhere else in the world. So I told him I'd let him know the next time he called; and here we are. It is ever so much nicer coming down with somebody! Why, the journey didn't seem ten miles long—did it, Mr. Glenburn?"

"It never seems long to me," replied Archie, with a knowing glance in Lilian's direction that told wonderfully, but not outwardly.

There might have been a trifle more warmth in her manner toward her cousin, but this was the only perceptible effect.

Ida must have been very entertaining all through the rest of that day and evening, for both Archie and the farmer were constantly testifying to her power over them by the heartiest laughter and the merriest rejoinders.

Ten o'clock, and not one moment yet alone with her lover. Ida was sleepy and Archie fatigued. His handsome head pressed the sofa-cushion, and his yawns, though politely repressed, were quite sufficient to justify the hostess in suggesting bed-time.

"Oh, mercy, yes!" gaped Ida. "I am just fagged out."

"And who would have thought it?" remarked the farmer, in surprise. "It is 10 o'clock, upon my word!"

It had been an interminable evening to Lilian. She had played and sung, and Archie had turned her leaves, it is true, and sometimes his hand had strayed to her shoulder, and lovingly lingered there, just as it always did when they were alone. It was provoking, though, to think that every one of these little heart-comforts had been offset by some coquettish trick of Ida's.

"Did you ever see such fine hair, Lil?" she had asked, her little hand among the luxuriant dark rings which adorned the young gentleman's head. "Say, Lil, lend me your back-comb, and let's see how he looks with his hair parted in the middle; never mind, I'll take a hair-pin," and Lilian forced herself to laugh, as the giddy girl, her task completed, pulled her victim to a sitting posture, to mark the effect.

"I hope you are not going to ring us out at 6 o'clock, if to-morrow is Thanksgiving," continued Ida, lingering a moment at the foot of the stairs to bid the farmer good-night.

"Breakfast at 8," replied Lilian, pleasantly. "And you need not rise then unless you are quite ready."

"Oh, mercy, I always get up to breakfast. Don't you, Mr. Glenburn? Good-night, and pleasant dreams. Good-night, Lil. Dear me! I believe I shall fall asleep before I can undress myself."

Archie lingered at his door, lamp in hand.

"Good-night, my darling," he whispered, tenderly, as Lilian returned.

"Good-night," and Lilian's dark eyes sought her lover's face.

"Can we not have a few moments to ourselves now?" he laughingly asked, pointing to the stairs.

"Do you mean to go down again?" she inquired, her eyes so full of light that Archie playfully put her away, declaring that they dazzled him.

"Come on," he answered, leading the way. "Was there ever such a marplot as your cousin?" he asked, as they sat together before the fire. "I did everything but tell her a falsehood about my coming. If she had had a particle of sense she would have seen that I didn't want her; but never mind, Lillie dear, she cannot always spoil our courting."

So it was all explained, and there was no need of asking a single question. How perfect was the harmony now! A thousand times more perfect for the temporary discord. Five minutes of unalloyed happiness. Archie was in an explanatory mood, and was just going to tell of his calls upon Miss Ida, when their delicious tete-a-tete was rudely broken in upon by an unearthly scream from the second floor.

"Lillie! Lillie! Where are you! Uncle Travis! Somebody come here quickly! There is a burglar in the clothes-press! Oh, where is everybody?"

"Go away with your nonsense," Lilian heard her father say from the foot of the stairs where she stood, her lover's arm tight about her waist. "It is a mouse, I suppose, Ida. Lillie, where are you? Come and see what your cousin has got stowed away in her clothes-press."

"Confound that girl's foolishness!" muttered Archie. "I believe it is all done on purpose."

"Don't go there, I beseech of you!" shrieked Ida, as Lilian approached the closet, and threw wide the door. "Oh, mercy! I am petrified with fear," as the empty clothes-press was disclosed. "Don't leave me, pray don't, Lillie. I shall have a fit if you do—I know I shall. Go and get your nightdress and sleep with me. I'll stand right here in the doorway till you come back."

A smothered caress at the door of Archie's chamber, and the lovers separated for the night. For the night? Let us see.

Lilian was up bright and early the next morning. Many duties were here to perform, and, in true housewife fashion, she commenced in season. Her heart was lightened of its heavy load, and as she flitted from kitchen to dining-room, from closet to cupboard, the old cook thought she had never seen her look half so handsome.

Thanksgiving! What a delightful morning it was! The clouds had blown themselves away, and the sky was that of a September day. The hostler, as he warmed his fingers before the kitchen fire, declared it was "uncommon raw," but this Lilian, looking out upon the pure blue of the heavens, her cheeks glowing with exercise, could hardly credit. The breakfast bell rang out merrily. Lilian had made the coffee, and was now busy in the dairy skimming a pan of last night's milk. Her silver pitcher is full, and blithely she trips to the dining-room, anxious to have everything ready before her guests arrive.

Her slippered feet make no noise as they cross the thickly-carpeted hall. The door opens very softly. The dining-room is just off the large sitting-room, and right opposite the open door of the last is an immense mirror.

Pitcher in hand, Lilian stands like one stunned. Bending low over the little figure of her cousin is her affianced husband. Ida's arms are clasped about his neck in passionate embrace, and the low tones of her companion strike the knell of all Lilian's hopes.

Once more the breakfast bell sounds out loud and clear, and the guests advance to the dining-room. Lilian is already at her place by the coffee-urn. Her lip curls haughtily as Archie, with a very red face, makes his appearance from the hall door and Ida from the sitting-room.

"Contemptible subterfuge!" she keeps saying to herself.

An hour later, the old cook presents each of the guests with a note. They both tell the same story.

> "Mr. Glenburn," her lover's said, "I have left the house to give you time to leave it. I shall return in two hours, and expect to find myself alone. LILIAN TRAVIS."

Farmer Travis and his daughter had no company at their Thanksgiving dinner-table.

"I never was so surprised in my life," said the farmer, in evident perplexity, "as I was when I got back from the Marsh and found the folks gone. What on earth does it mean?"

There was not a quiver in Lilian's voice as she answered:

"It means this, father, that the gossips were right when they declared that Archibald Glenburn was in love with Ida instead of me. It means that our engagement is over, and—and"—it was hard work to keep the tears back now—"it means that I am your daughter and housekeeper forever, and that I will never believe another man when he tells me he loves me. Now let us drop the subject for all time."

Farmer Travis was not a profane man, but this is his literal answer, as he surveyed his daughter's beautiful face and straightened himself in his chair:

"I suppose you have seen something, or heard something, that convinces you. But I'm—I'm—I'll be teetotally smutched if I believe it."

CHAPTER II.

Ten years had passed—years of strange and valuable discipline for the farmer's daughter.

Archibald Glenburn did marry Ida Harris, just as she had expected. Neither one of them had Lilian ever seen since, and very little had she heard of them. They had made two or three trips to Europe—so gossip had reported—and some children had been born to them; how many Lilian did not know. A ring of dark hair was hidden away among Lilian's sacred relics. Strange that she could never bring herself to destroy it.

"It is the only link that binds me to the past," she had said many times, as her fingers fluttered over the silken wrapping. "I will let it remain; perhaps it will keep me from making a fool of myself in the future."

Lilian's home was now in New York. Farmer Travis had sickened and died. His illness had been a long and painful one, and at his death Lilian, who could not endure the pressure of old associations, determined to lease the farm. Her fortune was ample, and her desire for intellectual improvement the only stimulant that made life endurable. So she bought herself an elegant little home in the city, and then went to work in good earnest.

"Every woman determined to be an old maid should be sure that she makes for herself a position where she can be of as much use as in the capacity of wife and mother," Lilian reasoned; and, full of this idea, became a medical student.

Twenty-eight, and a graduate with a diploma, a fair practice and a host of students! Truly, Lilian, you have made good use of your time. There is very little difference in the girl of 18 and the woman of 28, after all; if anything, she has gained in beauty. The earnestness of her life has impressed itself upon her face, and the result is a sweet nobility of expression, a tender sympathy of manner, impossible to a life of idleness. She feels that she has been richly blessed in her ability to bless others; but—but! Ah, these womanly ifs and buts! how they penetrate to the depths of the heart, disclosing all its hidden secrets! Lilian has kept this love-chamber of hers pretty well locked; but sometimes the fastening slips, and, to tell the truth, it is always opened widest by this tiny ring of dark hair.

Another Thanksgiving morning! Lilian's little maid wondered what was the matter with her mistress.

"Have your breakfasts," she had said, in answer to a timid knock upon the door. "I shall not rise yet. I want nothing but a cup of coffee, and that I will take by-and-by."

Eight o'clock! Why must she go over that heart-breaking time? Just this hour, ten years ago, she started for the dairy to skim the milk for Archie's breakfast; just this time she returned, pitcher in hand, to see in that hateful mirror the picture that has never left her memory a moment since. She shall feel better, she is sure, she shall, when Archie and Ida have left the house; for they are just as present with her now as they were on that dreadful Thanksgiving all those years ago. This is nothing new; she has lived it over every year, and now she is more inconsolable than ever. Who would ever suspect the presence of this ghastly intruder in the life of this beautiful and talented woman? Not a person in the whole world, for the same pride that dug the grave has covered it up, and there is nothing left to mark the spot save the tiny ring of dark hair hidden away in the upper drawer.

This time the maid's knock is a little more decided.

"One of the stoojents for you, miss, and says can you see him right away?"

"A business woman hasn't even time to bury her dead," she murmured, commencing her toilet.

Conscience inquired how many times this body of her sorrow had been consigned to the dust, and how often resurrected.

"Yes, I know it has had a good many funerals," she answered, softly, to herself; "but a woman who cannot weep for her dead must do something."

It was a very bright and earnest face that greeted the young gentleman waiting for her in the parlor.

"It is too bad, doctor," he apologized, "to trouble you on Thanksgiving day, but I have been through the wards this morning, and I find that two or three of the last patients are much worse, and you are wanted for consultation. Shall I say that you will be there?"

"Certainly," was the prompt answer. "Have a cup of coffee with me, and we will go down together."

Surely this was no love-sick woman so learnedly conversing with her visitor. Beauty and accomplishments at 18! Beauty perfected by intellect at 28.

"The most self-possessed woman in the college," had been the verdict of the professors, as Lilian had steadily pursued her studies. And now, as the young man listened to the words of wisdom from his fair companion, he found himself constantly wondering at the amount of solid information she had obtained.

It was very foolish—how Lilian did despise herself for it—but with the utmost effort she could not take herself out of that Thanksgiving day ten years ago. As she listened to the low murmur of the doctor's voice as he explained to her this and that symptom of the sufferers around them, her right hand still clasped the handle of the silver pitcher, and ever and over again she was forced to look upon the picture which the mirror in the old farm-house had shown her.

"This is a new one," said the physician, stopping before one of the last cots. "She was brought in last night in an insensible condition, and hasn't rallied in the least."

Lilian's heart always went out with unutterable longing to sufferers of her own sex, and this woman's forlorn condition touched her deeply.

"Intoxicated when she fell, I am quite sure," continued the doctor, as Lilian examined the patient.

"Intoxicated," repeated Lilian; "and, doctor, she is evidently from the higher classes." And then she stepped to the foot of the bed, strangely enough wishing to get a better idea of the pallid features.

"Yes," replied the professor; "but you ought to know by this time that that makes no difference."

"Do you know, doctor, where I could find this woman's clothes?" inquired Lilian, in so solemn a voice that the professor looked at her in surprise.

"Certainly—yes," he answered. "The contents of her pocket are in the office."

Lilian had lifted the head, and stood gazing into the dying woman's face with an eagerness which testified to previous acquaintance.

"Have you any knowledge of this woman?" continued the professor. "If you think you have, I will bring you the articles I had put away. I believe her relatives have already been sent for."

Lilian's self-possession was hardly proof against the information which the gentleman returned with. This was the first thing that met her eyes:

> IDA—For the love of God, if you have none for the only child you have left, return to your home. For his sake I will forgive everything, and this you know full well. I have tracked you to your present infamous quarters. Write or telegraph me where the coachman may take you up for, of course, I cannot send him there. ARCHIBALD.

The next letter bore the date of a week back:

> WILLIE was buried yesterday. I did my best to find you in time to look once more upon his precious baby-face. Oh, Ida, our last darling has gone, and his mother was not near him! May God forgive you for all the misery you have caused me. A. G.

On the envelope was written, in Ida's hand, "Dead, and I did it."

Another examination disclosed a still later note, begging the wretched woman to return to her home and husband.

"I knew you never loved me," it said, "but I can be so much kinder to you than the wicked world you have so recklessly thrown yourself into. The doctor has ordered me abroad, and I feel that it is about my only chance for life. Come home, and go with me!"

The remainder of the letter Lilian could not read for her tears. The nobility of the husband and father stood confessed. It was by no fault, nor neglect of his that this wretched woman had come to such an end, for surely her life was fast ebbing away.

Lilian removed her things, and announced her intention of remaining until all was over.

"Could it be possible?" she asked herself, with quivering lip, "that this disfigured creature, this bloated, bruised mass of dying humanity, could be her once beautiful and gifted cousin, Ida Harris?"

Yes, there was the same golden, curly hair, the same beautiful hands, but only by them was the poor woman recognizable.

An hour after she breathed her last Lilian had the body taken to her own home, and prepared for burial.

Thanksgiving evening Lilian sat by the fire in her cheerful sitting-room, her head bowed upon her hands, the destroyer of her happiness dead in the next apartment.

No tidings had yet been received from the husband, and Lilian feared he had left the city, if not the country. Her heart went out toward him in unutterable sympathy.

"Great heavens! what must he not have suffered!" she moaned, as she saw again in her imagination the disfigured countenance of the woman who had once been his wife.

A ring of the bell.

"This way, if you please, sir," Lilian heard the servant say, and then a slow, feeble step approach the door.

His step, but how altered! Summoning all her resolution, the brave woman stepped forward to meet her visitor.

He did not look up at first, and she found ample time to note the change which had taken place in the sorrow-stricken man.

"Archibald!" she said, extending both her hands in warmest welcome.

Not a word escaped from the sufferer's lips. A smile of joy for one brief moment lit up the pale features. Mechanically he grasped her outstretched hands, his eyes riveted upon her face, then, with a groan, fell back upon a chair, insensible.

Weeks passed, and neither strength nor reason returned. Ida was carried to her last resting place, Archibald all unconscious of the ceremony. Surely no invalid ever had such skillful and tender nursing as this one.

"Where is—where is she?" were the first words of the sick man to his faithful attendant.

"Have no fears, Archie," Lilian answered. "Ida is at rest."

"Thank God!" he replied, heartily. "And is this Lilian? Am I dreaming, or am I crazed? Why, you are—you certainly are Lilian?"

"Yes, Archie," she smiled; "I am the same old Lilian; and the greatest happiness of all my life has been this of nursing you back to life. Now you must be quiet, for I am your physician as well as nurse."

And, as true as you live, she closed both of his eyes with a kiss.

Did she marry him? Of course she did; and she found, too, that her father's impressions had been correct. The embrace that Thanksgiving morning was all Ida's, and the beseeching quality she had heard in her lover's voice was a desperate endeavor to bring the foolish girl to reason. So, summarily dismissed, the young man decided that Lilian did not care for him, and thus Ida's efforts were crowned with success.

Yes, they were married; and they didn't wait a great while, either. Would you, if you had been in their places?

Canaries in England.

There is no putting a canary's song into words, but a canary may be taught any bird's song by being brought up from the nest among them. The great breeding-places for canaries are Norwich, Yarmouth, Yorkshire, Leicester and Manchester. These places supply the London market with canaries. Canaries are mostly bred by shoemakers during the summer, and sold to the London trade from October till March. They are sent up in "scores," one score being twenty pairs. If you were to send for a "score" of canaries, they would send you forty birds. The breeders prefer sending them in pairs. Three hens are charged as a "pair." The wholesale price in the autumn is £4 per score. The price rises in the spring, and advances to as much as £7 per score.

The most valuable and delicate canaries are the Belgians. When undisturbed, they sit "all of a lump," but when the cage is taken down, they show their beauty by lengthening themselves out like a telescope, and bringing themselves into form. Some will nearly pass through a wedding-ring, and birds of first class will fetch as much as £10 per pair. The next kind of canary most resembling the Belgians are the Yorkshire birds. These are also very long and graceful. They vary from 7s 6d to 30s per pair. Norwich, as a rule, produces the richest color birds. The motto is: "Norwich for color, Belgian for shape, and German for song."

The best come from the Hartz mountains. German birds are not much to look at, but command high prices on account of their beautiful song.

His Good Reasons.

A man who does business on Griswold street was yesterday button-holed at the Postoffice by an acquaintance, who observed:

"They say that you have left the —— church and joined the one over on —— street."

"Yes, that's so," was the answer.

"Didn't like the preaching, eh?"

"Oh, the preaching was good enough, and the pew-rent wasn't too high, but they are a queer set up there. Most any of them will lend a man ten dollars if he's pinched, but it isn't three days before they come spooking around and want it back. I want to get somewhere where the brethren are more absent-minded, or where they won't walk a mile in a heavy rain without an umbrella to remind me that time's up."

"And you like it?"

"I think I shall. I borrowed $15 of a member nearly three weeks ago, and he hasn't said anything about it yet."—Exchange.

WHAT A SMELL you have in your nose; it is all stopped up; get some of Dr. J. H. McLean's Catarrh Snuff. It soothes, heals and will cure any disease in your nose or throat. Trial boxes 50 cts. by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

TOM'S THANKSGIVING.

[illegible] Margaret asked,
"For all the blessings of your life?"
Said Tom: "Ah! one thing yet I want—
The blessing of a loving wife;
[illegible]
[illegible] give thanks [illegible]
"Ah, wicked Tom!" the maiden sighed,
"Your case is hopeless, then, I fear."
"Not so!" cried he, "if you, my friend,
Would only try to find for me
A maiden fair, whose heart is mine,
Devotedly [illegible] shall be;
But she must have—well, let me think,
[illegible] blue,
[illegible]
In short, she must resemble you!"
"That which you ask," she answered then
"I really dare not undertake."
"What!" answered Tom, "have you the heart
Thus a poor mortal to forsake?"
Low drooped her head before his gaze,
"Oh, Tom!" said she, "what shall I do?"
Said Tom: "I think—indeed, I'm sure—
I could be thankful, dear—for you!"

Pith and Point.

IT is less pain to learn in youth than be ignorant in old age.

AN exchange remarks that "the matrimonial fever has broken out again." Oh, yes; the tie-fuss.

WHY is a fast black horse like a certain preparation of india-rubber? Because it is an inky racer.

"HAVE I not, my son, given you every advantage?" "Oh, yes; but I couldn't think of taking advantage of you, father."

IT wouldn't be a bad idea to pin the little boy's comparison of "cold" to your memory nowadays: "Positive, cold; comparative, cough; superlative, coffin."

SOMEBODY remarks that young ladies look upon a boy as a nuisance until he is past the age of 16, when he generally doubles up in value each year, until, like a meerschaum pipe, he is priceless.

A WOMAN makes the moments fly—
She makes the cash fly too;
For husbands say she makes them buy
Whatever comes in view.
But this I know, oh Modern Belle!—
It is no vain surmise—
The art in which you most excel
Is that of "making eyes."

SCENE in a New York Police Court—Judge: "Prisoner, I find you guilty of intoxication in the public streets. The punishment is $10 or ten days. Which will you take?" Prisoner: "I will take the $10, Your Honor."

INDUSTRIOUS (?) Seafaring Party—"What! Ain't got nothin' to do! Why, here I've been a-mendin' this blessed net ever since last November, and you're a-idlin' about as if there warn't such a thing as work in the world!"

UNCLE LEVI—"Now, Sammy, tell me, have you ever read the beautiful story of Joseph?" Sammy—"Oh, yes, uncle." Uncle—"Well, then, what wrong did they do when they sold their brother?" Sammy—"They sold him too cheap, I think."

"I DON'T mind sharing my bed with the children," yelled a Chicago man to his wife, the other night, "but blamed if I am willing to share it with bread crumbs!" Then the wife remembered that she had enticed the little ones to sleep by giving them each a cruller.

IRATE young lady—"Mr. Cox, I declare your machines are the worst I ever saw! There's not even a looking-glass!" Proprietor of bathing machines—"Why, miss, if there was looking-glasses, we shouldn't get you ladies out of them 'ere machines for howers and howers!"—Punch.

A GEORGIA colored debating society was lately discussing, "Which is the best for the laboring man, to work for wages or part of the crop?" An old "uncle" spoke the sense of the meeting when he thought "Bofe was do best, if dey could only be brung togedder somehow."

"THE alligator," wisely remarks the Courier-Journal, "never blows his nose." Likewise the whale never knows his blows. 'Rah for natural history.—Rochester Chronicle. Now both of you be blowed.—Detroit Free Press. Let us have peace, blubbered bredren.—St. Louis Republican.

CUSTOMER—"Oh, I think I'll have the last fish you've got—it'll make the half dozen." Coster—"Well, no, mum, I can't part with all on 'em." Customer—"And why not, pray?" Coster—"Well, mum, to tell you the truth, we've been out together so many days that I've got quite 'tached to 'em, like, and I must keep one."—Funny Folks.

"IS THERE an opening here for an intellectual writer?" said a very red-faced youth, with the cork of a bottle sticking out of his breast pocket. The editor with much dignity took the man's intellect in, and said: "An opening? Yes, sir; a kind and considerate carpenter, foreseeing your visit, left an opening for you. Turn the knob to the right."

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "I have a friend who is unable to leave London himself this autumn, but whose wife and children are enjoying the breezes of their native Scotland for a few weeks. Wishing to say something civil to him the other day, and knowing that he and his better-half got on pretty well together, I remarked that he must 'feel rather lonely without Mrs. X. and the little ones.' 'Yes,' he replied, 'I do; but the wind is tempered to the shorn lamb, and you see that when my wife is away I can smoke in bed.' People's ideas of enjoyment differ."

Honor Among Thieves.

A stage-coach was robbed of $64,000 in gold, in 1870, by five men, who buried the plunder, agreeing to return and get it after the search was over. They were so closely watched, however, that they dared not go near the place; and, lately, four of them met in San Francisco. They were penniless, and in order to get the money with which to make the journey to Idaho, they made George R. Bailey a partner, he furnishing the needed cash. On arriving at the place where they had buried the gold, they saw that it was gone. The fifth robber had been there before them. They went back to San Francisco, obtained a heavy bar of bogus gold, told Bailey that it was the remainder of the plunder, and gave it to him in consideration of $1,000 in money. As he was crossing to Oakland in a ferry-boat, with the bar in a bag, three men seized it and threw it overboard, having been hired to do so by the robbers as a means of hiding the trick. The three men were arrested, and the story is here given as sworn to in court.

THE NEW UTOPIA.

An English Scientist's Plan for a Model City.

(From the New York Times.)

Dr. Richardson is an English scientific person who has invented a new style of scientific city, which is shortly to be built upon land already secured for the purpose. All that remains to be done is for Dr. Richardson to build his city and to invent a population willing to live in it. It is to be hoped that he will succeed in both these endeavors, for the plan of his new city, as set forth by him in an elaborate pamphlet, is extremely ingenious and attractive.

Hygeia, as the model city will be called, is to be built on the slope of a hill, so as to afford ample facilities for draining, and for sliding in icy weather. It is to be laid out in rectangular form, and the streets are to be paved with wood set in asphalt. There will be no street railways, but underneath each of the principal avenues will be underground railroads. The houses, of which there are to be exactly 27,000, will be built of brick, and placed on vaulted foundations, without cellars. Each house is to be nicely surrounded with trees, and, in addition to hot and cold water and gas, will be supplied with ozone from a central ozone manufactory. The sewage is to be used for farming purposes, and the corses of dead inhabitants will be buried in wicker baskets, wherever they will do the most good, instead of being wasted in cemeteries. None of the residents will be allowed to drink wine or to use tobacco, and even the chimneys will be forbidden to smoke. It is Dr. Richardson's opinion that, with the aid of an able municipal medical staff, the death-rate in Hygeia will be reduced to eight in every 1,000. As the death-rate in New York is twenty-eight per 1,000 there is no doubt that the Hygeians will be, in comparison, an exceptionally healthy people. But how the doctor's municipal medical men are to amuse themselves in such an exasperatingly healthy city he might find some difficulty in explaining.

In spite of the manifest advantages which the new city will possess, it is possible that Dr. Richardson will be disappointed in the working of certain details of his plan. For example, he has decided that the population will be "100,000, living in 20,000 houses, built on 4,000 acres of land," and he dwells with much emphasis on the fact that the health of his city will depend to a great extent upon this "equal distribution of the inhabitants." Now, at first he may find no difficulty in obtaining his 100,000 inhabitants and distributing them in families of five each. The trouble is, that after he has thus nicely sorted and arranged his citizens they will immediately proceed to uproot his "equal distribution." What will the Doctor do when a scientific family of five persons is suddenly increased by the addition of a scientific baby? There will be six persons in that disordered household, and the "equal distribution" of the inhabitants will be compromised. He cannot build a new house to meet the contingency, for he has strictly limited the city to 20,000 houses—and even then if a new house could be built and inhabited exclusively by the intruding infant, his scheme of equal distribution would be spoiled. Unless every inhabitant of the new city is compelled to sign a lease containing a covenant against the introduction of infants, there will be no such thing as the permanent equal distribution of 100,000 people in 20,000 houses. Doubtless Dr. Richardson has entirely overlooked this weak spot in his calculations, but he will have it fixed upon his attention to a maddening extent before the end of the first year of his city's existence.

Again, the plan of building houses without cellars, and placing the kitchen on the upper floor of each house, is at first glance unobjectionable, but a little scrutiny will show that it has its faults. Where will Dr. Richardson's people keep their old bottles, and where will the family cat be placed at night? Natural philosophy teaches that the smell of heated dinners ascends. How then can the careful housewife, living in a city where all the kitchens are on the top floors, ascertain what the neighbors intend to have for dinner? Very probably Dr. Richardson imagines that in a purely scientific city there will be no crime or disorder, and no use for policemen. He must admit, however, that it is possible for scientific citizens to quarrel, and even to steal fossils, and valuable bugs. In such an event, the police, instead of darting out of the area gate and capturing the offender, would have to descend from lofty kitchens, where their soup would grow cold before they could carry their prisoners to the station-house and return to the cook's fireside. It must also be remarked that in this ingenious city there is not the slightest provision for a single clothes-line. It may be that the inventor looks upon clothes as unscientific and objectionable, for he remarks that "from the sleeping apartments old clothes, etc., are to be rigorously excluded." If a man cannot have his clothes in his bedroom, on going to bed, what is he to do with them? Is there to be a vast undressing-room in the center of the city where everyone is to deposit his clothes at night, or is the population to dispense with clothing altogether? This is a question which Dr. Richardson cannot ignore, and which must be answered before he can induce respectable people to live in his city.

However satisfactory the plea of a hygeian house may be to the enthusiastic sanitarian, it cannot be denied that it will seem dreary and ugly to most other people. Neither carpets, paint, plaster nor wall-paper will be used in any of Dr. Richardson's buildings. The floors will be of wood, and the walls will be of glazed brick. A wall into which a picture-nail cannot be driven, or the pin of an impaled buttoner be thrust, or upon which a match cannot be scratched will be a cold and glittering mockery. Let Dr. Richardson try to live in one of his model rooms himself and find how he likes to get up in the middle of a winter's night to turn on the ozone, or to write a note informing the people next door that if the baby which he has reason to believe they have so surreptitiously introduced is not equally distributed all over the city with the aid of nitro-glycerine, his lease will be instantly canceled. After he has pierced his bare feet with a few splinters from the floor, and exhausted his whole stock of matches by scratching them upon the glazed surface of the wall, perhaps he will find that carpets have their uses, and that glazed walls do not alone constitute a paradise. Indeed, he would do well to try the experiment of distributing himself equally in every one of his houses before he urges other people to live in them. It is quite possible that he may find room to alter his plans, at least so far as to provide the city with a good, comfortable lunatic asylum, containing a separate room for the inventor and builder of Hygeia.

Tommy Writes to an Absent Parent.

DEER MA—I wisht you wood cum homb. Jonny shut me up in the closet and pinches me awful cos I wont shuv eginst for him to cut it hurts my hans, an he sez none ov the chickens is going to be mine when my hen cums awf coz they was his egs wat she set on. The old black banty tride to set but we diddent want black chickens, we wantted wite, so we chaste her awf evry da, an the wite hen woodent set til Jonny tide her onto the nest, an she duzzent set she stans. He sed he wood gi me one chicen chop fur 25 cents an I bawt it. Deer ma i mis you awful. Kant i hav sum pants ov my owen and not Johnnies? That feller wot cums to see Ant Cad was here last nite. He sat on the sofy an Jonny was under the sofy but he diddent know it at awl. When Ant Cad cum in the feler tole her sez he they is plenty of rume hear, and she set down by him. Then he kist her, not right away but bine by an she was rele mad an got up an slamd the dor. When she cum back he kist her agen an she kept tellin him to stop, but he diddent til Jonny run a shaul pin inter his leg. Then Ant Cad rechd in an hawld Jonny owt, an boxt his eres and cawld him o you nawty boy, an Jonny cride, an the feller said it was no matter. The flour what Granma cawls serius blumed the other nite. She sent for evry boddy to come an see it an the hows was ful of folkes an a lot stanning out on the pavement looking into the winder. They wuz a coming an goin every minit. They sed it was wonderfull. I thawt it was a nice flour, an Jonny whispered pick it an I pict it an I aint got over it yet. I am so sore I cant bare to set down much. Our girl has got a bow. He must be a very ritch gennelman, he wares such a big long gold chane wounded twice around his neck, an then such a wach! with two leds to it, an he sez it is a court cronomyter wach. Wen he wants to no wat time it is, if it is in the day time, he just lays it onto a fentz or a post an lets the sun shine on it, an then if he staze there til it is noon, he can tel egzactly wat time it is. If it is afternoon he has to wate til nex day. Wen the sun dont shine he cant tel enyway, and wen it is nite he dont no. Ant Cad sez it is the best court wach she ever saw; I want you to send me too shillin in your nex letter an rite rite away. I want to here from you so mutch I cant wate. Your af exunate son

TOMMY.

Barreled.

A laughable incident occurred in a grocery store in Newport, R. I. An empty barrel, with a few inches cut off the top, had been left standing in the store, and a man, who had been standing around until he was tired, sat down in it. This would have been very well if he had not set down too far. As it was, he went so far into the barrel as to double him up after the manner of a pair of compasses. The fellow realized his mistake, and strove to correct it, but the more he did this the further he worked into the barrel. Finally he was constrained to cry out for help, and half a dozen men, among them the proprietor of the store, came to the rescue. They tried compression of the upper and nether extremities, but this brought too great a strain amidships, and had to be abandoned. Then a council was held. At this it was decided that either the man or the barrel must be sacrificed, and although the barrel was worth 20 cents, the former alternative was decided on. A hatchet was procured and the sides of the barrel dashed in, causing it to collapse, thus releasing the man from a ludicrous though painful position. It will scarcely be credited that the man left the store without offering to pay for the spoiled barrel.

Mummy Paint.

Few persons are aware that Egyptian mummies are ground up into paint. But in this country and in Europe mummies are used for this purpose—the asphaltum with which they are impregnated being of a quality superior to that which can elsewhere be obtained, and producing a peculiar brownish tint when made into paint, which is prized by distinguished artists both of this and of other countries. The ancient Egyptians, when they put away their dead, wrapped in clothes saturated with asphaltum, builded, as it were, better than they knew, and could never have realized the fact that ages after they had been laid in the tombs and pyramids along the Nile their dust would be used in painting pictures in a world then undiscovered, and by artists whose languages were then unknown.

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This standard liniment has been before the people for over forty years, it having been first manufactured in 1833, and it is safe to assert that no preparation in the market has so fully stood the test of time, and been received with such universal favor as the Gargling Oil. It is found in nearly every household in this country, and is also sold extensively in Europe. From a very small beginning the Gargling Oil Company has been obliged to steadily increase its facilities for manufacturing, and now employs an army of men, and occupies magnificent buildings of its own. Much of the success of the company is due to the careful and efficient management of Mr. John Hodge, who for some time has held the responsible position of Secretary, and who is also the proprietor of the Hodge Opera House, one of the finest buildings in Lockport, N. Y. The Gargling Oil is for sale at all the drug stores.—Quincy (Ill.) Whig.

SINGERS AND PREACHERS in danger of losing voice, can be cured by this new principle, Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. They cure Coughs, Consumption, &c. Trial boxes 25 cts. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

Vagabondage as a Fine Art.

Few families of ordinary means, in this city, escape periodical begging visits; and the experience is constantly renewed that the giving of assistance to one is speedily followed by applications from others, while the family is generally let alone for two months after a stony-hearted refusal. A gentleman connected with the Tribune, some twenty years ago, was visited by a professed assistant editor of a Boston paper, whose pocket had been picked, and who therefore asked for the amount of his railway fare home as a loan. The next week, the professed reporter of a Philadelphia paper called with a slightly different story. In the course of the winter some fifteen unfortunate members of the press had been helped out of various embarrassments. Then the pitcher which had gone so often to the well was broken; the prayers and tears of the sixteenth assistant editor evoked no money. He went away, the picture of despair; but from that day to this no unfortunate journalist has ever called for help at the same address! Not long ago, there was found on the person of a tramp who died in Pennsylvania, a manuscript containing the streets and numbers of about 500 residences in this city. To many of them were attached crosses and other signs; and a careful examination showed that the list contained the addresses of many of our prominent citizens. In short, it was a private vagabond's directory.—New York Tribune.

BY the last official report of the Hartford insurance companies it was shown that 212,467 people have their lives insured in that city. These lives are insured for $450,000,000 altogether, and the property insured in the fire companies is $645,646,000 more, so that the total risk which Hartford carries is, in round numbers, $1,100,000,000.

TWO DAUGHTERS of Abdul Medjid, the Sultan who preceded Abdul Aziz, are to be married soon in the palace in Constantinople. Abdul Hamed will pay their dowry out of his private exchequer.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

Centennial Awards.

[From the New York Tribune, Nov. 13.]

The newspapers have been lately teeming with ingeniously-worded advertisements regarding the awards. These publications have been skillfully prepared, so as to convey the impression that this or that exhibitor has really received the highest and best award. Thus, instead of informing the public as to the true state of affairs, they have simply confused the reader. Visitors at the Centennial find themselves bewildered by the adverse claims to distinction which they find placarded on every hand, and they do not know which way to turn to discover the truth. In no department has this system of misrepresentation been carried to so great an extent as that devoted to piano fortes. There has been "a war" between piano exhibitors since the Exhibition opened, and a regular skirmish line of placards since the awards were officially announced. They have vied with each other in the use of extravagant language to prove their respective claims to distinction. The most ingenious methods have been devised; disinterested correspondents, whose sole object was to instruct the ignorant public, have volunteered their services (for a consideration); ex-judges of awards, in the interest of certain piano manufacturers, have made pretended revelations of the secrets of the jury-room, for the sake of supporting the claims of their particular favorites, and lightning calculators have been appealed to and have found convenient mathematical rules by which to establish absolutely the supremacy of their clients, on the pretense of the so-much-abused maxim that figures cannot lie. All these efforts, while ridiculous to those acquainted with the subject, have been attempted to influence the uninitiated. In fact, the piano men have left nothing undone to mislead the public, and by their efforts have caused everything relating to pianos to be looked upon with distrust, and have made themselves the laughing stock of the public. By these means injustice is not only done to the public, but to those who are not only entitled to the leading position, but who were awarded it by the judges. Your correspondent has taken the trouble to submit all the various reports, which are the basis of the awards, to a careful scrutiny and comparison, and the result is that the pianos of Wm. Knabe & Co. are found to head the list. This house, from the commencement of the Exhibition, relied solely upon the merits of their instruments to secure them a just award; and since the official announcement, although they were decreed the highest honors in the piano department, they have modestly remained in the background. It is fortunate that the judges, in preparing the Knabe report, so framed it as to leave no doubt about their pre-eminence. They especially commended all their four styles of pianos, concert grand, parlor grand, square and uprights, and accorded them the praise of unequaled excellence in all the details of perfect instruments. The report is plain, straightforward and comprehensive, specifying all the elements of merit which it is possible for the best piano forte to possess—power, richness and singing quality of tone; ease and elasticity of touch; effectiveness of action; solidity and originality of construction, and excellence of workmanship. By comparing it with the other reports in the same department, even the most skeptical will acknowledge that no stronger language could have been used to express the unanimous approval of the judges.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11, 1876.

A FEW years since it was not considered the "correct thing" to chew plug tobacco, but it is again coming into great favor, and gentlemen can be now seen daily with a plug of the genuine "Matchless" brand, and it is considered the choice morsel of the day. Every plug has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." printed thereon.

PIMPLES on the face, rough skin, chapped hands, saltrheum and all cutaneous affections cured, the skin made soft and smooth, by the use of Juniper Tar Soap. That made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, is the only kind that can be relied on, as there are many imitations, made from common tar, which are worthless.

WE often see a large stock of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollar's worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such a stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

HAVE you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is a specific remedy, used internally and externally.

A YOUTH'S PUBLICATION.—For half a century, the YOUTH'S COMPANION, of Boston, has been published. It was started in 1827, and is to-day one of the brightest and most vigorous papers with which we are acquainted.

J. & P. COATS were awarded a medal and diploma at the Centennial Exposition and commended for the "superior strength and excellent quality of their spool cotton."

SAVE YOUR HAIR.—If you wish to save your hair and keep it strong and healthy, use BURNETT'S COCOAINE.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, of Boston, is a thoroughly wide-awake paper, having among its contributors such writers as J. T. Trowbridge, Edward Eggleston, Edward Everett Hale, James T. Fields, J. G. Whittier, C. A. Stephens, Louisa M. Alcott, Rebecca Harding Davis, Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, Louise Chandler Moulton. No writers more attractive in the country, and no publication for young people more enterprising and useful.

CATARRH

Sneezing Catarrh, Chronic Catarrh, Ulcerative Catarrh, permanently cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH is a safe, certain, and permanent cure for Catarrh of every form, and is the most perfect remedy ever devised. It is purely a vegetable distillation, and is applied locally by insufflation, and constitutionally by internal administration. Locally applied relief is instantaneous. It soothes, heals, and cleanses the nasal passages of every feeling of heaviness, obstruction, dulness, or dizziness. Constitutionally administered it renovates the blood, purifies it of the acid poison with which it is always charged in Catarrh, stimulates the stomach, liver and kidneys, perfects digestion, makes new blood, and permits the formation of sound, healthy tissue, and finally obtains complete control over the disease. The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references. It is a great and good medicine, and worthy all confidence. Each package contains a Treatise on Catarrh and Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use in all cases.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE is sold by all wholesale and retail druggists throughout the United States. Price $1. Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston.

EVERYBODY CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDS COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS.

THEY contain the grand curative element, ELECTRICITY, combined with the finest compound of medicinal gums ever united together. It therefore seems impossible for them to fail in affording prompt relief for all pains and aches.

"THE BEST PLASTER."

Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Gentlemen,—Please send me six COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS. Send by return mail. I think they are the best Plaster I ever used. Please find money inclosed.

HASKELL LEWIS.

MILFORD, DEL., July 14, 1876.

"AN EXCELLENT PLASTER."

Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Gentlemen,—Please send me another COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER. I find them to be an excellent Plaster,—the best that I have ever used. I am sorry that the druggists here do not keep them.

F. M. SNIDER.

BROADWAY, O., July, 1876.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Price, 25 cents. Sent by mail, carefully wrapped, on receipt of 25 cents for one, $1.25 for six, or $2.25 for twelve, by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

$3.00 FOR $1.00.

THE CHICAGO LEDGER

All the great weekly newspapers of the size and character of THE CHICAGO LEDGER charge $3.00 per year, while THE LEDGER costs but $1.00.

The LEDGER is the BEST Family Paper in the United States, ably edited, handsomely printed; containing every week choice completed stories, an installment of an interesting illustrated serial, and general reading for old and young, for the farmer, for the housewife, and for all classes. Special care is taken to make its tone uniformly chaste and moral. Send $1, and 15 cents for postage, and your address to

THE LEDGER,
Chicago, Illinois.

THE MOST GOODS — Send 25 Cts. for either 400 nicely-assorted Decalcomanie; four sheets new Scrap-Book Pictures; 50 elegant Chromo Gems; 6 Card Chromos, — FOR LEAST MONEY or 75 Cents for them all, to V. T. HULL & CO., 270 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill. AGENTS WANTED for the popular Chromo, 16x21 inches, of D. L. Moody's FIRST SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS.

NEW MUSIC BOOKS.

A BRILLIANT LIST!

The Encore. (75 cts.) By L. O. EMERSON. For Singing Schools, Conventions, etc.

The Whippoorwill. (50 cts.) By W. O. PERKINS. Capital collection of songs for Common Schools.

The Shining River. (35 cts.) By H. S. & W. O. PERKINS. Very beautiful Sabbath School Song Book.

The Salutation. ($1.38.) By L. O. EMERSON. First-class collection for Choirs, Singing Schools, etc.

Biographical Sketches of (100) Eminent Musical Composers. ($2.00.) By L. B. URBINO. Very interesting.

Dictionary of Musical TERMS. ($5.00.) STAINER & BARRETT. A magnificent book. Illustrated. Finely bound.

JUST OUT!

! THE WORLD OF SONG. !

THE VOCAL GEM OF THE SEASON!

Bound Volume of popular songs. In Boards, $2.50. Cloth, $3.00. Gilt, $4.00.

Either book mailed, post free, for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

C. H. Ditson & Co.,
711 BROADWAY,
New York.

J. E. Ditson & Co.,
Successors to Lee & Walker,
Phila.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,

Is the Grand Old

MUSTANG LINIMENT,

WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

EUPEON!

If you have rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, a burn, or a bruise, procure a bottle of Eupeon. It will give instant relief, as thousands can testify. For sale by all Druggists. H. A. HURLBUT & CO., 75 and 77 Randolph street, Chicago, Agents for the Proprietors.

WOOD'S IMPROVED HAIR RESTORATIVE

What It Does!

It restores, quickly, Gray Hair to its glossy Natural color. It has the effect of Restoring the Hair to prematurely Bald Heads. It Removes Dandruff, Humors and all Eruptions from the Scalp. It removes Irritation, Itching and Scaly Dryness of the Skin. It Restores faded, dry, harsh and falling Hair. It renews, dresses, softens and gives vigor to the growth of the Hair. It accomplishes more desired effects in a short time than any Restorative ever made, always leaving the hair soft, lively and glossy, whether used as a Dressing upon the natural hair or upon the hair in an unhealthy condition; thus rendering it, for the Old and Young, an article of unequaled excellence. No preparation offered to the public produces such wonderful results. Try it! Try it!! Call for "Wood's Improved!" as it contains no injurious qualities.

It was originally introduced 20 years ago by Prof. O. J. Wood, but the recent change of ingredients in this article is making a demand for it in all parts of the United States, Canadas and foreign countries.

ANNOUNCEMENT — TO — CONSUMERS!

The great radical improvement introduced in this article has induced us to take the agency and advertise its virtues to the world. Its effects as a Restorative are what has been long sought for and wanted for many years, being more decided and satisfactory than has ever before been attained. No Druggist in the world knows its composition, and cannot make it; therefore when you call for it, "Wood's Improved," do not let any unprincipled dealer convince you that he has a Restorative or Renewer as good, or something similar, as there is none like it! Insist upon having "Wood's Improved," and take no other, for your money! It will not be long before all dealers everywhere will have it. If you should fail to find it, you can send $1.00 to us by mail for a bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and we will send it to you, prepaid, to any Express Station desired.

Address C. A. COOK & CO., Chicago, the Sole Agents for the United States and Canadas, who will fill all orders and supply the Trade at Manufacturers' Prices.

J. B. KIMBALL, Proprietor.

☞ Sold in Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Paul by all Wholesale Druggists, and by Retail Trade generally.

J. & P. COATS

have been awarded a Medal and Diploma at the Centennial Exposition and commended by the Judges for

"SUPERIOR STRENGTH — AND — EXCELLENT QUALITY — OF — SPOOL COTTON."

SEAL.

A. T. GOSHORN, Director-General.
J. R. HAWLEY, Pres.
ALEX. R. BOTELER, Secretary pro tem.

1855. 22d Year. 1877.

Progressive! Comprehensive!

WESTERN FARM JOURNAL

CHICAGO, ILL.

A Mammoth Weekly for Country and Town.

A Practical Agricultural Newspaper, Largest on the Continent!

Its columns are replete each week with fresh, interesting and valuable matter for every branch of FARM INDUSTRY, while the departments devoted to the FIRESIDE, YOUNG FOLKS, CURRENT TOPICS and NEWS receive such especial attention as to render the JOURNAL, in the truest sense, a complete paper for the FARM, the FIRESIDE, or the HOUSEHOLD.

In the issue for Jan. 1st, 1877, will be commenced a high-class, instructive serial story, written expressly for the Western Farm Journal, entitled

THE LESSON FOR LIFE.

☞ It will be read with absorbing interest, as well as profit, by all classes. WRITE FOR ADVANCE SHEET OF EXTRACTS. We want every man and woman in the country to subscribe for the paper and to act as our agent this season. Single subscriptions, $2.00 a year; only $1.50 in clubs. No special authority to act needed. Send in your own subscription and then others as fast as obtained. DON'T DELAY! All subscriptions received during 1876 will run to end of 1877. SAMPLE PAPERS, POSTERS and CIRCULARS Free. Address

WESTERN FARM JOURNAL,
186 Washington Street, Chicago.

LANDS FOR SALE

960,000 Acres in Southwest Missouri.

FIRST-CLASS STOCK FARMS,

Excellent Agricultural Lands,

and best TOBACCO REGION in the West. SHORT WINTERS, NO GRASSHOPPERS, good Market, and a Healthy Country.

Prices $2.50 to $10.00 an Acre.

TERMS: One-tenth down, balance in seven years at 7 per cent. interest.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

to the lands furnished purchasers. For circulars, guides, maps, etc., address

A. L. DEANE, Land Commissioner, St. Louis.

Potter's American Monthly,

50,000 Subscribers for 1877.

ILLUSTRATED; Best Family Magazine in the Country, at $3 for 1877. Five copies one year for $13; 10 copies for $25; 20 copies for $50, and a copy of Potter's Bible Encyclopedia, quarto, 3,000 Illustrations, price, $25, given to the person sending this club. For sale at all News stands, at 25 cents a number. Special Terms to Agents. J. E. POTTER & CO., Phila., Pa.

Guarding the Mails — Agents Wanted

200 SUPERB ENGRAVINGS. OR SECRET SERVICE of the Post-office Department, by P. H. WOODWARD, eleven years in the service, and Chief Special Agent under P. M. Gen'l JEWELL. The most remarkable and thrilling book on detection ever written. Wonderful Exploits of the Secret Service Agents in the pursuit and capture of Postal Thieves. Now having an unparalleled sale. Our large illustrated circulars free. Dustin, Gilman & Co., Hartford, Ct., Chicago, Ills., Cincinnati, O.

CANCER.

Cincinnati Cancer Institute, Office No. 162 Plum St.

Established for the cure of Cancer, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula, and Skin diseases, by local and constitutional remedies. Cancer cured without the use of the knife or caustics. This treatment has been successfully employed for many years, and in no case does the Cancer return as when removed with the knife. As evidence of good faith and honorable dealing, we require no fee for our services until the patient is cured. For further information enclose two stamps for book containing theory of treatment, testimonials from patients that have been cured, and first class city references, etc.

Address L. H. GRATIGNY, M. D.
Box 598. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

ORGAN — THE "ESTEY" LEADS THE WORLD

(Established 1846.)

J. ESTEY & CO.

Brattleboro, Vt.

☞ Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

$4 a Day to Agts. Sample free. H. Albert, Boston, Ma.

20 a Week Salary guaranteed to male and female. Send stamp for circulars. E. M. Bodine, Cincinnati, O.

$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$10 A Day. Employment for all. [illegible] Novelty [illegible] N. Y.

PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. Apparatus by mail, $4. Agents wanted. [illegible] Mf'g Co., Phila., Pa.

$25 A DAY to Agents. Sample free. 32-page Catalogue. L. FLETCHER, 12 Dey St., N. Y.

AGENTS FOUR $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., Phila., Pa.

REVOLVER $3 7-shot $2.00, 70 styles. Ill. Cat. free. WESTERN GUN WORKS, Chicago, Ill.

$55 to $77 a Week to Agents. Samples FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$15 for $5 Agents Mammoth Catalogue free. E. NASON & Co., 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

AGENTS wanted, on salary or commission. New business. Address J. B. MASSEY & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

ASTHMA. The only sure remedy. Trial package free. L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $90 a month and traveling expenses paid. GEM MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS wanted for "RELATION of the SEXES" New book with plain statement of facts by a wide-awake [illegible]. Sells at sight. Copy, with outfit, by mail, $2. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO. Chicago, Ill.

$3 WATCHES. A Great Sensation. Sample Watch and Outfit free to Agents. Better than Gold. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

$350 A Month—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.

NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS' SUPPLY CO., 261 Bowery, N. Y.

WANTED AGENTS, both sexes, in every town and county. Business easy and respectable. Article new, indispensable, and sells on sight. $10 per day guaranteed. CLIMAX MFG. CO., Cincinnati, O.

$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

$10 to $1,000 Invested in Wall St. Stocks makes fortunes every month. Book sent free explaining everything. Address BAXTER & CO., Bankers, 17 Wall St., N. Y.

$10 to $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.

W. L. HAYDEN, Teacher of Guitar, Flute, Cornet. Agt. for Tilton Pat. Guitar, the best in use. Dealer in Musical Instruments, Music, Strings. Catalogues free. 120 Tremont St. Boston.

FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, (1 or 2 in each Co.) to sell a few staple articles of real merit to the farmers in their own counties. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. WORTH, St. Louis, Mo.

YOUR own LIKENESS in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 8½x7¼, from a photograph or tintype, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 6 months for $1. One agent made $20.50 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.

DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 132 pages, 35 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.

$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. DR. J. P. FITLER, being sworn, says: I graduated in 1833, [illegible] FITLER'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY [illegible]

A GIFT By an arrangement with the Publisher we will send every reader of this Paper a sample package of Transfer Pictures free. Send 3c. stamp for postage. They are highly colored, beautiful, and easily transferred to any object. Agents wanted. J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York.

TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT. WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.

FOR SALE—CHEAP FOR CASH—One Second-Hand HARDY PAPER CUTTER, in good order. Also, one 8-inch HOE CARD CUTTER (new). The above will be sold very cheap for cash. Address CHICAGO NEWSPAPER UNION, 114 Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS. Investigate the merits of The Illustrated Weekly before determining upon your work this fall and winter. The combination for this season surpasses anything heretofore attempted. Terms sent free. Address CHAS. CLUCAS & CO., 14 Warren St., New York.

A BOOK for the MILLION. MEDICAL ADVICE A [illegible] Pamphlet on Special and [illegible] Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address, Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.

Electricity is Life. Paolis Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application, to P. J. WHITE, 27 Bond Street, New York.

AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY CENTEN'L EXHIBITION. It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 26 copies in one day. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

$15 SHOT GUN. A double barrel gun, bar or front action locks, warranted genuine twist barrels, and a good shooter, or no sale; with Flask, Pouch and Wad-cutter, for $15. Can be sent C. O. D. with privilege to examine before paying bill. Send Stamp for circular to P. POWELL & SON, Gun Dealers, 238 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

$10. $25. $50. $100. $200. ALEXANDER FROTHINGHAM & CO., 12 Wall Street, New York, Bankers and Brokers, invest in Stocks of a legitimate character. The firm numbers among its patrons thousands who have been made rich through Frothingham & Co.'s fortunate investments. Stocks purchased and carried long as desired on margin from three to five per cent. ☞ Send for Circular.

HO, FOR IOWA!!! Farmers, renters and hired men of America: A choice from 1,200,000 acres of the best lands in Iowa on R. R. terms, at $5 and $6 per acre. Send a postal card for our map and pamphlet, or call on the Iowa R. R. Land Co., 92 Randolph St., Chicago, or Cedar Rapids, Iowa. JOHN B. CALHOUN, Land Commis'r.

AGENTS find that the full History of the Wonderful career of MOODY & SANKEY In Great Britain and America is a success everywhere. All want it—rich or poor. From 5 to 20 books a day's work. It is the only complete work published containing Mr. Moody's Sermons and Prayer-meeting Talks, Mr. Sankey's addresses, and everything of interest. Has 518 pages, steel portraits, and 12 engravings. Price, $2.00. Address, H. A. PARKER & CO., 103 Clark Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure, and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay full price for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $5. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will cure more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free. POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

The Wide Awake Magazine. The Golden Time for Agents! Liberal cash commissions paid. Boys and girls can sell at work for the Wide Awake Doll's Fair, and subscribe eagerly. Specimen numbers, 10 cents. List of Doll's Fair prizes, posters, etc., free. Little girls who will act as agents receive in addition a full set of Doll Patterns, upon sending their P. O. Address. October and November Wide Awakes contain rules in full concerning the Doll's Fair. Write to D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS AUTOMATIC

Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.

Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and [illegible]

Trade Mark in base of every machine.

SILENT SEWING MACHINE.

Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.

Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.,
(Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Fruit House

The Largest Stock of GROCERIES & PROVISIONS ever opened out in DeKalb County

AT PRICES THAT DEFY COMPETITION

TEAS:
COFEES:
SUGAR:
Dried Fru

ALL AT BOTTOM PRICES.

☞ Dont Fail to Call and examine PRICES ☜

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUSE!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.
AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES,

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at,

ZACHER'S.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS.

☞ HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

☞ Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heatin Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of always on hand at lowest prices.

HARDWARE STORE

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

than ever before brought to Auburn. We are sel'ing at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

☞ YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our t i ze ns when visting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS,

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods anu seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Patersns

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In American and Swiss Watches,

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jewelry establishm'nt. It will pay you to call and be convinced that I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,

Jewelry,

Clocks, Silver Ware!

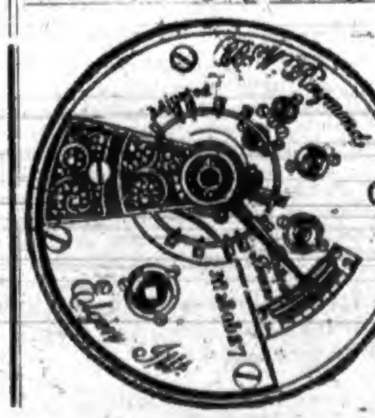
GOLD PENS,

Ladies GOLD Chains,

Gents Chains,

Gold and Silver Rings,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,



RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Soutl ernRB

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler	1:45 p m.	x 2,40 a m.	8.05 pm
Waterloo	2.05 "	[illegible] "	8.26
Sedan	2.15	3,07	8.37
Corunna	2.20	3,15	8.45

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.52 pm	x 12.06 a m	6.53 a m
Sedan	2.38	11.45 "	6.33 "
Waterloo	2:25 "	11.36 "	6.22 "
Butler	2.20	11.30 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensee time card April 16, 1876.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex
Pittsburgh	1 45 am	6 50 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm
Rochester	2 53 "		10 10 "	3 10 "
Alliance	5 10 "	8 40 pm	1 10 pm	5 50 "
Orrville	6 46 "		3 00 "	7 25 "
Mansfield	8 40 "		5 15 "	9 24 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	12 20 am	5 50 "	9 55 "
" lv.	9 40 am	12 25 am	6 10 pm	10 00pm
Forest	11 02 "	1 26 "	7 58 "	11 30 "
Lima	12 01 pm	2 20 "	9 15 "	12 40am
Ft. Wayne	2 10 "	4 25 "	12 01 am	2 50 "
Plymouth	4 12 "	6 15 "	3 00 "	5 00 "
Chicago	7 20 "	9 20 "	6 50 "	8 20 "

OING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 20 pm	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 25a
Plymouth	3 00 am	12 05 pm	9 00 "	9 25
Ft. Wayne	6 40 "	2 30 "	11 35 "	12 25p
Lima	8 50 "	4 20 "	1 50 am	2 50 "
Forest	10 03 "	5 23 "	3 05 "	4 15 "
Crestl'e ar.	11 40 "	6 45 "	4 40 "	5 55 "
" lv.		7 05 pm	4 50 am	6 00a
Mansfield	11 28 pm	7 33 "	5 20 "	6 40 "
Orrville	2 16 "	9 25 "	7 12 "	9 10 "
Alliance	3 50 "	10 57 "	9 00 "	11 25 "
Rochester	5 59 "	1 04 am	11 12 "	2 14p
Chicago	7 05 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	3 30 "

Trains Nos. 3, 5, 8, run daily. Train No. 4 leaves Chicago except Sundays. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect July 9—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations.	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Cincinnati
Louisville	4 00pm
Indianapolis	5 35pm
Ft Wayne	10 [illegible] "		4 p
Auburn	11 [illegible] "		5 20
Waterloo	11 44 "		5 37
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 45 pm	5 20	6 15
Reading	1 46 "	7 00	7 34
Bankers	2 02 "	7 12	7 48
Jonesville	2 20 "	7 55	8 08
Jackson	3 25 "	9 35	9 20
Detroit	6 25 "	12 00	3 30 a
Grand Rapids	10 15 "	5 20	6 30
Lansing	6 35 "
Saginaw	9 10 "
Bay City

Going South.

Stations.	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City
Saginaw	7 40 a m
Lansing	10 58 "
Grand Rapids	6 00 "	11 55
Detroit	10 00 "	2 50p
Jackson Dep	12 40 pm	6 00	6 45a
Jonesville	1 45 "	8 00	7 55
Bankers	2 02 "	8 30	8 11
Reading	2 15 "	9 00	8 29
Ar Angola	3 07 "	10 00	9 30
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	3 42 "		1 17
Auburn	3 53 "		1 30
Auburn Junction			1 36
Fort Wayne Arrive	4 50 "		6 40p
Indianapolis	10 50 "		1 10
Louisville	3 30 am		8 00a
Cincinnati			11 00p

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 3, 1875.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Exp.	Ac.& E.	Accom.
lv New York	* pm		*2 35pm
Philadelphia	1 am		6 00
Baltimore	†	6 20pm	10 10
Washington		7 35	11 30
Wheeling	am	*8 00am	12 30
Bellaire		2 28	1 17
Barnesville		9 40	2 33
Cambridge		10 44	3 42
Zanesville		11 48	4 50
lv Columbus		12 10pm	4 15
New Ark	*	2 30	6 25
Mt Vernon	7 46	3 22	7 32
Mansfield	9 24	1 3	9 08
Shelby	10 10	4 25	9 55
Chicago Junction	10 40	5 00	10 25
Tiffin	11 34	6 13	11 20
Fostoria	12 01pm	6 42	11 43
Deshler	12 55	7 46	11 36am
Defiance	1 47	8 51	1 27
Auburn	3 00
Auburn Junction	3 03	10 40	2 43
Garrett	3 25	11 00	3 00
Avilla	3 36	11 15
Milford Junction	4 40	12 24am
Walkertown Junction	5 45	1 43
Chicago	8 10	4 40	10

GOING EAST.

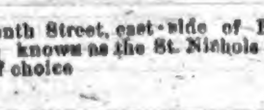
STATIONS:	Exp.	Ac.& E.	Accom.
Chicago	†8 52am	†5 08	†9 40
Walkertown Junction	11 50	8 08	1 15
Milford Junction	12 51pm		2 38
Avilla	1 59		3 55
Garrett	2 20	10 30	4 20am
Auburn Junction		10 35	4 25
Auburn	2 25
Defiance	3 34	11 45	5 47
Deshler	4 22	12 30am	6 39
Fostoria	5 12	1 26	7 40
Tiffin	5 36	1 49	8 13
Chicago Junction	6 40	2 45	19 30
Shelby Junction	7 25	3 17	10 10
Mansfield	7 58	3 40	10 35
Mt. Vernon	9 26	4 51	1 59
Ar Newark	10 25	5 40	1 00pm
Lv Zanesville	11 50	6 30	2 30
Cambridge	12 50am	7 20	3 21
Barnesville	1 55	8 14	4 31
Ar Bellaire	3 00	9 20	5 30
Wheeling	5 10	10 35	6 50
Washington	†6 20pm	9 20pm	7 00
Baltimore	6 50	10 00	8 50
Philadelphia	12 00	2 35am	*1 20pm
New York	6 15am	6 15	5 10

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALL AND SALOON.



On Seventh Street, east-side of Bank, whi will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. A kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

CHICAGO ROCKISLAND
AND
Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for
JOLLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENON LACON, PEORI, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	5 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all point in Kansas, Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement o Palace Drawing room and sleeping cars, which fo external beauty and interrior arrangements fo the comfort, convenience and luxury of passenger are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars o the kind in the world.

☞ Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH
FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	465 Miles
TOLEDO to QUNCY,	471 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	489 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	301 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hanniba', Quincy, Keokuk,

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA, COLORADO AND CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New Eegland.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (510 miles), also be tween Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles.)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOOTS & SHOES
Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repaing promptly attended to.

Remember place

At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Recorder Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, DECEMBER 7th, 1876. Number 51.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,........$2. | Six Months,...... $1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

RICKEL and TEFET,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Moody.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellow's Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in my hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowen.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Good sample rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $2 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
B. SCHNIDERS, Prop'r.

SANDS HOUSE,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, [Late o City Hotel,] Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an ample corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at reasonable rates.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

Shearer & Wilson.

THE above named gentlemen are conducting a Planing Mill on South Jackson street They are prepared to execute all kinds of scrol work, re-sawing, flooring matching and moulding of all discriptions, and can, in consequence give the best figure possible, having this advantage over competitors. Their work for the past is a sufficient recommendation as to their competency and responsibility. They also take contracts for all kinds of wooden work.

ENGLISH INK for Printers,

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of Superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of Ink made by us.

EXCELSIOR PRINTING INK CO., MANUFACTURERS,
(Formerly of London, England),
134 & 136 MONROE ST., CHICAGO,
And 18 Barclay Street, New York.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing !

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths and Children's Clothing !

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his large stock

IT IS HERE.

W H A T

The Largest Fine Stock of Fine

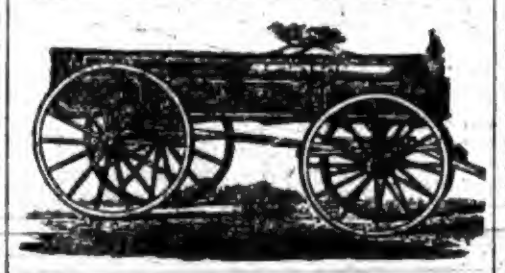
Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this class of goods can get them from 100 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders for

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give a call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

He prepared to send out rigs at anytime and at Reasonable prices.

A Middlerib Dialogue.

Burlington Hawkeye.

"Rents," said Mr. Middlerib, with a sigh of not unmixed satisfaction, "are coming down. Yesterday morning I tore the back of my coat on the wood shed door, last night I snagged the foundation of my trowsers on a nail in a store box, and this morning I fell down on the frozen sidewalk and split the knee of the same trowsers clear across. Rents are certainly getting lower."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Middlerib, looking across toward the busy figure at the sewing machine, "and seamstresses are getting hire."

Mr. Middlerib looked up at his spouse in vague astonishment, as if for explanation, but she looked sublimely unconscious and the good man went off down town with his napkin under his chin, wondering all the way down to the office if she meant it, or if it was only his interpretation.

Railway Robbers.

A Chicago traveler named Dodd furnishes the papers with the following account of his encounter with a brace of rascals, on board a Ft. Wayne and Jackson train. He says, he was sitting in a caboose at Waterloo, awaiting the departure of the train for the south. He was the sole occupant of the car until a stranger made his appearance and inquired of Dodd where he was going. Presently another man came in—a hard looking fellow, and having the appearance of a man who would cut your throat for a dollar. He began by cursing the railroad connections; said he was from Kentucky; had sold a drove of mules, and had to go away round by Ft. Wayne to reach his home. Shortly afterwards another man came in—another rough-looking customer. Said he had been robbed at Saginaw of $300; but had got even on the fellows who had robbed him by stealing the papers by which the robbery was committed. Then he threw out three odd looking cards and began showing Dodd and the other two men how he was robbed of his $300. The other two men wanted Dodd to "bite," but Dodd wou dn't, whereupon the three fellows jumped up and one of them struck him in the face. Dodd managed, however, to get out of the car, and made his way to an engine near by where he told his story. Pretty soon the conductor came along and after a tussle succeeded in ejecting the sharpers from the train.

A New Through Line.

We have good authority for stating that it is proposed to open a New Trunk Railway line through this place from New York to Chicago. The lines interested are the Chicago and Canada Southern, the Detroit, Eel River and Illinois and Baltimore and Ohio railway companies.

About 70 miles of the eastern part of the Chicago and Canada Southern railroad—by which it is proposed to connect Chicago with the Canada Southern at the crossing of the Detroit river—were complete some time ago, but the illness of Commodore Vanderbilt, it is stated, stopped work. The roadbed from Fayette—the western terminus of that portion of the road now in operation—to Eden, a distance of 25 miles, had been made ready for the ties and rails. From Eden to Butler, the eastern terminus of the Eel River road, the distance is only nine miles, and the Eel River company has proposed to build a track to Eden, if the Chicago and Canada Southern will complete its line to that place. By this means a continuous line will be established to Logansport, Indiana, and thence to Lafayette, St. Louis, Omaha, &c. This arrangement will also give the Eel River road a direct connection with Detroit and the north and east. The Chicago division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad crosses the proposed new route 13 miles west of Butler, thus furnishing a direct line to the Chicago and Canada Southern to Chicago by passing over 13 miles of the Eel River track. The Eel River company has agreed to pro-rate with the Chicago and Canada Southern, and the Baltimore and Ohio has offered very favorable tearms for the use of its track to Chicago. The distance from Eden to Chicago is about 150 miles by the proposed route. It is claimed that there is no intention of abandoning the original purpose of building an independent line from the Detroit river to Chicago, but the new line will be used until the main line is finished.

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money to loan and guarantee security.

Floored by Golden Rose.

Detroit Free Press.

Detroit has been bothered with a chronic old vagrant named Wheeler for the last five years. He is an old man, and he creeps around the streets, telling a piteous story and almost demanding alms as his constitutional right. He is not worthy of charity in any sense and those who know him will not give him anything. About a week ago he entered a Michigan avenue drug store, and while loafing around he uncorked several large bottles of perfume standing on the show case. Into each one he poked his peaked nose in turn, and snuffed like a horse. He came again next day and repeated the performance, seeming to go on the theory that he was getting something for nothing, and yet was not robbing the druggist. His presence was not agreeable, and yesterday morning the druggist filled a bottle with the strongest kind of hartshorn, labeled it "Golden Rose," and several people were invited in to see how the plan worked. By and by the old vagrant came in, and as he warmed his back at the stove he noticed the new brand.

"Golden Rose, eh? New thing, probably, he mused, going closer.

As no one seemed to notice him, he pulled the cork, poked his nose into the bottle and snuffed for all he was worth. Next instant he dropped to the floor, raking the hot stove with his elbow, and as he lay there gasping for breath and rolling his eyes, the druggist shouted for the police and threw cold water over him. It was four or five minutes before the old man could stand up, and he hadn't a word to say as he made for the door. When he reached the sidewalk he halted, shook his fist at the store, and blowing his nose with awful vigor, he shouted:

"I can golden rose the whole crowd with both hands tied behind me!"

A Romance of the Day.

At this moment the door of Peter Molasses' humble cabin swung backward upon its hinges, and seven armed men entered.

Armed? Nay, arsenaled with shot-guns, revolvers, bowie-knives, barrel-staves, $175 bronze cannon, black-snake whips, hickory withs, stuffed ballot boxes, and the like. Their faces were concealed by masks of white cotton, but my informant—a Northern man of education and veracity whose name I am compelled to suppress—declares that one was the parson of the Baptist Church at Snag Bay, and the other the County Judge.

The wretched Peter Molasses turning pale with fear, fell on his knees, his ashen lips refusing to do their office, while his wife, a woman of dauntless courage, placing her hands on her hips exclaimed:

"Dart ar shoat didn't have no brand, an' I swan to de Lo' dat ef shoats is gwine to break into decent cullud folks' houses at night —"

"Silence, you — — — — — — —," thundered the leader of the banditti; "its not about that shoat."

"Well; so help me Bob, ef it dem Chickens, I done 'low—" broke in poor Molasses.

"Gag the — — — — — — — — — — — — —!" yelled the leader, and Peter was throttled until his tongue protruded several feet, when with the slack of that member, the Ku-Klux took a couple of turns about the kneeling man's neck, tieing it securely in two clove hitches and a slip knot at the nape.

And this is Centennial Year and the land of Freedom.

"Ho, Hamfatter," hissed the leader of the KuKlux, "bring forth the bul-doz—"

But ere he could conclude his order the door opened, and—

[For the remainder of of this blood-curdling and hair raising romance, "The Bull-doze: A Romance of the sunny South," by Jim Bloodyroad, the gore drinker of the Lyceum, see the New York Campaign Supplement of Nov. 27. If your news dealer hasn't got it, tell him not to mind sending for it. Back numbers can always be procured at any trunk-store.]

A Lost Treasure.

From the Detroit Free Press.

As a Jefferson avenue car was slowly moving up the street yesterday a passenger hauled out his wallet to pay his fare, and the dozen people were electrified on hearing him exclaim in a hoarse voice:

"Let no man move hand or foot! I've lost a cent in the straw!"

He got down on his knees and poked around for awhile, and failing to recover his treasure, he took down the number of the car and a description of the driver.

For School Books, go to Davenport, the druggist.

Old Silas Hiving Bees.

The old gentleman's name is Silas, and that of his oldest son is George; his wife's name is Matilda, and his three pretty daughters are named Helen, Alice and Susie; there is a little Silas, too, and another boy whose name is too queer to mention.

The bees had alighted in a great bunch, as large as a half bushel measure, on the limb of a peach tree in the yard. A table is placed under the overhanging limb spread with a clean white cloth, and hive placed thereon.

Then one of the boys, one that is good for nothing else, is sent into the tree to sever the limb; the limb comes down slowly and easily, and the old gent below, dressed in a great coat, buckskin gloves, cowhide boots and a bedquilt tied around his neck and face, slyly manipulates a twig from the tree, and in two minutes has safely coaxed every bee into the hive, during all of which time Matilda and Helen and Alice and Susie pound the bottoms out of just four tin pans; little Silas does the prettiest yelling, while the boy with the queer name is just old enough to slip behind the house and wait for the thing to come to a point.

That is the way the thing ought to have gone off; but that isn't the way it did.

Silas, the elder, was very comfortably bundled up for a warm day, and he had his suit well arranged, only he forgot to tie the strings around the bottom of his pants.

The bees had settled on the limb of a peach tree and Silas, when his table and white cloth and his hive were all ready, commanded:

"Now, George, grab that old rusty saw and climb; I guess you can cut that small limb off easy enough.

George was just home from a six months' term of school, and he felt a great tenderness for his father, and would have gone through a patch of thistles barefoot to please the old gent, and yet he had a particular dread for the "business end" of a bee, and particularly of such a crowd of them. But he obeyed, and began to fiddle away cautiously upon the particular limb. One little bunch of bees dropped off and were caged; another and another small bunch dropped, and the prospect seemed good, when suddenly an old honey-maker appeared, who had been in the business, and soared upward. George shut one eye quick, gave one terrific serge on the old rusty saw, got out of that tree in one jump, and his anxious mother caught a glimpse of him as he flew round the corner of the barn twenty rods away.

Poor old Silas. The bees came down and he thought the bunch as big as a hay-stack now. They did not go into the hive, but they went through his overcoat and bedquilt as if they had been only mosquito bars, and they climbed up his pants legs, and the old gent danced as he had never danced before; and he slapped his legs as he never allowed any one else to slap them, and his voice towered high above the clatter of the tin pans and the shrieks of little Silas, as he yelled:

"Throw water on me! throw water on me! soak me, wet me down!"

He rolled three or four times in the grass, and sprang up shouting. "Slap me! slap me! can't you slap me?" in the midst of which little Silas crept up behind his infuriated papa and dealt him a lively one with a shingle; but poor little Silas landed the next second against the milk-house, for his pa took him and his shingle for a thousand bees, and gently brushed them off.

Oh, the agony of the three minutes jig! He appealed to his wife.

"Matilda for heaven's sake bring me another pair of pants, won't you?"

But these things don't last always any more than any other happiness, and after a few minutes the old gent came limping out of the cellar with the pants on that Matilda had brought him, feeling much easier, but certainly much fatigued, just as George got back from the barn and the boy with the queer name slipped around the corner of the house. Both of the boys were anxious to know how matters stood, and asked:

"Did you get 'em hived, pa?"

But the old man was to mad to answer, or even to look at his boys. He turned to Silas and said:

"Little one, you meant all right, and I'm sorry I cuffed you so, next time don't slap so hard."

Then to his wife, "Matilda, to you I owe every thing. Accept my heart felt gratitude. We'll take no more stock in bees. I have made up my mind and it's settled. May our quiet, peaceful farm home never be so stirred up again. Seems to me I never had so much of life crowded into a few short minutes before. Run after the cows now, boys; be off for its almost dark."

Correspondents

We desire heresfter to give a synopsis of all the important events happening in DeKalb county. Those who have heretofore acted as our correspondents will oblige us by a weekly budget, from their several localities. The task of writing up neighborhood news is by no means a laborious one, and we give below a few hints as to the topics which should be treated of, in writing for the COURIER:

Accidents—when, to whom, how serious.

Social parties, church fairs, sleighing excursions, school exhibitions, &c., &c., giving the principal incidents in relation to the same.

Murders, burglaries, thefts and other crimes—giving names of criminals, and result of trial in cases of arrests.

Religious notes—changes in ministers, dedications of church buildings, formation of new congregations &c.

Changes in business firms—give names of retiring and also of new partners, but no puffs.

Deaths—If the deceased is well known or an old resident, give a short obituary—in case of deaths from accidents, give full particulars of the occurrence.

Improvements—give names of parties erecting new business blocks or residences worthy of mention, also other improvements made, such as erection of mills or manufactories.

Discoveries—such as Indian relics, curiosities and the like.

Fires—give amount of loss, state whether or not the property was insured and cause of the fire, whether accidental or incendiary.

Facts and figures—products raised on farms, work turned out by manufacturies, &c.

Shows, exhibitions, etc.—If given by home amatuers, give full particulars—traveling troops need no more than a mere mention.

Schools—when began, name and salary paid teacher, number of scholars in attendance, etc.

Sales of real estate—give names of seller and buyer, and prices paid.

Personal items—give all such that are of general interest, such as visits of persons abroad and the movements of such people in your community as are generally known.

Let each correspondent think what he would like to hear in the way of news from his native town, should he be absent from it. Then go to work in a plain, concise way and jot down the news for our columns. Use good sense and as few words to tell what you know as possible. Make no effort at fine writing, but express yourself just as if writing to a friend or relative, to give him the news of the day. Be careful in writing names and dates. In addition to the topics we have named, as worthy of notice, write us to the state of the roads, weather, election of officers in churches, secret societies, and the like, and don't forget to chronicle the marriages and similar happenings. During the holidays; Sunday school festivals, Sunday school concerts and church doings, will no doubt furnish news of interest. If you have but little to say, use a postal card. Anyone of our correspondents who will call at our office, will be furnished stamps and stationery for use in sending in his correspondence. Last, send in your letters so that they will not reach us later than Tuesday night and earlier if convenient. Anything of great importance, if such events occur, may be sent in an additional letter if occuring later than Tuesday. Write the news while it is fresh, never postpone to the following week that which you can just as well send now. Writing for the press is excellent practice in orthography, composition and a means of mental discipline, and we hope all to whom we have written in relation to correspondence will accept our offers.

Ladies Take Notice.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity, are respectively invited call at H. H. Stamets' Millinery and Fancy Store, and examine the new and elegant Perfume and Lily White Combined. Nothing like it has ever been offered for sale in here and is pronounced by all parties who have used it to be the finest and best in the market. We shall take pleasure in showing it, whether you buy or not. We have also many new novelties in the Millinery line, which we are offering at astonishing low figures, and cannot be undersold by any house in this place. Come and see us.

H. H. STAMETS,
5m. Sole Agt. for Auburn.

For a Holiday present, nothing is more appropriate than a stereoscope and some of those choice views for sale at Davenport's.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

THE return of William M. Tweed to the scene of his former exploits is an accomplished fact. He reached New York last week, after a long and tedious voyage from Vigo, the Spanish port in which he was discovered and turned over to the United States authorities. He was taken in a carriage from the pier to his old quarters in Ludlow street jail, and is once more in the custody of the law officers of that State.

A NEWLY-MADE bride and groom, of Springfield, Mass., named Gaddey, while going home in a coach from a wedding party, were struck by a locomotive while crossing the Ware River railroad. The bride was fatally injured and the groom was terribly bruised.

THE WEST.

SHERIFF GROOM, of Clay county, Mo., one night last week made a descent on the notorious James boys, the much-feared bandits, at their home, near Kearney, with a posse, but as usual the desperadoes proved too much for the officers. Groom and one of his men fired at the brothers, but the weapons failed to obey, and they escaped.

A NEW revolution has broken out in Lower California, in the interest of Diaz, the rebel who has given the Mexican President so much trouble of late....Judge James K. Knight, of the St. Louis Circuit Court, shot himself, one day last week, under such circumstances as to leave little room for doubt that it was intentional....Navigation has suspended on the upper Mississippi.

THE Illinois State Warehouse Registrar, in his annual report for the year ending Oct. 31, 1876, says the receipts of grain at Chicago, during the year, foot up 56,066,410 bushels, which came in 122,912 railroad cars, 1,240 canal boats, and 11 vessels. The shipments were 53,551,895 bushels, comprising 42,186,419 bushels by water, and 7,659,987 bushels by rail; 3,509,367 bushels were taken from store for city consumption....In a fire, at Chicago, one morning recently, four persons—two men and two women—perished in the flames.

PETER MCCARTNEY, one of the most expert and dangerous counterfeiters that ever inflated the paper currency of the American republic, having been tried and found guilty in the United States Court at Indianapolis, was the other day sentenced to an imprisonment of fifteen years in the penitentiary....The new iron bridge of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad across the Mississippi at LaCrosse, Wis., was recently completed at a cost of $500,000, and tested with a train of forty heavily-laden freight cars. The bridge is 1,688 feet long, having five spans of 150 feet each, two of 164 each, one of 250, and a draw span of 360 feet....Chicago elevators contain 2,839,614 bushels of wheat; 282,590 bushels of corn; 424 399 bushels of oats; 90,060 bushels of rye, and 1,080,206 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 4,716,869 bushels, against 2,637,267 bushels at this period last year.

A FIRE took place in Chicago, on Thanksgiving day, at the corner of South Water street and Michigan avenue, by which a large stone-front business building was totally destroyed. Loss $150,000; insurance, about $100,000.

THE SOUTH.

A TELEGRAM from Louisville, Ky., has the following: "A decision of court that one of the principal gamblers here must pay a fine and suffer six months' imprisonment on account of carrying on the game of faro, has produced considerable stir among that class of the community, because of the precedent. Heretofore by paying fines the gamblers were permitted to continue their game. The present case will be carried to the Court of Appeals, and there tested so far as the imprisonment is concerned. Brethren from Chicago, New York, and elsewhere are here to raise $10,000 by which to test the case."

A BROWNSVILLE (Texas) dispatch says: "A courier arrived to-day from Guanajuato, the native state of Iglesias, Chief Justice and ex-officio Vice President of Mexico, with news that Iglesias had assumed the powers of President of the republic in default of a legal election, and that he had appointed a full Cabinet and other Federal officers. The people of Guanajuato were enthusiastic in his support, and had raised a large sum of money to sustain the Government. The Diaz revolutionists all recognize Iglesias as the legitimate President. Five American citizens went over to Matamoras yesterday on a visit, and were insulted and assaulted by Mexican officers, and then arrested and thrown into prison, and were fined this morning $20 to $70 each, or two months' hard labor on the public works. This outrage has created profound excitement on this side, and offers of hundreds of men are coming in to aid in their rescue, if necessary. Unless our Government takes steps to prevent a repetition of these outrages, there is great danger of an early conflict on this border."

WASHINGTON.

GEN. SHERMAN'S report says: The territory of the United States is divided into three military divisions, viz.: of the Missouri, Atlantic, and Pacific. The Division of the Missouri embraces the States and Territories bordering on the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, extending westward so as to include substantially the entire Rocky mountain chain; is commanded by Lieut. Gen. P. H. Sheridan, with his headquarters in Chicago; and is composed of five separate departments—first, that of Dakota, commanded by Brig. Gen. A. H. Terry, with headquarters at St. Paul; second, that of the Platte, commanded by Brig. Gen. George Crook, with headquarters at Omaha; third, that of Missouri, commanded by Brig. Gen. John Pope, with headquarters at Fort Leavenworth; fourth, that of Texas, commanded by Brig. Gen. E. O. C. Ord, with headquarters at San Antonio; fifth, that of the Gulf, commanded by Brig. Gen. C. C. Augur, with headquarters at New Orleans. The Military Division of the Atlantic embraces the States which border on or are near the Atlantic coast; is commanded by Maj. Gen. W. S. Hancock, with headquarters at New York city; and is composed of—first, the former Departments of the Lakes and East; second, the Department of the South, commanded by Col. T. H. Ruger, Brevet Brigadier General, with headquarters at Atlanta. The Military Division of the Pacific embraces the States and Territories which border on or are near the Pacific coast; is commanded by Maj. Gen. Irvin McDowell, with his headquarters in San Francisco, and is composed of three departments: First, that of the Columbia, commanded by Brig. Gen. O. O. Howard, with headquarters at Portland, Oregon; second, that of California, commanded by Maj. Gen. Irvin McDowell, with headquarters in San Francisco; third, that of Arizona, commanded by Col. A. V. Kautz, Brevet Major General, with headquarters at Prescott.

POLITICAL.

RETURNS at the office of the Secretary of State give Pacheco (Republican) a majority for Congress in the Fourth district of California of one vote.

THE official majority for Tilden in Georgia is 80,185.

THE official vote of Tennessee gives Tilden 133,166; Hayes, 89,566; Porter, 123,740; Thomas, 73,695; Maney, 10,436; Yardley, 2,165; total vote, 210,036....All disputes concerning the majority of Hayes over Tilden in Illinois are ended by the official canvass of the returns, which, taking the highest vote on each electoral ticket, places it at 19,631. The official canvass of the vote for members of the Legislature shows the Republicans to have 79 in the House, against 74 for the Democrats and Independents. Of the Senators-elect, 11 are Republicans and 14 are Democrats and Independents, making the Senate stand—Republicans 23; Democrats, 24; Independents, 2. Upon joint ballot the Republicans have 101, Democrats 98, and Independents 6....E. H. Cree, Senator from Henry and Madison counties, Ind., died the other day. The vacancy will be filled by election, probably giving the Republicans an additional member of the Senate. Cree was elected as Independent, but always voted with the Democrats. This will make a Republican majority of four on joint ballot.

UNITED STATES SENATOR RANSOM, of North Carolina, whose term expires next March, was on the 28th re-elected to the Senate.

GENERAL.

A FURTHER general reduction of rates between all points lying east of the Missouri river is announced by the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company. A circular issued by the company denies that it is not earning its current expenses; states that it is free from debt, except for construction material now in process of erection; has more than $3,650,000 of its own authorized capital stock in the treasury, and owns more than three-fourths of the capital stock of the Franklin Telegraph Company.

UTTER paralysis seems to have fallen upon the iron trade in England. Mills are closed or closing everywhere, workmen are idle, and the inevitable distress is painfully visible. The cause of the sudden and complete stagnation does not seem to be fully understood, but the fact that it extends throughout the principal manufacturing districts of the continent makes it probable that the threatening attitude of Russia and the unsatisfactory condition of affairs in the East may have something to do with it....Commodore Paul Shirley of the United States navy, died recently on a railroad train at Columbus, O.

THE reduction of the price of admission recently voted by the Board of Directors of the Chicago Industrial Exposition, from 50 cents, as heretofore charged, to 25 for adults and 15 cents for children, is to be commended as a wise measure. The great success of the Exposition heretofore, through which the magnificent building and its appliances have been paid for out of the profits, has left the stockholders free from debt, and enabled the Directors to so reduce the price of admission as to insure a large attendance and the annual recurrence of the industrial exhibition for years to come.

EDWIN BOOTH has been defeated in his suit to restrain Jarrett & Palmer from further using the name of "Booth's Theater;" and to recover $10,000 damages for the use of the name since Edwin Booth retired from the management.

FOREIGN.

THE Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, India, Sir Richard Temple, declares that 251,000 persons perished by the recent great cyclone that swept Southeastern Bengal....Subscriptions in St. Petersburg and Moscow alone to the loan of 100,000,000 roubles, authorized by a Russian imperial ukase of Nov. 18, exceed that amount.

IT is stated in a London dispatch that Capt. Allen Young, who commanded the Pandora in her recent trip to the Arctic regions, will, next spring, again attempt a Northwestern passage in that vessel.

THE Queen of England has granted medals to every person serving on the steamers Alert, Discovery, and Pandora during the Arctic expedition....Accounts from the Bombay (India) Presidency relative to the famine are gloomier. This year's rainfall in the distressed districts is not one-third of the average fall. The prospects in the Presidency of Madras also continue unfavorable.

ON Nov. 18 the campaign in Cuba was opened by a severe fight on the plains of Minacs, about midway between Remidios and St. Espiritus. According to Spanish accounts, their forces consisted of only 400 infantry. They were attacked by the insurgents, numbering 300 infantry and 400 cavalry, who had taken up their position on the plains. When the fight commenced the Spaniards were encamped at a place hidden from view of the plains by a small range of hills. The insurgents, by sending out some guerrillas, enticed a portion of the Spanish forces into the plains, where a number fell on them, and, whilst these Spaniards were fighting for their lives, the remainder of the insurgents attacked the other Spanish troops behind the hills. The result of this affair is, that both parties claim a victory, the insurgents, as usual, carrying off the greater portion of their wounded and dead. The Spanish lost thirty-three killed and fifty-nine wounded, among the latter six officers. The insurgents left twenty-four dead on the field.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

Canvass of the Votes in the Three Disputed States.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 24.—The business before the Returning Board to-day consisted for the most part in hearing documents, protests, and affidavits read, and was generally of an unimportant character.

A communication was received from the newspaper correspondents in New Orleans, requesting permission to be present at the session of the board, which was refused.

The board thereafter went into executive session.

Returns from three contested parishes—East Baton Rouge, St. Tammany and Iberia—were taken up. East Baton Rouge has eighteen polling-places, but the returns when opened were from only seven. It is twelve hours distant from New Orleans. Returns from that parish were not sent by mail, and were not filed with the Returning Board till Nov. 23. Many of the affidavits charging intimidation were sworn to in New Orleans, some of them as late as Nov. 22.

The total vote of the parish, as ascertained from the returns of the Commissioners at the polling-places, was 2,238 for Tilden, and 1,626 for Hayes, but the Supervisor of Registration, by consolidating the returns from only seven polling-places, leaving out the other eleven, and omitting to send the original returns from the same, makes a return of only 1,101 votes for Tilden, and 1,427 for Hayes.

Affidavits have been filed stating that the Supervisor in this parish, and in every other parish in the State, is a Republican; that returns from fourteen parishes are still missing; that several of the missing returns were and had been in the city of New Orleans for days, in the hands of persons who were not Supervisors.

After much discussion, the returns of East Baton Rouge were laid aside.

The only parish finished to-day was St. Martin, which gave Tilden 1,623; Hayes, 1,007.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—The Returning Board met at 11:30. Present for the Republicans, Messrs. Stoughton, Van Allen, Wilcox, Kelley and Harker. For the Democrats, Messrs. Palmer, Trumbull, G. B. Smith, Bigler and Julian.

After the reading of the minutes, the filing of a request on the part of the Democrats for representation on the board, and a number of unimportant motions, the board went into executive session.

They then announced the following votes, as compiled from consolidated statements: De Soto—Hayes, 899; Tilden, 1,208. Ouachita—Hayes, 793; Tilden, 1,669. Lincoln—Hayes, 331; Tilden, 1,064. East Feliciana—Hayes, —; Tilden, 1,737. West Feliciana—Hayes, 778; Tilden, 1,249. Richland—Hayes, 277; Tilden, 970. Caddo—Hayes, 2,697; Tilden, 1,484. Sabine—Hayes, 22; Tilden, 906. The votes of these parishes were not canvassed, there being contests fixed for a hearing next week. When the returns from the parishes marked contested were opened, the Democratic counsel were allowed to be present. The returns from DeSoto parish were brought in and contained in one package sealed with wax. When the seals were broken by members of the board there were found inside the consolidated votes of the Commissioners statements and tally-sheets. Attached to the returns were a large number of protests and affidavits. The Secretary of the board said the package had been received on the 18th inst., and was entered in his receipt-book, and the returns, he said, had come by mail. In the course of inspection it was discovered that one of the protests of the Supervisor charging general intimidation was dated Nov. 22, and sworn to in this city before the Commissioner of the Circuit Court. When called upon to explain how a protest dated on the 25th inst. (to-day) could get into a sealed registered package received by mail on the 18th inst., the Secretary said he had received two packages.

After some delay another package was produced, and found to contain a consolidated statement of votes and Commissioners' returns, but no protests or affidavits.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—The Returning Board met at 11 a. m. All the members were present, and a large crowd in the lobby.

Mr. McGloin, counsel for the Democratic candidates, filed a request, which was granted, that the ballot-boxes of East Baton Rouge be sent for, in order that the tally-sheets and statements of votes sealed up in four of the boxes could be obtained and the vote counted.

In executive session the board examined the returns of the following parishes and wards, viz.: Bienville, West Baton Rouge, Bosier, Caldwell, Carroll, Clayborn, Jefferson, Morehouse, Rapides, Red River, St. Landry, Webster, Wenn, and the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, and Seventeenth wards, parish of Orleans. These returns were examined and laid over for future action, there being protests and contests in each case.

In the Seventh ward of Orleans parish the Supervisor threw out the vote of one of the polls, where there was a majority of 178 for Tilden electors, on the ground that the vote had not been counted and returned within twenty-four hours after the close of the election.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Nov. 28.—In the Returning Board, all the members, the Republicans and Democrats, and the counsel were present.

Judge Spofford suggested that the Board should give an order to compel the Supervisors of the following parishes to hand in their returns, viz.: Franklin, Grant, Livingston, Lafayette, and Tangephoa.

Gov. Wells replied that he would give the order for the returns if they were not produced by Wednesday.

The board then went into executive session. Returns were inspected from the remaining wards in this city, and from three parishes. All these were laid over for future action, and the parish of Ouachita was taken up. Four negroes were introduced as witnesses on the Republican behalf, and were examined fully by the board according to the interrogatories. The Democrats will introduce rebutting testimony to-morrow, when the consideration of the Ouachita case will be resumed.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 29.—In the Returning Board, after considerable discussion as to returns not received, Gov. Wells stated that the testimony in the contested cases must be closed by Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Gov. Wells said the board would then go into executive session. He said the Democrats could present two witnesses in the case of Ouachita, and only one could be in the room at a time.

Returns from Lafayette, Grant, and Tangaphoa were brought in during the day. Two polls in Lafayette parish, giving 350 Democratic majority, were not found on the consolidated returns, but the vote was obtained from the accompanying tally-sheets. There was a protest with the returns dated the 28th inst. The vote of one poll in Tangaphoa parish was missing, and the tally-sheets were also absent.

The returns of Grant parish were received from the United States Supervisor. The State Supervisor, after appointing a Commissioner of Election, left the parish before the election, notwithstanding the protest of both Republicans and Democrats. The election was held, however, under the auspices of Democratic and Republican United States Supervisors, with the following result: Hayes, 395; Tilden, 518.

Returns from Vernon, Franklin, and Livingston parishes were opened and laid over. Statements from all the parishes are now in, and the official figures of every parish have been obtained. They vary only a few hundred, due to the throwing out of polls, from figures heretofore telegraphed.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—The board met at 10:30 a. m., all the members present. The minutes having been read and approved, a request for the recount of the vote in New Orleans, signed by all the Republican candidates for city and parish offices in the parish of Orleans, was read, under direction of Mr. Wells. Counsel was heard on the question, which was taken under advisement.

The East Baton Rouge case was called up. The boxes from seven polls in which the Commissioners' returns and tally-sheets had been locked up were brought before the board, that they might be opened to obtain the result of the election at those polls, the Parish Supervisor having omitted any mention of them in his consolidated statement. The board decided not to open the boxes. Similar action was taken in the case of Tangipahoa. By this action the Democrats lose 1,136 votes in East Baton Rouge.

No more witnesses will be heard. All interrogatories, answers, etc., must be filed before 4 p. m. Friday. On Tuesday morning it is understood that the electoral vote and also the vote of the State will be promulgated. The members of the board think that the same testimony applies to the State vote which applies to the electoral vote.

The board adjourned till 10 a. m. to-morrow.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 24.—The State Supreme Court has issued a rule to the State Canvassers and their counsel, D. T. Corbin, to show cause why they should not be attached for violating a writ of prohibition issued on the 17th inst., and issuing certificates in defiance of the court.

The court convened at 4 p. m., in response to the rule issued at the morning session. United States District Attorney Corbin, counsel for the board, introduced an affidavit, asking for further time. The court stated that if he would indicate the line of their defense or assure the court that they would obey its mandamus, further time would be granted. He would not do this, and the request was refused.

The counsel for the relators were instructed to draw the order, but, as a recitation of all the proceedings was required as a preface to the order to commit the board for contempt, they requested until to-morrow morning to file it.

The court said that they hoped the board would in the morning obey its mandate and purge the contempt. If they do not they will be committed to jail.

The counsel for relators then moved that a peremptory mandamus issue to H. E. Payne, Secretary of State, to issue certificates to all members of the General Assembly, including the counties of Edgefield and Laurens, in accordance with the order of the court of Wednesday's session.

Associate Justice Willard said that the relators ought not to pray this at this state of the proceedings, as Mr. Payne was now in contempt, and the court had no assurance that he would obey, as he had disobeyed their mandate already, intimating that the counsel ought, therefore, to await the result of the rule before moving this order.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 25.—The State Supreme Court has just entered a judgment of $1,500 fine each and commitment of all the Board of Canvassers to jail until released by order of the court.

United States District Attorney Corbin, counsel for the State Board of Canvassers, disclaimed any intention of contempt, and asked until Monday to satisfy the court. It was granted. The court is now occupied with arguments on the electoral vote.

The Supreme Court this afternoon took the order under advisement requiring the Board of State Canvassers to make a comparison of the returns of the county canvassers and returns of the precinct managers in the cases of the Presidential electors, and will give decision Monday.

The court declined to issue an order giving certificates to members of the Legislature from Edgefield and Laurens counties, refused by the board, but stated that such members could obtain a copy of the record from the Clerk of the Court, which would be equivalent to a certificate. The five members of the Board of Canvassers, who were constructively arrested this morning, reported at the jail this evening, where they are now confined. Their names are: F. L. Cardozo, Treasurer; T. C. Dunn, Comptroller; Gen. William Stone, Attorney General; H. E. Payne, Secretary of State, and H. W. Purvis, ex-Adjutant and Inspector General, comprising the Board of Canvassers.

The following was sent from Washington on the 26th:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

To Gen. Thomas H. Ruger or Col. H. M. Black, Columbia, S. C.:

The following has been received from the President:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Nov. 26.

The Hon. J. D. Cameron, Secretary of War:

SIR: D. H. Chamberlain is now Governor of the State of South Carolina beyond any controversy, and remains so until a new Governor shall be duly and legally inaugurated. Under the constitution the Government has been called upon to aid, with the military and naval forces of the United States, to maintain a republican Government in the State against resistance too formidable to be overcome by the State authorities. You are directed, therefore, to sustain Gov. Chamberlain in his authority against domestic violence until otherwise directed.

U. S. GRANT.

In obeying these instructions, you will advise with the Governor, and dispose your troops in such manner as may be deemed best in order to carry out the spirit of the above order of the President. Acknowledge receipt.

J. D. CAMERON,
Secretary of War.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 27.—The following dispatch, signed by Senator Gordon, of Georgia, Senator Johnson, of Virginia, Gen. Wade Hampton, several Circuit Judges, a large number of State Senators, Representatives, white and colored, and many other prominent citizens of this State, has just been sent:

To the President of the United States:

We, the undersigned, visitors from a distance, and a committee of the Democratic members-elect of the South Carolina Legislature, and Democratic Executive Committee, and citizens, having just seen by the Associated Press a dispatch that Gov. Chamberlain has applied for United States troops to be placed under his orders at the assembling of the Legislature to-morrow, send this our solemn protest against the troops being placed under command of Gov. Chamberlain. We have no objection to the presence of troops, and will co-operate with them in preserving the peace, but we protest against the use of the United States army in controlling the organization of the Legislature and enforcing the inauguration of Gov. Chamberlain, who has been defeated by the white and colored voters at the ballot-box. There is not the remotest danger of a disturbance of the peace by the Democrats. If it occurs, it will be at the instigation of Gov. Chamberlain, whose partisans have taken the only lives lost in the late exciting canvass in this State. Not one drop of blood has been shed in any political disturbance except by Republicans. It is literally true that the Democrats received their greatest majorities in the counties where the United States soldiers were stationed. What pretense, therefore, is there for Gov. Chamberlain's demand for troops to keep the peace. We refer for confirmation of these statements to the commander of the United States forces at this place and elsewhere in the State.

On application for writs of habeas corpus, the Board of State Canvassers were brought this morning into the United States Circuit Court, Judges Bond and Bryan presiding. The board were in custody of the State officers, who, through counsel, asked for time to make return to the application for the writs. The court signified that time would be granted, and that the prisoners would be held in the custody of the court pending the return. The application was based on the ground that the board were discharging the duties of appointing Presidential electors when the Supreme Court of the State interfered. On a subsequent motion of counsel, time was granted until Wednesday at 10 o'clock, to make a return, pending which the board was placed in charge of the United States Marshal. The members are now at large, but accompanied by Deputy Marshals.

The Democratic counsel and Democratic State Executive Committee telegraphed this afternoon to Chief Justice Waite, requesting his attendance at the United States Circuit Court on Wednesday, when the habeas corpus case of the State Board of Canvassers will be heard. Both parties are in caucus to-night.

The State Supreme Court to-day continued the case of contempt against United States District Attorney Corbin, counsel for the board, until to-morrow. The counsel for the Sheriff of Richland county, who had the canvassers in custody, stated to the Supreme Court that members of the board had been taken from him by habeas corpus, and was ordered to file copies of the papers in court to-morrow.

Gen. Ruger arrived here to-night from Tallahassee.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 28.—No one was allowed to enter the State House this morning, unless on a pass from Mr. Jones, the Clerk of the late House, or Mr. Dennis, United States Marshal.

About 9 o'clock Gen. Gordon, the United States Senator from Georgia, and Gen. Johnson, State Senator of Virginia, with Messrs. Peck and Jeffreys, members of the Legislature, demanded admittance to the State House. The rotunda was filled with troops, and arms were stacked around the Washington statue. Members of the Legislature exhibited their certificates from the Supreme Court of their election, and the corporal of the guard refused them admittance. The Democratic members then met in caucus at 11:15, and proceeded in a body to demand admittance, with John C. Shepard, of Edgefield, at their head. The door was guarded by United States troops and by John B. Dennis, United States Marshal. Shepard asked for admission, whereupon Dennis asked if he had a certificate of election from the Secretary of State. Shepard said he had the certificate of the Supreme Court, and Dennis said: "If you have not the certificate of the Secretary you cannot enter." Shepard then said he demanded the right to read a protest from the Democrats, which he proceeded to do.

Meanwhile Gen. Hampton had an interview with Gen. Ruger, who then changed the orders so as to allow anyone to pass the sentinels who claimed to be elected a member of the Legislature.

Members were thus admitted to the State House, but not to the hall of the Senate or House of Representatives.

The members of the House, holding certificates of the Canvassing Board, were admitted to the chamber.

The Republicans proceeded to organize. Fifty-nine members answered to their names. Mr. Jones, the Clerk of the old House, declared fifty-nine to be a quorum.

At the call of the roll E. W. M. Mackey received fifty-seven out of the fifty-nine votes, and was declared the duly elected Speaker. The Democrats retired, and Mr. Mackey took the chair.

In explanation of these proceedings, it must be remembered that the House, when full, consists of 124 members, and 63 being a majority are a quorum for the transaction of business. The Democrats, including the 9 disputed members from Edgefield and Laurens, have 64 members, and the Republicans only 60, when all their members are present. The Democrats claim that 63 is the lawful quorum, while the Republicans claim that a majority of the members admitted by the canvassers to be elected, viz: 115, is a quorum, and with their 59 have gone to work.

Mackey, on taking his seat as Speaker, delivered a speech, and the 59 members were then sworn in, only one Republican being absent.

O. A. Jones, the former colored Clerk, was elected and sworn in.

The House, as now organized, consists of 5 whites and 54 negroes.

The Democratic members-elect to the House of Representatives met at 7 p. m. in Carolina Hall. Sixty-four Democrats and two Republicans participated, and were sworn in by Judge Cook. The House organized and will claim recognition to-morrow. This leaves fifty-eight members in the Republican House, or one less than the quorum claimed by them, and five less than the number which the Democrats claim is necessary for a quorum. Each House will demand of the Secretary of State the returns of the vote for Governor.

The Supreme Court has not yet decided the question of counting the electoral vote.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 29.—The situation to-day is unchanged, with the exception that the Republican House has been in session all the morning, but was unable to transact business on account of the absentees, which leaves it without a quorum. The Senate in discussing the concurrent resolution passed by the House yesterday to go into a canvass of the returns for Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

The Democratic House went into secret session in Carolina Hall. They received the report of the committee appointed yesterday to obtain the returns from the Secretary of State for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the committee reporting that the Secretary had surrendered the returns to Mackey, the Speaker of the Republican House.

The military still garrison the State House.

The Supreme Court last end adjourned without transacting any business, the lawyers being engaged in making a return to the habeas corpus case of the Board of Canvassers in Judge Bond's United States Circuit Court.

The only matter of importance that transpired in the afternoon was that the missing member of the Republican Legislature was discovered and brought in, which gave that body their quorum of fifty-nine.

Immediately afterward the Committee on Privileges and Elections, appointed yesterday by Speaker Mackey, submitted a report, seating the Republican members—five in number—from Barnwell county.

In the Senate the concurrent resolution passed yesterday by the House, providing for a canvass of the returns for Governor and Lieutenant Governor to-day at 3 p. m., was amended by naming 12 m. Friday, to which time the Senate adjourned.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 30.—The Democratic House took peaceable possession of the State Legislature Hall at their regular hour of convening—11 o'clock—this morning. The Republican House entered the hall at noon, the regular hour of meeting. Both Speakers are on the stand. Wallace, Democrat, is in the chair, and Mackey, Republican, at the Clerk's desk. Everything is peaceable, and good temper prevails. No person is allowed in the hall except members.

Gen. Ruger has sent his staff officer to the Speaker's stand, and notified the Democratic Speaker, Wallace, that at noon to-morrow the Democratic members from Edgefield would not be permitted on the floor of the House. Upon receipt of that order, a protest was immediately sent to Gen. Ruger.

FLORIDA.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 24.—The arguments in the injunction and mandamus cases were continued to-day before Judge White. Mr. Sellers and Judge Baddle, of Philadelphia, in speeches, and Gov. Brown, of Georgia, by written argument, appeared for the Democrats, and Gen. Barlow and Judge Emmons for the Republicans. The court adjourned without rendering a decision.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 25.—The Board of Canvassers received notification this morning from the Secretary of State, who is ex-officio a member of the board, and charged with calling it together, that they must meet at 12 o'clock noon Monday, to canvass the vote of the State.

The Judge has not yet decided the injunction and mandamus cases now pending before him.

The board will admit a committee of five from each of the political parties and the Chairmen of the two State Committees to its sessions.

The official returns are all in. The result will hardly be reached before the 6th of December, when, by law of the United States, electors' certificates must be issued.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 27.—The Canvassing Board met to-day in the office of the Secretary of State, Mr. McLin in the chair.

A protest was filed by the Republican electors against Attorney General Cocke's sitting as a member of the board, on the ground that he had virtually decided and given a decision prior to the assembling of the board, in that he had telegraphed that the Democrats had certainly carried the State, and that the Republicans could not cheat them out of it.

Mr. Cocke stated that he had sent the dispatch in reply to a friend in Baltimore, who had asked his opinion, and who had furnished it to the newspapers. He respectfully submitted that the dispatch and the opinion therein contained did not disqualify him for sitting as a member of the board.

The protest was entered, and the Board proceeded with the regular business.

Mr. Cowgill moved that Gov. Stearns and Gen. Brannan, commanding the troops at this point, be admitted to the sessions of the board.

Mr. Cocke amended by adding the name of Mr. G. F. Drew. The amendment was accepted.

The board then went into private session, and adopted rules for its government.

The board then agreed to admit six gentlemen from abroad and six local politicians from each side.

Adjourned till to-morrow, 10 o'clock.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 28.—The Board of Canvassers met at 10 o'clock this morning. There were present for the Republicans Gen. Barlow, of New York; Messrs. Ampt and Noyes, of Ohio; Lew Wallace and Mr. Bradley, of Indiana; W. E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, and several local politicians. For the Democrats appeared Messrs. Manton Marble and Paris, of New York; G. W. Biddle, D. W. Sellers, J. R. Read, Samuel W. Thompson, Malcolm Hay, G. W. Guthrie, of Pennsylvania; C. W. Wooley, of Ohio; L. Saltonstall, of Massachusetts; Mr. John F. Coyle, of Washington; Charles Gibson, Missouri; Perry Smith, of Illinois; J. E. Brown and P. M. B. Young, of Georgia, with several local politicians.

Gen. Brannon, of the United States army, had a seat inside the railing with the board.

The Secretary at once began the opening of the sealed packages of votes. As the reading proceeded the Republicans gave notice that they would contest the counties of Columbia, Hillsboro, Holmes, Jackson, Levy, Liberty, Manatee, Nassau, Orange, Putnam, Polk, Santa Rosa, Sumter, Suwanee, Taylor, Volusia, Wakula, Walton, and Washington.

The Democrats gave notice of contest in Alachua, Baker, Clay, Duval, Escambia, Gadsden, Jefferson, Leon, and Marion.

The result of the electoral vote, as read from the face of the returns, was as follows on the electoral ticket, from the highest votes on each considered: Republican majorities, 7,460; Democratic majorities, 7,418; Republican net majority, 42.

Dade county is not yet in. The majority in this county cannot be over twenty either way. The Democrats have a claim of twenty-three votes in Clay county, which appear on the face of the return from that county, but are not added up in the general result because it is not in evidence that the inspectors and clerk were sworn. The twenty-three votes will be counted probably by common consent. This would leave a majority of nineteen for the Republican electors.

At the close of the day's session the board was considering the case of Baker county, from which there were two sets of returns, one giving a Republican majority of forty-one, the other giving ninety-four Democratic majority.

Every county in the State is contested.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 29.—The Board of Canvassers met at 10 o'clock.

When Alachua county was called, the Democrats introduced objections to Archer precinct, in Alachua, reciting that the returns from that precinct had been raised 219 votes over the true poll cast. They supported their claim by affidavits, one from Mr. Fleming, who swore he had stood at the door and taken the name of every voter as it was called, and that only 319 votes were cast, whereas the return sent up claimed that 538 were cast.

Affidavits were also presented from members of the County Board. One swears that he was cognizant of this fraud, and would not sign the returns. Another swears that he knew the frauds had been committed, but felt bound to sign the return, that it might go to the State Board for final action.

There is also the affidavit of a Circuit Judge, who swears that he saw the Archer ballot-box opened by the proper officials, and counted, and that only 316 votes were found therein. In the afternoon, the Republicans introduced counter-affidavits from Moore and Dukes, the two inspectors, and Belton and Webster, the two members of the Canvassing Board referred to, all of whom swear that their former affidavits were made under duress, fear, or apprehension, and were false.

The Democrats introduced a third affidavit from Belton, who swore that if he gave any second affidavit he was not responsible or in his true mind when he did so.

In Clay county the Democrats called attention to the omission of twenty-three Democratic votes through a technical objection which they removed by papers filed before the board.

There will hardly be any contest over these votes.

In Baker county the Democrats produced an affidavit from the Clerk of the Court certifying that the return which gives the Democrats ninety-five majority was the true and only return from the county of Baker.

They presented further certified copies of each of the precinct returns in Baker county, regularly signed by the precinct inspectors, which footed up precisely the result that was recited in the true return.

The board then adjourned until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 30.—The Board of Canvassers met at 10 o'clock to-day. Alachua county was called and passed, and Baker county taken up. The Democratic managers called attention to the fact that the second return from Baker, besides the points of illegality brought against it yesterday, was signed by a Justice of the Peace appointed since the election; that it was not certified to in the County Clerk's office; and that the County Clerk was not summoned to attend the canvass upon which it was based, and that official precinct returns were omitted from that return and a false result reached. The Alachua county testimony was listened to with interest. The Democrats first offered testimony that the alleged affidavit from Green R. Moore, purporting to deny certain facts in another affidavit he had made, was dated and executed the 30th, while the affidavit he proposed to retract was dated and executed the 23d. They then pronounced the affidavit purporting to be from Floyd Dukes a square forgery. They then introduced Moore and Dukes as witnesses. Moore swore specifically that all points in the affidavit of the 23d were true; that he had stated the facts therein contained openly time and again; that he was inspector at Archer and only 316 votes were cast or counted; that 535 votes were not cast; that he signed the election certificate in blank, not thinking there could be any dispute; that he was approached the other day by Barnes, a Republican Sheriff of the county, who offered him $100 if he would sign a paper. He asked if he had to swear to it. He was told he would not. He then signed it, and received the money. This paper was the one produced by the court as a counter-affidavit. Floyd Dukes, colored, swore that he was inspector at Archer precinct; that only 316 votes were cast; that he can't read or write, and that he never signed a paper saying 535 votes were cast. Upon the counter-affidavit alleged to have been signed by him being read, he swore he did not sign it; that ex-Congressman Wales and Justice Bolton came to his house to get him to sign it, and offered him $25 if he would sign it, but he refused to do so. The Democrats then called attention to the fact that in affidavits from several hundred negroes, swearing that they voted at Archer precinct, eleven names appear in two places, two names in three places, three names of men long since dead, and two names of men proven to have voted elsewhere. The Republicans submitted objections to two precincts in Columbia county, alleging that the Democratic inspector industriously changed ballots when they were handed him, and that the negroes were taken by three Democrats into a swamp a week before the election, and, after various outrages, were made to swear on their knees that they would vote the Democratic ticket.

Pending the preparation of papers, in other cases, the board adjourned.

FORMER PRESIDENTIAL VOTES.

A Table Worth Reading Just Now.

Year.	Candidates.	Popular vote.	Electoral vote.
1789	George Washington	......	Unanim's
1796	John Adams	......	71
	Thomas Jefferson	......	68
1800	Thomas Jefferson	......	73
	Aaron Burr	......	73
	John Adams	......	65
1804	Thomas Jefferson	......	162
	C. C. Pinckney	......	14
1808	James Madison	......	122
	C. C. Pinckney	......	47
1812	James Madison	......	128
	Dewitt Clinton	......	89
1816	James Monroe	......	183
	Rufus King	......	34
1820	James Monroe	......	Only one elect'l vote in oppos'n
1824	John Q. Adams	105,321	84
	Andrew Jackson	155,872	99
	W. H. Crawford	44,282	41
	Henry Clay	46,587	37
1828	Andrew Jackson	647,231	178
	John Q. Adams	509,097	83
1832	Andrew Jackson	687,502	219
	Henry Clay	530,189	49
	John Floyd	......	11
	William Wirt	......	7
1836	Martin Van Buren	761,549	170
	Wm. H. Harrison	736,656	73
1840	Wm. H. Harrison	1,275,011	234
	Martin Van Buren	1,135,761	60
1844	James K. Polk	1,337,243	170
	Henry Clay	1,299,062	105
	James G. Birney	62,300
1848	Zachary Taylor	1,360,099	163
	Lewis Cass	1,220,544	127
	Martin Van Buren	291,263
1852	Franklin Pierce	1,601,474	254
	Winfield Scott	1,386,578	42
	John P. Hale	155,825
1856	James Buchanan	1,838,169	174
	John C. Fremont	1,341,264	114
	Millard Fillmore	874,534	8
1860	Abraham Lincoln	1,866,352	180
	Stephen A. Douglas	1,375,157	12
	John C. Breckinridge	845,763	72
	John Bell	589,581	39
1864	Abraham Lincoln	2,216,067	212
	G. B. McClellan	1,808,725	21
1868	Ulysses S. Grant	3,015,071	214
	Horatio Seymour	2,709,613	80
1872	Ulysses S. Grant	3,597,070	286
	Horace Greeley	2,834,079

From the above table it appears that Adams in 1824 (elected by the House of Representatives), Van Buren in 1836, Polk in 1844, Taylor in 1848, Buchanan in 1856, and Lincoln in 1860, were all elected with a popular vote against them.

A BANK employe in Paris, named Jonas, left a sack containing 1,000 francs in a cab the other day. The cabman found the money, and, hastening to the Bank of France, restored it to the clerk, who was overjoyed at its recovery. He at once borrowed a twenty-franc piece, and handed it to the cabman, but the latter declined to take it, saying, "Never! Do you think that I should be willing to profit by the misfortune of one who, like me, works for his living?"

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	8 00	@11 00
HOGS	5 75	@ 6 00
COTTON	12	@ 12¾
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 65	@ 5 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 28	@ 1 30
CORN—Western Mixed	58	@ 60
OATS—No. 2 Chicago	45	@ 47
RYE—Western	80	@ 85
PORK—New Mess	16 50	@17 00
LARD—Steam	10⅛	@ 10¼

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@ 5 25
Choice Natives	4 60	@ 4 90
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 60
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 25
Medium to Fair	4 25	@ 4 50
HOGS—Live	4 75	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring, New	1 12½	@ 1 12¾
No. 3 Spring	1 05	@ 1 06
CORN—No. 2	43½	@ 44
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 33
RYE—No. 2	65	@ 66
BARLEY—No. 2, New	82	@ 85
BUTTER—Creamery	30	@ 34
EGGS—Fresh	23	@ 26
PORK—Mess	15 75	@16 00
LARD	9⅝	@ 10

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 30	@ 1 32
CORN—Western Mixed	41	@ 42
OATS—No. 2	30	@ 31
RYE—No. 2	63	@ 65
PORK—Mess	16 00	@16 25
LARD	9½	@ 10
HOGS	5 35	@ 5 90
CATTLE	2 50	@ 5 75

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 18	@ 1 19
No. 2	1 14	@ 1 15
CORN—No. 2	45	@ 46
OATS—No. 2	31	@ 32
RYE	65	@ 66
BARLEY—No. 2	75	@ 76

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 15	@ 1 27
CORN	38	@ 40
OATS	30	@ 36
RYE	68	@ 70
PORK—Mess	15 75	@16 00
LARD	9⅞	@ 10⅛

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Extra	1 37	@ 1 39
Amber	1 28	@ 1 30
CORN	49	@ 50
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 34

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

HOGS—Yorkers	5 60	@ 5 80
Philadelphias	5 70	@ 5 90
CATTLE—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Medium	4 30	@ 4 75
SHEEP	3 00	@ 4 50

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

October.

Thine hour is come, O minstrel of the year.
The daughters of the summer, one by one,
Have passed in beauty by,
Fulfilling each her happy ministry—
They of the bud, the bloom, the fruit, are gone,
And now the sovereign sun stoops kindly near,
Beckoning to thee, the last, the loveliest, to appear.

Spirit of beauty! even imperial June
Pales in thy presence; though her brow she twine
With lily and with rose,
And silvery white her bridal vesture flows.
Her loveliness is of the perfect noon;
Thine of the sunset, when heaven's colors shine
And flood the dazzled earth with brilliancy divine.

I see thee linger in the dusky wood,
Thy pensive gaze uplifted to the skies,
As if in some long dream
Thou hadst been waiting for this hour supreme.
A listening hush upon the forest lies,
For, yet unused to this strange solitude,
All nature seems to share thy rapt, expectant mood.

Sing, poet of the year! The musing hours
Thrill with a tender awe since thou art near—
The very winds are still,
And breathless odors waft o'er vale and hill.
Touch thy soft harp to numbers low and clear,
And while the leaves fall in forsaken bowers,
Breathe in softest tones the death-song of the flowers.

Sing of the hopes that were in springtime sweet
But found no place among our ripened sheaves;
Of days once fresh and fair,
Now tinted with gold and lit with colors rare;
Fancies and visions, now like autumn leaves
Tossing in [illegible] beneath our feet—
Memorials of a past so lovely, though so fleet!

And sing of those who all around us lie
In silence wrapt, and holden from our sight
Even as the frozen mold
Will soon thy glorious crimson garments hold.
Yet dost thou smile at winter's deathly night;
Thy beauty lives—an endless prophecy
That death is but a sleep, and we shall never die.

Thy first prelusive note is like a bell
Summoning earth to memory and to prayer.
Through all our golden days
May our full hearts in kindred tones of praise
The rapture of thy minstrel spirit share!
Then with thy closing anthem's joyous swell,
From new-found heights of peace we may respond—farewell.

Around the Farm.

MANY farmers have yet to learn that one animal will return twice as much good meat for any given quantity of food consumed as another; so that, while the inferior one gives no profit to the owner, the superior stock pays handsomely.

IT is far better to enjoy life in old age with your children than to have slaved to leave them a fortune, while you lie down in a premature grave. Let the duties of farmers' wives be lessened, and furnish abundant help for the work to be performed.—Southern Farmer.

GOESSMANN gives the following table showing the weight of a bushel of various foods used for live stock:

Wheat	45	to 46	lbs.
Corn	42	to 43	..
Cotton seed	33	to 39	..
Linseed	40½	to 41	..
English turnips	37	to 37½	..
Swedish turnips	35	to 36	..
Red-top hay	4	to 5	..
Timothy hay		4½	..
Red clover	5	to 6	..

GET the best hands, and keep them. When a man has become used to his work and his employer, he is worth much more than a stranger. There is a way of making men interested in their work, of satisfying their self-respect, giving them credit for success, while holding them strictly responsible for failures, and above all by paying them promptly and liberally, that will make their work worth double what it would otherwise be.—Exchange.

THE "milk mirror," or "escutcheon" in cattle is that growth of hair upon the back and inside of the thighs which, instead of lying smoothly downward, points upward and makes several curls at the parts where the direction of the hair is changed. The shape and extent of this upward growth of hair has been supposed to denote a special aptitude for producing milk. In male animals the milk mirror is held to denote hereditary tendency to transmit milking propensities to the produce.

A BED sown with spinach, which upon the advent of freezing weather is covered with a thin coating of straw, will give the owner many an enjoyable meal in advance of any other fresh crop. Then, too, a few plants of lettuce set out on a warm, sunny slope on the side of ridges, will be ready for cutting very early, and will be acceptable to almost every one. Onions planted now make early greens, as two or three warm days after the frost is out starts them into growth. All such crops will be better for a thin coating of straw.

FARMERS waste too much feed for the want of proper feed racks and proper shelter for stock. The cheapness of the feed is no excuse for the waste. Stock fed out on the ground trample underfoot and waste almost as much as they eat, if the ground be muddy. Now is the time to prepare for judicious, economical feeding, by making shelter, with mangers and racks to save the feed. By keeping the stock comfortable, they do better on less feed, yet how often we see stock running out all the winter in the mud, knee deep, wasting feed and flesh enough to build good shelter and feed racks.—Western Agriculturist.

About the House.

SWEET APPLE PIE.—Stew till soft, having peeled and cored them, strain through a colander, add a little cream or milk and two eggs to every quart of apple. Season with lemon peel, stewed with the apples, or with nutmeg or cinnamon. Bake with only a thin undercrust, like custard pie.

CENTENNIAL SPONGE CAKE.—Two cups of sugar, two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, four eggs, one cup of boiling water. Mix the eggs, sugar, flour, and baking-powder thoroughly together, add the boiling water; stir quickly; put into pans and bake immediately. If desired to be very moist bake in a quick oven.

THE number of horses in Great Britain fell from 1,461,061 in 1869 to 1,276,444 in 1873; but the number has since increased, though not yet equal to that of 1869; in 1875 the number was 1,340,129. In Ireland, horses rose from 527,248 in 1869 to 540,745 in 1872, but fell to 526,160 in 1875. The total of the United Kingdom for 1865 was 1,866,289.

GOOD MINCE PIES.—Six pounds beef, five pounds suet, five pounds sugar, two ounces allspice, two ounces cloves, three-fourths of a pound of cinnamon, half a pint molasses, one and a fourth pounds seedless raisins, two pounds currants, half a pound citron chopped fine, one pound of almonds chopped fine, two oranges, one lemon skin, and all chopped fine; two parts chopped apples to one of meat, brandy and cider to taste.

STEAK should be turned repeatedly, and when firm to the touch should be taken off, laid on a hot dish on which one and one-half ounces of butter has been melted, less than one-half teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of white pepper, and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, well mixed; lay the steak on one side, and then on the other.

TO PRESERVE EGGS.—Dissolve some gum shellac in a sufficient quantity of alcohol to make a thin varnish. Give each a coat, and after they have become thoroughly dry pack them in bran or sawdust in such a manner that they cannot shift about. After you have kept them as long as you desire, wash the varnish carefully off and the eggs will be in the same state that they were before packing, ready either for eating or hatching.

OLIVE HARPER writes: "When you once eat of macaroni as it is prepared in Italy you find it like the Turkish coffee—something the soul delights in. Why don't we have macaroni cooked in the same way? We have an insensate way of tumbling a handful into a basin of soup, which comes out pasty stuff, good for nothing. I took the pains to get an authentic recipe for cooking macaroni, and for all who wish a most delicious, easy, cheap dish, I write it: Take three pints of beef soup, clear, and put one pound of macaroni in it and boil fifteen minutes, with a little salt; then take up the macaroni—which should have absorbed nearly all the liquid—and put it on a flat plate, and sprinkle grated cheese over it thickly, and pour over all plentifully a sauce made of tomatoes, well-boiled, strained, and seasoned with salt and pepper. Some people prefer to only put the cheese on it, but I prefer it with the tomato as well. If anybody don't like that when it is done it is because he don't know what is good."

A Missouri Pigeon Roost.

Pigeons have come into this part of the country by millions. Of evenings the sky is darkened with them. They have made Dodson's farm their headquarters, and at nights the trees and underbrush are loaded down with multitudes. A little before sundown large armies of pigeons are seen coming from different points of the compass, but each army passes onward, as if they intended to change their roosting-place. After a while they return and settle on the trees around the roost, not many of them nearer than a mile of the place. They make sudden flights from these trees, and the sound of their wings is like that of a great storm. There is a constant roaring in the air as myriads of the birds fly to and fro. About dark they fly toward the roost, and for a long time fly round and round, and have the appearance of bees swarming, although the vast number and the tornado-like roaring they make surpasses anything in the power of man to describe. After a while they alight on the trees and bushes, and the limbs are bent downward, often are broken off.

The pigeons keep up a constant chattering, which can be heard for miles away. They are never still during the night. So far as sleep is concerned, such a thing is out of the question with a pigeon. They are disturbed by themselves—such throngs assembling in a spot that none can be still for a moment, and the incessant discharging of firearms among them causes them to change their location almost constantly. This roost is visited every night by crowds of men, some with guns and others with poles, which they use in thrashing down the pigeons which happen to be at the point struck.

Hundreds are killed every night, but when light appears the vast armies again go forth with apparently as much vigor as ever. Pigeons have been killed in New York with undigested rice in their crops, which they had evidently gathered in the rice-fields in the Carolinas. From these and other circumstances, it has been estimated that a pigeon flies at the rate of a mile a minute.

Imagine, then, millions upon millions of these birds all on the wing at the same time over a scope of country not more than two miles square, and a faint idea of the noise they make may be obtained. But no one can ever fully imagine what a pigeon roost is, or how much noise they make, until one is seen and heard.

There is an abundance of mast here now, and we suppose that the pigeons will remain here until it is all gone. One curious circumstance is that in the neighborhood of this pigeon roost we never see a pigeon from the time they leave of mornings until they return of evenings. They are not eating the mast here at all, but somewhere they are all feasting luxuriantly, for they are all fat.—Southland (Mo.) Rustic.

Land Office Decisions.

Copp's Land Owner for November reports decisions by the Secretary of the Interior in effect as follows: The filing of a declaratory pre-emption statement before settlement does not invalidate a right in the absence of an adverse claim. All ex-parte evidence filed after the close of a hearing in a contested land case, before local land officers, must be rejected except as a basis for an application for a new hearing. All documents and exhibits filed in a case after the same has passed beyond the jurisdiction of the General Land Office must be passed upon by the department proper, and no paper thus filed should be rejected by the General Land Office.

School Grants.—Where a party settled on land in the fifteenth or thirty-sixth section long prior to the survey thereof, but has exhausted his pre-emption privilege, he cannot, by a homestead entry, prevent the tract from passing under the school grant.

Swamp Lands.—To settle upon lands of a swampy character would raise such a doubt of the settler's good faith as upon proper application to justify an order for an investigation. At such hearing the character of the land at the date of settlement should be determined. When notice of selection of a tract by the State is received at the local land office the State should be notified before proof and payment is made by the settler thereon; but where patents have been issued under former rulings of the Interior Department the cases will be considered res judicata.

NOTES OF THE ELECTION.

—Tilden's majority in Alabama is 34,383.

—The official majority for Tilden in New Jersey is 12,475.

—Illinois is the banner greenback State. Peter Cooper received 16,000 votes in the State.

—The American people are troubled with a large amount of good sense, and this is an excellent thing for expounders of the constitution and nervous citizens just now to make a note of.

—The vote of Rhode Island is as follows:

Hayes	15,800
Tilden	10,686
Hayes' majority	4,075

—The result in Maine:

Hayes	66,130
Tilden	49,410
Whole number	115,540
Republican majority	16,720

—The official vote of Pennsylvania is as follows:

Hayes	384,148
Tilden	366,204
Cooper	7,204
Smith, Prohibition	1,319

—The official returns for Minnesota show Hayes' majority to be 24,000. The three Republican Congressmen are elected by the following majorities: Dunnell, 7,945; Strait, 4,730; Stewart, 2,040.

—Official vote of Cook county, Ill., embracing the city of Chicago:

Total vote	76,065
Tilden	38,940
Hayes	36,548
Cooper	577
Tilden's majority	2,415

—"Now you see it and now you don't" is a pleasing and exhilarating performance for a few seconds, but when it is applied to politics and repeated incessantly for two or three weeks, it becomes monotonous.

—Joseph Jorgensen, Congressman-elect from the Fourth District of Virginia, has entered suit in the Circuit Court of Richmond against the proprietors of the Richmond Dispatch for alleged libel, laying damages at $10,000.

—The official vote of New Hampshire is:

Hayes	41,522
Tilden	38,449
Scattering	74
Hayes' majority	2,999

—Vote of Illinois:

Total vote	553,850
Hayes	278,076
Tilden	258,560
Cooper	17,057
Scattering	157
Hayes over Tilden	19,516
Hayes over all	303

—Official vote of Connecticut for President:

Total vote	122,156
Tilden	61,934
Hayes	59,034
Cooper	774
Smith	378
Tilden's plurality	2,900
Tilden's majority	1,748

—The official vote of Missouri has been canvassed, and foots up as follows:

Total vote	350,583
Tilden	202,687
Hayes	144,398
Cooper	3,498
Tilden over Hayes	58,289
Tilden over Hayes and Cooper	54,791

—The complete official returns of all the counties in Iowa show the following result:

Hayes	171,327
Tilden	112,099
Cooper	9,001
Anti-secret society	26
Hayes over Tilden	59,228
Hayes over all	50,201
Total	292,453

—The official vote of Maryland for President and Vice President is as follows: Tilden, 91,780; Hayes, 71,981; Tilden's majority, 19,799. The official majorities of Representatives to Congress, all Democratic, are: M. Henry, First District, 3,382; Charles B. Roberts, Second District, 3,019; William Kimmell, Third District, 5,659; Thomas Swann, Fourth District, 2,531; Eli J. Henkle, Fifth District, 2,731; William Walsh, Sixth District, 14.

—The following summary of the October and November votes in Ohio will show at a glance the result at each election:

For President, 1876.		For Secretary, 1876.
Hayes (Rep.)	330,698	Barnes (Rep.)	318,176
Tilden (Dem.)	323,182	*Bell, Jr., (Dem.)	311,220
Cooper (G'back.)	3,057	Chapman (Pro.)	1,363
Smith (Pro.)	1,636	Total vote	631,759
Walker (A. M.)	76	Rep. plurality	6,956
Total vote	658,649	Rep. majority	5,098
Rep. plurality	7,516	*Renominated.
Rep. majority	2,747

—The following is the vote of the State of New York on President and Governor:

Total vote for President	1,011,497
Tilden	522, 35
Hayes	489,362
Tilden's majority over Hayes	32,773
Total vote for Governor	1,009,283
Robinson	519,783
Morgan	489,500
Robinson's majority	30,283

Cooper, Greenback, and Smith, Prohibition, have each polled about 3,000, which will make the total vote in the State for President about 1,017,000.

—Official vote of Kansas, with the exception of Barton and Pratt counties:

Hayes	77,510
Tilden	37,471
Hayes' majority	40,039

The majority of Anthony, Rep., for Governor, over Martin, Dem., is 22,663, and over all candidates, 16,245. The majority of Phillips (Rep.) for Congress in the First district is 12,382. Haskell (Rep.) for Congress, in the Second district, receives 5,270 majority over Goodin (Dem.), and 5,208 over all candidates. Ryan (Rep.), for Congress in the Third district, has a majority of 12,575.

—The official vote for Presidential electors in Virginia shows the following results: For Hayes, 95,565; Tilden, 138,671. The vote for members of Congress, compared with the result two years ago was as follows:

	1876.		1874.
Dist.	Rep.	Dem.	Rep.	Dem.
1	10,940	14,238	10,469	10,783
2	14,989	16,898	13,521	13,890
3	13,480	15,886	10,710	13,325
4	13,936	12,203	14,583	8,801
5	9,842	15,146	7,723	10,221
6	11,127	16,425	8,707	10,706
7	6,260	17,148	3,214	9,280
8	10,178	16,680	9,791	9,889
9	4,791	18,127	1,931	8,062

—Official returns from 101 counties in Kentucky, says a Louisville dispatch, give Tilden 60,100 majority. Sixteen counties are yet to be heard from, but they will not materially change these figures. Tilden's majority shows an increase of 60 per cent. over the Democratic vote of last year. Congressional results are reported as follows: First District—Boone (Dem.), 10,994; Turner (Ind.), 8,154; Houston (Rep.), 5,221. Fourth District—J. Proctor Knott, (Dem.), 15,735; Lewis (Rep.), 6,982. Sixth District—Carlisle (Dem.), 16,404; Landrum (Rep.), 8,133. Seventh District—Blackburn (Dem.), 18,844; Shackelford (Rep.), 9,384. Eighth District—Durham (Dem.), 15,482; Bradley (Rep.), 12,654. Five additional districts also elect Democrats, but the vote is not yet officially reported.

—The official canvass of the Wisconsin election shows the following result:

Total vote of the State	256,028
Hayes	130,067
Tilden	123,926
Cooper	1,509
Hayes' majority over Tilden	6,041

The vote by districts for Congressmen is as follows: First district, C. G. Williams, 18,206; H. G. Winslow, 12,478. Second district, L. B. Caswell, Republican, 15,078; Harlow S. Orton, Democrat, 14,745. Third district, George C. Hazelton, Republican, 15,639; H. A. Orton, Democratic, 18,034. Fourth district, Wm. H. Lynde, Democratic, 17,653; Wm. E. Smith, Republican, 11,952. Fifth district, Ed. S. Bragg, Democratic, 19,544; Geo. W. Carter, Republican, 14,031. Sixth district, Gabe Bouck, Democratic, 20,623; A. M. Kimball, Republican, 19,847. Seventh district, H. L. Humphrey, Republican, 20,702; M. B. Gage, Democratic, 13,223. Eighth district, Thad. C. Pound, Republican, 14,838; George W. Cate, Democratic, 13,849.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Tenth Annual Meeting of the National Grange.

The National Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry held its tenth annual session at the Palmer House, Chicago, last week. The session was an entirely secret one; but the enterprising reporters obtained from the minutes of Wm. M. Ireland, Esq., of Washington, D. C., an honorary member, some interesting figures. Mr. Ireland has for ten years been considered one of the most prominent men in the order. The following figures, illustrating the progress of the Grange, were furnished by him:

Year.	Granges.	Receipts.	Expenditures.
1868	1	$ 267.19	$ 216.49
1869	10	....	1,055.15
1870	47	902.61	1,341.47
1871	170	4,706.45	2,330.77
1872	417	2,158.50	....
1873	1,105	....	....
1874	1,309	....	....
1875	11,941	216,381.02	178,517.27
1876	24,290	102,143.07	76,008.54

The National Grange consists of the Masters of the several State Granges and their wives, the officers who were elected last November, at St. Louis, for three years, being also members ex officio.

The following table shows the number of subordinate Granges and paying members in each State at the date of the last annual meeting:

States.	Granges.	Members.
Alabama	678	17,440
Arkansas	634	20,471
California	263	14,278
Colorado	69	2,096
Connecticut	16	480
Delaware	23	503
Florida	148	3,804
Georgia	708	17,826
Illinois	1,502	29,028
Indiana	2,036	60,298
Iowa	2,004	51,332
Kansas	1,373	40,261
Kentucky	1,618	52,463
Louisiana	316	10,078
Maine	189	8,347
Maryland	158	5,635
Massachusetts	100	3,826
Michigan	609	31,196
Minnesota	546	16,617
Mississippi	669	30,797
Missouri	2,034	80,059
Nebraska	620	8,177
Nevada	15	378
New Hampshire	69	2,528
New Jersey	96	4,495
New York	354	11,728
North Carolina	540	10,168
Ohio	1,216	58,327
Oregon	186	8,283
Pennsylvania	615	22,471
South Carolina	357	10,922
Tennessee	1,097	37,581
Texas	1,210	37,619
Vermont	207	10,193
Virginia	670	13,885
West Virginia	342	5,990
Wisconsin	514	17,226
Territories.	Granges.	Members.
Dakota	56	1,178
District of Columbia	1	45
Idaho	16	390
Montana	36	916
Indian Territory	15	450
Washington	66	1,169

There are now in operation about 27,000 Granges, with a total membership of about 1,100,000, or, say, 400,000 families.

The following table shows the receipts and expenditures of the National Grange for the last year:

RECEIPTS.
Cash on hand	$ 28,741.62
Charter fees from new Granges	30,045.57
Dues from Granges	42,952.50
Sales of manuals, etc	8,093.56
Interest	2,310.82
Total	$102,143.07
EXPENDITURES.
Salaries and expenses	$ 43,091.34
Printing and stationery	5,599.06
Regalia, tools, and boxes	6,144.19
Postage, telegraphing, and expressage	3,614.61
Rent, gas, water, fuel, and insurance	961.15
Furniture and miscellaneous	484.78
For patent of a harvester	690.00
Donations to State Granges	10,068.47
Loans to State Granges	25,360.00
Total	$ 96,808.54

At its last session about $55,000 of the accumulated surplus in the treasury of the National Grange was distributed among the State Granges in the ratio of $2.50 for each subordinate Grange borne on the rolls.

College Fun.

Scene—Recitation in Political Economy, related by the Williams Athenæum. [Large dog enters and lies down at feet of B——.] Professor—"It's refreshing to see the lower animals so desirous of instruction." [Class laugh.] Professor continues—"But I can't see how the instinct of the brute should err so greatly as to lead him to B——." [Class yell.] That big dog has strayed into the Greek recitation room also. The Professor remarked to the freshman who introduced him: "Mr. P., I like large, handsome dogs, but I'm afraid he will have the same effect on the class as Mary's lamb did, so please lead him out." The dog vanished.

A FARMER passing over Monocacy bridge, in Frederick county, Md., the other evening, was beset by a footpad, and defended himself by uncorking a bottle of whisky and throwing a portion of the liquor in the robber's face, who immediately sought safety in flight. Comment upon the quality of whisky carried by Maryland farmers is superfluous.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

Prof. Sumner, of Yale College, on the Situation in Louisiana—The Returning Board Reversing the Popular Verdict.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21, 1876.

DEAR SIR: Several gentlemen who have been much impressed, as I have been, by your relation of what you saw and heard during your recent visit to New Orleans respecting the political and social condition of Louisiana, have desired me to address you, with the request that you will give to the public, in such way as may be most agreeable to you, your views of the present unhappy political situation in that State. I accordingly do so with great pleasure and in the hope that you will be able to accede to the request. I beg to remain, very truly, yours,

CHARLES R. INGERSOLL.

PROF. W. G. SUMNER, New Haven.

PROF. SUMNER'S REPLY.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21.

DEAR SIR: In response to your request, I will state as briefly and clearly as possible the impressions I received during my visit to New Orleans.

The gentlemen who were requested by the National Democratic Committee to go to Louisiana expressed at once to one another the determination to certify to the Northern people the truth with regard to the vote of Louisiana without party bias. Several of them expressly declared that they had not come to New Orleans to get the State vote for Mr. Tilden, and all acquiesced. The first effort was, therefore, to ascertain the fact. Judging from the usage of Northern States this would not be difficult. On addressing the State Committee for information, it was at once found that that body had been obliged to contend with unheard-of difficulties in their efforts to obtain returns. These difficulties were partly physical, due to the lack of means of communication with remote parishes, but, for the most part, they were due to artificial and malicious obstructions placed in their way. The election was held under a complicated and elaborate corps of officers, appointed by the State Government, and free from any of those popular checks which we, in the North, regard as essential to all self-government. The efforts of the press and the party committees to obtain information were treated as impertinent. It was furthermore necessary, inasmuch as the ruling party did not publish returns (except as hereafter stated), and did not therefore either deny or accede to the Democratic reports, to fortify these latter by certificates in a manner totally unknown in the North. The Democratic committee, warned by the experience of 1872 and 1874, took, as it appears, energetic measures to secure trustworthy returns, duplicates of the returns sent to the Returning Board.

The suspicion of the latter body implied in this course of action is abundantly justified by its history. I have before me a detailed statement by parishes of the returns which were received as a result of the efforts of the Democratic committee, with memoranda of the authority on which each parish return is based. Allowing for possible errors of detail, this statement establishes a moral certainty that Gov. Tilden carried the State by 7,000 majority, according to the returns.

I met no person in Louisiana, and I mixed as freely as possible with persons of all classes and both parties, who denied or doubted that this was the true result of the election. I was told that the Republican newspapers had published returns from thirty or forty parishes, coinciding with those in the Democratic statement, but had then desisted, declaring that the returns were incorrect and unsatisfactory. No counter claim is made in regard to the returns. The only answer made is that there have been outrages and intimidation in five or six parishes, and that the Returning Board will have to correct the returns by throwing out the votes of those parishes. The Republican newspaper of the 14th inst. went further, and declared that it would be necessary to insert the votes which would have been cast for the Republican ticket if the intimidation had not taken place. I met no person whatever who admitted any other hypothesis than that the Returning Board would bring out a Republican majority. It was not discussed; its was assumed, as of course.

The proposal, then, is that the Returning Board shall destroy the votes of a large number of persons who really voted, and supply the votes of a large number of others who did not vote, because they think that some persons voted under coercion and others refrained under intimidation. Could anything more arbitrarily destroy the whole theory of popular electoral government?

For obvious reasons I could not enter into the question of fact as to outrages, etc., against negroes who voted the Democratic ticket, and I talked with a number of persons who had such complaints to make. I also resolutely pursued all possible inquiries within my reach to try and find out the truth. In a conversation which a number of us held with Governor Kellogg, he was asked for facts under this head. He cited the case of Gaid only. Gaid was killed by lynching, under circumstances of revolting injustice, in September, 1875.

Politics had nothing to do with it, much less this election. It is fair to say our interview was cut short, and Mr. Kellogg got no further with his recital. Other charges of outrage which I heard or saw were intangible and uncertain. I could not bring any of them to distinct shape. All of them were denied, and especially the broad and general descriptions of systems of intimidation were energetically denied by men of unquestionable character and integrity.

I see no guarantee against frauds except in the vigilance and interest of the opposing parties. Such guarantees exist in Louisiana, with the vast preponderance of the chances in favor of the party in power, which appoints all the officers of election, has the Federal officers on its side, and controls the Federal troops. Every effort made by the Democrats to prevent frauds is tortured into a proof of intention to commit fraud, and runs through the North in the present temper of the people, finding ready credence.

I do not wonder that the people of Louisiana despair of justice and fair treatment from us when I see the readiness with which honorable men accept a misconstruction of all their efforts and the tenacity with which the same men cling to party prejudices. It is a shame to human nature, and a flagrant violation of all the assumptions of free government. It only proves with renewed force how wrong it is for us to be governing a State 1,600 miles away. If the vote of the State is not to be counted as cast it is plain that the investigation ought to be full, open, impartial and complete; but I cannot see how any such investigation is possible in the nature of things if the tribunal were above suspicion. The theory that such an investigation is possible leads to one result, as yet distant, but sure—Congress will be the Returning Board of the nation and usurp the election of President.

The only conclusions I could reach in regard to the general matters in dispute were as follows: Society in Louisiana is almost entirely disorganized. It is claimed, and strong facts are alleged in proof, that this is due to the maladministration of the civil officers, from the highest to the lowest, with very few exceptions. The law is made an engine of abuse at every turn. Officers of every grade neglect or violate duty for favor or reward. The most sacred institutions of civil society are perverted to produce wrong and abuse. The election law is intricate, and, while apparently adapted to provide for all contingencies, really creates a hundred technicalities and machinery which renders popular elections impossible. The play of its various parts allows scope for fraud, chicanery and abuse. It depends upon the action of an army of officials, many of whom are far away from any control and free from all responsibility, while they are able to defeat the whole purpose of the election by a corrupt or malicious assertion. The ingenuity with which devices are planned and practiced for producing fraudulent results is simply diabolical. The party in power, having control of this machinery, can make any election a mockery, and the community finds itself locked in a network of crafty arrangements, from which escape seems impossible.

Now, against this prodigious tyranny the people of Louisiana have made one more united and determined effort. They know no other way to get rid of it without violence than the method which republican institutions supplies. Said one of them to me: "We have tried every means we could conceive of inside of law and honor to carry this election." They prepared for every device they knew of. They arrayed committees, couriers, agents, to prevent frauds, to defeat corrupt purposes, to detect repeaters, to collect returns. They held meetings, organized clubs, had torchlight processions, gave out badges and employed pleading and argument with the negroes. I see that Mr. Hatfield, in a letter to the Cincinnati Commercial of last Sunday morning, quotes the United States army officer stationed in West Feliciana that this is so, and it is what was claimed by persons whom I saw. I saw also negro Presidents of Democratic clubs. When asked why they had formed or joined these clubs, they replied that they were sick of the confusion and misery of the country. They thought the promises made to them had not been kept. They complained especially that they had no schools, and that the school funds were embezzled. They said that the Democrats made fair promises, and they were disposed to try them. Colored men made speeches to this effect through the disputed parishes. The Democrats made the most of this dissatisfaction, and exerted themselves to win the election just as both parties did at the North.

On the other hand all means seem to have been used to defeat them. I saw and read an original specimen of a circular issued by the Republican committee to the State Supervisors of Election, in which the person addressed is ordered to bring up the Republican vote of his parish to a certain figure, and is told that his recognition by the future State administration will depend on the fidelity and success with which he does this. The document was sent by a party committee to a State officer, who got his pay from the parish in which he served. It is in safe hands and can be produced. It is claimed that polls were established at the last moment, or in out-of-the-way places, and were not opened for the full time, or were opened before the hour appointed. In New Orleans a sewing-machine circular was sent through the Postoffice to voters who had registered. These circulars were often misdirected in some way or other, so that they were returned "not found." Each one had a registration number on it, and the person who held that number was struck from the list and a warrant for his arrest issued, but not served. The cases were recorded in a book, but the evidence circular was attached to the warrant. A volunteer committee indexed the book and published the names, and, after long exertion, succeeded in getting back the warrants and circulars, so as to bring about a trial and exculpation. There were several thousands of these erasures. Those who did not find out that their names had been erased had to spend several hours on election day to recover registration. Those who would not take this trouble were intimidated from voting.

New Orleans is to-day the most mournful city I ever saw. The city itself is squalid and wretched in appearance, and the people are dispirited. I saw no probability at all that there could be any use for troops. The grave importance of the election seemed to me to lie in its national aspects. The Federal power has twice intervened in New Orleans to sustain the Returning Board in setting aside the will of the people as expressed by an election, on the ground that they did not coincide with the will of the people as expressed by the census. Federal intervention is the key to the situation. Without it the Returning Board would have to exercise its great and dangerous power under responsibility to public opinion at least. With that interference the Returning Board is an engine of tyranny which is the more frightful because it acts under a grotesque travesty of republican government. The people of the North have too long neglected the case of Louisiana, as if it were far off and foreign. They have left Louisiana to become, inside of our own republic, an instance of as flagrant oppression and wrong as any which, in history or foreign lands, has ever enlisted our sympathy. It has, however, been like a cancer in our body politic, and, at this moment, when it is eating into a Presidential election—the great nerve of our political system—when, too, the Federal administration and the Federal arms are still enforcing the wrong, we are told that the principles of "State rights" and "local self-government" command us to let it alone. We are told at New Orleans that the Returning Board must act under the law. So, indeed, it must, for the forms of law are sacred; but there is an appeal which cannot be in vain to the sober reason and honorable will of the American people. The law which commands obedience because it is the will of the governed is one thing. The law which the people who live under it never consented to and never made is another thing; and those who rely upon its sanction for arbitrary and unjust action bring law under the most dangerous contempt. When the people of the country appreciate the fact that it is their power which has imposed upon Louisiana this monstrous tyranny their power cannot longer be turned in that direction.

It was this opinion of the national importance of the Louisiana election which led me to accept the invitation of the committee. I thought that the interest at stake went far beyond any question of person to sit in the Presidential chair. I thought that it touched the vitals of the republican system. Everything I saw in Louisiana strengthened this opinion. I hoped that we might avert the danger. In that we did not succeed, but we succeeded at last after persistent exertion in securing for the Northern people a complete report of all which may be done. I came home believing that our institutions are about to be put to a test compared with which the war was insignificant—one which will demand that we gather together all our manhood and patriotism, and all our traditions of civil liberty and self-government.

Many learned notices have been written in criticism of the conflict between North and South, showing that it is a conflict of aristocracy and democracy, of Puritan and Cavalier, and I know not what. Whatever the cause which the present Government of Louisiana represents, that cause is unfortunate in its missionaries. By the facts of the record, the Government there existing is base, corrupt, and contrary to every sound principle. A year ago no one could be found who dared apologize for it. It is baser to-day than then, and I do not see how any honest man can side with it, or believe that it can advance any good cause.

I found no sentiment of disunion among the men I met. They only seemed to despair of being trusted by the North. I found no sentiment in favor of a "solid South," and no ambitions to be satisfied at Washington. The all-absorbing subject was the redemption of Louisiana from misrule. I found no hostility to negro suffrage. People did not seem to care about it, or if they did, they approved of it. They thought that, if they could once get self-government for the people of the State, they could manage to live together without trouble. I presume that there are many people worse than those I met, but I think those whom I saw would be as influential as any in a reconstructed Louisiana. Yours, very respectfully,

W. G. SUMNER.

To HON. CHARLES R. INGERSOLL.

Music and Murder.

Music, heavenly maid, will have to wash the hands that never will be clean, for there has been murder most foul at Kerwin, Kan., and the girls will go this winter, as a rule, alone to singing-school. Nov. 9 was the fatal night. The young people had met at the school-house to sing hymns, and young Riddle, whose musical zeal was as untimely as Dic Swiveller's, made much noise with a small French harp. David Frazier appealed to him to give the company a rest. They went out into the yard to fight it out, and the critic was stabbed to the heart.

McKILLOP, SPRAGUE & CO., proprietors of a commercial agency in New York, have been sued by Messrs. Hyde Bros. & Swift for $20,000. The complainants aver that the agency gave their firm no rating as to credit or capital in its printed book.

A FRENCH statistician estimates that within the last seventy years no fewer than 1,000 lives have been lost by the burning of theaters, and that the losses of property from that cause exceed $60,000,000.

Auburn Courier.

W. G. THOMAN, Editor.

AUBURN, INDIANA, DEC. 7th, 1876.

THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS:

Trouble in the Camp--Charles R. Wanamaker Having Tasted the Sweets of office, refuses to give way to his Successor until removed by the Courts.

When the County Commissioners met on Monday last, Nelson Griffith vacated in favor of his successor, A. D. Goetschius, who quietly took his seat but to the surprise of every one, his retiring colleague, Charles R. Wannamaker, of Stafford township, refused to give way to B. F. Blair, of Newville township, elected by the people in his stead, but absolutely declined to give up his office.

The Democrats at the last election voted for Blair as their candidate for Commissioner of the second district, and for Goetschius as Commissioner in the third district. It was said afterwards that Blair lived in the third district, and on these very slight grounds Wannamaker refuses to vacate, claiming that the Commissioner must be a resident of the district he represents. He, however, proposed to submit an agreed statement of facts to the Circuit Court and abide by the decision, but Blair having been fairly elected, refused to entertain the proposition.

Commissioner Blair, through his attorney, W. H. Dills, then presented the following petition and affidavits to the board.

To the Hon. Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana.

The undersigned, Benjamin F. Blair, represents to your Honorable Board that at the October election, in the year 1872, one Charles R. Wannamaker, was one of the Commissioners of said county, that on the —— day of December, 1873, he entered upon the duties of such office, and has continually acted as such up to this time.

That at the October election in the year 1876, by virtue of the certificate of the Clerk, of the DeKalb Circuit Court, and the proclamation of the Sheriff of said county, your petitioner, the undersigned, was duly elected one of the Commissioners of said county, for the district for which said Wannamaker acted, and was elected as aforesaid.

That at the time of this official election, he was and is a resident voter in said district. That on the 26th day of October, 1876, the petitioner received of the Clerk of said Circuit Court, a certificate of election as such commissioner and on the same day before said Clerk took the usual oath of office, which is endorsed on his said certificate, a copy of which certificate of election and oath of office is filed herein

He further states that said Wannamaker refuses to vacate his seat as such Commissioner, and permit the petitioner to assume the duties of the office to which he was elected as aforesaid.

He therefore prays your Honorable Board to permit him to assume the duties of said office, and that said Wannamaker be no longer recognized as a member of your Board and further that this petition and its accompaniment be spread on your record of said Board, and that the ayes and nayes be recorded on the decision of this application B. F. BLAIR.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, December 4th 1876. W. H. Dills.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DeKalb County, } SS

I, G. H. K. Moss, Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, certify that at a General Election held in said county, on Tuesday the tenth day of October, 1876, Benjamin F. Blair was duly elected Commissioner of said county of DeKalb.

Witness my hand and the seel of the DeKalb Circuit Court this 25th day of October 1876. G. H. K. MOSS, Clerk.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DeKalb County, } SS

I, Benjamin F. Blair, solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Indiana, and that I will faithfully perform the duties of Commissioner of DeKalb county, Indiana, so help me God.

B. F. Blair

Subscribed and sworn before me this 26th day of October, 1876.

G. H. K. MOSS.
Clerk.

The case was set for argument on Tuesday forenoon. Wannamaker by his attorney, denied that the board of Commissioners had any jurisdiction in the case and rested Mr. Dills on the contrary held that the Commissioners had full powers to act. The board in the afternoon refused to grant Mr. Blair's petition and the case will now come up for decision in the next term of the Circuit Court and may possibly reach the Supreme Court before it is settled.

Yesterday afternoon Wannamaker, the would-be Commissioner, was arrested on a warrant charging him with usurpation of office. He was taken before Squire Walborn and his examination set for next Wednesday. In the meantime the Commissioners Court adjourned to Dec. 26th.

Waterloo Winnowings.

—Our schools are in excellent condition.

—It will soon be "swearing off" time again with Waterloo "Spiritualists."

—Roads rough—Business rather dull. —News scarce as honest Administration officials—Hard Times—People sue each other like blazes.

Mrs. Smith died at her residence in Waterloo, this week of an affection of the lungs. Deceased was in the 83d years of her age. Her remains were taken to Hamilton on Wednesday.

—Herman Kahn died at the residence of his brother, Jacob Kahn, Sunday evening after a brief illness from typoid fever. Deceased was a member of the firm of Kahn Bros. He was a young man of excellent business talents, and one who will be greatly missed by all who knew him. His remains were taken to Fort Wayne for interment on Tuesday. In his early demise a large circle of friends have lost a dear friend, and the community a valued citizen and business man.

JUNCTION JOTTINGS.

—Another county heard from.

—Our school, under the instruction of Mr. Smith, is progressing finely. He reports a good attendance.

—We understand there is a freight on the B. & O. Road running west, due here at 10 a. m., that carries passengers. A good chance to go to Garrett and get back at 3.27 is now offered.

—Items, items—they are a scarce article. Nothing new transpired during the week but what has already been published, with the exception of two of our monte men coming back, after their clothes and to pay their bills, after which they they shook the dust from off their shoes and departed, we hope forever.

—We understand there is a change of time on the B. & O. Road, and the most important point in the change is that the day trains stop at all stations. We have been hindered more or less from going on that road on account of the trains not stopping at certain stations. Now give us a round trip ticket and we will be satisfied.

—Some young bloods from Auburn came down here a few nights since and went into Smith's saloon and undertook to run things as they choose. Smith was away, but Charley gave them to understand he was there, and very quietly put a snoot on one fellow, which scattered them. They afterwards threw some stones in the windows to cool their angry passions. It would not have been well for them had Smith been there.

—Politics are still raging at this point from the noise that is made in the office every day. I think they must be about equally divided, for I hear Wherrett say the Inter-Ocean says so and so. Martin says the Times denies, and goes on to explain, when Osgood speaks up and says Hayes is sure to be the next President, and then comes Pratt's gentle voice and says not by a fair vote, and so on till their attention is called to some work elsewhere. Go in, boys, General Grant is President yet, and by the 4th of next March, you will find out who will be his successor.

—Some one rise and explain why we can't have preaching at the Junction once in a while. We have a good school house, and think something of this kind would keep the most of our young men and boys from spending their Sabbaths in various other amusements which will injure them physically and morally if kept up. We always come down with the dimes when called upon to aid in any of their undertakings in Auburn. Now let us do something for ourselves and children—who will be the first to start something of this kind.

Pedro.

The Butler Budget.

—Butler now has seven attorneys.

—Landlord Shutt has got shut of the Butler House and has been succeeded by Mr. Comparet, late of Newville.

—Rev. J. N. Morris, of the Lutheran church, has returned from his visit abroad. There was no preaching in the church a week ago Sunday because of his absence.

—Butler has had a satisfactory increase during the past season in the way of new buildings. Some twenty or twenty-five new dwellings have been erected, some of them at considerable expense.

—The Eel River railroad is crowded with freight and large numbers of cars are transferred to the Lake Shore road. A special train is now started from here to Toledo daily, to accommodate the increased traffic. Though business on the Lake Shore is also quite heavy.

—Public services were held on Thanksgiving day, at the Lutheran church in the forenoon, at which Rev. Bacon officiated. In the evening services were held in the Methodist church by Rev. Rhodes. A pound party was also held in the evening at the residence of the pastor of the M. E. church.

—H. Leonard has just completed a fine foundry south of the railroad. It will be used for making iron work and castings for building purposes principally, while the manufacture of road scrapers and agricultural implements, will also form a part of the work carried on. This shop, takes the place of the one burned down about a year ago.

—Our citizens took great pride in our public schools which are now in a flourishing condition. Daniel Luke is principal; Miss Daniels has charge of the grammar department; Miss Brundridge and Mrs. Jones have the primary and intermediate departments; there is a good attendance and the principal and teachers seem to give good satisfaction

Real Estate Transfers.

Instruments showing the transfer of real estate were filed in the County Recorder's office during the month of November, as follows:

O. Boyer to Norman Nichols, 30 acrs of the S E quarter of section 11, town 35, range 14, consideration $1,200.

Mary S Shaffer to Harriet W Fitch, lots 115 and 126, in Auburn. $1,500

Oliver Williams to S P Imhoff, lot 1, in Hornbergers addition to Waterloo. $90.

Joshua Steves and wife to Nancy Dunfee, first lot 14 in Mc. M's addition to Corunna. $250

S Spangler to C Klotz, lot 3, in Spangler's addition to Auburn. $250.

David Cutting to Lucinda Praul, land in section 1, town 34, range 14 $300.

Mary A Ehlers to S B Ward, lot 141, in original plat of Auburn $700

Lucinda Praul to A M Stewart, land in section 1, town 34, range 14. $600.

Oliver Waterman to Charles Coffin, land in section 17, town 35, range 14. $1,000.

C M Slocum to Samuel Herald, lot 197 in Egnew's addition to Butler. [illegible]

Wm Sprigel to M Grueter, 4 lots in Waterloo. $2000.

Thomas Kelly to G J Kelly, lot 71, in the original plat of Waterloo. $1,100

Stephen Masters to M E Church, in Corunna, lots 43 and 44, in the original plat of Corunna. $650.

Harrison Jones to Sarah J Freese, lot 30 in Jones' addition to Lawrence. $600.

H R Culbertson to Michael Ober, 2 acres of land in section 6, town 32 range 14. $100

Elenore Leasure to David Kahn, lot 122, in the original plat of Auburn. $230

John Jenkins to James May, land in section 16, town 23 range 14. $60.

S Greenamyer to Martha Endley, the north part of lot 4, in Danford's addition to Butler. $1,500.

Martha Endley to J F Endley, undivided ½ of above. $1,200

G C Lanham to J Hose, land in section 23 and 24, town 34 range 14. $400.

Simon Hose to Joseph Hose, same land in same range, town and sec. $400.

Solomon Hose to Solomon Hose, Jr., same in same range, town and sec. $400.

R Wes McBride to F A Matson, lot 26 in Lockhart's add. to Waterloo. $1000.

J A Matson to B F Kennedy, same lot. $1000.

J Snowberger to S Mortorf, the south east quarter of the north east quarter of sec. 4, town 35, range 13, 39 acres. $1600

D W Aldrich to G L Rowe, the south half of the south west quarter of sec. 18 town 35, range 10, 80 acres. $4,200.

G L Rowe to S L Brontrager, 60 acres in sec. 24, town 25, range 13. $2,400.

O T Clark to M L Frank, lot 6, in McClellan's add. to Waterloo. $125.

D Stonestreet to C B Jones, lot 1 and north part of lot 4 Cedar Creek, $50.

A B Hartman to E D Hartman, 39 acres in sec. 30, town 34, range 13. $250.

M Hall to B. B. Dearborn, part of sec. 4, town 24, range 13. $400.

D Fierstone to B Wise, 80 acres of the north half of the south east quarter of sec. 36, town 35, range 14. $2,000.

D Fry to M Freeburn, 40 acres of the north east quarter of the north east quarter of sec. 25, town 34, range 14. $2,250.

A Hall to M Hall and others, 39 acres town 34, rang 13. $3,000.

H M Webb to J Clifford, parts of lots 34 and 35, in Waterloo. $3,000.

License Notice

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Keyser Township, in DeKalb county, Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application at the next session of the Board of Commissioners, of said conty, to be holden on the first Monday in Dec 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on the premises, to-wit: In the building now situated on lot No. [illegible] in the town of Garrett, in said township. Charles Linkenhelt.

Dec. 6th, 1876.

Mark These Facts.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

Holloway's Pills.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day."

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left."

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar; your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER,

And all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma, Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureaux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

Sold at the manufacture of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Offices, 112 Liberty Street, New York.

When one of our Auburn boys receives a whack over the proboscis in these days, they don't call it assault, anymore, he has been bul-dozed.

ARRIVAL OF SANTA CLAUS!

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

Where can be found a full and complete assortment of Holiday goods, and articles suitable for Christmas and New Years presents, consisting of Fine Albums. Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Persciptions Carefully Compounded,

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place,

DAVENPORT'S.

East of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Stereoscopes, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.

Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades & Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beautiful articles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchasers.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings, $ 1.50, 1.75 2.00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 8c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 7c per lb.

Brown Sugar at 8c per lb.
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hands and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle Men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent, the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get; So Sugars, Coffees, Spices, Prunes, Fruits, Tobaccos, Liquors or anything we deal in Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits. No Middle-men with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hyson 25c, 40c and 90c.
Best 80 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c

Best 90 cents.
Black or Oolong 25 and 40c
Best 80c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 60c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	12½c	New Orleans clarified	9c
Coffee A.	12	" "	8c
" C.	11c	Good Brown	9c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	25 and 30
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	8c
Canned Corn per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	18c
Pitted Cherries per pound	25c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb.

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all descriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon,	1 50 in bottle 50c
Rye Whiskey, two years old	1 25	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, per gallon, 3 00; in bottles	80c
Three year old	1 75 3 00	Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c
The $3 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound..	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va	70c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This tobacco sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	30c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	80
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Cetron per pound	35c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	16c
New Orange anp Lemon Peels,	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	14c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	25c
New layer Raisins per pound	[illegible]	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Curants per pound	6c

And everything else in proportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Ours will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES

FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

KAHN.

OVERCOATS.

We have received our fall stock of Overcoats and assure our patrons that we are offering the same at Prices Lower than ever. We have a large assortment of overcoats and have recently received additions to our stock. We invite a comparison feeling assured that our goods and prices will defy competition. By permission we refer to the following parties who have purchashed overcoats of us since October 5th, and who will doubtless testify to the excellent quality, low prices and the late style of our goods.

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. C. PETERSON	"
M. F. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr,	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"
JOHN SOMERS,	"
T. C. MAYS,	"
E. D. CLEVELAND,	"
JAMES CASEBEER	"
E. L CASEBEER,	"
L. D. SMITH,	"
L. W. HALL, DeKalb P. O.

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc. KAHN.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 18c.
—Butter 16c.
—Potatoes 60c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $8 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.03 @ 109.
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

Best School Paper at Houser's.

Hurry up those amatuer theatricals.

La Relampago at Hollister & Benedict's.

Go and see those fine Albums at Houser's.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Holiday goods arriving every day at Houser's.

Headquarters for School Books at Housers.

Headquarters for School Books at Houser's.

120 daily papers sold at Houser's News Stand last Saturday.

A good five cent Cigar at Davenport's. Something new.

Stereoscopic Views of the Centennial Exposition on hand at Davenports.

The boys have been making the most of the fine skating on Cedar Creek.

Mr. Geo. Brandon, who has been sick for several drys is improving slowly.

Presbyterian church services on South Jackson street next Sunday evening.

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the slate line, noiseless and beautiful.

Shelves, Show-cases and Counters crowded with Holiday goods at Houser's

Go to Houser's and see a new thing in the Slate line, noiseless and beautiful.

See Davenport's new stock of Stereoscopes and Views. Something very fine.

Try Hollister & Benedict's choice brands of fine-cut and smoking tobaccos.

A full line of cigars, meerschaum pipes cigar holders, etc., at Hollister & Benedict's.

Shelves, show-cases and counters crowded with Holiday goods at Housers book store.

Try La Relampago, the best five cent cigars made, for sale at Hollister & Benedict's.

Davenport, the Druggist, has a very fine lot of ALBUMS which he is selling at panic prices.

Davis' Sewing Machine.

You who are contemplating buying a machine should not fail to see the DAVIS. Call at the drug store of Bodine & Siler.

Remember that Davenport, the Druggist, has the finest stock of Albums in own. Go and see them.

Hollister and Benedict keeps the bes cigars to be found in Indiana. Their five cent cigars are immense.

Geo. S. Morr will have public a sale half a mile north-east of Moore's Station on Saturday, December 23.

Our readers will find a full report of all the latest movements of the presidental contest on our sixth page.

W. L. Blair, Esq., of the Butler School Board, was in town last Monday on business connected with school matters.

If you want anything in the way of fine cigars, cigarettes, smoking or fine-cut tobacco, give Hollister & Benedict a call.

The country roads are still rough, but nevertheless are a vast improvement as compared with their condition last week.

The fire company met for drill on Monday evening, Clinton Headly acting as Foreman for the evening in the place of Foreman Potter.

There is trouble brewing in Turkeydom, not at Constantinople, though, but among the DeKalb county gobblers, who will be sacrificed at Christmas.

T. H. Leasure left on Monday afternoon for Afton, Iowa, where he will remain probably until after the holidays. We wish him a pleasant trip and a safe return.

Hollister & Benedict are constantly receiving large consignments of Oysters direct from the east, which they retail at 25, 30, 35 and 40 cents per can, according to quality.

Constable Ammons and Charles Bissell, of Butler township, had a disagreement last week, which resulted in a "bul-dozing" match, much to the amusement of the boys in that section.

Mr. R. H. Weamer, of the Republican advertised his office for sale in the Fort Wayne Gazette. The reason assigned is failing in health on the part of the proprietor.

Mr. H. C. Bell last week purchased a splendid square grand Hallet & Davis' piano of Long & Casebeer. Mr. Zacher also invested in a Smith American organ bought of the same firm.

Union Thanksgiving services were held at the Methodist church last Thursday forenoon at which the Rev. J. W. Welsh officiated. The attendance was not as large as had been expected.

Travelors from the west report that along the line of the B. & O. seventy-five miles west of here, the snow lay over a foot deep on Sunday, and that that the sleighing was excellent.

Rev. W. L. Sanders, the talanted lecturer, is under an engagement to deliver his lecture on 'Backbone' at Knoxville, Tennessee, and a number of other leading cities in the South during this winter.

You can get eight finely executed gems, for fifty cents, at Gripe's Gallery, in the McIntyre block. Cabinet sized pictures 8 x 10, ready framed, for fifty cents at the same place, being a great reduction on former prices

J D. Price, of Butler, has sold his entire stock of goods with accounts favoring him, to O. T. Letcher & Co. All indebted to this firm will find their accounts with J. B. Boyle, at Butler. They are requested to call and settle the same.

C. P. Houser has gone to Chicago to attend the Moody and Sankey meetings, and to lay in the finest stock of holiday goods and all manner of presents for the for the little folks, ever brought to Auburn.

The new Presbyterian Church will be dedicated on the last Sunday in the year. It is proposed to have Rev. Dr. Heckman, President of Hanover College deliver the dedication sermon. He is one of the leading ministers of the denomination in the State.

The schools will open on next Monday, and Auburn's irrepressible Young Americans will then dilligently pore over the well worn school books instead of raising mischief at home or on the streets. Tis well.

Hollister & Benedict, at the new restaurant, west of the Court House, have just opened the largest stock of candies and confectioneries ever brough to Auburn. Remember the place when selecting your presents for Christmas and New Years.

The Garrett News has cut down its size by 8 columns. The subscribers appreciated this so highly that 80 of them recently withdrew their subscriptions in a single day. We are so informed by one of the number.

The Social connected with the Presbyterian Church will be entertained by Mrs. James Barkley, next Wednesday afternoon and evening. All are invited.
MRS. R. ELSON, Sec'y.

Notice.

No one is authorized to contract debts on account of the COURIER without a written order from myself. Business men and patrons of the paper will please take notice. Money on subscription and accounts may be paid to W. G. Thoman, Editor in charge.
T. C. MAYS,

The Commissioners Court this granted the Petition of James Downend and others for a new road near the centre of Keyser township, and also that of Joseph Brown and others, for the vacation of a road in the northern part of Stafford township.

The congregation of the Presbyterian church united with that of the Methodist church on last Sunday evening in the building of the latter, making a crowded house. The sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. Henry Johnson, of the first named congregation.

The Commissioners Court yesterday granted liquor licenses to Edward Eldridge and Christopher Baker, of Auburn, and J. W. Wagner, of Garrett, Those of Mat. McMamara and J. R. Prouty, of Garrett, and David Hoffman, of Waterloo, were also granted.

The County Commissioners on Tuesday established a county ditch to run from the eastern part of Wilmington-tp. to Frank Beard's place, in section 28, Union-tp. The ditch will be 4 miles in length and some 40 property owners are interested. The estimated cost is $2,748.52.

W. G. Thoman, who has been connected with the Lansing Journal for a number of months past, has recently taken charge of the Auburn COURIER. Mr. Thoman was formerly City Editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, is a ready and versatile writer, and made many friends while in this city.—[Lansing Repblican.

Cuppy & Ralston are paying the highest cash prices for grain at the Eel River elevator and guarantee satisfaction both in prices and weight. They wish to buy 10,000 bushels of corn, for which good prices will be paid. Mr. Ralston, of the firm, when not at the elevator, can found on the streets, and is always ready for business.

Mr. Michael Boland, the new County Recorder, has entered upon the task of renovating and beautifying his official headquarters in the court house, and it already wears a greatly improved look. The west side of the room has been separated from the remaining part by a black-walnut railing and will be used by the County Surveyor, J. J. Van Auken.

The members of the Presbyterian Choir met on Tuesday evening and reorganized as follows: W. Peterson, leader; Miss Carrie Littlefield, organist; Misses Frank Stahl and Nettie Williams, soprano; Misses Orpha Bodine and Addie Littlefield, alto; Messrs. E. E. Williams and A. Miller, tenor; Messrs, J. J. Littlefield, B. Miller and W. Peterson, bass.

Important changes were made in the time card of the Saginaw road on last Sunday, the schedule was received too late for correction this week. Trains for the South now pass Waterloo at 10.10 a. m. and 4.28 p. m.; Auburn Junction at 10.42, a. m. and 4.45 p. m. Going North, trains pass Auburn Junction at 11.27 a. m. and 5.10 p. m.; Waterlou at 11.44 a. m. and 5.35 p. m.

It is announced that the face of the returns in Florida, gives Hayes 43 majority. The Republican organs declare at once that the State is sure for Hayes, and that the face of the returns must be accepted as final. The face of the returns in Louisiana give Tilden that State by about 8,000 majority, but our Republican prints fail to see the face of the returns settle in that case.

There are two contested road cases before the Commissioners. The first originates from a petition presented by Jane Packer and others for a rood in the Eastern part of Wilmington township and the second is about a road petitioned for near the center of Jackson township, by William Enzer and others remonstrances against the granting of the petitions have been filed in bot cases.

Nothing new has been developed in the Phillips robbery case which took place at the Junction last week. The monte thieves who constituted them selves a returning board in the manner of Kellogg's carpet baggers in Louisiana, and succeeded in counting Phillips out, to the tune of nearly $500, are no doubt rioting in some secure place over their ill-gotten gains, which belonged to the Hicksville School Board.

Phillips was on his way to Edgerton to pay interest on school bonds at the time he was robbed.

Money To Loan.

C. A O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money to loan and guarantee security.

Midnight Marauders.

The tailor shop of G. W. Stahl was found to have been burglarized, Wednesday morning, and a coat which had just been completed for David Gratz, was stolen. The burglar, or burglars entered by cutting a pane of glass in one of the west windows, after which the sash was removed, giving access to the interior. The Shoe Shop of Frank Strebe was also entered during the night, It is supposed, through the back door. Two pair of boots were taken. There is no clue to the burglars.

Business men, almost without exception, report an unprecedented stagnation in business. If it were not that there is a little temporary prosperity among merchants because of the approaching holidays there would be scarcely anything going on. The dullness has even affected the railroads, so that travel and freight has as a rule decreased very much.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.

☞Cashmere in all shades.

☞New fall style Prints

☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☞Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00

☞A new line of Alpaccas and alland winter dress goods.

J. R. LANNING.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Scurvy and disease of the skin, fever, restless sleep, foul stomach, tainted breath, languor, depression of spirits, always attendant on the worst cases of cutaneous eruptions, are speedily and radically removed by these medicines—the ointment clenses the skin, and the pills purify the blood, stimulate the liver and promote digestion. 25 cents per pot.

The Thankegiving Dinner.

The Thanksgiving dinner and supper given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, was a success in every particular. It was a success in the abundance of eatables that loaded the tables and the fine style in which everything was conducted, and in a financial point of which is more to the point, as the ladies cleared $154 by their enterprise.

The clever course of the members of the Odd Fellows lodge in contributing to the supper by holding a social in the evening, was a great help to the ladies and was duly apprecated by them.

The New Restaurant.

The fine restaurant of Hollister & Benedict, is drawing a large patronage and the business is increasing every day. The proprietors know exactly how to run an institution of this kind, and have the means to do it. It is therefore not surprising that we have at last a first class restaurant here in Auburn which is second to none in the State, and fills a long felt want. Visitors from abroad will find it just the place for a good meal, at moderate prices. The bill of fare is unsurpassed. The dinning room is finely furnished and the tables are supplied with the best the market affords.

The Auburn Fruit House.

E. E. Williams, of the Auburn Fruit House, will shortly remove to his new stand, east of the First National Bank. It is no small task to remove such an immense stock as that of Mr. Williams and for a week or ten days he offers extra inducements to all making purchases in his line in order to save the trouble of removal. The Fruit House offers especial inducements to farmers and people in the surrounding towns. All such will do well to give The Auburn Fruit House a call as it can not be undersold either in Fort Wayne or any other place in this vicinity. Drop in and see his array of groceries, fruits, spices and everything needed by the thrifty house-keeper during the holiday season. The prices and quality can not fail to please the most fastidiuso.

Discontinued.

The Chicago and Erie line from Chibago to New York, via. Auburn and the B. & O. has with the inauguration of the winter time card, been discontinued. The roads interested with the B. & O. were the Bee Line, Atlantic & Great Western and Erie railroads. The line was intended as a through passenger route from Chicago to New York, the Erie and B. & O. having by far the greatest interest at stake, while the other companies hauled the cars but a short distance over their roads. The Pullman sleeping car company was also interested, and the cars were run through without change from Chicago to the seaboard. The withdrawal of its cars from the new route leaves the Pullman company out of the field on all the northern lines to New York. The enterprise has been kept up just one year, but proved a losing one for the railways and was therefore abandoned.

Disolution Notice.

THE partnership heretofore existing between Jas. Casebeer and Abraham Miller, under the firm name of Jas. Casebeer & Co., has this day been disolved by mutual consent, Jas. Casebeer retiring. The business will be continued by Miller & Gotrost.

JAMES CASEBEER,
ABRAHAM MILLER.

Nov. 11, 1876. 4tf.

Terrible Slaughter.

Not of men and women, but in the prices of boots and shoes. The proprietor of the well known Fort Wayne Boot and Shoe Store, proposes to cut down the prices of all kinds of boots and shoes to suit the times. He is resolved to knock the bottom out of high prices for good. From and after this date Mr. Lordier will make first-class Kip Boots for $4.50, and first-class calf boots for $6.00. Everything else has been marked down in proportion. This house is enabled to offer customers these remarkable low prices from the fact everything is bought direct from the manufacturers, thus saving the enormous profits to middlemen and jobbers. Another secret of the proprietors success is that he is one of the best workmen in Northern Indiana, and follows Ben Franklin's motto of minding his own business in person. The house has also the exclusive agency here of the celebrated Detroit make of ladies wear, so well known for excellence and durability. A full line in the boot and shoe trade is always to be found at this popular store. The proprietor challenges comparison in prices, quality of goods and general assortment with any and every competitor. Give him a call and be satisfied that his is the best place for boots and shoes in this part of Indiana without exception.

Settling Old Scores.

There has been a family feud of long standing between the Brown's and Wallace's, living five or six miles east of Auburn. On Saturday A. J. Brown and William Wallace were both in town and after imbibing several times agreed to settle their disputes by a rough and tumble fight. In order to escape any interference from the town Marshal they agreed to adjourn beyond the corporation limits and accordingly repaired to the flouring mill south of the Eel River depot. The pair then clinched and came to the ground, Brown being on top. When Wallace arose he looked very much as if he had encountered a buzz saw in rapid motion, or a young but healthy wild cat. The bridge of his nose was smashed, his eyes were in deep mourning and his frontispiece generally, ornamented with a profusion of cuts and bruises. He states that after Brown threw him to the ground he gazed at him for a few moments, and then with his knees pinioned down his arms and battered him with the result already stated.

Wallace, when the fight was over, presented a pitiable object. He was taken to Dr. Casebeers office where his wounds were dressed and on the following day he was removed to his home. Dr. Coller, who has been dressing Wallace's wounds, since states that the bruises about his head must have been the results of kicks administered by his adversary, as they are too severe to have been inflicted with the fist alone. Brown after the affray, went to the Junction and has not been heard of since. The case will no doubt be brought before the Grand Jury, at its next session.

Odd Fellows Social.

The Odd Fellows held a very pleasant social at their Hall on Thanksgiving evening, at which a large number of the members and their invited friends, took part. Unlike most lodge meetings, the room was graced with a large number of the fair sex, which of course detracted nothing from the pleasure of the occasion.

The hall was completely filled with the members and their invited guests, and when all had been provided with seats, the Worthy Master, E. Bodine, called the meeting to order, and after the subordinate officers had taken their respective places, he announced the object of the gathering, which was for the purpose of having a general good time.

The first on the programme was a selection by a part of the Presbyterian choir, consisting of Miss Frank Stahl, Miss Nettie Williams, Miss Orpha Bodine, Miss Carrie Littlefield, E. E. Williams, and W. Peterson. The opening ode was sung, in which the members joined, after which a short and appropriate address was made by Mr. Willis Griswold and another by Rev. Henry Johnson. Misses Stahl and Bodine next sang a duett, accompanied on the organ by W. Peterson, after which the speaking was continued by Robert McDougal; followed by a duett, in which Miss Stahl and Miss Nettie Williams, accompanied on the organ by Miss Carrie Littlefield, accquitted themselves with credit, as did, in fact, all the members of the choir.

An adjournment was next made to the supper table, from which a large number returned to the hall and spent the evening in music and social coverse. Mr. J. O. Twitchel, of Chicago, favored the audience during the remainder of the evening with some very fine instrumental selections on the organ.

As at first proposed, the supper was to have been given by Hollister & Benedict, at their new restaurant, and their actions in giving way to the ladies, and allowing them to reap the additional benefits of the Odd Fellows patronage, was very considerate.

Davenport gives his personal attention to compounding perscriptions, and can insure accuracy, neatness and dispatch. Prices always as low as possible for strictly pure drugs.

Notice for Stockholders' Meeting.

NOTICE is hereby given that according to the articles of association of the First National Bank, of Auburn, Indiana, that the stockholders thereof are required to meet at the Banking house of said association, on the second Tuesday, in January, annually, to elect a board of five directors for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may come before said meeting. Therefore a meeting of the stockholders of said association will be held on Tuesday, January 9th, 1877, at the banking-house, in Auburn, at 1 o'clock p. m., to elect a new board of directors and to transact such other business as may come up.

JAS. O. HAZZARD, Cashier.
Auburn, Ind., Dec. 1st, 1876. dec6t4.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss
DEKALB COUNTY. }

A. J. Murbach }
vs.
Joseph Miller. }

Before Daniel Altenburg, a Justice of the Peace for Union Township:

NOW comes the plaintiff and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit, that said defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana; notice is therefore hereby given to said defendant that unless he be and appear at my office on the second day of January, 1877, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Union township, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my hand and seal this 4th day of December, 1876.
[L. S.]
DANIEL ALTENBURG, J. P.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Rebecca Davis, plaintiff and Samuel Davis defendant, require me to make the sum of three thousand nine hundred and fifty three and 73-100 dollars and with interest on said judgement and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

SATURDAY the 23 day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1876

The north half of the northeast quarter of section thirty six, town thirty-four (34) range thirteen (13) east, also three acres in the east half of the north-west quarter of the same section, and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the center of the State Road on the east line of said tract thence north forty rods, thence west twelve rods, thence south forty rods and thence east twelves rods to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said Judgment, interest, and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said Judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS Dep't.
Auburn, Indiana, November 29, 1876.
W. H. DILLS, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein William B. Taylor, James Rogers, and Calvin A. Croninger, Plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Defendent, requiring me to make the sum of Nine hundred and seventy four dollars and fifty-eight cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, the 23 day of December, A. D. 1876,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number ninety-three (93) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the south-west corner of said lot and running thence north five and one half feet, thence east on a line paralell with the south line of said lot, eighty feet, thence south five and one-half feet, thence west to the place of beginning, and a part of lot number ninety-four (94) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the north-west corner of said lot, and running thence east along the north line of said lot eighty feet, thence south four feet, thence west fourteen (14) feet, thence south eighteen (18) feet, thence west to the west boundary line of said lot thence north to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dp't.
Auburn, Indiana, November 29, A. D. 1876.
ROSE & HARTMAN, Att'y's, for Plaintiff.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the north and south sides of Union street, commencing on west side of Main street, running west on north side of lot No. 54, north end of lot No. 34 and 7, O. P. on north side of lots No. 27, 54, 107, 134, and south side of lots No. 135, 106, 53 and 26 in western addition, also on south end of lots No. 8 and 33, and south side of lot No. 55, O. P., all in the incorporated town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within thirty [30] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Nov. 15, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Presi.
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. Z. HOFFMAN

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC 1. THEREFORE, be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the south ends of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on north side of Ninth [9] street, commencing at south west corner of lot No. 9 in Ashley's second addition, and continuing on south end of lots No. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 16 and 17, in Ashley's second addition, also on south side of lots No. 143, 99, 84 and 18, western addition to said town of Auburn, in DeKalb County, State of Indian, said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within 30 days after this ordinance shall take effect, to be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber, if made of Oak, the plank to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] inches in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and one half [1½] inches in thickness, nor more than [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be not less than [3] by [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS, an emergency exists this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, Dekalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board at their regular meeting in Nov. 15, A. D. 1876

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Presi.
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees,
D. Z. HOFFMAN,

BUYING CARAMELS.

A CONFECTIONERY IDYL.

Her voice was soft and low,
And she answered with a smile,
"There are fifteen cents a quarter
In the right hand pile."
Her voice was soft and low,
And the words dropped from her mouth
As peaches drop from trees
In the soft, sweet South.

A curl crept down her back—
It was black, with spiry tip,
And its hue was rather dullish,
Like the shrouds of a ship;
A curl crept down her back,
And in either generous ear
Swung an ample hoop of jet
Like a big chandelier.

Vi'lets in a pan of milk
Were her great azure eyes;
Her mouth a shapely blot of
The richest carmine dyes;
Vi'lets in a pan of milk
With a piquant nose beneath,
And smiles that broke in ripples
On her fine white teeth.

I worship at thy shrine,
Priceless sweet of sugar climes!
"Half a pound? Yes, them is nice,
And we're sellin' of 'em eights."
"I worship at thy shrine,"
Once again I sighed and said;
Thirty cents, sir—nothin' else?"
With a toss of her head.

Forth she put a red, red hand
For the proceeds of the sale,
And I glanced to see the pink flush
Of her small, rosy nail.
Forth she put a red, red hand,
But a wart loomed on its back,
And beneath each rosy nail
Was a deep line of black.

Then her voice seemed coarse and loud,
And her curl was tarrier yet;
Her eyes were pale and fleshy;
Her teeth a dentist's set.
Then her voice seemed coarse and loud,
And I fled from this new Jael
Who had killed my budding love
With (gr) ammar and nail!

THE JAWS OF DEATH.

BY AN ENGLISH ARMY OFFICER.

Buchapore is a quaint, isolated little place, situated in that portion of Her Britannic Majesty's Eastern dominions known as Bengal proper. It is garrisoned by a solitary regiment of irregular cavalry, possessing also a civil surgeon, a collector or junior magistrate, and a missionary. Being quite out of the beaten track, it is naturally the quintessence of dullness and the abode of the foul fiend ennui. Three years in this benighted spot are almost equivalent to sojourning for the same period on a desert isle, and any regiment under such a ban is always cordially commiserated.

To this unblessed region it was my bad fortune to return after two years' furlough. My leave had been spent in the very heart of civilization, partly on the Continent, and partly in our own tight little island. The contrast between the life I had led and that in prospect nearly drove me to despair. There was but one faint gleam of hope. My friend Jack Carrington, an enthusiastic sportsman, wrote that it was a splendid shooting country.

Jack, who was the laziest beggar alive, would never have troubled himself to put pen to paper but for that potent lever which rarely fails to move men's minds—to wit, self-interest. He wanted a rifle and a supply of ammunition, which he asked me to buy and bring out. I did as requested, taking care to stock myself pretty completely at the same time.

We never talk of winter in the plains of India, but luckily it was the middle of the cold weather when I arrived, so my journey was pleasantly cool. The last eighty miles were traversed in a doolie—palanquin.

I reached the outskirts of Buchapore at about 5 a. m. My first impressions of the place were decidedly favorable. Instead of an arid waste, with nothing to break its blank monotony save here and there a stunted tree or sickly briar, and occasionally the white-washed grave of an ancient Mussulman, with perchance at long intervals a tope—plantation of mango trees, I found myself jogging steadily along the banks of a wide river, the crystal waters of which, especially inviting to one weary and travel-stained, tempted me to bathe in their cool depths.

The pearly heavens welcomed the rising sun with a faint blush. A soft blue haze in the far distance presently resolved itself into a range of low hills. Trees full of bud and blossom were planted at regular intervals by the wayside, affording pleasant shade, and scenting the air with their sweetness. Amongst them in abundance was the babool—acacia—the fragrant flowers of which resemble a tiny ball of golden moss, and are so faithfully and untiringly copied by the jewelers of famous Delhi. The path was carpeted with thick, soft turf, and from amidst its rich green peeped timidly myriads of small wild flowers.

"Come," said I, "give a dog a bad name and hang him. Buchapore is belied. At all events I shall find some pretty bits for my sketch-book. Hi!"—to the doolie bearers—"how far are we from the station now?"

"About three miles," was the response—of course in the vernacular.

In about another half hour I was landed at the door of our mess, where I met with a cordial greeting from my old brothers in arms.

Travelers by the ancient and honorable method of palanquin dak—post—are obliged to content themselves with as little baggage as possible. What they do take is packed in boxes of various shapes and sizes, which are placed in wooden frames to avoid breakage, and called pitarahs. These are slung one to each end of a long pole, and carried across a man's shoulders, after the fashion of milk-pails, and called bhanghy. Bound to these restrictions, I was forced to leave my heavy baggage at the nearest line of rail, to be forwarded by bullock-cart.

Now Indian bullocks—albeit very useful animals in their way—will not for any consideration whatever perform more than a stated distance per day. They may be tempted with the choicest food, beaten and tricked, but, lean or fat, they will not budge when once they have performed their usual task. Knowing this, Jack and I anxiously counted the days which must elapse before the arrival of our much-coveted shooting material.

"If our blessed guns were only here," said Jack, ruefully, "we might have gone after a tiger that killed one of our unfortunate grass-cutters the other day. Bad scran to him! I dare say we shall get him some day, but unhappily we shall never know it."

At last my luggage made its appearance, unharmed. Jack praised my choice of weapons, and was enraptured with a brace of Derringers which I presented to him. These little pistols are small enough to slip with ease into an ordinary coat-pocket, although they carry a full-sized cartridge, and are deadly at anything like close quarters.

Jack and I were like two children over our new toys, and could scarcely persuade ourselves to lay them down, much less trust them out of sight. They were exhibited at mess, and duly admired. Every one was eager to try them; and so highly were they appreciated that the outgoing mail took home orders for a pair from each officer of the regiment.

We now set to work in earnest to find a tiger, which in that neighborhood was a matter of small difficulty. Word was soon brought that a huge beast, supposed to be the identical brute that had killed our poor grass-cutter could be heard of in a ravine.

The intelligence rejoiced our hearts. At the time of which I write the irregular cavalry were allowed to do irregular things occasionally, and our fellows at that period thought it expedient to keep a hunting elephant. Old Luchme—such was its name—was instantly ordered to prepare for action; and, having arranged everything with the foresight of old stagers, and ordered a hapless goat to be tied out as a decoy, we retired to rest one evening fully confident of meeting our deadly foe in a few hours.

We started about 2:30 a. m., intending to reach our rendezvous with his royal highness a little before daybreak, and force him to atone for his depredations as he went down to drink after gorging on the luckless goat. We each pocketed one small pistol, handing its fellow to the friends who accompanied us. They were our commanding officer, Col. Meredith, and—don't be shocked—his daughter.

Miss Meredith had not long arrived in the country. Our regiment was to spend only one more year at Buchapore, during which time the young lady was to have remained in England, but the aunt with whom she lived died suddenly, and scarcely knowing what else to do, Col. Meredith decided to have his daughter out to India immediately.

Buchapore was not rich in feminine society. Beside Miss Meredith, we had only the ponderous civil surgeon's chattering "better half"—an abominable woman, whose magpie tongue did more mischief in a day than she or anybody else could undo in a twelvemonth—and Mrs. Vane, our popular Adjutant's fascinating little wife, on whom naturally devolved the care of Miss Meredith when she needed a chaperon.

A very sweet and charming little person was Miss Nellie Meredith; but determined withal. Selfish she was not; dauntless and impulsive she as certainly was; with that firm belief in her own power of overcoming difficulties which arises either from constant success or from inexperience. The girl had set her heart on seeing a tiger-hunt before she left Buchapore, and in a weak moment the Colonel promised that her wish should be gratified.

Although Jack and I meant work, we could not well object to Miss Meredith's company. The Colonel was a dashing soldier, still in his prime, and deservedly popular. Besides being an old shikaree of established repute, his advice was most acceptable; and we felt sure that he would run no unnecessary risks while his daughter was with him. Well armed, with a trusty elephant, we feared no danger; moreover, there was but one lady, and she—men are but mortals—was very pretty.

Such a sweet, saucy, naive face! The delicate features and large almond-shaped eyes seemed capable of every variety of expression. Her dark-brown hair, tied carelessly back with dainty ribbons, rippled in thick waves below a waist round and supple as Hebe's own. Her feet and hands were of the smallest; her voice was of the sweetest. Still, the girl's principal charm lay in her simple, unaffected manner, and the small opinion which, in spite of her waywardness, she entertained of herself and her abilities. Bright, sparkling, full of fire and naivete, she was not coquettish, although an ordinary observer might have misjudged her in this respect. Nellie Meredith had no petty meannesses. Hers was a frank, noble nature, containing the promise of great things to come.

We all liked the girl, and took pleasure in her society, as men do in that of a clever, pretty girl, who can make herself agreeable, neither falling violently in love herself, nor expecting every man she meets to fall in love with her, as is an unfortunate weakness with some girls of the period. Carrington, however, was "hard hit," and, under the circumstances, I did not object to Miss Meredith's society. We should have preferred making up a larger party, but, as there was only one elephant, this was impossible. Mrs. Vane was thus prevented joining us, which she would otherwise gladly have done.

It was broad moonlight when we started, and, to the mind of a simple English girl freshly arrived in the country, there must have been something strangely weird and romantic in the scene. The elephant marched majestically through the thick jungle of waving feather-grass from eight to ten feet high. Heavily she tramped it down before her, picking her way daintily for so huge a creature, in obedience to the whispered commands of the mahout.

We were all well wrapped up, for the air was keen and chilly, but our faces were distinctly visible in the pale, cold light. Talking was forbidden; and, to do our lady-hunter justice, she might have been born dumb, so strictly mute was she. At a quarter to 5 we arrived at the ravine, and found the goat missing, but no sign of the tiger. There were, however, spots of fresh blood along a rough path down the side of the ravine, where evidently the animal had recently passed, carrying his prey with him.

One of our native beaters, who from long training understood the customary maneuvers of such animals, crept down the path, and presently returned to say that a tiger and tigress were both in the cave, apparently breakfasting on the goat's carcass.

We immediately settled our plan of operations, and ordered the shikaree to fire his piece into the cave, to apprise the royal pair of our approach. Carrington and I hastily climbed a couple of large trees overlooking each side of the ravine. Colonel and Miss Meredith, on Luchme, were safely posted out of harm's way, where they could command a good view of the animal's movements, and where also the Colonel's rifle might tell with good effect should Jack and I fail to give either of the brutes its quietus.

It was now broad daylight, although the sun had not yet risen. This was fortunate, as we could see much better, and there was less chance of our prey escaping.

Bang! bang! went the shikaree's piece into the cave, and immediately out sprang a royal Bengal tiger into the center of the ravine.

A right royal beast was he, nothing but princely blood ran in his veins. A true king of the forest he looked, as he stood there lashing his sides with his tail, with a roar like thunder, his eyes flashing rage and defiance, his head turned eagerly from side to side in search of his enemies. He measured, at least, twelve feet from nose to tail, and was beautifully marked.

The shikaree fired from a large tree, and was completely hidden in the midst of its thick foliage. We had agreed that Carrington should fire first; so, after a few seconds spent in sincere admiration of our enemy, bang went Jack's rifle. The tiger staggered, gave one bound into the air, and with a hideous yell fell mortally wounded.

At this instant the tigress appeared. I aimed at her, but, my trigger catching in a branch, the shot failed. Carrington hastily let fly his second barrel, but, being in too great a hurry, and possibly rather excited, he also missed, and the tigress bounded up the side of the ravine; meanwhile, I had put my second shot into the tiger, who now lay lifeless.

The tigress fled straight toward the jungle, passing old Luchme unawares, then turned suddenly, perhaps to meet her mate, and, facing the plucky old elephant, charged straight at her. Luchme gave a squeal, and brandished her trunk in the air, but never offered to turn tail.

So rapid were the tigress' movements that, although Col. Meredith was thoroughly prepared, and a capital shot, he could fire only one barrel before the huge beast leaped on to Luchme's hind-quarters. The shock threw his rifle to the ground.

Seeing what was likely to happen, Jack and I descended from our perches with lightning speed, and hastened to the rescue.

I have had plenty of tiger shooting, but never again has such a strange sight greeted my eyes as met them then. The howdah, unused for some time, was slightly white-ant eaten, and at a desperate assault from the frantic tigress partially gave way. Nellie Meredith was slipping slowly but, as it seemed, inevitably into the tiger's jaws. Col. Meredith's shot had taken effect in the animal's shoulder, and the monster, unable to spring, crouched ready to receive her victim. Not only had the wood-work of the howdah broken, but the whole affair was turning round, and, although Col. Meredith sought for his pistol, he could not get at it.

Nellie's hand dropped in an endeavor to catch hold of the howdah, which only helped to drag the ponderous machine round. Lower and lower still slipped the girl. In another moment she would have been seized by her merciless foe, but that grand old Luchme, watching her opportunity, wound her trunk round Nellie's supple waist, and lifted her into comparative safety beside the mahout. At the same instant bang went Carrington's rifle, and "ping" sounded the Colonel's derringer, whilst the tigress rolled over on her back, biting the dust in her death agony. Col. Meredith's shot entered the brain, passing through the right eye—Jack's went straight to the heart.

As soon as he felt himself on firm ground, the Colonel turned to clasp his daughter in his arms.

"I am quite safe, thank heaven, papa, dear," were her first words. "But how foolish I was to drop the pistol!"

Brave little thing, she never fainted! And, although her face was white, neither hand nor voice trembled. But when we reached home the poor child said her head ached, and went to her room suffering from an attack of nervous fever which kept her in bed a fortnight.

This happened many years ago; and, though we have long left Buchapore, Col. Meredith still commands the regiment. I am supposed to be a confirmed old bachelor, but need I add that my dearest friends are Captain and Mrs. Carrington!

The Chinese Way.

Matrimonial infelicity in Chinese society is as fitful and abnormal as Hamlet's passion for Ophelia. Years ago a Chinaman was separated from his wife during the Taiping rebellion. The lady, hearing no tidings of her husband, and being in reduced circumstances, married again. The first husband reappeared in Nanking, and opened negotiations with his successor. A compromise was finally suggested, and in consideration of the sum of $50 in hand paid the first husband finally agreed to sign a quit-claim deed and to find another wife. Ten years went by, and the second husband became the father of two children—a girl of 9 years, and a bright little fellow three years younger. On Sept. 6 the first husband met this little boy near the south gate of the city, and in a transport of jealousy and rage enticed him to an obscure place, cut off his head, and threw the body into the canal.

Child Crammed Into a Hollow Log.

A negro girl was indicted by the Grand Jury of Bibb county for making an assault upon a negro child. The girl was about 12 years of age, as proven by the testimony, though in appearance she was barely more than 9. It seems that she took the child into a wood near where she lived, in Howard district, and beat and pounded it with stones. She then threw it into a branch for the purpose of drowning it. Finding the water not deep enough to accomplish that purpose, she took the child to a hollow log, and, cramming it in as far as she could, left it there. Some gentlemen passing some time after, hearing moans coming from the direction of the log, relieved the child from its perilous position, though it was almost in a dying condition. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the girl was sentenced to six months' confinement in the county jail.—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

ELECTING THE PRESIDENT.

A Primer of the Electoral College.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

A reader asks us to explain all about the Electoral College—a heroic request in view of the popular weariness of the whole subject. But there is a large class at every Presidential election to whom it must be a new thing to vote or to take an interest in the vote, and for such the subject is always new, and a proper theme for instruction.

When the constitution of the United States was framed, the faith in the capacity of the common people to decide upon their destinies was much less strong than it is now. Hence, in the election of President, the fathers sought to place the choice in the hands of a body of men who should themselves be the chosen, so that the President should be the picked of the picked. For the same reason, the choice of Senators was devolved not directly upon the people but upon the Legislatures of the several States. In the Presidential election, the constitution therefore provided a body of electors, of whom each State should choose as many as it had members of Congress and Senators. Every State has two Senators, and adding to them the number of its representatives gives the number of electors to which it is entitled. Massachusetts, therefore, has 13. How these electors should be chosen, or "appointed," to use he constitutional word, is left to "the Legislature thereof," and if the Massachusetts Legislature were to authorize the Governor to appoint them, or should proceed to elect them itself, there would be no objection under the Federal constitution. In fact, in many States the Legislatures have elected the electors, though only Colorado did so this year. The original idea was, first, to provide an intermediate electing body—a buffer between the direct will of the people and the highest office—and, second, to magnify the sovereignty of the States as taking part in their individual capacities in the election. It is necessary to a clear understanding of the subject to say here that, as a matter of history, the electors did not meet these anticipations. From the first there was a strong tendency to regard them as so many ciphers, merely representing the will of the people who chose them; they have been compelled to give up all pretensions to a deliberate and free choice, and are simply set up to vote as the people have distinctly voted. On the second point, State boundaries seem to have vanished also, and the people never do a more decidedly national act than when they elect the President.

Now, then, the electors, having been chosen in each State in November on a general ticket, to represent the whole State, and, according as the whole State has gone for one party or the other, meet in each State and ballot for President and Vice President, one of whom must not be a resident of that State. That is, if both of one party were residents of one State, the vote of that State could not be cast for those candidates. This voting is fixed on the same day in all the States by Federal law, and will take place, this year, Dec. 6. Lists of the votes are made out and transmitted to the President of the Senate at Washington, who opens them in the presence of both houses of Congress on the second Wednesday of February. The votes shall then be counted, and those two having majorities of the Electoral College (as the electors all together are called), are chosen President and Vice President. As there are 293 members of Congress and 76 Senators, the Electoral College numbers 369, a majority of which would be 185. Hence, Tilden or Hayes must receive, to be elected, at least 185 votes.

If two men are thus chosen, they are inaugurated, according to law, on the 4th of March following. If no one receives a majority for President, the House of Representatives immediately proceeds to elect one, from the three highest candidates. Each State has one vote. If no one receives a majority for Vice President, the Senate must immediately ballot for that officer, two-thirds being present and a majority deciding. If the House should not choose a President by March 4, the Vice President chosen shall act as President. And if neither should be chosen, the President pro tem. of the Senate would act as President and order a new election. This last procedure is a matter of federal law and not of the constitution.

It is proposed to do away with the whole system of the electoral college and substitute for it an election by a direct popular vote, and this seems to be the tendency of opinion and of destiny.

Scarlet Fever.

The Lancet calls attention to the importance, as a safeguard to the public health, of securing the early detection of cases of scarlet fever, it being of incalculable consequence not only to the patient, but also to the community, in order that timely measures may be taken for preventing the spread of the disease. The Lancet says that the throat symptoms are the most trustworthy for the purpose of diagnosis in the initial stage of scarlet fever; the soft part of the palate is extensively reddened, and not merely the tonsils, as is the case in the first instance in ordinary sore throat. When this condition is met with, accompanied by a very hot skin and a very quick pulse, attended or preceded by sickness, with a thickly furred tongue, red borders, and prominent papillæ, a case of scarlet fever may be prepared for. In most cases, adds this journal, sickness occurs within some twenty four hours after the commencement of the attack—indeed, it is well known to all observers that, in the large proportion of cases, sickness occurs within twenty-one or eighteen hours.

A Great Achievement.

Holland has just achieved a new conquest of the sea—having dammed up the Zuyder Zee from flowing into the Y, on which Amsterdam is situated, cut a new canal from Amsterdam straight to the coast and carved out a new harbor at the outer entrance to the canal. This work has been in process since 1863, under the best English and Dutch engineers, an English firm taking the contract at $12,500,000. The new canal is short and saves a distance around of 100 miles, but the engineering difficulties were very great. Over 12,500 acres of land has been incidentally made, which has sold at $600 an acre. The canal was opened with great rejoicing on 1st of November, and it is expected to restore the declining commerce of Amsterdam.

The Crime of a French Cadet.

Saint Cyr is the West Point of France, and the honor of its cadets is dear to every soldier and civilian in the country. It is, therefore, with nothing less than a feeling of pain that society hears of the convocation of a court-martial for the trial of a "Saint Cyrien" for theft. A few nights ago a cadet, who may be designated as B., tossing haplessly on his bed, saw a figure in white passing by him (it should be observed that the pupils of the military college sleep together in a large dormitory), and cried out, "Who's that?" "It is I," said a voice, which he recognized as that of X. "What are you doing?" X. informed his comrade, and the latter, merely taking advantage of the situation to make a joke, thought no more of the matter. Next morning a cadet missed his purse, containing 1,000f. 20c. Who had taken it? It was soon discovered that the thief must have been one of the pupils, and yet there was no one who could be fairly suspected. It was then that B. called to mind his nocturnal interview with X., though he shrank from the idea of uttering his thoughts aloud. Still he mentioned the circumstances to an intimate friend or two, and one of these presently suggested that every cadet should submit to be searched. The proposal was agreed to. X. never moved a muscle while his comrades were thrusting their hands into his pockets. Nothing was found on him but 25 francs, to which his title could not be disputed.

It was now 11 o'clock in the morning. At 2 o'clock the promotion list was to be published, and it was known that X. would appear among the number of Sub-Lieutenants. Once a commissioned officer and he would have been safe from further inquiries. He was playing a desperate game for the coveted epaulette or a pair of handcuffs. Still his every movement was jealously watched. In a few minutes he was observed to be pacing uneasily between the dormitory and the court-yard, as though he were watching for an opportunity of being alone. B., whose suspicions were far from being laid at rest, demanded another general search, each cadet to strip. X. smiled when it came to his turn, and continued to smile while the lining of his coat was conscientiously cross-examined. Nothing was found, and now popular opinion veered round to his side. He stood honorably acquitted in the eyes of his comrades. It was half-past 1. In another half-hour he would be a French officer. An old chum of his came forward and heartily shook him by the hand. "Now it's over," he said, "I don't mind telling you, old fellow, that you were suspected;" and he explained why. X. made no answer. His gaze was fixed almost stonily on a young cadet who had just stretched out his hand toward a packet of Maryland cigarettes, which had been turned out of X.'s pocket. Then B., who had never ceased to watch him, darted forward and snatched the packet himself, tore the paper from a cigarette and found it contained, instead of tobacco, a 1,000 franc note, neatly rolled up. Every one stood confounded. "Dress!" said one of his comrades sternly to X., who was now observed, while taking up his socks, to make a rapid, almost imperceptible movement. Four cadets sprang on him and seized the socks. One of them contained 4 sous, which the unhappy youth had had the courage to hold concealed in his left hand during the two previous investigations. Of course they exactly made up the 1,000f. 20c contained in the missing purse. X. was left for a few minutes quite alone. Then several of his messmates returned. One bore a loaded Chassepot, another a six-shooter, also loaded; a third a vial containing poison, a fourth a short cord, evidently capable of sustaining a considerable weight.

Then one of the seniors said: "We shall leave you alone once more. Do your duty! Your suicide shall be attributed to a disappointment in love or whatever you like. If you wish it we will take a letter from you to the General."

X. merely replied, "I'll be damned if I do!"

His last chance was gone. The General was immediately informed of the circumstance and the offender arrested. What makes the whole business inexpressibly sad is that the culprit is the son of a brave old Major, now on half-pay, who had both his arms carried away by a cannon ball while charging at the head of his battalion before Sebastopol. There seems every reason to suspect that this is another case of kleptomania.

On examining the trunks of the prisoner there were found concealed in them books belonging to the Public Library and stamped with its seal. During the two years of his residence X. is supposed to have stolen about $1,200 in money from his comrades. We may smile if we will at the idea of the thoughtful consideration displayed by those boys in providing their comrade with so varied an assortment of the means of self-destruction, but it recalls an incident in the life of another soldier, in which no comic element was blended with the tragic. A famous Prussian General, affectionately called "Papa" by the whole army, once had a son who disgraced his name. The father first "paid him out" of the scrape so well that the world would scarcely have heard of the affair. But the father was not satisfied. He called the son into his room and pointed to a pistol that lay on the table. "There is but one course before you," he said. The young man, who had not yet fallen to the lowest depth, took up the pistol and blew out his brains. His father never mentioned his name again.

CHICAGO Tribune: "Snails lie furled" for "sails lie furled," in a piece of poetry printed in the Tribune of yesterday, was an error of the compositor. So was the sentence: "We . . . even dare to say that he [Mr. Gladstone] is losing his mind." The word "we" should have been printed "they."

EXTRAORDINARY TRIUMPH of science. This new principle, new way, to cure Cough and Consumption. Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. As rapidly as the Globule dissolves in the mouth, a healing gas is formed and inhaled which cures Throat and Lung diseases. Trial Boxes 25 cts. by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

THE ABSURDITY OF IT.

BY JOHN PAUL.

It is all very well for the poets to tell
By way of their song and adorning,
Of milkmaids who seem to manipulate cows
At five o'clock in the morning;
And of many young mowers who bundle out doors—
The charm of their straw-field scorning—
Before break of day, to make love and hay,
At five o'clock in the morning.

But between me and you, it is all untrue—
Believe not a word they utter;
To no milkmaid alive, does the finger of five
Bring beaux—or even bring butter.
The poor sleepy cows, if told to arouse,
Would do so, perhaps, in a horn-ing;
But the sweet country girls, who would show their curls,
At five o'clock in the morning.

It may not be wrong for the man in the song—
Or the moon—if anxious to settle,
To kneel in wet grass and pop, but alas!
What if he popped down on a nettle?
For how could he see what was under his knee,
If in spite of my friendly warning
He went out of bed, and his house and his head,
At five o'clock in the morning.

It is all very well such stories to tell,
But if I was a maid all forlorn-ing,
And a lover should drop, in the clover to pop,
At five o'clock in the morning;
If I liked him, you see, I'd say, "Please call at three,"
If not I'd turn on him with scorning,
"Don't come up here, you flat, with conundrums like that,
At five o'clock in the morning."

Pith and Point.

THE boy who is early to bed doesn't generally take early to ryes

WHAT is the difference between ferns and ceremonies? We sit upon one and stand upon the other.

TWO LADIES were discussing a third, who is, of course, absent. "She is really charming," says one, "and, above all, she has such an air of intelligence." "Yes," answers the other; "but there are no words to that air."

MRS. HYNES read that a wash-bowl of water sprinkled with meal would catch all the mice, and she tried it. Hynes came home from a procession at 2 o'clock and took a wash. Said he, "Tilden Endricks! Maria, I've got 'em agin."

THE New York Evening Mail inquires: "Why do the majority of brides at the chancel-rail squeak out the response 'I will' like a timid mouse? Why don't they speak right out in meetin' like a man?" They do—eventually, if not sooner.

A BRIDGEPORT, Ct., woman, hearing a great deal about "preserving autumn leaves," concluded to put up a few jars of them. She told a neighbor yesterday that she didn't think they would ever be fit to eat, and she might just as well have thrown her sugar away!

SCENE in elocution (student trying to render long sentence which contains the following: "And half the other half, crying that hell was clutching at their hearts, fled," etc.)—"Professor, I can't go through that entire sentence at one breath." Professor—"Go to 'hell,' then." Student wilts.

A GENTLEMAN recently had occasion to consult his hatter, but was utterly unable to find in the store the precise article that he needed. "Come to-morrow," said the hatter, finally; "I know to a 't' what you want. You want a tranquil hat, with moderate and not unseemly gayety in the brim. I'll fix it for you to-morrow, sure."

"JAKE," said the blushing damsel to a lover that her father had forbidden the house, "I don't care if your feet are big; I love you just as much." "Wall, Sally, I don't mind so much about the size of my own feet, but I wish your dad's were a little smaller; I should feel more confident, you know, about staying."

A BRIGHT-EYED blonde young man bought a front seat every night, and spent $6 on bouquets to throw to her when she made her entrance, and now he's taking to wandering out in the country, simply because he discovered that the man who sat next to him was her son, and that she sold the bouquets back to the flower woman.

THEY were two peanut venders, and when they met they set their baskets down and shook hands silently. Then one said: "Owa the trade, Bill, wid yer now?" "Hawful," the dried-up old man replied. "Yer see the Eastern question and the pivotal business in Louisiana is crushing us down. I tells you I fear the market is a going up, and so I laid in a stock for the winter. I've invested 40 cents as a specerlation, and if we don't have war in Turkey I'm a ruined man."—New Orleans Bulletin.

AN ASTRONOMICAL BILL OF FARE.
SOUP.
Terichilli (o' nights), served with the Little Dipper
FISH.
Star Fish—Sun Fish.
ENTREES.
Northern Lights.
ROAST.
Aries, the Ram, Butter Sauce.
BOILED.
Meteors.
A SIDERIAL DISH.
Hashteroids.
VEGETABLES.
Capricorn.
GAME.
The Great Bear.
RELISH.
Green Cheese, from the Moon
WINES.
Punch in a Milky Way, drunk from Smoked Glasses
TEA.
From a Sab-urn.

His Honor and Bijah.

"It's awful—awful!" sighed Bijah as he ranged the big Japan spittoons in battle-line across the room. "There I went and bet $2.13 on 'lection, and here it's tied up in the stakeholder's hands for goodness knows how long. I want a new box of collars, and my board bill is piling right up."

One of the prisoners overheard the old man growling around and called out:

"Never mind, uncle, you can hang up your stocking pretty soon."

"Yes, hang up my stocking," sneered Bijah—"hang up my stocking and get a Sunday school card, three harness buckles, a candy cat and four old herrings in it. You keep away from that door and don't sass me, for I feel like a Numidian lion creeping through a Mississippi canebrake to catch a colored State Senator.

His Honor came in, took in the situation, and consolingly said:

"Never mind, Bijah. Be good until court is over and you may go over to the Free Press office and read all the Associated Press bulletins they have put on for a week."

The janitor's feelings underwent a change at once, and as the crowd began to file in he went around singing:

"Another such a 'lection time
I never hope to see;
And Mary had a little lamb,
As white as it could be."

—Detroit Free Press.

TWO MILLIONS WASTED.

Some Facts and Figures as to the Cost of Political Fireworks and Processions.

[From the Illustrated Weekly.]

When it is remembered that both of the two great factions hold numerous meetings every week in the large cities during a political canvass, it will not seem strange that very extensive pyrotechnic attractions are needed to attract the thousands of people required to make the gatherings sufficiently large and imposing—imposing often in a double sense. What with Roman candles, sky-rockets, parachute rockets, revolving rockets, "illuminating floral bomb-shells," "campaign salute-shells," "mines of stars and serpents," "detonating cannon salutes," "silver fountains," "colored fires," and the hundred other designs which go to make up a first-class display, the cost of a political meeting nowadays is considerable. These fireworks vary in price from $1 to $18 a dozen, and twelve dozen do not go very far.

The largest outlays on fireworks of course occur in years of Presidential elections. Of late years the expenditure, even at those important seasons, has decreased considerably. Very extravagant displays were made in New York city under the Tweed regime. In 1868, for example, the Democrats spent $10,000 on fireworks for one procession. The largest amount spent this year on a single occasion was $4,000, expended on the great Democratic torchlight procession in New York last Thursday evening. The Democrats in this city have not devoted much more than $10,000 to all their parades during this campaign, and the Republicans have expended little more than $5,000.

But the cost of fireworks only represents a portion of the total outlay for political processions. Every man in line with a cap, cape and torch represents an expenditure of $1.25, so that a parade of 30,000 men will cost about $37,500 for equipments alone. In the 40,000,000 of our population there are probably more than 10,000,000 boys and men capable of marching in these pageants. If, in the course of a Presidential campaign, one individual in every twenty of these 10,000,000—and this is a moderate estimate—takes part in a procession of this kind, the expenditure for torches and uniforms would reach $625,000. And if to this we add the cost of the fireworks, the total would probably exceed $2,000,000.

Competition has sensibly decreased the once-large profit realized on the manufacture of fireworks. The goods are manufactured in the suburbs of New York and at Greenville, N. J. Ordinary fire-crackers, which are produced exclusively in China, are the only fireworks imported. The price of these is largely enhanced by the duty ($1 in gold) imposed by the Custom House on every box brought into this country. There are six large dealers in fireworks in New York, with an invested capital of about $200,000, who ship goods to all parts of the country for political clubs and for Fourth of July celebrations.

Great improvements have been made of late in the manufacture of fireworks. Most of them are now made by machinery only recently introduced, and many new varieties have been lately put upon the market. America is considered to lead the world, excepting only China, in pyrotechnical science.

The Land of Revolutions.

Late advices from the City of Mexico furnish the appended news: The political situation is becoming much complicated. Ex-Chief Justice Iglesias has proclaimed himself provisional President of the republic, and located his seat of government at Leon, in the State of Guanajuato, the Legislature and Governor of which sustain him. A portion of the procession escorting Iglesias to Leon attacked some American missionaries with the cry of "Death to Protestants!" The missionaries barricaded themselves in a house until the police rescued them. Two ex-Judges of the Supreme Court and several deputies have joined Iglesias. He has established a regular Cabinet and appointed Ministers of War, Foreign Relations, etc. Troops are marching upon Guanajuato, and the flight of Iglesias with his Government is expected in a very short time. No other State has seconded Iglesias' movement in Guanajuato. Lerdo de Tejada is receiving congratulatory dispatches and offers of support from all parts of the country.

Gomez Palacio, former Commissioner at Washington, and Alas and Ramirez, Judges of the Supreme Court, are in close imprisonment on a charge of conspiracy.

Four thousand ronunciados took possession of Apizaco where the Puebla railroad branches off from the Mexico and Vera Cruz railway, interrupting all travel and communication between those two cities. On the 12th advices reached Mexico that Apizaco has been evacuated by the revolutionists upon the approach of the Government troops. There was some fighting, but no particulars are yet received. It was hoped the railway communications would be re-established. Meantime a mail line was established by private individuals, with postage rates at $2 per ounce. Gen. Diaz continues to hold Oaxaca.

Mr. Foster, United States Minister, has arrived at Mexico.

A Chapter on Pigeons.

In olden times the flesh of pigeons was considered a preventive of the plague, and all other pestilential diseases; also a cure for trembling and palsy; and the superstitious believed the use of it to be of great benefit to near-sighted people. The flesh was always given as a restorative after severe illness, and thought quite as much of, for the purpose, as "beef tea" is at the present time. Yet to-day, in some foreign countries, pigeons are not considered fit for food. In parts of Russia they are revered as emblems of the Holy Ghost. In Venice they are protegés of the city. They are fed every day at 2 o'clock, being called together by a dinner-bell, and no one is allowed to interfere with them. Any person found ill-treating them is arrested and fined, or, if an old offender, is imprisoned. It is believed by the Venicse that these pigeons are in some way connected with the prosperity of the city—that they fly three times round it each day, in honor of the Trinity, and that their presence preserves the people from danger by water and flood.

So far as we can learn, the flesh of all pigeons is good for food. It is nourishing and heating in its nature, and for that reason well suited as diet for convalescents. The flesh of our wood-pigeons is the finest flavored of all species in America, and by connoisseurs is esteemed superior to that of any other bird. In kitchen parlance the pigeon is considered as game, whether wild or domestic, the flesh of the latter being less fine and delicate.

THE EASTERN IMBROGLIO.

The Attitude of Russia and England—Will the Latter Fight?

[From the New York Herald.]

The report that Turkey has unconditionally agreed to a conference is not extraordinary; but the consent may come too late. It has been evident to all the world that the irritation of the English Government over Turkey's obstinacy in declining a conference has been extreme. The Moslems for their part see that Russia means war as the alternative of Turkey refusing conditions which they look on as impossible. Lord Beaconsfield's speech they took it committed England to their side in the inevitable struggle, and hence a conference presented itself to them as a needless piece of humiliation to a nation willing to meet its avowed enemy at the cimeter's edge and sure of a powerful ally. By dint of persistent threatening, after sweet words had failed, England has, it appears, brought the Porte to its senses and its knees. We cannot be very hopeful about the conference now in sight. England wants it for various reasons. She would, of course, be glad to secure peace thereby, but if she cannot she may endeavor to put Russia wrong in the eyes of Europe. She may angle for the moral support of France; she may be able to place Italy definitely; she may round Austria, and, if she cannot get much comfort from her or from Germany, she may test the strength of the triple imperial alliance. She gains time. Beyond these temporizing advantages it would be vain to forecast. The temper of the main disputants—England and Russia—is not encouraging to lovers of peace. Either Russia must abate the demands in favor of the Christian Slavs in Turkey which she has announced herself willing to enforce with the sword, or else England must recede, with a long backward bound, from her definition of the "independence and integrity" of the Ottoman empire to admit them. If the conference meets there will evidently be little use in pleading that the Russian demands are impossible. Russia has announced that the reforms she asks are just and necessary, and that calling them impossible is simply compelling her to enforce them. It is difficult to foresee a peaceful issue from this.

Will England fight, then? She has already well advanced her preparations for war. The announcement is made and not denied that if Russia invades Bulgaria or brings her Cossacks to the Danube England will at once occupy Constantinople and "defend it from all attack." This, it is argued, will not involve her in war unless in a certain well-defined contingency. It would leave her free to supply the Turks who would have to do the fighting with arms, money and officers. It is a clever plan to follow Russia's lead in the Servian insurrection and make war upon the "limited liability" plan. But will it work? It failed of a great part of its object in Russia's hand—namely, of winning the Servian campaign. It succeeded in another—namely, making Russia a fierce unit for war on its own account. What the Servian is to the Turkish soldier the Turk is to the Russian. In the same degree the "limited liability" plan would be likely to fail England. On the other hand, the English Government can command the support of the nation's resources at one time as well as another. Her statesmen, therefore, we may infer, would, if they had a pretext for war, declare it as soon as Russia struck a blow. In the conference, if all else fails her, she may seek this pretext.

Nine Terms in the Penitentiary.

At Philadelphia, the other day, Chas. Langheimer, 74 years old, was held to answer the charge of stealing an overcoat. Langheimer is the man described by Dickens in his "American Notes." The novelist speaks of him as he saw him in the Eastern Penitentiary over thirty years ago, a picture of forlorn affliction and distress of mind. Langheimer has served nine terms in the Eastern Penitentiary. The reformatory teachings of that institution seem to have little effect upon the stolid Dutchman, as upon gaining his liberty he is always upon the lookout for something new. He has occupied the same cell every term, and in one corner in a lot of earth he lays out a garden which looks much like a grave, and in which he takes especial pride.

SPADES are trumps again in Paris, just as much as in the days of Hausmann under the empire. The shovel and the pickaxe are seen everywhere cleaning away rubbish, to charm the eyes of visitors to the great Exhibition in 1878, which, the French hope, will eclipse all its predecessors.

STANDARD REMEDIES.—It is a fact well known to all our readers that a few proprietary medicines have achieved a reputation as standard remedies, and occupy a place in every well-regulated household, almost as universally as the Bible and the family almanac. Foremost among these is the Merchant's Gargling Oil, manufactured by the well-known company of that name at Lockport, N. Y.—a sovereign remedy for man and beast, and one which has wrought hundreds of well-attested cures. We need hardly say here what the patrons of the Blade fully understand—that we do not make a practice of praising indiscriminately the numerous compounds offered to the public, but since we believe the "Gargling Oil" to be a carefully compounded and efficacious remedy, we do not hesitate to say as much.—Toledo (Ohio) Blade.

YOU CANNOT HIDE IT! "That Catarrh spoils your voice." Dr. J. H. McLean's Wonderful Catarrh Snuff soothes and heals all irritation in the nose head or throat, a sure cure. Trial boxes 50c by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

THE NEW CONGRESS.

Political Complexion of the Forty-fifth Congress.

[From the New York Tribune.]

The exact complexion of the Forty-fifth Congress is not yet known, official returns not having been received from all the districts. The latest reports, however, give the Democrats a majority of fifteen, which may be increased to about twenty. The representation by States in the House, according to the latest reports, is compared below with the Forty-second, Forty-third, and Forty-fourth Congresses. In the Forty-second Congress the Republican majority was twenty-two; in the Forty-third Congress it was 105. The Democratic majority in the present Congress is seventy-seven.

STATES.	XLII.		XLIII.		XLIV.		XLV.
	R.	D.	R.	D.	R.	D.	R.	D.
Alabama	3	3	5	3	2	6	...	8
Arkansas	2	1	3	1	...	4	...	4
California	3	...	3	1	1	3	3	1
††Colorado	...	...	...	...	1	...	1	...
Connecticut	3	1	3	1	1	3	1	3
Delaware	...	1	1	...	...	1	...	1
Florida		1	2	...	1	1	1	1
Georgia	3	4	3	6	...	9	...	9
Illinois	7	7	14	5	6	*13	10	9
Indiana	6	5	10	3	6	8	9	4
Iowa	6	...	9	...	7	†2	9	...
Kansas	1	...	3	...	2	1	3	...
Kentucky	...	9	...	10	1	9	...	10
Louisiana	5	...	¶5	...	2	4	3	3
Maine	5	...	5	...	5	...	5	...
Maryland	...	5	2	4	...	6	...	6
Massachusetts	9	1	11	...	‡6	5	9	2
Michigan	4	2	9	...	6	3	8	1
Minnesota	2	...	3	...	3	...	3	...
Mississippi	5	...	5	1	2	4	...	6
Missouri	4	5	4	9	...	13	4	9
Nebraska	1	...	1	...	1	...	1	...
Nevada	...	1	...	1	1	...	1	2
New Hampshire	...	3	2	1	1	2	1	3
New Jersey	3	2	6	1	2	5	3	4
New York	14	17	22	11	§17	16	18	15
North Carolina	2	5	3	5	1	7	1	7
Ohio	13	6	13	7	*7	13	12	8
Oregon	...	1	...	1	...	1	...	1
Pennsylvania	13	11	22	5	10	17	17	10
Rhode Island	2	...	2	...	2	...	2	...
South Carolina	4	...	5	...	5	...	3	2
Tennessee	2	6	7	3	1	9	2	8
Texas	...	4	...	6	...	6	...	6
Vermont	3	...	3	...	3	...	3	...
Virginia	3	5	5	4	1	8	1	8
West Virginia	1	2	1	2	...	3	...	3
Wisconsin	4	2	6	2	5	3	5	3
Total	132	110	199	93	108	185	139	154
Majority	22	...	106	...	...	77	...	15

*Including 3 Independents. †Including 1 Anti-Monopolist. ‡Including 1 Liberal Republican and 1 Independent. ¶Elected 6 Republicans, but 1 of them (P. B. S. Pinchback) was not admitted. §Including 1 Independent Republican. 10 a vacancy. New Hampshire will elect 3 Congressmen in March, 1877. ††The Colorado Republicans claim that the member elected to the unexpired term of the XLIVth Congress was also elected to the XLVth Congress.

Omitting Louisiana, the Republican majority in the Senate after March 4 will be six. If the Republicans carry the Legislature of that State, as they claim to have done, and elect two United States Senators, their majority will be eight. If the new Senators are Democrats, the Republican majority will be four. Giving the Democrats the benefit of the doubt in Louisiana, the XLIVth and XLVth Congresses will compare as follows:

	XLIVTH CONGRESS. Senate.	XLIVTH CONGRESS. House.	XLVTH CONGRESS. Senate.	XLVTH CONGRESS. House.
Republicans	*46	108	40	139
Democrats	29	185	36	154
Majorities	15 R	77 D	4 R	15 D

* Including 2 Independents.

In the present Senate there is one vacancy, only one Senator from Louisiana having been admitted. Colorado's admission as a State will increase the membership of the Senate by two and the House by one. The next Senate will then contain 76 members and the House 293 members. The membership of the present House also has been increased to 293 by the admission of Colorado.

GLODDAETH WOODS, near Llandudno, Wales, has been the scene of an extraordinary poaching affray. Fifteen keepers, bent on capturing a gang of poachers, hid in a gun room, but the poachers, obtaining information of the trap laid for them, detached a firing party, which kept up a fusilade from behind a wall on the gun room, while their comrades bagged the game. The poachers kept their would-be captors in confinement for an hour. Three were wounded; the remainder escaped by heaping up tables and furniture for protection.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once

Consumption Cured.

An old Physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable Remedy, for the speedy and permanent Cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a Positive and Radical Cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send (free of charge) to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

A CORRESPONDENT at the Centennial Exhibition says that the Judges of Artificial Limbs and Surgical Instruments gave the sole award for artificial legs to of Philadelphia declaring that "the complete success of his invention for the relief of one of the direst forms of human misfortune places the author in the front rank of the inventors and mechanics of the age." All the artificial legs hitherto made, seem worthless in comparison with Dr. Palmer's. No one with a mutilated leg, who sees it, would be without it.

B. FRANK PALMER, LL. D.,

The Grand Centennial Medal for "distinguished merit" and "great excellence" was awarded to the

EUREKA TREE AND POST DIGGER,

and works admirably in all soils, prairie, stony, sandy, clay or quicksand, where the auger can be worked, without clogging, knee-work, or back-ache. Sent to any address, freight free, on receipt of $5, by the Eureka Digger Co., 84 William St., New York.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE.—A perfect dressing for the hair. The COCOAINE holds in a liquid form a large proportion of deodorized cocoanut oil, prepared expressly for this purpose.

BUTTER and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutritious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parsons' Purgative Pills, judiciously used, will remove both of these troubles.

SNEEZING catarrh, chronic catarrh, ulcerative catarrh, with all their sympathetic diseases, promptly relieved and permanently cured by Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. It instantaneously relieves and always cures.

WE call attention to the advertisement of Messrs Kendall, Hubbard & Co., New York, who offer an elegant holiday assortment of diamonds and jewelry, whose prices will be found very cheap for such fine goods.

A Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat

Requires immediate attention, and should be checked. If allowed to continue, irritation of the Lungs, a permanent Throat affection, or an incurable Lung disease, is often the result. "BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," having a direct influence on the parts, give immediate relief. For Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Consumptive and Throat Diseases, TROCHES are used always with good success.

IT is becoming all the "go" to chew "Matchless" plug instead of fine-cut, as it is made of better material and finer and more delicate flavor, so much liked by old chewers. The splendid flavor of this brand is known only to The Pioneer Tobacco Company manufacturers, 124 Water St., N. Y. Every plug has the words "Matchless P. T. Co." thereon.

CHAPPED hands, face, pimples, ringworm, saltrheum, and other cutaneous affections cured, and rough skin made soft and smooth, by using Juniper Tar Soap. Be careful to get only that made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, as there are many imitations made with common tar, all of which are worthless.

HAVE you ague in the face; and is it badly swollen? Have you severe pain in the chest, back, or side? Have you cramps or pains in the stomach or bowels? Have you bilious colic or severe griping pains? If so, use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment internally.

THE MOST GOODS — Send 25 Cts. for either 40 nicely-assorted Decalcomanie; four sheets new Scrap-Book Pictures; 40 elegant Chromo Gems; 4 Card Chromos, or 75 Cents for them all, to V. T. HULL & CO., 270 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill. AGENTS WANTED for the popular Chromo, 16x21 inches, of D. L. Moody's FIRST SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS. — FOR LEAST MONEY have been awarded a Medal and Diploma at the Centennial Exposition and commended by the Judges for

J. & P. COATS

"SUPERIOR STRENGTH

— AND —

EXCELLENT QUALITY

— OF —

SPOOL COTTON."

SEAL. A. T. GOSHORN, Director-General.
J. R. HAWLEY, Pres.
ALEX. R. BOTELER, Secretary pro tem.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,

Is the Grand Old

MUSTANG LINIMENT.

WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

$5 HOLIDAYS. $12

SWISS DIAMONDS AND WATCHES.

We have just received a consignment of fine Diamonds and Watches from Messrs. A. Perret, Geneva, which we now offer to the public at prices for superior goods unparalleled, comprising the finest assortment to be found in any establishment in this city or elsewhere.

The brilliancy, setting and finish of our Diamonds are not excelled by any found in South America or India, and the most scrutinizing eye fails to discover any difference. These goods are a specialty with us.

LOOK AT PRICES:

Solitaire Diamond Studs, set in 14-karat gold, 3 in set, $5; Solitaire Diamond Scarf-Pin, set in 14-karat gold, $5; Solitaire Diamond Ring, set in 18-karat gold, $6 to $12; Ladies' Ear-Rings, Solitaire Diamond, handsomely set in 18-karat gold, pair $8 to $12; Diamond Crosses, elegantly set in 18-karat gold, $10; Silver Hunting-Case Watch, Anchor movement, $12—these goods range from $12, $16 to $18, warranted one year; Sleeve-Buttons, elegant rich Roman Gold, from $3 to $6, etc.

All goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Sent by mail, registered, or express, prepaid, to all parts of U. S. Send money by P. O. order, registered letter, or by express. Either will be safe. Address all orders to—
KENDALL, HUBBARD & CO.,
Manufacturers of Jewelry, 421 Broadway, New York.

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. Samples FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS

AUTOMATIC

Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results. — Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.

Trade Mark in base of every machine.

SILENT SEWING MACHINE.

Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.

Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.,
(Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York.

EUPEON!

If you have rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, a burn, or a bruise, procure a bottle of Eupeon. It will give instant relief, as thousands can testify. For sale by all Druggists. H. A. HURLBUT & CO., 75 and 77 Randolph street, Chicago, Agents for the Proprietors.

READY FOR AGENTS—THE

CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION

DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED.

A graphic pen-picture of its history, grand buildings, wonderful exhibits, curiosities, great days, etc. Profusely illustrated, thoroughly popular, and very cheap. Is selling immensely. 5,000 AGENTS wanted. Send for full particulars. This is the chance of 100 years to coin money fast. Get the only reliable history. HUBBARD BROTHERS, Pubs., 80 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

CAUTION Be not deceived by premature books assuming to be "official," and telling what will happen in August and September.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT. The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure, and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay full price for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $5. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will cure more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York

Potter's American Monthly,

50,000 Subscribers for 1877. ILLUSTRATED; Best Family Magazine in the Country, at $3 for 1877. Five copies one year for $12; 10 copies for $25; 20 copies for $50, and a copy of Potter's Bible Encyclopedia, quarto, 3,000 Illustrations, price, $25, given to the person sending this club. For sale at all News stands, 25 cents a number. Special Terms to Agents. J. E. POTTER & CO., Phila., Pa.

$10. $25. $50. $100. $200.

ALEXANDER FROTHINGHAM & CO., 12 Wall Street, New York, Bankers and Brokers, invest in Stocks of a legitimate character. The firm numbers among its patrons thousands who have become rich through Frothingham & Co's fortunate investments. Stocks purchased and carried long as desired on margin from three to five per cent. Send for Circular.

One Dollar.

CHICAGO LEDGER

One Dollar.

CHICAGO LEDGER

THE LEDGER is a large 48-column paper, ably edited, handsomely printed; containing every week choice completed stories, an installment or an interesting illustrated serial, and general reading for old and young.

Send your name and address, plainly written, inclosing ONE DOLLAR, with fifteen cents for postage, and we will send the paper to you for one year. Address

THE LEDGER,
CHICAGO, ILL.

WOOD'S

IMPROVED

HAIR RESTORATIVE

What It Does!

It restores, quickly, Gray Hair to its glossy Natural color. It has the effect of Restoring the Hair to premature Bald Heads. It Removes Dandruff, Humors and all Eruptions from the Scalp. It prevents Irritation, Itching and Scaly Dryness of the Skin. It Restores faded, dry, harsh and falling Hair. It renews the care, softens and gives vigor to the growth of the Hair. It accomplishes more desired effects in a short time than any Restorative ever made, always leaving the hair soft, lively and glossy, whether used as a Dressing upon the natural hair or upon the hair in an unhealthy condition, thus rendering it, for the Old and Young, an article of unequaled excellence. No preparation offered to the public produces such wonderful results. Try it! Try it!! Call for "Wood's Improved," as it contains no injurious qualities.

It was originally introduced 20 years ago by Prof. O. J. Wood, but the recent change of ingredients in this article is making a demand for it in all parts of the United States, Canadas and foreign countries.

ANNOUNCEMENT

— TO —

CONSUMERS!

The great radical improvement introduced in this article has induced us to take the agency and advertise its virtues to the world. Its effects as a Restorative are what has been long sought for and wanted for many years, being more decided and satisfactory than has ever been attained. No Druggist in the world knows its composition, and cannot make it; therefore when you call for it, "Wood's Improved," do not let any unprincipled dealer convince you that his Restorative or "Renewer" as good, or something similar, as there is none like it! Insist upon having "Wood's Improved," and take no other, for your money! It will not be long before all dealers everywhere will have it. If you should fail to find it, you can send $1.00 to us by mail for a bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and we will send it to you, prepaid, to any Express Station desired.

Address C. A. COOK & CO., Chicago, the Sole Agents for the United States and Canadas, who will fill all orders and supply the Trade at Manufacturers' Prices.

J. B. KIMBALL, Proprietor.

Sold in Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Paul by all Wholesale Druggists, and by Retail Trade generally.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION

A WEEKLY PAPER FOR

YOUNG PEOPLE

AND THE

FAMILY

THE COMPANION aims to be a favorite in every family—looked for eagerly by the young folks, and read with interest by the older. Its purpose is to interest while it amuses; to be judicious, practical, sensible and to have really permanent worth, while it attracts for the hour.

It is handsomely illustrated, and has for contributors some of the most attractive writers in the country. Among these are:

J. T. Trowbridge, Louisa M. Alcott,
Edward Eggleston, J. G. Whittier,
James T. Fields, Louise C. Moulton,
Rebecca H. Davis, E. A. Stephens,
Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, Harriet P. Spofford,
Edward Everett Hale, Julia Ward Howe.

Its reading is adapted to the old and young; is very comprehensive in its character. It gives

Stories of Adventure,
Letters of Travel,
Editorials upon Current Topics,
Historical Articles,
Biographical Sketches,
Religious Articles,
Stories of Home and School Life,
Tales, Poetry,
Selections for Declamation,
Anecdotes, Puzzles,
Facts and Incidents.

Subscription Price, $1.75. Specimen copies sent free. Please mention in what paper you read this advertisement.

PERRY MASON & CO.,
41 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

1855. 23d Year. 1877.

Progressive! Comprehensive!

WESTERN FARM JOURNAL

CHICAGO, ILL.

A Mammoth Weekly for Country and Town.

A Practical Agricultural Newspaper.

Largest on the Continent!

Its columns are replete each week with fresh, interesting and valuable matter for every branch of FARM INDUSTRY, while the departments devoted to the FIRESIDE, YOUNG FOLKS, CURRENT TOPICS and NEWS receive such especial attention as to render the JOURNAL, in the truest sense, a complete paper for the FARM, the FIRESIDE, or the HOUSEHOLD.

In the issue for Jan. 1st, 1877, will be commenced a high-class, instructive serial story, written expressly for the Western Farm Journal, entitled

THE LESSON FOR LIFE.

It will be read with absorbing interest, as well as profit, by all classes. WRITE FOR ADVANCE SHEET OF EXTRACTS. We want every man and woman in the country to subscribe for the paper and to act as our agent this season. Single subscriptions, $2.00 a year; only $1.50 in clubs. No special authority to act needed. Send in your own subscription and then others as fast as obtained. DON'T DELAY! All subscriptions received during 1876 will run to end of 1877. SAMPLE PAPERS, POSTERS and CIRCULARS Free. Address

WESTERN FARM JOURNAL,
126 Washington Street, Chicago.

$5 a Day to Agents Samples free. H. [illegible], Boston, Ms.

20 a Week Salary guaranteed to male and female. Send Stamp for circulars. E. M. [illegible], Cincinnati, O.

$20 a Day, HOW TO MAKE IT. Something new and salable. COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$10 a Day. Employment for all. Chromo & Novelty Catalogue free. Felton & Co. 119 Nassau St. N. Y.

PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. Apparatus by mail $[illegible]. Agents wanted. [illegible] Mf'g Co., Phila., Pa.

$25 A DAY to Agents. Sample free. 32-page Catalogue. L. FLETCHER, 11 Dey St., N. Y.

AGENTS [illegible] Outfit FREE. J. [illegible] & CO., Philada., Pa.

REVOLVER 7-shot $2.00, 70 styles. Ill. Cat. free. Western Gun Works, Chicago, Ill.

POPHAM'S ASTHMA SPECIFIC. Best in the World. Trial package free. [illegible] & Co., Phila., Pa.

WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $80 a month and traveling expenses paid. [illegible] MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.

PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, etc., who wish genuine Chartered University Degrees can address, inclosing 10 cents, J. R. YUILLE, Boston, Mass.

100 PER CENT. Only thing for the purpose. For exclusive territory, address C. A. HOWARD, Gen'l Agent, Detroit, Mich.

MONEY Made rapidly with Stencil and Key Check Outfits. Catalogue and samples FREE. S. M. Spencer, 98 Wash'n St., Boston, Mass.

$3 WATCHES. A Great Sensation. Sample Watch and Outfit free to Agents. Better than Gold. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.

OPIUM HABIT CURED AT HOME. No publicity. Time short. Terms moderate. 1,000 testimonials. Describe case. Dr. F. E. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.

KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 40 cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.

AGENTS wanted for "BIG BONANZA" containing full descriptions of richest SILVER MINES in the world. Introduction by Mark Twain. Illustrated circulars free. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$50 TO $100 a month earn'd by our graduates. Students wanted. Salary paid while practicing. Situations furnished. Ad'ss N. W. Telegraph Institute, Janesville, Wis.

WANTED—Men to solicit orders for our goods; permanent employment; good salary. Traveling expenses paid by Company. Union Industrial Works, Cincinnati, O.

NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS SUPPLY CO., 261 Bowery, N. Y.

$10 & $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent post-paid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.

YOUR own LIKENESS in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 8½x7½, from a photograph or tintype, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 6 months for $1. One agent made $29.50 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.

Wanted Agents for "Navins' Explanatory Stock Doctor," a full treatise, with prescriptions, on horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry. 561 pages, bound in leather, illustrated. The best selling book published. Liberal terms. Address J. H. Yingley, Pub., Indianapolis.

FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, 1 or 2 in each County to sell a few staple articles of real merit to the farmers in their own counties. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. WORTH, St. Louis, Mo.

DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 137 pages, 35 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.

PATENTS Procured. TOTAL COST Including Gov't Fee $55 Send for Pamphlet to KNIGHT & KNIGHT, Washington, D. C.

EMPLOYMENT.

ANY PERSON of ordinary intelligence can earn a living by canvassing for The Illustrated Weekly. Experience is not necessary—the only requisites being, as in all successful business, industry & energy. Send for particulars. Address Chas. Clucas & Co. 14 Warren St., N. Y.

FELT CARPETINGS 20 to 45 cents per yard. FELT CEILING for rooms in place of Plaster. FELT ROOFING and SIDING. For Circular and Sample, address C. J. FAY, Camden, New Jersey.

1776—ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO—1876

Beautifully illustrated in Oil by the New York Chromo Press. A valuable book for Children, illustrating the scenes and events of Revolutionary times. Agents wanted everywhere. Sample sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. THE INSTRUCTIVE TOY COMPANY, New York.

$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. DR. J. P. FITLER, being sworn, says: I graduated in 1833, appointed to Professor's chair 1835, have devoted 40 years, exclusively, to Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout, Kidney and Liver diseases. I guarantee DR. FITLER'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY, Kidney Cordial, and Liver Pills, a permanent cure, or will refund money. [illegible] Address DR. FITLER, 45 South Fourth street, Philadelphia. MEDICINES AT DRUGGISTS.

A GIFT By an arrangement with the Publisher we will send every reader of this Paper a sample package of Transfer Pictures free upon receipt of stamp for postage. They are highly colored, beautiful, and easily transferred to any object. Agents wanted.
J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York

TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT. WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.

A BOOK for the MILLION.

MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address,
Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.

PAOLI'S CHAIN BELT. Electricity is Life. Paolis Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application, to P. J. WHITE, 27 Bond Street, New York.

AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY

CENTEN'L EXHIBITION

It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 58 copies in one day. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK!

TOM SAWYER,

Is ready for Agents. Don't get behind hand this time, but send for your territory or circulars at once.
Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO.,
HARTFORD, CONN., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O.

CANCER, TUMORS and Scrofula.—Dr. T. S. ROBERTSON, Supt. of the American Cancer Institute, and discoverer of the remedy for the radical cure of Cancer, Tumors and Scrofula by acting on the blood only, will send, on receipt of $45.00, a full course of medicines that has never failed in the cure of Cancer, Tumors or Scrofula.
94 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

WORTH its WEIGHT in GOLD.

The Eclipse Automatic Extinguisher Burner makes all Coal-Oil Lamps perfectly safe. They cannot explode; cannot be filled while burning; instantly extinguished if dropped, broken, or upset. Put out as easy as gas. Mailed to any address for 30 cts.; 3 for $1. A few agents, male and female, wanted. Profits large. ECLIPSE MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, O.

$15 SHOT GUN

A double barrel gun, bar or front action locks; warranted genuine twist barrels, and a good shooter, or no sale; with Flask, Pouch and Wad-cutter, for $15. Can be sent C. O. D. with privilege to examine before paying bill. Send Stamp for circular to P. POWELL & SON, Gun Dealers, 238 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

Guarding Agents Wanted 200 SUPERB ENGRAVINGS. OR SECRET SERVICE the Mails in the Postoffice Department, by P. H. WOODWARD, eleven years in the service, and Chief Special Agent under P. M. Gen'l Jewell. The most remarkable and thrilling book on detection ever written. Wonderful Exploits of the Secret Service Agents in the numerous captures of Postal Thieves. Now having an unparalleled sale. Our large illustrated circulars free. [illegible], Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET,

With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.

Secures HEALTH and COMFORT of Body, with GRACE and BEAUTY of Form. Three Garments in one. Approved by all Physicians.

AGENTS WANTED.

Samples by mail, in Coutil, $2; Satteen, $1 75. To Agents at 25 cents less. Order size two inches smaller than waist measure over the dress.

Warner Bros. 763 Broadway, N.Y.

O. N. U. No. 48

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper

Auburn Fruit House

The Largest Stock of GROCERIES & PROVISIONS ever opened out in DeKalb County

AT PRICES THAT DEFY COMPETITION

TEAS:

COFEES:

SUGAR!

Dried Fru

ALL AT BOTTOM PRICES.

☞ Dont Fail to Call and examine PRICES ☜

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUSE!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.

AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES,

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at.

ZACHER'S.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS.

☞ HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

☞ Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heatin Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of

HARDWARE STORE

always on hand at lowest prices

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

than ever before brought to Auburn. We are sel'ing at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

☞ YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our t izens when visting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS,

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and seil for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterens

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES AT

ABRICHT'S

In American and Swiss Watches,

TOYS

FANCY GOODS,

and everything kept in a first class jeuelry establishm'nt It will pay you to call and be convinced that, I am selling goods cheaper than any firm in Northern Indiana.

J. Abright.

Repairing fine Watches a Specialty

Ladies Gold Watches,

Jewelry,

Clocks, Silver Ware!

GOLD PENS,

Ladies GOLD Chains,

Gents Chains,

Gold and Silver Rings,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich SoutlernRR

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	2.05 "	3.00 "	8.25
Sedan	2.15	3.07	8.37
Corunna	2.20	3.15	8.45

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.52 pm	x 12.06 a m	6.53 a m
Sedan	2.33	11.45 "	6.32 "
Waterloo	2:25 "	11.35 "	6.22 "
Butler	2.20	11.30 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensea time card April 16, 1876.

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No 5 Mail.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex
Pittsburgh	1 45 am	5 50 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm
Rochester	[illegible] "		10 10 "	3 10 "
Alliance	5 10 "	8 49 pm	1 10 pm	5 50 "
Orrville	6 46 "		3 00 "	7 23 "
Mansfield	8 48 "		5 15 "	9 24 "
Crestl'e ar.	9 20 "	12 20 am	5 50 "	9 55 "
" lv.	9 40 am	12 25 am	6 10 pm	10 00pm
Forest	11 08 "	1 36 "	7 58 "	11 30 "
Lima	12 01 pm	2 30 "	9 15 "	12 40am
Ft. Wayne	2 10 "	4 25 "	12 01 am	2 50 "
Plymouth	4 12 "	6 15 "	3 00 "	5 00 "
Chicago	7 20 "	9 20 "	6 50 "	8 20 "

OING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex.	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 20 pm	9 20 a.m	5 35 p.m	5 25a
Plymouth	3 00 am	12 05 pm	9 00 "	9 25
Ft. Wayne	6 40 "	2 30 "	11 35 "	12 25p
Lima	8 50 "	4 20 "	1 50 am	2 50 "
Forest	10 08 "	5 23 "	3 05 "	4 15 "
Crestl'e ar.	11 40 "	6 45 "	4 40 "	5 56 "
" lv.		7 05 pm	4 50 am	6 00
Mansfield	11 28 pm	7 33 "	5 20 "	6 40 "
Orrville	2 16 "	9 25 "	7 12 "	9 10 "
Alliance	3 50 "	10 47 "	9 00 "	11 35 "
Rochester	5 59 "	1 04 am	11 12 "	2 14p
Chicago	7 06 "	2 10 "	12 15 p.m	3 30 "

Trains Nos. 3, 5, 6, run daily. Train No. 4 leaves Chicago except Sundays. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
General Pass. and Ticket Agent

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 3, 1875.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS	Exp.	Ac.&E.	Accom.
lv New York	* pm		*2 55 pm
Philadelphia	1 am		6 00
Baltimore	†	6 20pm	10 10
Washington		7 35	11 30
Wheeling	am	[illegible]am	12 30
Bellaire		2 28	1 17
Barnesville		9 40	2 33
Cambridge		10 44	3 42
Zanesville		11 48	4 50
lv Columbus		12 10pm	4 15
New Aark	*	2 30	6 25
Mt Vernon	7 46	3 22	7 32
Mansfield	9 24	1 3	9 08
Shelby	10 10	4 25	9 55
Chicago Junction	10 40	5 00	10 25
Tiffin	11 34	6 13	11 20
Fostoria	12 01pm	6 42	11 43
Deshler	12 55	7 48	11 36am
Defiance	1 47	8 51	1 27
Auburn	3 00
Auburn Junction	3 03	10 40	2 43
Garrett	3 25	11 00	3 00
Avilla	3 36	11 15
Milford Junction	4 40	12 24am
Walkertown Junction	5 45	1 43
Chicago	8 10	4 40	10

GOING EAST.

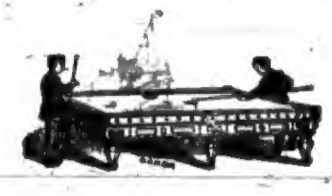
Chicago	+8 52am	+5 08	+9 40
Walkertown Junction	11 50	8 08	1 15
Milford Junction	12 51pm		2 38
Avilla	1 52		3 55
Garrett	2 20	10 30	4 20am
Auburn Junction		10 35	4 25
Auburn	2 25
Defiance	3 34	11 45	5 47
Deshler	4 22	12 36am	6 39
Fostoria	5 12	1 26	7 40
Tiffin	5 36	1 49	8 13
Chicago Junction	6 40	2 45	19 30
Shelby Junction	7 25	3 17	10 10
Mansfield	7 55	3 40	10 35
Mt. Vernon	9 26	4 51	1 59
Ar Newark	10 25	5 40	1 00pm
Lv Zanesville	11 50	6 30	2 30
Cambridge	12 50am	7 20	3 21
Barnesville	1 56	8 14	4 31
Ar Bellaire	3 00	9 20	5 20
Wheeling	5 10	10 35	5 50
Washington	+5 20pm	9 20pm	7 00
Baltimore	6 50	10 00	8 50
Philadelphia	12 00	2 35am	*1 20pm
New York	6 15am	6 15	5 10

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALLAND SALOON.



On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, w hi will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. A kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

Ladies Cloaks as low as $2.75.
Ladies Felt Hats 50c.
Children Trimmed Hats.
Fur Trimming a good assortment.
Germantown and Zephyr all shades
Water-proof and Ladies cloth.
Two Button Kid Gloves 65c.
Cambrick Dress Goods 50c.
Ladies' and Children's Furs.
Old Muffs lined.

H. H. STAMETS

CHICAGO ROCKISLADR.R

AND

Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for
JOLLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENOR, LACON, PEORI, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE O. CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	5 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all point in Kansas. Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement of Palace Drawing room and sleeping cars, which for external beauty and interrior arrangements for the comfort, convenience and luxury of passenger are unexcelled if equalied, by any other cars of the kind in the world.

☞ Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	483 Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	474 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	489 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	231 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hanniba', Quincy, Keokuk

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA, COLORADO AND CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New Eegland.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (510 miles), and be tween Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles.)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOOTS & SHOES

Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repai ing promptly attended to.

Remember place

At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Recorders office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, DECEMBER 14th, 1876. Number 52.

The Auburn Weekly Courier
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY
TOM. C. MAYS.
One Year.........$2. | Six Months......$1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square	3 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	8 00	12 00	15 00	20 00
½ Column.........	10 00	16 00	20 00	30 00
1 Column.........	15 00	20 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

RICKEL and TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Moody.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellow's Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo. Ind. Good samp'e rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $1.50 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
B. SCHNIDERS, Pro.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk.
O. SANDS, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experienced corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at low rates.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

Shearer & Wilson.

THE above named gentlemen are conducting a Planing Mill on South Jackson street They are prepared to execute all kinds of scroll work, re-sawing turning matching and moulding of all discriptions, and can, in consequence give the best figures possible, having this advantage over competitors. Their work for the past is a sufficient recommendation as to their competency and responsibility. They also take contracts for all kinds of wooden work.

ENGLISH INK for Printers,

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of Superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of Ink made by us.
EXCELSIOR PRINTING INK CO., MANUFACTURERS,
(Formerly of London, England).
154 & 156 MONROE ST., CHICAGO And 18 Barclay Street, New York.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his large stock

IT IS HERE.

WHAT

The Largest Fine Stock of Fine

Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this line of goods can get them from 100 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

The Auburn

WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders for

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

Be prepared to send out rigs at anytime and at Reasonable prices.

Abright, the Jeweler, has the finest stock of Holiday Goods ever offered for sale in North Eastern Indiana.

Readers of the COURIER who wish to invest in a really valuable present for the holidays, should take a look at Abright's stock of Jewelry, Vases and Ornamental goods. They are real beauties and are offered at about half the prices demanded in other years.

The King of Greece is writing a book on bees.—Baltimore Gazette. All write honey. It ought to cell.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser. What a beestly pun.—Burlington Hawkeye. Bee-hive yourselves.—Indianolis Sentinel. He has started the drones at buzzing anyhow and if the above are fair samples of their wit let them bee-stow it elsewhere.

Before the election it was a contest between parties. Now it is a contest between the people on the one side, and the office holders, supported by the army on the other. The people have cast their ballots, and propose to have them counted as they were cast; the office-holders propose, if necessary, to count in a President who will not reform them out of office and into jail. This is the whole story.

There was a change in the time of running trains on the B. & O. on the 2nd inst. Under the new winter schedule there are two trains less daily. Trains now pass the Junction as follows: Going East, Mail at 3:27 p. m., Express at 11:32 p. m., Local frieght at 6:17 a. m. Going West, Mail at 2:06 p. m., Express at 12:56 a. m., Local fright at 7:20 p. m.

"Papa," said a little Fort Wayne boy, the other day, (the son of a Republican) "is there going to be another war?"

"I guess not, my boy," said the father.

"Well, if there is, who will do the fighting?" inquired the son.

"It will be between the Democratic and Republican parties, I suppose," said the parent.

After a moment's hesitation, the lad responded, "if there is to be that kind of a war, papa, I guess we'd better move out of Allen county, hadn't we?"

A Danbury woman's fourth husband was seriously ill a few days ago. Watchers from among the neighbors stayed with him at night. There came a night which bid fair to his last on earth. The watchers took their places in the sick-room. The bereaved wife said to them: "I don't think he'll last till morning. If he drops off in the night you need not disturb me, for I am going to sleep and every thing is arranged. You can take the cellar door to lay him out on."

Seeing him drive past on a load of corn-stalks just now reminds us of the incident. The unhappy woman spoke too loud.

Marriage licenses, issued by the county, during the month of November:

Frances L. Britton and Mary Franks, Joseph Beugnot and Annie B. Turner, Henry Simonton and Flora Lestison, Charles Rugman and Emma Wilderson, Edmund Spangler and Susie R. Brown, Charles Winegard and Margaret A. Zouker, Dennis D. Burley and Louisa Lestison, Amos L. Sebert, and Mary A. Raub, Isaiah J. Meese and Alma Shipe, James V. Harzzard and Mary E. Balcome, William O. Eakwright and Harriet Woods, Arthur DeWitt and Martha Corbin, Aaron M. Wolf and Mary Elliott, William Boughan Isabel Lanham, Joseph L. Wilderson and Louisa Hall, Charles Squiyar and Charity Milliman, Noah H. Mottorf and Cathrine Carmes, D. S. Simpson and Ollie White, Thomas H. Clayton and Kate Lamb, Joseph Hosler and Martha Williams.

A Hard Road to Travel.

The worst road in DeKalb county is the piece between here and the Junction. It would be well if those interested should move in the matter of graveling it or putting it into some passable shape. Its condition in rough weather is simply horrible and when our citizens are compelle to travel over it the trip puts one forcibly in mind of purgatory. For a considerable distance near the Junction there is a low stretch and in wet weather teams are nearly swamped in navigating across it. In case the road was in the corporation limits, the task of puting it good shape would be simple, as the town authorities might then order the work done. It is stated that the gravel for putting the road in good shape can easily be obtained, and if this is the case the parties living along its line, and those who use it together with the township trustees could easily find means by which it could be put in good condition for travel. Good gravel roads are among the best improvements in which a community can engage.

Hostilities Commenced at the White House.

Washington Letter to Boston Journal.

The only thing that had any resemblance of riot or bloodshed that has taken place since the advent of the military in this city occured in the Executive Mansion last evening, when for a time there was a considerable commotion. There Lucy Fowler, colored cook, struck John D. Whitton, a colored a vigorous blow over the head with a rolling-pin, inflicting a severe wound. John rallied and struck Lucy on the neck with a large plate. The President heard the commotion in the kitchen and sent one of the police officers detailed in the White House, down to the kitchen to make a reconnaissance. The officer arrived just in time to prevent a renewal of hostilities, and quelled the disorder by arresting both belligerents.

The Wrong Procession.

As old Si was standing at the whitehall crossing, says the Atlanta, Georgia, Sunday Herald, a darkey with a striped shirt approached him:

"How is you gwine to vote?" he asked Old Si.

"I'se gwine ter polls an' han' my ticket ter de jedge."

"I mean who is you gwine to vote for?"

"Lookie heah, you! I'se a law'bidin' nigger!"

"So is I. sah!"

"Den de law sez I vote for is my bizniss solely, indevidgully an konsequenchully!"

"Well, ef yer don't vote de' publican tickit we's gwine ter spot yer! Now, yer better min, de train dat yer gits on!"

"Nebber you min, 'bout de train dat I gits on. You look out dat hit don't cum 'long an' ketch up wid you walkin' on de cross-ties. 'Bout de tim' dat you spots Old Si de kuriner 'll be rangin ter cum down on a han'-kyar ter driv' a stob on de spot whar de Dimmycrat ingine histed yer into kingdum cum!"

As the, striped-shirt move on Old Si muttered:

"I recken dat dese 'publican niggers think dey is struck de rong perseshun when dey grazes de ole man!"

Why His Dog Bit Him.

San Antonio Herald.

About a week ago we heard one of our leading citizens was bragging about his watch dog. He went on to say that Nero was a splendid watch dog, that he would never even growl at a child, and at night he would tear anybody to pieces he found about the premises.

"Aren't you afraid," we asked, "that he will bite you some night when you come home late?"

"Not a bit of it; he is too intelligent. He knows my step as soon as I put my foot on the gallery. Why, I wouldn't take $500 for that dog. He is the most reliable biting dog in San Antonio.

About three days after the forgoing conversation took place, one morning early we met a policeman leading this identical dog out into the suburbs.

"What are you doing with Major Jones's dog?" we wanted to know.

"He gave him to me to take him out and shoot him."

"What for," we asked in amazement.

"Because he tackled the Major last night on his coming home, and bit him in thirteen places; he will not be down town for a week."

"But I heard the Major say that dog was intelligent; that he knew his step, and wouldn't bite him no way he could fix it; that he wouldn't take $500 for the animal."

"The dog ain't to blame for it," said the policeman, gazing sadly at poor Nero, "it's the Major's own fault."

"How so?" we inquired.

"Well" responded the policeman, slowly, "the dog did know his step and never even growled at him before, but last night, for the first time since he has had the dog, the Major came home three hours earlier than usual, and perfectly sober, and somehow his step was different from what the dog was used to; he didn't tangle up his legs as much as common, and the dog was fooled by it, took him for a perfect stranger, and bounced him. The dog ain't to blame; he missed the smell of whisky, he didn't hear the Major whoop and cuss and fall down in the cellar as he always does when he comes home, so Nero kept on bitin' the Major in fresh places until the family interfered."

"Come on, Nero!" and the sad funeral cortege resumed the line of march for the brush.

For a Holiday present, nothing is more appropriate than a stereoscope and some of those choice views for sale at Davenport's.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR COURIER.—Back to Washington with old Boreas reigning in every corner. Back from the snowy blustering weather of the west, to the breezy, park-like thoroughfares of the most beautiful city of America, perhaps in the world. There is a suggestion of Paris gay, giddy, happy Paris in the plan of the city. Its avenues, parks, gardens and public buildings, remind the traveler forcibly of the French capitol, and the day will come when it will far surpass the latter in beauty. What a pity, what a crying shame it is that all this beauty, all these grand improvements should be crippled with so much fraud and villainy. The Shepherd-Mullett-Babcock ring have reaped a rich harvest and beggared many a property-holder. Yes, it is a beautiful city—goodly and fair to look upon, but within there is foul rot and much uncleanness.

I have just had time to go the capitol and down the avenue once since my arrival last Saturday, but if one keeps their eyes and ears open they learn a good bit in that short time. The hotels are not half as much crowded as they were at the begining last year, and the number of visitors is quite limited. The canvass for the speakership was not an animated one. Mr. Randall was nominated at the caucus last Saturday evening, his competitor, S. S. Cox, receiving a very flattering vote. Mr. Randall will make a very fine speaker, and he can be spared for the active work of the session much better than Mr. Cox. Mr. Randall is arrogant and dominating in his style as a leader and is not a fluent, ready speaker. While he was thorough and practical as chairman of the Appropriation committee, he consulted but few on the measures which came before that committee. Mr. Cox proved one of the most efficient members in the House last winter. He is a bundle of wit and sarcasm, a ready, spirited debater, and well posted in parlamentary usages. He is hardly large enough in stature to fill the position with great dignity, though no one will deny that he has the requisite qualifications.

This session of Congress will take up for consideration several measures which are of the utmost importance. The Presidential question will come in for a large share of attention, and doubtless some means will be devised by which the electoral college business will be done away with, giving the people a chance to vote direct for President and Vice-President. The question of the remonetizing of silver, finance reform and civil service reform, all of national importance, will come up during the present session, and something done for the good of the people at large. It will be a busy session, and much can be accomplished, if the Senate will not develop so partizan a character as it did last winter.

I was surprised on my arrival here to see so marked an impressions here in favor of Mr. Tilden. Though there are thousands here who are dependent on a Republican succession to the Presidency for their continuation in office, yet many of them in a private way express themselves as not satisfied with the way things have been managed in the three Southern States. I met an old friend on the street, recently a government employe, and always a good Republican, and in order to satisfy myself relative to the many reports during the campaign, about Zach Chandler assessing clerks for means to defray campaign expenses, I ask him if he had contributed for that purpose. He said he had not paid a cent, and in consequence was forced to resign. He had received a note intimating that he could pay twenty-four dollars, which would be very acceptable to the National Committee. He said he knew of hundreds of clerks who were forced to pay it in order to keep their positions. A law was passed last winter to prevent these assessments among the employes, but in the face of this, Zach made them pay up to the tune of thousands of dollars. If any officer ever deserved impeachment, it is the profane Chandler. The impression is very general here that Tilden has been fairly elected, and there are honest Republicans who desire to see him inaugurated. There is no talk of war here, all believing that the difficulty will be settled without any recourse to arms. In fact they think that Louisana and Florida will both turn out for Tilden.

The wise and considerate conduct of the conservative element at the South has won the love and admiration of all thoughtful minds. It is no easy matter for men possessed of high courage, and that self-respect that makes manhood precious, to submit not only to oppression but insult. These people have had forced upon them the most brutal ignorance, controlled by thieves, it has ever been the fate of man to suffer from. And now, when after years of oppression, they, through wise forbearance, had won the victory, to have such taken from them through violence that was made oppression, by color of law, is hard to bear. But these good citizens have bravely borne the test. Wade Hampton, who counseled peace in the glare of his own burning home, from which his family barely escaped with their lives, and in the face of insults from brutal ignorance and insolent dishonesty, has won golden opinions from all sorts of men.

Let them preserve in that. We want no war at the South. We want no war, God knows, anywhere, but least of all where only the ignorant, inoffensive tools would suffer. If such conflict of arms must come, let it be in and very close in, and about the Executive Mansion, where miscreants have plotted treason to the government and treachery to the people.

The President looks terribly boated from his summer dissipation. His face is red and fit to bursting, and betrays constant devotion to powerful stimulants. He has grown old within the last year and looks like a man who has seen trouble, and is trying to drown it in the flowing bowl. As the boys say, he looks "rocky," a new slang term recently introduced. I dined yesterday at the house of a friend at which Doctor Mary Walker was a guest. It is said that the Doctor has signified her intention of abandoning her nondescript costume, and retiring to the folds of feminine drapery, folly and oblivion in case Tilden is not elected. You know that the Doctor is half man and half woman in dress. She actually wears pants and boots, and a sacque like a coat but parts her hair in the middle. It is to be regretted that our language does not furnish a pronoun adapted to beings of positive but unknown gender. The neuter gender is hardly satisfactory Suffering under this poucity of words, the newspapers in referring to the gay and festive doctor get things a trifle mixed—sometimes using "him" oftener "it" and occasionally "her."

The new pavement on Pennsylvania avenue makes it the finest street in the world. It has a grey stone color, and is as smooth as a floor.

The inside of the Capitol has been retouched with paint and varnish until it looks quite respectable.

There is a terrible dullness here never realized before. The outlook is gloomy enough for thousands of people who have scarcely the necessaries of life. Men walk the street with strong willing hands asking for employment. The fashionable world will hardly be so lively with their parties, Germans and receptions as they were last winter. Yet some are bound to keep up appearances, though the government were in its death throes, and preparations are being made for the season, as if all was serene, and peace, plenty and solid prosperity abided in the land. Young girls coming out and old ones retiring reluctantly; Solons of the Senate with mysterious wealth at their backs; fat contractors and hungry lobbyists; ambitious mamas with unfledged daughters; fortune-hunting young men twirling the slender stick from behind huge collars; the embroiridered diplomatic corps, with grapevines worked up their diplomatic behinds; all are preparing for the social season, while the oppressed poor keep up their weary tramp from morn till night.

TOM.

Ladies take Notice.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity, are respectively invited call at H. H. Stamets' Millinery and Fancy Store, and examine the new and elegant Perfume and Lily White Combined. Nothing like it has ever been offered for sale in here and is pronounced by all parties who have used it to be the finest and best in the market. We shall take pleasure in showing it, whether you buy or, not. We have also many new novelties in the Millinery line, which we are offering at astonishing low figures, and cannot be undersold by any house in this place. Come and see us.

H. H. STAMETS,
3m. Sole Agt. for Auburn.

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money

Hollister and Benedict keeps the best cigars to be found in Indiana. Their five cent cigars are immense.

THE NATION

President Grant's Annual Message to Congress.

An Exhibit of Our Foreign and Domestic Relations.

A Defense of the Santo Domingo Annexation Scheme.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In submitting my eighth and last annual message to Congress, it seems proper that I should refer to and in some degree recapitulate the events and official acts of the past eight years. It was my fortune, or misfortune, to be called to the office of Chief Executive without any previous political training. From the age of 17, I had never even witnessed the excitement attending a Presidential campaign but twice antecedent to my own candidacy, and at but one of them was I eligible as a voter. Under such circumstances, it is but reasonable to suppose that errors of judgment must have occurred; even had they not, difference of opinion between the Executive, bound by an oath to the strict performance of his duties, and writers and debaters must have arisen. It is not necessarily evidence of a blunder on the part of the Executive because there are these differences of views. Mistakes have been made, as all can see, and I admit it, but it seems to me, oftener in the selections made of assistants appointed to aid in carrying out the various duties of administering the Government, in nearly every case selected without a general acquaintance with the appointee, but upon the recommendations of the Representatives chosen directly by the people. It is impossible where so many trusts are to be allotted that the right parties should be chosen in every instance. History shows that the Administration, from the time of Washington to the present, has not been free from these mistakes, but I leave comparisons to history, claiming only that I have acted in every instance from a conscientious desire to do what was right, constitutional, within the law, and for the very best interests of the people. My failures have been errors of judgment, not of intent.

Retrospective.

My civil career commenced, too, at a most critical and difficult time. Less than four years before the country had emerged from a conflict such as no other nation had ever survived. Nearly one-half of the States had revolted against the Government, and of those remaining faithful to the Union, a large percentage of the population sympathized with the rebellion and made an enemy in the rear almost as dangerous as the more honorable enemy in the front. The latter committed errors of judgment, but they maintained them openly and courageously. The former received the protection of the Government they would see destroyed, and reaped all the pecuniary advantage to be gained out of the then existing state of affairs—many of them by obtaining contracts and by swindling the Government in the delivery of their goods.

Immediately on the cessation of hostilities, the then noble President, who had carried the country so far through its perils, fell a martyr to his patriotism at the hands of an assassin.

Reconstruction.

The intervening time to my first inauguration was filled up with wrangling between Congress and the new Executive as to the best mode of reconstruction. Or, to speak plainly, as to whether the control of the Government should be thrown immediately into the hands of those who had so recently and persistently tried to destroy it, or whether the victors should continue to have equal voice with them in this control. Reconstruction, as finally agreed upon, means this, and only this, except that the late slave was enfranchised—giving an increase, as was supposed, to the Union-loving and Union-supporting votes. If free in the full sense of the word, they would not disappoint this expectation, hence at the beginning of my first administration the work of reconstruction, much embarrassed by the long delay, virtually commenced. It was the work of the legislative branch of the Government. My province was wholly in approving its acts, which I did most heartily, urging the Legislatures of States that had not yet done so to ratify the Fifteenth amendment to the Constitution. The country was laboring under an enormous debt, contracted in the suppression of the rebellion, and taxation was so oppressive as to discourage production. Another danger also threatened us—foreign war. The last difficulty had to be adjusted, and was adjusted without a war, and in a manner highly honorable to all parties concerned.

National Finances.

The taxes have been reduced within the last seven years nearly $300,000,000, and the national debt has been reduced in the same time over $435,000,000 by refunding the 6 per cent. bonded debt for bonds bearing 5½, 5 and 4½ per cent. interest respectively. The annual interest has been reduced from over $130,000,000 in 1869, to but little over $100,000,000 in 1876. The balance of trade has been changed from over $130,000,000 against the United States in 1869, to more than $120,000,000 in our favor in 1876. It is confidently believed that the balance of trade in favor of the United States will increase, not diminish, and that the pledge of Congress to resume specie payments in 1879 will be easily accomplished, even in the absence of much desired further legislation on the subject.

The Indian Policy.

A policy has been adopted toward the Indian tribes inhabiting a large portion of the territory of the United States which has been humane and has substantially ended Indian hostilities in the whole land, except in a portion of Nebraska and Dakota, Wyoming and Montana Territories, the Black Hills region and approaches thereto. Hostilities there have grown out of the avarice of the white man, who has violated our treaty stipulations in his search for gold. The question might be asked why the Government has not enforced obedience to the terms of the treaty prohibiting the occupation of the Black Hills region by the whites. The answer is simple. The first emigrants to the Black Hills were removed by troops, but rumors and fresh discoveries of gold took into that region increased numbers. Gold has actually been found in paying quantities, and an effort to remove the miners would only result in the desertion of the bulk of the troops that might be sent there to remove them. All difficulty in this matter has, however, been removed, subject to the approval of Congress, by a treaty ceding the Black Hills and its approaches to settlement by citizens.

The subject of the Indian policy and treatment is so fully set forth by the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and my views are so fully expressed therein that I refer to their reports and recommendations as my own.

Our Foreign Relations.

The relations of the United States with foreign powers continue on a friendly footing. Questions have arisen from time to time in the foreign relations of the Government, but the United States has been happily free during the past year from the complications and embarrassments which have surrounded some of the foreign powers.

The diplomatic correspondence submitted herewith contains information as to certain of the matters which have occupied the attention of the Government. The cordiality which attends our relations with the powers of the earth has been plainly shown by the general participation of foreign nations in the Exhibition which has just closed, and by the exertions made by distant powers to show their interest in and friendly feelings toward the United States in commemoration of the Centennial of the nation. The Government and people of the United States have not only fully appreciated this exhibition of kindly feeling, but it may be justly and fairly expected that no small benefits will result both to ourselves and other nations, from a better acquaintance and a better appreciation of our mutual advantages and mutual wants.

The Diplomatic Service.

Congress, at its last session, saw fit to reduce the amount usually appropriated for foreign intercourse by withholding appropriations for representatives of the United States in certain foreign countries, and for certain consular offices, and by reducing the amounts usually appropriated for certain other diplomatic posts, and thus necessitating a change in the grade of representatives. For these reasons, immediately upon the passage of the bill making appropriations for the diplomatic and consular service for the present fiscal year, instructions were issued to the representatives of the United States at Bolivia, Ecuador and Colombia, and to the consular officers for whom no appropriation had been made, to close their respective legations and consulates and cease from the performance of their duties, and in like manner steps were immediately taken to substitute Charges d' Affaires for Ministers Resident at Portugal, Denmark, Greece, Switzerland and Paraguay.

While thoroughly impressed with the wisdom of sound economy in the foreign service as in other branches of the Government, I cannot escape the conclusion that in some instances the withholding of appropriations will prove an expensive economy, and that the small retrenchment secured by a change of grade in certain diplomatic posts is not an adequate consideration for the loss of influence and importance which will attend our foreign representatives under this reduction. I am of the opinion that a re-examination of the subject will cause a change in some instances in the conclusions reached on these subjects at the last session of Congress.

The Alabama Claims.

The Court of Commissioners of the Alabama Claims, whose functions were continued by an act of the last session of Congress until the 1st day of January, 1877, has carried on its labors with diligence and general satisfaction. By a report from the Clerk of the Court transmitted herewith, bearing date November 14, 1876, it appears that during the time now allowed by law the court will have disposed of all the claims presented for adjudication. This report also contains a statement of the general results of the labors of the court to date thereof. It is cause for satisfaction that the method adopted for the satisfaction of the classes of claims submitted to the court, which are of long standing and justly entitled to early consideration, should have proved successful and acceptable.

The Northwest Boundary.

It is with satisfaction that I am enabled to state that the work of the joint commission for determining the boundary line between the United States and the British Possessions from the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky mountains, commenced in 1872, has been completed. The final agreement of the Commissioners, with the maps, have been duly signed, and the work of the commission is complete. The fixing of the boundary upon the Pacific coast by the protocol of March 10, 1873, pursuant to the award of the Emperor of Germany by article thirty-four of the treaty of Washington, with the determination of the work of this commission, adjusts and fixes the entire boundary between the United States and the British possessions, except as to the portion of territory ceded by Russia to the United States under the treaty of 1867. The work intrusted to the commissioners and the officers of the army attached to the Commission, has been well and satisfactorily performed. The original of the final agreement of the Commissioners, signed upon the 29th of May, 1876, with the original list of astronomical stations observed, the original official list of monuments marking the international boundary line, and the maps, records and general reports relating to the Commission, have been deposited in the Department of State. The official report of the Commissioner on the part of the United States, with the report of the Chief Astronomer of the United States, will be submitted to Congress within a short time.

Extradition.

I reserve for a separate communication to Congress a statement of the condition of the questions which lately arose with Great Britain respecting the surrender of fugitive criminals under the treaty of 1842.

Turkey.

The Ottoman Government gave notice, under date of January 15, 1874, of its desire to terminate the treaty of 1862, concerning commerce and navigation, pursuant to the provisions of the twenty-second article thereof. Under this notice, the treaty terminated upon the 5th day of June, 1876. That Government has invited negotiations towards the conclusion of a new treaty. By the act of Congress of March 23, 1874, the President was authorized, when he should receive satisfactory information that the Ottoman Government or that of Egypt had organized the new tribunals likely to secure to the citizens of the United States the same impartial justice enjoyed under the exercise of judicial functions by the diplomatic and consular officers of the United States, to suspend the operation of the act of June 22, 1860, and to accept for the citizens of the United States the jurisdiction of the new tribunals. Satisfactory information having been received of the organization of such new tribunals in Egypt, I caused a proclamation to be issued on the 27th of March last, suspending the operation of the act of June 22, 1860, in Egypt, according to the provisions of the act. A copy of the proclamation accompanies this Message. The United States has united with the other powers in the organization of these courts. It is hoped that the jurisdictional questions which have arisen may be readily adjusted, and that this evidence in judicial reform may be hindered by no obstacles.

The Hawaiian Treaty.

The necessary legislation to carry into effect the convention respecting commercial reciprocity concluded with the Hawaiian Islands, in 1875, having been had, the proclamation to carry it into effect, as provided by the act approved Aug. 15, 1876, was duly issued upon the —— Tuesday of September last. A copy thereof accompanies this Message.

Mexico.

The commotions which have been prevalent in Mexico for some time past, which unhappily seem to be not yet wholly quieted, have led to complaints of citizens of the United States of injuries by persons in authority. It is hoped, however, that these will ultimately be adjusted to the satisfaction of both the Governments. The frontier of the United States in that quarter has not been exempt from acts of violence either by citizens of one republic or those of the other. The frequency of these acts I supposed to be increased, and their adjustment made more difficult by the considerable changes in the course of the lower part of the Rio Grande river, which river is a part of the boundary between the two countries. These changes have placed on either side of that river portions of land which, by existing conventions, belong to the jurisdiction of the Government on the opposite side of the river. The subject of the adjustment of this cause of difficulty is under consideration between the two republics.

Colombia.

The Government of the United States of Colombia has paid the award in the case of the steamer Montijo, seized by the authorities of that Government some years since, and the amount has been transferred to the claimants.

Mexican Claims.

It is with satisfaction that I am able to announce that the joint commission for the adjustment of claims between the United States and Mexico, under the convention of 18 8, the duration of which has been several times extended, has brought its labors to a close. From the report of the agent of the United States, which accompanies the papers transmitted herewith, it will be seen that within the time limited by the commission 1,017 claims on the part of citizens of the United States against Mexico were referred to the commission. Of those claims 831 were dismissed or disallowed, and on 186 cases awards were made in favor of the claimants against the Mexican republic, amounting in the aggregate to $4,125,622.20. Within the same period 998 claims on the part of citizens of the Mexican republic against the United States were referred to the commission. Of those claims 831 were dismissed and disallowed, and in 167 cases awards were made in favor of claimants against the United States, amounting in the aggregate to $15,049,841. By the terms of the convention the amount of these awards is to be deducted from the amount awarded in favor of our citizens against Mexico, and the balance only to be paid by Mexico to the United States, leaving the United States to make provision for this proportion of the awards in favor of its own citizens. I invite your attention to the legislation which will be necessary to provide for the payment. In this connection I am pleased to be able to express the acknowledgments due to Sir Edward Thornton, the umpire of the Commission, who has given to the consideration of a large number of claims submitted to him much time, unwearied patience, and that fairness and intelligence which are well known to belong to the accomplished representative of Great Britain, and which are likewise recognized by the representative in this country of the republic of Mexico.

Venezuelan Claims.

Monthly payments of a very small part of the amount due by the Government of Venezuela to the citizens of the latter against that Government continue to be made with reasonable punctuality. That Government has proposed to change the system which it has hitherto pursued in this respect by issuing bonds for part of the amount of the several claims. The proposition, however, could not, it is supposed, properly be accepted, at least without the consent of the holders of certificates of the indebtedness of Venezuela. These are so much depressed that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to ascertain their disposition on the subject.

Expatriation and Naturalization.

In former messages I have called the attention of Congress to the necessity of legislation with regard to fraudulent naturalization and the subject of expatriation and the election of nationality of the number of persons of foreign birth seeking a home in the United States; the ease and facility with which the honest emigrant may, after the lapse of a reasonable time, become possessed of all the privileges of citizenship of the United States, and the frequent occasions which induce such adopted citizens to return to the country of their birth. Under the subject of naturalization, the safeguards which experience has proved necessary for the protection of the honest, naturalized citizens are of paramount importance.

The very simplicity in the requirements of the law on this question afford opportunity for fraud, and the want of uniformity in the proceedings and records of the various courts, and in the forms of the certificates of naturalization issued, afford a constant source of difficulty. I suggest no additional requirements to the acquisition of citizenship, beyond those now existing; but I invite the earnest attention of Congress to the necessity and wisdom of some provisions regarding uniformity in the records and certificates, and providing against the frauds which frequently take place, and for the vacating of a record of naturalization obtained in fraud. These provisions are needed in aid and for the protection of the honest citizen of foreign birth, and for the want of which he is made to suffer not unfrequently. The United States has insisted upon the right of expatriation, and has obtained, after a long struggle, an admission of the principle contended for, by acquiescence therein on the part of many foreign powers, and by the conclusion of treaties on this subject. It is, however, but justice to the Government to which such naturalized citizens have formerly owed allegiance, as well as to the United States, that certain fixed and definite rules should be adopted, governing such cases, and providing how expatriation may be accomplished. While emigrants in large numbers become citizens of the United States, it is also true that persons, both native-born and naturalized, once citizens of the United States, either by formal acts or as the effect of a series of facts and circumstances, abandon their citizenship and cease to be entitled to the protection of the United States, but continue on convenient occasion to assert a claim to protection. In the absence of provisions on these questions, and in this connection, I again invite your attention to the necessity of legislation concerning the marriages of American citizens contracted abroad, and concerning the status of American women who may marry foreigners, and of children born of American parents in a foreign country. The delicate and complicated questions continually occurring with reference to naturalization, expatriation and the status of such persons as I have above referred to, induce me to earnestly direct your attention again to these subjects.

Court of Claims.

In like manner, I repeat my recommendation that some means be provided for the hearing and determination of the just and existing claims of aliens upon the Government of the United States, within a reasonable limitation, and of such as may hereafter arise. While, by existing provisions of law, the Court of Claims may in certain cases be resorted to by an alien claimant, the absence of any general provisions governing all such cases, and the want of a tribunal skilled in the disposition of such cases upon recognized, fixed and settled principles, either provides no remedy in many deserving cases, or compels a consideration of such claims by Congress or the Executive Departments of the Government.

It is believed that other Governments are in advance of the United States upon this question, and that the practice now adopted is entirely unsatisfactory.

The Centennial State.

Congress, by an act approved the 3d of March, 1875, authorized the inhabitants of the Territory of Colorado to form a State Government, with the name of the State of Colorado, and therein provided for the admission of said State, when formed, into the Union, upon an equal footing with the original States. A constitution having been adopted and ratified by the people of that State, and the acting Governor having certified to me the facts as provided by said act, together with a copy of such constitution and ordinances as are provided in said act, and the provisions of said act of Congress having been duly complied with, I issued a proclamation upon the 1st of August, 1876, a copy of which is hereto annexed.

The Reorganization of the Army.

The report of the Secretary of War shows that the army has been actively employed, during the year, in subduing, at the request of the Indian Bureau, certain wild bands of the Sioux Indian nation, and in preserving peace at the South during the election.

The commission constituted under the act of July 24, 1876, to consider and report on the whole subject of the reform and reorganization of the whole army, convened in August last, and has collected a large mass of statistics and opinions bearing on the subject before it. These are now under consideration, and their report is progressing. I am advised, though, by the President of the commission that it will be impracticable to comply with the clause of the act requiring the report to be presented through me to Congress on the first day of the session, as there has not yet been time for that mature deliberation which the importance of the subject demands. Therefore, I ask that the time for making the report be extended to the 29th day of January, 1877, in accordance with the resolution of August 15, 1876. The army regulations prepared under the act of March 1, 1875, have not been promulgated, but are held until after the report of the above-mentioned commission shall have been received and acted upon. By the act of August 15, 1876, the cavalry force of the army was increased by 2,500 men, with a proviso that they should be discharged on the expiration of hostilities. Under this authority, the cavalry regiments have been strengthened and a portion of them are now in the field pursuing the remnants of the Indians with whom they have been engaged during the summer.

The War Department.

The estimates of the War Department are made upon the basis of the number of men authorized by law, and their requirements, as shown by years of experience, and also with the purpose of a part of the bureau officers to provide for all contingencies that may arise during the time for which the estimates are made. Exclusive of the engineers' estimates, presented in accordance with the acts of Congress calling for surveys and estimates for the improvement of various localities, the estimates now presented are about $6,000,000 in excess of the appropriations for the years 1874-75, and 1875-76. This increase is asked in order to provide for the increased cavalry force, should their services be necessary; to prosecute commenced work upon important public buildings; to provide for the armament of fortifications and the manufacture of small arms, and to replenish the working-stock in the supply departments. The appropriations for the last-named have for the past few years been so limited that the accumulations in store will be entirely exhausted during the present year, and it will be necessary to at once begin to replenish them.

I invite your special attention to the following recommendations of the Secretary of War: First, that the claims, under the act of the 4th of July, 1864, for supplies taken by the army during the war, be removed from the offices of the Quartermaster and Commissary Generals and transferred to the Southern Claims Commission. These claims are of a precisely similar nature to those now before the Southern Claims Commission and War Debt Bureau, and they have not the clerical force for their examination, nor proper machinery for investigating the loyalty of the claimants; second, that Congress sanction the scheme of an annuity fund for the benefit of the families of deceased officers, and that it also provide for the permanent organization of the regular service, both of which were recommended in my last annual message; third, that the manufacturing operations of the Ordnance Department be concentrated at three arsenals and an armory, and that the remaining arsenals be sold and the proceeds applied to this object by the Ordnance Department.

River and Harbor Improvements.

The appropriations for river and harbor improvements for the current year were $5,015,000. With my approval, the Secretary of War directed that of this amount $2,000,000 should be expended, and no new works should be begun, and none prosecuted which were not of national importance. Subsequently this amount was increased to $2,237,600, and the works are now progressing on this basis.

The improvement of the South pass of the Mississippi river, under James B. Eads and his associates, is progressing favorably. At the present time there is a channel of 20 8-10 feet in depth between the jetties and the mouth of the pass, and 18½ feet at the head of the pass. Neither channel, however, has the width required before payments can be made by the United States. A commission of civil engineer officers is now examining these works, and their reports will be presented as soon as received.

The Navy.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy shows that branch of the service to be in a condition as effective as it is possible to keep it with the means that the appropriations give to the department. It is, of course, impossible to rival the costly and progressive establishments of the great European powers with the old material of our navy, to which no increase has been authorized since the war, except the eight small cruisers built to supply the place of others which had gone to decay. Yet the most has been done that was possible with the means at command, and, by substantially rebuilding some of our old ships with durable material, and completely repairing and refitting our monitor fleet, the navy has been gradually so brought up that, though it does not maintain its relative position among the progressive navies of the world, it is now in a condition more powerful and effective than it ever has been in time of peace. The complete repairs of our five heavy iron-clads are only delayed on account of the inadequacy of the appropriations made last year for the working bureaus of the department, which were actually less in amount than those made before the war, notwithstanding the greatly-enhanced price of labor and materials, and the increase in the cost of the naval service growing out of the universal use and great expense of steam machinery. The money necessary for these repairs should be provided at once, that they may be completed without further unnecessary delay and expense. When this is done, all the strength that there is in the navy will be developed and useful to its full capacity, and all will be powerful for the purpose of defense, and also for offensive action, should necessity for that arise within a reasonable distance from our shores. The fact that our navy is not more modern and powerful than it is, has been made a cause of complaint against the Secretary of the Navy by persons who, at the same time, criticise and complain of his endeavors to bring the navy that we have to its best and most efficient condition; but the good sense of the country will understand that it is really to his practical action that we have at this time any effective navy force at command.

The Postoffice Department.

The report of the Postmaster General shows an excess of expenditures (excluding the expenditures on account of previous years) over the receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, of $4,151,988 66. The estimated expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1878, are $36,723,432.43; estimated revenue for the same period is $30,645,165, leaving an estimated excess of expenditures, to be appropriated as a deficiency, of $6,078,267.43.

The Postmaster General, like his predecessor, is convinced that a change in the basis of adjusting the salaries of Postmasters of the fourth-class is necessary for the good of the service, as well as for the interests of the Government, and urgently recommends that the compensation of this class of Postmasters above-mentioned be based upon the business of their respective offices as ascertained from the sworn returns to the Auditor of stamps canceled.

A few Postmasters in the Southern States have expressed great apprehension for their personal safety, on account of their connection with the postal service, and have specially requested that their reports of apprehended danger should not be made public, lest it should result in a loss of their lives, but no positive testimony of interference has been submitted except in the case of a mail messenger at Spartanburg, in South Carolina, who reported that he had been violently driven away while in charge of the mails, on account of his political affiliations.

An assistant superintendent of the railway mail service investigated this case, and reported that the messenger had disappeared from his post, leaving his work to be performed by a substitute. The Postmaster General thinks this case is sufficiently suggestive to justify him in recommending that a more severe punishment should be provided for the offense of assaulting any person in charge of the mails or of retarding or otherwise obstructing them by threats of personal injury.

A very gratifying result is presented in the fact that the deficiency of this department during the last fiscal year was reduced to $4,081,790.18, as against $6,169,938.88 of the preceding year. The difference can be traced to the large increase in its ordinary receipts, which greatly exceeded the estimates therefor, and a slight decrease in its expenditures. The ordinary receipts of the Postoffice Department for the past seven fiscal years have increased at an average rate of over 8 per cent per annum, while the increase of expenditures for the same period has been about 5½ per cent per annum, and the decrease of the deficiency in the revenue has been at the rate of nearly 2 per cent per annum.

Agricultural Department.

The report of the Commissioner of Agriculture accompanying this message, will be found one of great interest, marking, as it does, the great progress of the last century in the variety of products of the soil; in the increased knowledge and skill in the labor of producing, saving and manipulating the same, to prepare them for the use of man; in the improvements of machinery to aid the agriculturist in his labor, and in a knowledge of the scientific subjects necessary to a thorough system in economy in agricultural production, namely, chemistry, botany, entomology, etc. A study of this report by those interested in agriculture, and deriving their support from it, will find it of value in pointing out those articles which are raised in greater quantities than the needs of the world require and must sell, therefore, for less than the cost of production, and those which command a profit over cost of production because there is not an over-production. I call especial attention to the need of the department for a new gallery for the reception of the exhibits returned from the Centennial Exhibition, including the exhibits donated by very many foreign nations, and to the recommendations of the Commissioner of Agriculture generally.

District of Columbia.

The reports of the District commissioners and the Board of Health are just received, too late to read them and to make recommendations thereon, and are herewith submitted.

The Centennial.

The International Exhibition held in Philadelphia this year in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of American independence has proven a great success, and will no doubt be of enduring advantage to the country. It has shown great progress in the arts, sciences and mechanical skill made in a single century, and demonstrated that we are but a little behind the older nations in any one branch, while in some we scarcely have a rival. It has served, too, not only to bring people and products of skill and labor from all parts of the world together, but in bringing together people from all sections of our own country, which must prove a great benefit in the information imparted and pride of country engendered.

It has been suggested by scientists interested in and connected with the Smithsonian Institute, in a communication herewith submitted, that the Government exhibit be removed to the capital and a suitable building be erected or purchased for its accommodation as a permanent exhibit. I earnestly recommend this, and, believing that Congress would second this view, I directed that all the Government exhibits at the Centennial Exhibition should remain where they are, except such as might be injured by remaining in a building not intended as a protection in inclement weather, or such as may be wanted by the department furnishing them, until the question of permanent exhibition is acted on. Although the moneys appropriated by Congress to enable the participation of the several executive departments in the International Exhibition of 1876 were not sufficient to carry out the undertaking to the full extent at first contemplated, it gives me pleasure to refer to the very efficient and creditable manner in which the boards appointed from these several departments to provide an exhibition on the part of the Government have discharged their duties with the funds placed at their command. Without a precedent to guide them in the preparation of such a display, the success of their labors was amply attested by the sustained attention which the contents of the Government building attracted during the period of the Exhibition, from both foreign and native people. I am strongly impressed with the value of the collection made by the Government for the purposes of the Exhibition, illustrating as it does the general resources of the country, the statistical and practical evidences of our growth as a nation, and the uses of the mercantile arts and the applications of science in the administration of the affairs of the Government. Many nations have voluntarily contributed their exhibits to the United States, to increase the interest in any permanent exhibition that Congress may provide for. For this act of generosity they should receive the thanks of the people, and I respectfully suggest that a resolution of Congress to that effect be adopted.

The Electoral System.

The attention of Congress cannot be too earnestly called to the necessity of throwing some greater safeguards over the method of choosing and declaring the election of a President. Under the present system there seems to be no provided remedy for contesting the election in any one State. The remedy is partially, no doubt, in the enlightenment of the electors. The compulsory support of the free schools, and the disfranchisement of all who cannot read or write the English language, after a fixed probation, would meet my hearty approval. I would not make this apply, however, to those already voters, but I would to all becoming so after the expiration of the probation fixed upon. Foreigners coming to this country to become citizens, who are educated in their own language, would acquire the requisite knowledge of ours during the necessary residence to obtain naturalization. If they did not take enough interest in our language to acquire sufficient knowledge of it to enable them to study the institutions and laws of the country intelligently, I would not confer upon them the right to make such laws nor to select those who do.

Santo Domingo.

I append to this Message, for convenient reference, a synopsis of administrative events, and of all the recommendations to Congress made by me during the last seven years. Time may show some of the recommendations not to have been wisely conceived, but I believe the larger part will be no discredit to the administration. One of those recommendations met with the united opposition of one political party in the Senate, and with a strong opposition from the other, namely, the treaty for the annexation of Santo Domingo to the United States, to which I shall specially refer, maintaining, as I do, that if my views had been concurred in, the country would be in a more prosperous condition to-day, both politically and financially. Santo Domingo is fertile, and upon its soil may be grown just those tropical products of which the United States uses so much, and which are produced and prepared for the market now by slave labor almost exclusively, namely: sugar, coffee, dyewoods, mahogany, tropical fruits, tobacco, etc. About 75 per cent of the exports of Cuba are consumed in the United States. A large percentage of the exports of Brazil also find the same market. These are paid for almost exclusively in coin, legislation, particularly in Cuba, being unfavorable to a mutual exchange of the products of each country. Flour shipped from the Mississippi river to Havana can pass by the very entrance to the city on its way to a portion of Spain, there pay a duty fixed upon articles to be re-exported, transferred to a Spanish vessel, and brought back almost to the point of starting, paying a second duty, and still leave a profit over what would be received by direct shipment. All that is produced in Cuba could be produced in Santo Domingo. Being a part of the United States, commerce between the island and the main land would be free. There would be no export duties on her shipments, nor import duties on those coming here. There would be no import duties upon the supplies, machinery, etc., going from the States. The effect that would have been produced upon Cuban commerce with these advantages to a rival is observable at a glance. The Cuban question would have been settled long ago in favor of Free Cuba. Hundreds of American vessels would now be advantageously used in transporting the valuable woods and other products of the soil of the island to a market and carrying supplies and emigrants to it. The island is but sparsely settled, while it has an area sufficient for the profitable employment of several millions of people, and the soil would have soon fallen into the hands of United States capitalists. The products are so valuable in commerce that emigration there would have been encouraged. The emancipated race of the South would have found there a congenial home, where their civil rights would not be disputed and where their labor would be much sought after, and the poorest among them could have found the means to go there. In cases of great oppression and cruelty such as has been practiced upon them in many places within the last eleven years, whole communities would have sought refuge in San Domingo. I do not suppose the whole race would have gone, nor is it desirable that they should go. Their labor is desirable, indispensable almost, where they now are, but the possession of the territory would have left the negro master of the situation by enabling him to demand his rights at home on pain of sending him elsewhere.

I do not present these views now as a recommendation of the renewal of the subject of annexation, but I refer to it to vindicate my previous action in regard to it.

Citizen Grant.

With the present Congress my official life terminates. It is not probable that public affairs will ever again receive attention from me further than as a citizen of the Republic, always taking a deep interest in the honor, integrity and prosperity of the whole land.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Dec. 5, 1876.

All Sorts.

LIVERPOOL has just sent a cargo of salt to New England.

CONNECTICUT girls know how to elope at only 13 years of age.

ALGERNON SIDNEY DE VERE has been caught stealing at Indianapolis.

BEECHER and Tilton rode from Boston to Maine in the same palace car last week.

THE Younger brothers will be older when they get the chance to shoot another bank cashier.

STEVE KIRKER, of Mayfield, Ky., put a package of gunpowder on a hot anvil. He is bald-headed now.

IT costs over $22,000 a month to publish an ordinarily good morning newspaper in San Francisco.

THE contractor for the stone work of Horace Greeley's monument has been arrested for embezzlement.

THERE is in India a community of Jews called Ben Israel, whose ancestors settled in India 1,000 years ago.

OSTRICH eggs are worth $10 each at the Cape of Good Hope, where they are hatched by an artificial process.

RUSSIA has 170,000 wolves within its boundaries. The naturalists are not certain but that there may be 170,001.

A SNYDER county (Pa.) farmer, accustomed to abusing and horsewhipping his wife, bears the name of "I. Comfort."

KING KALAKAUA is doing all he can to be a great man. He is at present wearing a pair of suspenders that Napoleon Bonaparte used to own.

IT is announced for the thirteenth time that New York hotels have again reduced their prices. One can now get very good board at $4 per day.—Detroit Free Press.

AN Arizona man was bitten by a tarantula, and his friends saved his life by keeping him drunk for six days. This settles the doom of the tarantula in that Territory.

IF a man who takes pictures is a photographer, and the art of sending dispatches is telegraphy, why isn't the man who writes short articles a paragraphist?—Lowell (Mass.) Courier.

A FRENCH scientific person upbraids Capt. Nares for not taking a balloon along with him. It would have been easy to reach the pole in a balloon from the point attained by the ships.

"Who am de people?" said Bates. Bates reads and thinks, and he said, answering himself: "I know who de people are. Dey is attorneys for candidates dat am not elected."—New Orleans Republican.

ANOTHER great work, the New York and New Jersey tunnel, is to be rapidly pushed forward. With one highway over the East river and another under the North river, two very important needs of the metropolis will be supplied.

MRS. THOMAS W. YOUNG, of Concord, Mass., has recently attended the golden weddings of two of her sisters, and will soon assist at the golden wedding of her brother's sister. Thus there will be three interesting anniversaries in one family within one year.

MRS. MCINTOSH, who was going to Toronto with cattle, was put off a train on the Great Western railway. Her pass was refused by the conductor, who declared, "No woman can ride on a drover's pass." Judge Burton gave judgment for plaintiff on her suit, reserving for consideration the amount of damages.

AN awful warning is offered to those little boys who use their mouths as pen wipers by what happened to a small French boy, who nearly died from the salts of copper in the ink he took, and only recovered through the doctor's guessing what was amiss, and promptly applying the right antidote.

SINCE 1872 forty-one wrecks of Japanese vessels have stranded on the American coast; twenty-eight since 1850, only twelve deserted, and all swept across the Pacific by the great current at the rate of twelve miles an hour. In the great past, it is said, America was thus settled, the more recent Indian coming by way of Behring Strait.

In the fields I met a maiden,
Both her arms with tansy laden,
Ah, how could a girl prevent it,
Or a merry boy avoid it?
Just one kiss I took, and spent it
For another close beside it.
Oh, but how she frowned and pouted!
Much my boldness then I scouted;
But another day I met her,
Proffered then a fresh-plucked pansy;
And she laughed: "No, I like better
Just the simple, wild-grown tansy!"

THE mission of Prof. W. S. Clark, of the Amherst (Mass.) Agricultural College, who some months ago went to Japan to found a National College of Agriculture there, has thus far been very successful. Already he has 300 students in a fine building erected at the expense of the Japanese Government, with 100 men at work on a farm which is connected with it.

THE Nottinghamshire (England) country folk have two sayings relating to the appearance of severe weather at this time of the year:

If there's ice in November that will bear a duck,
There'll be nothing after but sludge and muck.
If the ice bear a man before Christmas it will not bear a mouse after.

There is a proverb of a similar character attached to Hallowe'en, Nov. 1, N. S., or the evening before All Saints day:

If ducks do slide at Hollandtide,
At Christmas they will swim;
If ducks do swim at Hollandtide,
At Christmas they will slide.

A Blind Lawyer's Ride.

The champion rider at the Muskogee Fair was a blind man named John McClelland, of McKinney, Texas. Mr. McClelland is totally blind, and is a remarkable man. He traveled hundreds of miles alone on horseback through the Territory, his faithful horse being his only companion. He acquired a knowledge of law by reading raised block letters, and, it is said, enjoys an extensive practice.—Denison (Texas) Cresset.

PUBLISH that which is good. Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier is a life-saving remedy, imparts vigor, health and strength to the system, purifies and enriches the blood. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

CONSTANTINOPLE.

The Fascinations and Beauties of the Turkish Capital.

[C. D. Warner, in Scribner for December.]

Constantinople is a city of the dead as much as of the living, and one encounters everywhere tombs and cemeteries sentineled by the mournful dark-green cypress. On our way to take boat for the Sweet Waters of Europe we descended through the neglected Little Field of the Dead. It is on a steep acclivity, and the stones stand and lean thickly there, each surmounted by a turban in fashion at the period of the occupant's death, and with inscription neatly carved. That "every man has his date" strikes Ab-del-Atti as a remarkable fact. The ground is netted by haphazard paths, and the careless living tread the graves with thoughtless feet, as if the rights of the dead to their scanty bit of soil were no longer respected. We said to the boatman that this did not seem well. There was a weary touch of philosophy in his reply:

Ah! master, the world grows old!

It is the fashion for the world to go on Friday to the Sweet Waters of Europe, the inlet of the Golden Horn, flowing down between two ranges of hills. This vale, which is almost as celebrated in poetry as that of the Heavenly Water on the Asiatic shore, is resorted to by thousands, in hundreds of carriages from Pera, in thousands of caiques and barges. On the water the excursion is a festival of the people, of strangers, of adventurers of both sexes; the more fashionable, though not moral part of society, which have equipages to display, go by land. We chose the water, and selected a large four-oared caique, in the bottom of which we seated ourselves, after a dozen narrow escapes from upsetting the tottlish craft, and rowed away, with the grave Ab-del-Atti balanced behind, and under bonds to preserve his equilibrium.

All the city seems to be upon the water; the stream is alive with the slender, swift caiques; family parties, rollicking midshipmen from some foreign vessel, solitary beauties reclining in selfish loveliness, grave, fat Turks, in stupid enjoyment. No voyage could be gayer than this through the shipping, with the multitudinous houses of the city rising on either hand. As we advance, the shore is lined with people, mostly ladies in gay holiday apparel, squatting along the stream, as on a spring day in Paris those who cannot afford carriages line the avenues to the Bois de Bologne to watch the passing pageant. The stream grows more narrow, at length, winds in graceful turns, and finally is only a few yards wide, and the banks are retained by masonry. The vale narrows also, and the hills draw near. The water-way is choked with gaily-painted caiques, full of laughing beauties and reckless pleasure-seekers, and the reader of Egyptian history might think himself in a saturnalia of the revel-makers in the ancient fete of Bubastis on the Nile. The women are clad in soft silks—blue, red, pink, yellow, and gray—some of them with their faces tied up as if they were victims of toothache, others wearing the gauze veils, which enhance, without concealing, charms; often the color and beauty that nature has denied are imitated by paint and enamel.

We land and walk on. Singers and players on curious instruments sit along the bank and in groups under the trees, and fill the festive air with the plaintive and untrained Oriental music. The variety of costumes is innumerable; here meet all that is gay and fantastic in Europe and Asia. The navigation ends at the white marble palace and mosque which we now see shining amid the trees, fresh with May foliage. Booths and tents, green and white, are erected everywhere, and there are many groups of gypsies and fortune-tellers. The olive-complexioned, black-eyed, long-haired women, who trade in the secrets of the Orient and the vices of the Occident, do a thriving business with those curious of the future, or fascinated by the mysterious beauty of the soothsayers. Besides the bands of music there are solitary bagpipers, whose instrument is a skin, with a pipe for a mouth-piece and another at the opposite end, having graduated holes for fingering; and I noticed with pleasure that the fingering and the music continued long after the musician had ceased to blow into the inflated skin. Nothing was wanting to the most brilliant scene; ladies in bright groups on gay rugs and mats, children weaving head-dresses from leaves and rushes, crowds of carriages, fine horses and gallant horsemen, sellers of refreshments balancing great trays on their heads and bearing tripod stools, and all degrees of the most cosmopolitan capital enjoying the charming spring holiday.

In the palace grounds dozens of peacocks were sunning themselves, and the Judas trees were in full pink bloom. Above the palace the river flows in walled banks, and, before it reaches it, tumbles over an artificial fall of rocks, and sweeps round the garden in a graceful curve. Beyond the palace, also on the bank of the stream, are a grove of superb trees and a greensward; here a military band plays, and this is the fashionable meeting place of carriages, where hundreds were circling round and round in the imitated etiquette of Hyde Park.

Miner's Music.

A farmer's wife from Blind Gulch came down to buy a music-box or something of the sort for the girls at home. She had $500 tied up in a handkerchief and attached to the hay-bands which formed her bustle. After she had looked at a dozen or more pianos, she remarked to the clerk: "You can't fool me with no pianners as has got smooth legs like that. I'll have 'em carved if I die first." The astute manager signaled to a musician to try a richly-carved "square grand," but she protested that she didn't want funeral music in her house. There was a change of instrument, and, what was more important, a new tune—"The Mulligan Guards." The old lady was delighted. It was the "kind of box as would suit the gals." She bought it.—San Francisco News Letter.

An Important Invention.

A trial of the Stevenson tug system has just been made on the Erie canal. A boat carrying 207 tons was towed with great ease and speed, and several might have been towed with the same ease had they happened to be there, as the heavier the load the greater the traction of the wheels upon the track. A number of gentlemen representing the New York Produce Exchange were present, and expressed themselves greatly pleased with the invention. The Captain of the boat that was towed showed his appreciation of the novelty by telling the driver of his horses to "throw them crow-baits into the canal, we've got something solid now."

A FRIGHTFUL FALL.

The Theater Disaster at Sacramento, Cal.—Seven Persons Killed, and Upward of Two Hundred Injured.

[From the Sacramento Record.]

The overture had been played, a few solos sung, and an interval of silence had been reached, when suddenly the floor gave way, and the whole mass of people, thrown violently towards its center, were precipitated into the stable below, a distance of some sixteen or eighteen feet. The floor seemed to sway down slightly in the middle, the stage sank, the joists drew out of the walls, the floor broke off at the room partitions on the east end, the rows of boxes careened toward each other, clung an instant to the walls as they fell, and then pitched over upon the struggling mass of human beings below.

The scene which followed beggars description. One cry of horror went up from the stricken audience; then it rose en masse; the next instant it was tossed in a broken and confused heap, and a second afterward was plunged downward and crushed beneath the broken timbers and the falling boxes, entangled in the wreck of furniture and stage fixtures, and wedged in between and broken upon the hacks, carriages, and other vehicles, and the heavy stall partitions below. The walls trembled with the shock, the roof wavered, the floor beneath groaned with the mighty shock, but fortunately the walls stood, the roof clung to its fastenings, and the stable floor, supported from below by posts, bore up under its new burden.

The thunder of the fall resounded throughout the block, a great cloud of dust burst from the doors and windows, some of the broken gas pipes blazed forth in long streams of flame, the light trappings of the wrecked stage ignited, the cry of fire was given on the outside, and before the real nature of the calamity was known the bells boomed forth the signal for rescue. Meanwhile, within the doomed building rang with the shrieks of the wounded, the groans of the dying, and the cries of the mass of the terrified multitude, struggling with itself in frantic endeavors to escape from the inclosure of the walls, and made desperate by fear that the threatening tiers of brick would fall in upon and crush it again.

Men sprang upon each other, dashed over prostrate bodies, clambered upon the heads of the seething mass, fought like devoted beings with but one chance for life left, the sole dominant idea of self-preservation overriding the reason, and giving mercy no resting-place. Fortunately the way was now broad for speedy clearance, and in a very few moments the uninjured had fought their way through wreck and ruin to open air. Then came the firemen and police and hundreds of strong men to the rescue. Chief Engineer Lee took charge of his force and of all the workers, and, aided by willing volunteers, the rescue went on with the speed of desperation, and was urged forward with all the power men were capable of who saw their bleeding, dying fellows before them crushed and helpless, and heard their despairing cries beat the air for "help! help! for God's sake, help!"

The alarm-bells still rang, and the news of the terrible disaster spread with lightning-like velocity throughout the city. As it was Saturday night, the streets were unusually full, and as the news went abroad the people flocked by thousands to the scene. Hundreds of hands soon laid bare the truth, the dead were taken up, and their contorted limbs decently composed for the long silence of the grave; the wounded were borne to the nearest offices, engine-houses, drug-stores, and hotels. Every physician of the city was on hand, and a hundred willing and experienced nurses proffered with eager sympathy all needed aid.

In an hour's time the wreck was literally torn up, and the fact made a certainty to the senses that no mortal was left beneath the ruins.

SUMMARY OF KILLED AND WOUNDED.

Killed	7
Believed to be fatally injured	4
Seriously wounded	16
Less badly hurt	20
Slightly bruised and hurt	32
Total known	79

It is known that fully fifty persons, who can be classed as slightly hurt, were taken to their homes before their names could be secured. Workmen in the ruins place this class as high as 100. At the lowest estimate not less than 130 persons were injured.

Fannie Peak, the ticket-seller, was cast down with her box, but it kept well about her, and she was unharmed. Her money-box was broken, and several hundred dollars cast into the wreck. Most of it was recovered last night.

The One Serene Man.

Good for the "agricultural editor." He hasn't been excited over the election dispatches. His sturdy column has kept its place, and useful information has been disseminated in the midst of the unprofitable froth of politics. Amid the wreck of matter and the crash of ballot-boxes he has been quietly writing up the ichneumon fly and telling us about tree-planting. No country that is well supplied with agricultural writers can ever be completely ruined.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE GREAT PANACEA.—In this season of rheumatism, chilblains, frost-bites, etc., nothing better can be kept in the house than Merchant's celebrated Gargling Oil. It is peculiarly adapted to Family use, yet it answers equally well for horses and other animals. It is free from stain, and at the same time very efficacious in all instances where a liniment is required.—Rochester (N. Y.) Daily Union and Advertiser.

THE header of the Sutro tunnel is now directly under the Chinese cemetery at Virginia City.

WHAT a smell you have in your nose; it is all stopped up; get some of Dr. J. H. McLean's Catarrh Snuff. It sooths, heals, and will cure any disease in your nose or throat. Trial boxes, 50 cts, by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

St. Nicholas.

"The king of all publications issued for the young on either side of the Atlantic."—Southampton (England) Observer.

The third volume of this incomparable magazine is now completed. With its eight hundred royal octavo pages, and its six hundred illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift-book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

"St. Nicholas is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good."—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877,

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys,

"HIS OWN MASTER,"

By J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas holiday number.

Beside serial stories, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems and pictures for the holidays, and some astonishing illustrations of Oriental sports, with drawings by Siamese artists, the Christmas holiday number of St. Nicholas, superbly illustrated, contains a very interesting paper,

"THE BOYS OF MY BOYHOOD,"

By William Cullen Bryant; "The Horse Hotel," a lively article, by Charles A. Barnard, splendidly illustrated; "The Clock in the Sky," by Richard A. Proctor; "A Christmas Play for Homes or Sunday-schools," by Dr. Eggleston; "The Peterkins' Christmas Tree," by Lucretia P. Hale; "Poetry and Carols of Winter," by Lucy Larcom, with pictures. Do not fail to buy St. Nicholas for the Christmas holidays.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George MacDonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton, and others.

There will be stories, sketches, and poems, of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge, and many others. There will be also

"TWELVE SKY PICTURES,"

By Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

Amusement and instruction, with fun and frolic, and wit and wisdom, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

The London Literary World says: "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of SCRIBNER'S press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."

The London Daily News says: "We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."

GOOD NEWS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

To meet the demand for a cheaper St. Nicholas Gift-Book, the price of vols. I. and II. has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15), so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than $50 worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest newsdealer, or send money in check, or P. O. money order, or in registered letter, to

SCRIBNER & Co., 743 Broadway, N. Y.

Fifteen Months for $4.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY for December begins Dr. Holland's new novel, "Nicholas Minturn," which promises to be even more entertaining than the story of "Sevenoaks." The hero is a young man who has been always "tied to a woman's apron strings," and everybody is curious to see "what he will do next."

New subscribers may begin with the magnificent midsummer holiday number (the finest number of any magazine ever issued), containing the opening chapters of another splendid serial, "That Lass o' Lowrie's," by Mrs. Hodgson Burnett, and so get fifteen numbers for $4, ending with October, 1877.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY is the best of all the magazines; having finer illustrations and a greater variety in its contents. Subscribe now, with the nearest bookseller ($4 a year), or send check or P. O. order to

SCRIBNER & Co., 743 Broadway, N. Y.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

THERE are 286 newspapers published in New York city.

Consumption Cured.

An old Physician, retired from active practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple Vegetable Remedy, for the speedy and permanent Cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a Positive and Radical Cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a conscientious desire to relieve human suffering, he will send (free of charge) to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Sent by return mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. Dr. W. C. Stevens, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

WINTER is now fairly upon us, and the teams are hastening to the lumber woods in various parts of the country. Our advice to every man who goes to the woods, be he captain, cook, teamster, or any other man, is to take along a good stock of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment and Parsons' Purgative Pills. Many months of labor (in the aggregate) may be saved by this precaution.

PIMPLES on the face, rough skin, chapped hands, saltrheum and all cutaneous affections cured, the skin made soft and smooth, by the use of Juniper Tar Soap. That made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, is the only kind that can be relied on, as there are many imitations, made from common tar, which are worthless.

OUR readers who intend purchasing holiday presents will refer to the advertisement of Messrs. Kendall, Hubbard & Co., whose assortment of Swiss Diamonds with a real coating of the genuine stone are very reasonable. Sent with privilege to examine.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE allays irritation, removes dandruff, and invigorates the action of the capillaries in the highest degree.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, of Boston, is a thoroughly wide-awake paper, having among its contributors such writers as J. T. Trowbridge, Edward Eggleston, Edward Everett Hale, James T. Fields, J. G. Whittier, C. A. Stephens, Louisa M. Alcott, Rebecca Harding Davis, Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, Louise Chandler Moulton. No writers more attractive in the country, and no publication for young people more enterprising and useful.

THE editor takes pleasure in calling the attention of sufferers from rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and lumbago to Durang's Rheumatic Remedy. It has been before the public for three years, and, it is said, has never failed in a single case. It is taken internally, and cures at once. Sold by wholesale and retail druggists everywhere. Price, $1.00 a bottle.

BAD enough to look and feel bad yourself; but no excuse for having your horse look and feel badly, when for a small sum you can buy Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, which, given in grain two or three times a week, will make him look and feel well.

A YOUTH'S PUBLICATION.—For half a century the YOUTH'S COMPANION, of Boston, has been published. It was started in 1827, and is to-day one of the brightest and most vigorous papers with which we are acquainted.

SEND ten cents and get three copies of the Chicago Ledger—the GREAT DOLLAR FAMILY PAPER.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.
Splendid holiday novelties, New Year's stories, New Year's presents, New Year's pictures, New Year's music, New Year's cabinet gems, New Year's chromos, New Year's poetry, New Year's chromo book-marks, New Year's household, New Year's fashions, New Year's etiquette, New Year's greetings and other holiday novelties, with rare literary gems and full-size patterns, in the splendid holiday January number of Demorest's Monthly Magazine, 25 cents, post free, yearly $3, with a splendid Premium. Do not fail to see the January number, with three beautiful cabinet and artistic oil chromos, worth several times the cost of the magazine. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 17 E. 14th St., N. Y.

BEAUTIFUL PATTERNS FOR DOLLS, 15, 20 and 25 inches in height. The set includes thirteen garments—polonaise, basque, jacket, water-proof, hood, chemise, drawers, overskirt, skirt, apron, petticoat, night-dress and wrapper, with instructions and descriptions. Price 10 cents per set, post free. Address MME. DEMOREST, 17 E. 14th St., N. Y. Sold at all Toy Stores or at Mme. Demorest's Agencies everywhere.

MME. DEMOREST'S
grand opening of patterns of the novel and beautiful winter styles in polonaises, basques, cloaks, overskirts, etc., 5 Rue de Tracy, Paris; 849 Queen Victoria Street, London, E. C.; and 17 E. 14th St., N. Y. Agencies everywhere. Centennial Award for Patterns over all competitors. See Winter catalogue and splendid Christmas and New Year's numbers of Demorest's Monthly.

1855. 22d Year. 1877.
Progressive! Comprehensive!
WESTERN FARM JOURNAL
CHICAGO, ILL.
A Mammoth Weekly for Country and Town.
A Practical Agricultural Newspaper.
Largest on the Continent!
Its columns are replete each week with fresh, interesting and valuable matter for every branch of FARM INDUSTRY, while the departments devoted to the FIRESIDE, YOUNG FOLKS, CURRENT TOPICS and NEWS receive such especial attention as to render the JOURNAL, in the truest sense, a complete paper for the FARM, the FIRESIDE, or the HOUSEHOLD.
In the issue for Jan. 1st, 1877, will be commenced a high-class, instructive serial story, written expressly for the Western Farm Journal, entitled
THE LESSON FOR LIFE.
It will be read with absorbing interest, as well as profit, by all classes. WRITE FOR ADVANCE SHEET OF EXTRACTS. We want every man and woman in the country to subscribe for the paper and to act as our agent this season. Single subscriptions, $2.00 a year; only $1.50 in clubs. No special authority to act needed. Send in your own subscription and then others as fast as obtained. DON'T DELAY! All subscriptions received during 1876 will run to end of 1877. SAMPLE PAPERS, POSTERS and CIRCULARS Free. Address
WESTERN FARM JOURNAL,
126 Washington Street, Chicago.

THE BEST YET
The Sunday School Times, of which H. Clay Trumbull and George A. Peltz are editors, and John Wanamaker is publisher, will, in 1877, contain critical notes on the International lessons, by Profs. Tayler Lewis and A. C. Kendrick; a popular exposition of the lessons every week, by the Rev. Newman Hall, of London; and a practical application of the lesson truths, by H. Clay Trumbull. This plan secures fuller and better lesson helps than can be obtained elsewhere. The Times is sent to new subscribers, three months on trial, for 25 cents; one year, $2.15.
For seven cents there will be sent a specimen copy of the Scholars' Quarterly, the best Sunday school lesson help for scholars published.
Specimens of the Weekly Lesson Leaf sent free. The most complete leaf of any; although it is sold at so low a price. Address,
JOHN D. WATTLES, Business Manager,
610 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

$5 HOLIDAYS. $12
SWISS DIAMONDS AND WATCHES.
We have just received a consignment of fine Diamonds and Watches from Messrs. A. Perret, Geneva, which we now offer to the public at prices for superior goods unparalleled, comprising the finest assortment to be found in any establishment in this city or elsewhere.
The brilliancy, setting and finish of our Diamonds are not excelled by any found in South America or India, and the most scrutinizing eye fails to discover any difference. These goods are a specialty with us.
LOOK AT PRICES:
Solitaire Diamond Studs, set in 14-karat gold, 3 in set, $5; Solitaire Diamond Scarf-Pin, set in 14-karat gold, $5; Solitaire Diamond Ring, set in 18-karat gold, $5 to $12; Ladies' Ear-Rings, Solitaire Diamond, handsomely set in 18-karat gold, pair $8 to $12; Diamond Crosses, elegantly set in 18-karat gold, $10; Silver Hunting-Case Watch, Anchor movement, $12—these goods range from $12, $15 to $18, warranted one year; Sleeve-Buttons, elegant rich Roman Gold, from $3 to $6, etc.
All goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Sent by mail, registered, or express, prepaid, to all parts of U. S. Send money by P. O. order, registered letter, or by express. Either will be safe. Address all orders to
KENDALL, HUBBARD & CO.,
Manufacturers of Jewelry, 421 Broadway, New York.

Abbott's Patent
Portland CUTTER

Sold for One-half the prices of ordinary Sleighs of equal style and finish; while they are stronger than any wood knee Cutter can be made and no heavier in weight. Knees are all malleable iron, material best that can be found anywhere; finish first-class, style most fashionable. Have some responsible Hardware or Implement Dealers order one for you, who are authorized to WARRANT THEM to their customers in EVERY RESPECT. A. A. ABBOTT & CO., cor. Beach & Seber sts., CHICAGO.

CANCER.
Cincinnati Cancer Institute,
Office No. 162 Plum St.
Established for the cure of Cancer, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula, and Skin diseases, by local and constitutional remedies. Cancer cured without the use of the knife or caustics. This treatment has been successfully employed for many years; and in no case does the Cancer return as when removed with the knife. As evidence of good faith and honorable dealing, we require no fee for our services until the patient is cured. For further information enclose two stamps for book containing theory of treatment, testimonials from patients that have been cured, and first class city references, etc.
Box 388. Address L. H. GRATIGNY, M. D. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

BIG PAY Fifteen Gold Jewelry Combination out. Consisting of elegant watch chain, ladies' jet and gold brooch, jet and gold ear drops, pair elegant gold stone sleeve buttons, set spiral studs, collar button, heavy plain wedding ring, and gents' Parisian diamond pin. The above 8 articles sent, post-paid, for 50 cents, have been retailing for $6. Bankrupt stock and must be sold. F. STOCKMAN, 27 Bond Street, New York.

Guarding the Mails Agents Wanted
200 SUPERB ENGRAVINGS. OR SECRET SERVICE in the Post-office Department, by P. H. WOODWARD, eleven years in the service, and Chief Special Agent under P. M. Gen'l Jewell. The most remarkable and thrilling book on detection ever written. Wonderful Exploits of the Secret Service Agents in the pursuit and capture of Postal Thieves. New [illegible] Circulars free. [illegible] Dustin, Gilman & Co., Hartford, Ct.; Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati, O.

READY FOR AGENTS—THE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION
DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED.
A graphic pen-picture of its history, grand buildings, wonderful exhibits, curiosities, great days, etc. Profusely illustrated, thoroughly popular and very cheap. Is selling immensely. 1,000 AGENTS wanted. Send for full particulars. This is the chance of 100 years to coin money. Get the only reliable history. HUBBARD BROTHERS, Pubs., La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.
CAUTION Be not deceived by premature books assuming to be "official," and telling what will happen in August and September.

CATARRH
Sneezing Catarrh, Chronic Catarrh, Ulcerative Catarrh, permanently cured by
SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.
SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH is a safe, certain, and permanent cure for Catarrh of every form, and is the most perfect remedy ever devised. It is purely a vegetable distillation, and is applied locally by insufflation, and constitutionally by internal administration. Locally applied relief is instantaneous. It soothes, heals, and cleanses the nasal passages of every feeling of heaviness, obstruction, dullness, or dizziness. Constitutionally administered it renovates the blood, purifies it of the acid poison with which it is always charged in Catarrh, stimulates the stomach, liver and kidneys, perfects digestion, makes new blood, and permits the formation of sound, healthy tissue, and finally obtains complete control over the disease. The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references. It is a great and good medicine, and worthy all confidence. Each package contains a Treatise on Catarrh and Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use in all cases.
SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE is sold by all wholesale and retail druggists throughout the United States. Price $1. Depot, WEEKS & POTTER, Boston.

EVERYBODY
CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDS
COLLINS'
VOLTAIC PLASTERS.
THEY contain the grand curative element, ELECTRICITY, combined with the finest compound of medicinal gums ever united together. It therefore seems impossible for them to fail in affording prompt relief for all pains and aches.
"THE BEST PLASTER."
Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Gentlemen,—Please send me six COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS. Send by return mail. I think they are the best Plaster I ever used. Please find money inclosed. HASKELL LEWIS.
MILFORD, DEL., July 14, 1876.
"AN EXCELLENT PLASTER."
Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Gentlemen,—Please send me another COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER. I find them to be an excellent Plaster,—the best that I have ever used. I am sorry that the druggists here do not keep them. F. M. SNIDER.
BROADWAY, O., July, 1876.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
Price, 25 cents. Sent by mail, carefully wrapped, on receipt of 25 cents for one, $1.25 for six, or $2.25 for twelve, by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

HOLIDAY MUSIC BOOKS.
Two Splendid Volumes for Presents.
THE WORLD OF SONG!
Price in Boards, $2.50. Cloth, $3.00. Gilt, $4.00.
Rarely have we issued a book of songs including such a variety of really first-class and popular Vocal Music. 250 pages, full Sheet-Music size. Songs by nearly sixty different composers, and among the compositions are many such gems as "Come to Me Quickly," "Golden Locks are Silver," "My Heart's Best Love," "She's a Rosy, she's a Posy," and Millard's "Whippoorwill."
We publish nineteen valuable collections, uniform with the "WORLD" and "GEMS." Send for Catalogue of "HOME MUSICAL LIBRARY," and select one or more of its books for Christmas.
GEMS OF THE DANCE!
A Companion to the famous "Gems of Strauss!"
$2.50 in Boards, $3.00 Cloth, $4.00 Gilt.
The "GEMS OF STRAUSS" had a wonderful success, and this new work is fully its equal, and contains the recent "Strauss" pieces and many others by Gung'l, Lamothe, Faust, Coote, Elkoff, and other eminent composers. 232 pages, full Sheet-Music size, well filled with Waltzes, Galops, Polkas, Quadrilles, etc.
Either book mailed, post free, for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 BROADWAY, New York.
J. E. Ditson & Co., Successors to Lee & Walker, Phila.
Mention this paper in ordering.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS
AUTOMATIC
Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.
Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.
Trade Mark in base of every machine.
SILENT SEWING MACHINE.
Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.
Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.,
(Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York

ORGAN
THE "ESTEY" LEADS THE WORLD
[Established 1846.]
J. ESTEY & CO.
Brattleboro, Vt.
Send for Illustrated Catalogue.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,
Is the Grand Old
MUSTANG LINIMENT,
WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c., or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

1776. 1876.
BURLEY'S
U. S. CENTENNIAL
GAZETTEER AND GUIDE.
Tells what has been accomplished during 100 years. Gives general information concerning each State and Territory, and is of more practical value than anything ever published. Gives information of our own and all other Exhibitions of the world, with Cuts of the Buildings, &c.
Agents Wanted Everywhere.
Send $2.00 for Book and Circulars, or send for Circulars free. Any one can sell it and make money.
Office, 152 S. 4th St., Philadelphia.

$10 a Day. [illegible] Catalogue free. [illegible]
$55 & $77 a Week to Agents. [illegible]
$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. [illegible] COE, YONGE & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
20 a Week Salary [illegible] Stamp for circulars. [illegible]
REVOLVERS [illegible] Western Gun Works, Chicago, Ill.
PORTRAITS, etc., [illegible] Agents wanted. [illegible]
$25 A DAY to Agents. Samples free. [illegible]
AGENTS [illegible] J. H. BUFFORD [illegible] CO., [illegible]
A GOOD BUSINESS IS INSURED to an enterprising man by addressing Box 2783, Philadelphia P. O.
$15 for $5 Agents Mammoth Catalogue free. [illegible] Hamey & Co., 121 Nassau St., N. Y.
AGENTS wanted, [illegible] Address J. H. HAMEY & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
ASTHMA. [illegible]
AGENTS FOUR $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., [illegible]
PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, etc., who wish genuine Chartered University Degrees can address, inclosing 10 cents, J. R. YUILLE, Boston, Mass.
$3 WATCHES. A Great [illegible] Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.
$984 Made by one Agent in 67 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.
WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $80 a month and traveling expenses paid. GEM MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.
$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.
MAGIC GOODS! Sporting Goods, Revolvers, Magic Wands, Secret of Beauty. Agents wanted. Catalogue free. EUREKA CO., 39 Broadway, N. Y.
NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS' SUPPLY CO., 261 Bowery, N. Y.
$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.
PARTNER IN EVERY COUNTY. 10c. for catalogue. National Flag, Panels and Novelties. F. C. DAYTON, Agt. Mfr. of light, useful articles, Box 572, New Haven, Ct.
FREE Six Chromo Samples sent on receipt of stamp. Agents wanted. THE NEW YORK CHROMO PRESS, 126 William St., N. Y.
AGENTS wanted for "BIG BONANZA," containing full descriptions of richest SILVER MINES in the world. Introduction by Mark Twain. Illustrated circulars free. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO., Chicago.
$10 to $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent post-paid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.
$50 to $100 a month earn'd by our graduates. Students wanted. Salary paid while practicing. Situations furnished. Address N. W. Telegraph Institute, Janesville, Wis.
WANTED—Men to solicit orders for our goods; permanent employment; good salary. Traveling expenses paid by Company. Union Industrial Works, Cincinnati, O.
W. L. HAYDEN, Teacher of Guitar, Flute, Cornet. Author Hayden Pat. Guitar, the best in use. Dealer in Musical Instruments, Music, Strings. Catalogues free. 120 Tremont St., Boston.
DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 112 pages, 25 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.
TELEGRAPH Railroad and Express business taught. Situations guaranteed or money refunded. Send stamp for circular. Address WESTERN UN. TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE, Box 380, Freeport, Ill.
THE ELGIN WATCH IS THE BEST AND CHEAPEST. A home production. Send for the latest descriptive price list. JAMES McMILLAN, 220 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
$25,000 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN THE next 6 months by the publishers of the ST. LOUIS WEEKLY JOURNAL! For full information, write IMMEDIATELY to WOLCOTT & HUME CO., PUBLISHERS, St. Louis, Mo.
A GIFT By an arrangement with the Publisher we will send every reader of this Paper a sample package of Transfer Pictures free. Send us stamp for postage. They are highly colored, beautiful, and easily transferred to any object. Agents wanted. J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William St., New York.
TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.
AGENTS. Investigate the merits of The Illustrated Weekly before determining upon your work this fall and winter. The combination for this season surpasses anything heretofore attempted. Terms sent free. Address CHAS. CLUCAS & CO., 14 Warren St., New York.
PAOLI'S CHAIN BELT Electricity is Life. Paolis Belt, best in the world Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application, to P. J. WHITE, 27 Bond Street, New York.
FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, (1 or 2 in each Co.) to sell a few staple articles of real merit to the farmers in their own counties. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. WORTH, St. Louis, Mo.
YOUR own LIKENESS in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 8x10 in., from a photograph or tintype, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 6 months for $1. One agent made $62.50 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.
$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. Dr. J. P. FITLER, being sworn, says: [illegible] FITLER'S RHEUMATIC REMEDY [illegible] MEDICINES AT DRUGGISTS.

R. K. DEDERICK & CO.
ALBANY

FREE HOLIDAY GIFT! PARK'S FLORAL GAZETTE, monthly, entirely floral, neat print, fine tinted paper, richly illustrated. Only 30 cts. a year, with beautiful chromo "Moss Rose," 2 copies, with chromos, 50c.; or 3 months on trial, with package Flower Seeds and Ill. Catalogue, for stamp. GEO. W. PARK, Mt. Vernon, O.
CANCER, TUMORS and Scrofula.—Dr. F. S. ROBERTSON, Supt. of the American Cancer Institute, and discoverer of the remedy for the radical cure of Cancer, Tumors and Scrofula by acting on the blood only, will send, on receipt of $45.00, a full course of medicines that has never failed in the cure of Cancer, Tumors or Scrofula. 94 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
A BOOK for the MILLION. MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases. Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address, Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.
MARK TWAIN'S NEW BOOK! TOM SAWYER, Is ready for Agents. Don't get behindhand this time, but send for your territory or circulars at once. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING CO., HARTFORD, CONN., CHICAGO, ILL., CINCINNATI, O.
$15 SHOT GUN A double barrel gun, bar or front action locks; warranted genuine twist barrels, and a good shooter, or no sale; with Flask, Pouch and Wad-cutter, for $15. Can be sent C. O. D. with privilege to examine before paying bill. Send Stamp for circular to P. POWELL & SON, Gun Dealers, 238 Main St., Cincinnati, O.
WORTH its WEIGHT in GOLD. The Brilliant Automatic Extinguisher Burner makes all Coal-Oil Lamps perfectly safe. They cannot explode; cannot be filled while burning; instantly extinguished if dropped, broken or upset. [illegible] Mailed to any address for 30 cents. [illegible] MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.
AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY CENTEN'L EXHIBITION It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 61 copies in one day. This is the only authentic and complete history published. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.
Potter's American Monthly. 50,000 Subscribers for 1877. ILLUSTRATED. Best Family Magazine in the Country, at $3 for 1877. [illegible] Agents. J. E. POTTER & Co., [illegible]
C. N. U. No. 49
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.
W. G. THOMAN, Editor.
AUBURN, INDIANA, DEC. 14, 1876.

Congressman Baker, representing this district in the House, introduce a joint resolution last week prohibiting the payment of any Southern claims growing out of the loss of property during the late war.

The Democrats in South Carolina have a House of Representatives composed of sixty-three members—a legal quorum. These members all hold certificates from Chamberlain's Canvassing Board, and yet the Grant Admistration not only witholds its recognition, but keeps an army in Columbia to uphold Chamberlain's bogus House.

The Oregon Elector.

Last week the Governor of Oregon issued a certificate to Cronin a Democatic elector, in place of Watts the Republican elector who was ineligible because of holding a post office. Cronin cast his vote for Tilden thus giving him the 185 votes neccessary to an election. The New York Post a Republican paper admits that Tilden is legally elected and says.

Whatever differing theories concerning that decision may be entertained, this much is plain: The same theory must be applied to all cases. It will not do to make various laws for various States. If it be held that when the votes come to be counted in Washington the certificates may be inquired into further than is necessary to ascertain their genuinaness, that rule must be impartially applied. If, as we are inclined to believe, the appointment of electors is a purely State matter, and if there is no power to go behind the authentic certificates of State officers, that rule must be impartially applied. If the Democrats insist upon inquiring into the proceedings of the Louisiana Returning Board they cannot prevent the Republicans from inquiring into the proceedings of the Oregon Governor. On the other hand, if the Republicans insist that the authentic action of that is conclusive in Louisiana, they must admit that it is conclusive in Oregon.

WATERLOO WAIFS.

Another County Heard From and Ousted "In-to" the County Jail—More Bull-Dozing.

Not in Louisiana, but in Waterloo. On Saturday evening, between 9 and 10 o'clock, a darkey named Whitfield undertook to break into the drug store of Boyer & Campbell, but he had just succeeded in breaking a pane of glass out of the sash door by the postoffice, and was in the act of reaching in to unbolt the door, when, to his utter "intimidation," that Democrat, Cy. Kelley, and another Democrat, Herman Hersch, also happened along and spoiled all of his calculations. The aforesaid Democrats run him from the drug store to near the school house, where they overhauled him and brought him back. They next procured the services of C. A. O. McClellan, a Democratic lawyer, who prepared the necessary papers, and then they took him before D. Y. Husselman, a Democratic Justice, who bull-dozed him into the county jail, where he is now in charge of our Democratic Sheriff. What a sad and wicked world this is anyhow! Where is General Ruger?

The Pennsylvania "Oil Regions" are in town.

There was a slight frost on last Saturday morning, and now when one lady meets another about the second word is, "Did your house plants freeze, too?"

B. B. Long has traded his livery for the Central Hotel. The 'Squire will make a healthy looking landlord.

Sol Fisher has again taken up his abode in our midst.

'Squire Husselman rendered fifty-five judgments in his court in November. He seems to have a monopoly on judicial business, as it were.

SAC-ET-TU-UM.

JUNCTION JOTTINGS.

—Everything quiet at the Junction.

—Chris. Baker, our jolly landlord, has placed a bar in his hotel. We can say for Chris. that he will not sell liquors to any person on Sunday, as is the usual custom in some places.

—If anybody says "Judge" broke the target, they know what they are for "Judge" says a blind engineer and a high smoke-stack is what did it.

—Mr. Prosser has moved in the house formerly occupied by Conrad Benner, Mr. Benner having moved back to Fort Wayne.

—Last Friday night was the coldest of any time this winter. The B. & O. undertook to start train No. 17 out of South Chicago, but the weather being so intensely cold, froze their engines up before they could pull out of the yard. They had eight Camel-back's to one train. They then failed to get it out, and were obliged to abandon the train on that day.

—A young man by the name of Credit, from St. Louis, Missouri, on his way to Jonesville, Michigan, his former home, stopped off here and took refreshments at the hotel at ten o'clock. He went in and paid his bill; then unintentionlly left his purse laying on the stand and went over to the depot. In a few moments he missed it, and upon going to where he left it, it was gone. It is supposed that a tramp, who was seen around the hotel, took it, and left on a west-bound freight train that was passing at that time. Mr. Baker went out as soon as Mr. Credit paid him, and therefore was not aware of the fact that he had left his purse until the train had gone. All efforts to catch the thief and secure the purse proved fruitless.

TAX LIST FOR 1876.

To The Tax-Payers of DeKalb County, Indiana.

In compliance with the laws of the State of Indiana, I, DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer of said county, hereby notify the Tax-Payers thereof, that the rates of Taxation for the year A. D. 1876, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the amount of tax in cents levied upon each One Hundred Dollars valuation, in the several Townships and incorporated Villages in said county, as the same appears ON THE TAX DUPLICATE OF DEKALB COUNTY FOR SAID YEAR.

Townships and Incoporated Vilages.	State Levies.				Town and Township Levies.								County Levies
	State Tax on each $100 Valuation.	State tax on each Poll.	School Tax on each $100 Valuation.	School Tax on each Poll.	Township Tax on each $100 valuation	Road Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Common School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Common School Tax on each Poll	Special School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Special School Tax on each Poll.	Additional Special School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Additional Special School Tax on each Poll.	County Tax on each $100 Valuation.	On Bond Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each Poll.
Butler Township.	13	50	16	50	10	15			40	50			35	05	1 34	1.50
Jackson "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1.14	1.50
Concord "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1 14	1.50
Newville "	13	50	16	50	10	20			50	100			35	05	1 49	2.00
Stafford "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1 00
Wilmington "	13	50	16	50	10	20			40	50			35	05	1.39	1.50
Union "	13	50	16	50		10			15	25			35	05	94	1.25
Richland "	13	50	16	50	10	15			30	100			35	05	1.24	2 00
Fairfield "	13	50	16	50	07	15			18				35	05	1.09	1.00
Smithfield "	13	50	16	50	10	20			20	50			35	05	1.19	1.50
Franklin "	13	50	16	50	08	15			40	25			35	05	1.32	1.25
Troy "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1 00
Keyser "	13	50	16	50	10	15	10	50	40	50			35	05	1.44	2.00
Auburn Town.	13	50	16	50		10			25	50	50	50	35	05	1.54	2.00
Waterloo "	13	50	16	50		10	25		25				35	05	1.29	1.00
Butler "	13	50	16	50	10	20			30		50	50	35	05	1.79	1.50
Garrett "	13	50	16	50	10	15			15	50			35	05	1.09	1.50

In addition to the above, there is an assessment upon each male dog owned, kept or harbored within the county, $1. Upon each female dog owned kept or harbored within the county, $2. Upon each additional dog owned, kept or harbored by the same person within the county, $2.

The new law gives the tax-payer the privilege of paying the full amount of such taxes on or before the THIRD MONDAY OF APRIL, or may, at his option, pay one-half thereof, and the remaining half on or before the 1st Monday of November following, provided, however, that all road taxes so charged shall be paid prior to the 1st Monday of November, in the manner perscribed by law; and provided further, that in all cases where as much as one-half of the amount of tax charged against a taxpayer shall not be paid on or before the third Monday of April, the whole amount charged shall become due, and be returned delinquent and collected as provided by law.

All persons having worked out their road-tax, must present a receipt from the Supervisor of their Road District when they come to pay their April installment of taxes, in order to receive credit for the same.

Tax-Payers, do not forget that if all taxes are not paid when the same become due, they are, by law, subject to a penalty of ten per cent. interest and cost of collection.

The annual sale of Delinquent land and lots takes place on the second Monday of February, 1877

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is all included, and no mistake in change. No county order will be paid any person owing delinquent taxes. Bring along your Road Receipts.

It is suggested to those having taxes to pay, to call early and avoid mistakes that may occur in the usual rush incident to the last few days. I will attend at my office from the 1st day of December, 1876, to the 1st Monday of November, 1877, to receive the above taxes.

DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer.

Treasurers Office, DeKalb County, Ind., December 7, 1874.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.
—AT—
J ABRIGHT'S.

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases,
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

Bargains, Bargains.

I take pleasure in announcing to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity, that I will this week open up a choice stock of

DRY GOODS,

HATS AND CAPS,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
NOTIONS, GROCERIES,
ETC., ETC.

Which I am offering at remarkably low figures.

GIVE US A CALL

I will guarantee satisfaction both in quality and price,

Remember the place, on the west side of Main street, just south of Granger Hall. The highest market price paid for

Country Produce

In exchange for goods. I offer inducements to purchasers which will well justify them in giving me a call, and want all my old friends to come and see me.

W. MARTIN.

ARRIVAL OF SANT CLAUS!

AT

F. E. DAVEPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

Where can be found a full and complete assortment of Holiday goods, and articles suitable for Christmas and New Years presents, consisting of Fine Albums. Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded.

The finest Tobacces and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place,

DAVENPORT'S.

East of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

HARD UP.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Always the friends of the people, have never

FAILED

To regulate prices to suit the times

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchasers.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall.

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings, $ 1.50, 1.75 2,00, 2 25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 9c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 7c per lb.

Brown Sugar at 8c per lb.
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarcity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hands and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent, the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get. So Sugars Coffees Spice, Prunes Fruits Tobaccos Liquors or anything we deal in. Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits. No Middle-men with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hy son 25c, 40c and 90c.
Best 90 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c

Best 90 cents.
Black or Oolong 25 and 40c
Best 85c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 60c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	12½c	New Orleans clarified	9c
Coffee A.	12	" "	8c
" C.	11c	Good brown	8c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	[illegible] and [illegible]
Second Best Rio.	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	6c
Canned Corn, per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	15c
Pitted Cherries per pound	30c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb.

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all descriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon,	1 50 in
Rye Whiskey, two year old	1 25	bottle	50c
Three year old	1 75 3 00	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, gallon, 3 00; in bottles	per 50c
The $3 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.		Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound..	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va	75c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This tobacco sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	20c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	50
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Citron per pound	35c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	16c
New Orange and Lemon Peel	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	10c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	30c
Best layer Raisens per pound	14c	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Curants per pound.	6c

And everything else in proportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,
HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Ours will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES
FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

LOOK! SEE!!

What a rush!

All going to

KAHN'S

Popular Clothing House for

OVERCOATS.

Christmas is coming, and what better present can you make than to make YOURSELF a Christmas present of an Overcoat while they are selling at prices which are comparatively nothing.

See the List.

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. E. PETERSON	"
M. P. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER	"
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr,	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"
JOHN SOMERS,	"
T. C. MAYS,	"
E. D. CLEVELAND,	"
JAMES CASEBEER	"
E. L. CASEBEER,	"
L. D. SMITH,	"
L. W. HALL, DeKalb P. O.
FERNANDO PALMER, Auburn.
D. E. CARRUTH,	"
A. G. WELLER,	"
J. C. PROSSER,	"
EUGENE CARPER,	"
P. DITMAR, Auburn Junction.
CHAS. WELLER, La Otto.
N. S. HAGGERRTY, Hamilton.

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc. KAHN.

Clocks in all varieties at Abright's.

Go to Houser's for your holiday presents.

Holiday goods in endless variety, at Housers.

Ladies hats in all the latest styles at Stamets'.

A splendid stock of perfumery at Davenports.

Toys for the little folks regardless of cost at Abright's.

Ladies and childrens furs in endless variety at Stamets'.

The finest stock of cigars and tobacco in town at Davenports

All the latest magazines and the current literature of the day at Housers.

Call and see Abright's magnificent stock of jewelry and holiday presents.

The finest and most complete stock of gold pens and pen holders in town at Housers.

The finest and largest stock of artificial flowers ever opened in Auburn at Stamets'.

The Adelphi Dramatic troupe of Albion, will give an entertainment here on the 30th inst.

A job lot of embroideries at 15 cents per yard, all widths, less than wholesale prices at Stamets'.

Pens, pencils and a full line of school books slates writing paper envelopes etc. at Davenports.

Daniel Gonser, our County Treasurer, left for Indianapolis on Tuesday last on business connected with his office.

Don't fail to examine Stamets' splendid assortment of silk scarfs and neckerchiefs before purchasing elsewhere.

Several articles of local and general interest, have been crowded out of this number owing to a press of advertising.

You can find everything needed in the way of school supplies, pens, inks, paper, copy books, and school books of all kinds at Housers.

To Parents.

Parents of school children can do much for the good of the schools by requiring their children to come home for their dinners. Two hours should be sufficient time for that purpose.

M. SEILER, Supt.

An interesting letter from Mr. Mays giving a graphic review of the situation in Washington, will be found on the first page.

If you wish to invest in a fine and tasty set of silverware, call on Abright. Prices for this kind of goods will never be as low again.

Mr. D. D. Moody has just returned from a trip through Michigan, where he has been attending to some important legal matters.

A full line of American, Elgin Springfield and Imported Watches can be found at Abright's, which he is selling at unheard of low prices.

Lordier is prepared to mend rubber boots in good style, having secured the agency for a new preparation which answers the purpose to perfection.

Houser sold over one hundred and fifty dollars worth of books on Monday alone. He has sold over fiteen hundred school books within the last week.

Abright's stock of jewelry includes all the latest designs and fashions, and is offered at lower prices than have ever before been known in Auburn.

One of those handsomly bound and illustrated holiday story books at Davenports, will make the most acceptable present you can give to your young friends.

Philip Lordier is now making first-class calf boots at $6.00, warranted as good as any the market, both as to material and workmanship. Good kip boots at $4.50.

The revival meeting at the Baptist Church, this week, has so far been well attended, and the interest is growing. The entire services have been conducted by Mr. Sanders, the pastor, unaided.

Billy Rickel is the authority for the statement that the five cent cigars kept at his establishment is the only brand in town that will draw without the aid of a cork screw. Try them.

Abright will this week in addition to his already fine stock of goods, open a new assortment of castors, napkin rings and silverware. All goods warranted as represented.

Go to Rickel & Sewards. Try the Circassia brand of cigars, the finest five cent article ever offered in this town. A full line of choice smoking and chewing tobacco always on hand.

Abright, the Jeweler, owing to having made his purchases at unusually low figures, offer a splended line of violins, guitars, harmonicas and other musical instruments at extremely low prices.

It is said that the B. & O. time card is to be revised next Sunday. The one published in this issue is incorrect although the time for the arrival of trains will be found correctly stated on our first page.

Cuppy & Ralston are still buying all the grain that is offered at the Eel River Elevator, and pay the highest market price for the same. If you have any corn on hand especially, now is the time to bring it in.

Miss Jessie Collar, of Bristolville, Trumbull county, Ohio, has been visiting her brother, Dr. Collar, of this place, for several weeks past. Miss Jessie expects to return to the East about Christmas.

William Martin, a former resident of Auburn, who has been engaged in business at La Otto for over a year past has returned, and is fitting up a room opposite the Auburn House, where he intends to open a dry goods and grocery store.

A patent for a tract of land in this county issued by the United States in 1837 was presented for record at the Court House lately. It is not unusual that government patents are brought in for record here thirty and forty years after their issue.

Give Davenport a call while making your holiday purchases, you will find a full line of albums stereoscopes, stereoscopic views including views of the centennial, and the finest imported pictures, purchasers may rely on being pleased as to the quality of the goods and prices.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 7th, at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev J. N. Morris, Anna M. Norford to Chas. H Lewis. This young couple are well worthy of each other.

"May their lives be like the flowers, looking to the sun growing brighter and brighter in the light thereof."

Full details of the calamity in Brooklyn, will be found elsewhere in this issue. The disaster was one of the most appalling that has ever startled the American people. By the way, what are the means of escape in case of fire in our large public buildings in this county? Any owner of such buildings, who does not adopt suitable safe guards to prevent such horrors, is guilty of gross disregard of human life.

Notice.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to the undersigned will please call and settle on or before the 15th of January next. I wish to settle up my books at the end of each year.

DR. J. J. LITTLEFIELD.

Dec. 14-4t.

Lordier still continues to sell the best makes of gentleman's, ladies' and Children's boots and shoes at lower prices than ever. He has also engaged an additional workman on custom work to meet the demands of his increasing business.

Friday was the last day of service for cases for the coming term of the Civil Circuit Court. Forty-nine new cases were filed on that day, making extremely lively work for the Sheriff and his deputies in serving the necessary papers.

Six special deputies were employed during the latter part of last week by Sheriff St. Clair in serving papers for the coming term of court. Among this number were V. A. Beard, L. H Jackman, of Auburn, Geo. Maxwell, and W. W. Tomlinson, of Butler.

"The Garrett News clamors for the Auburn papers to settle it as to which of them furnished lodgings to "that girl."—Waterloo Press.

As the editor of the COURIER was not in Auburn by a "large majority" at the time please "count us out" and settle it among yourselves.

Mr. David Kahn, our popular young clothier, represents Auburn on the Committee of invitation to a grand Christmas ball which will be given on the evening of the 25th, at Simmons' Hall Pleasant Lake, William Patterson, of Waterloo, John Rush, and T. Roby, of Pleasant Lake, and Dr. Williams, of Angola, are also members of the Committee.

Last Friday night a severe fire broke out at Chicago Junction, the eastern terminus of this division of the B & O. The fire originated in the town hall while a theatrical entertainment was going on. The principal block in the village was destroyed, and it was only by strenuous efforts that the entire town was saved from destruction.

During the severe weather last Friday night several chimneys in Garrett caught fire, owing to the hot fires which it was found neccessary to keep up, in order to keep warm. The roof on Mr. Bobo's house also caught fire and the flames were extinguished with difficulty. A watch was kept during the entire night by the citizens to guard against a general conflagration.

The English Lutheran church in Auburn, will be dedicated on Sunday after next, being the 24th inst. Introductory services will be held on the Saturday preceeding. The dedication sermon will be preached by Rev. J. Crouse, D. D., of Bucyrus, Ohio, assisted by Rev. Rice, the pastor in charge, Rev. J. N. Morris, of Butler, and others. The occasion will no doubt be an interesting one.

William Wallace, who was so badly battered up week before last, was in town yesterday, having recovered almost entirely from his injuries. His nose, which was completely broken in the fight with Brown, has been, for a wonder, restored. In taking an inventory of losses, he however still finds himself minus a tooth, with a number of those still in his jaws loosened and sore.

George Hootlemier was in town on Monday, and took occasion to give one of the Auburn youths a lesson in etiquette. The gamin persisted in yelling at him on the street. Whereupon he reached for him several times ineffectually, and then twining his brawny hand into the youngster's locks, he bulldozed him to his heart's content. No arrests.

We call attention to E. E. Williams' new price list, inserted for the first time this week. He has a fine and unusually large and well assorted stock of goods including everything in the line of groceries. The stock of fruits, nuts, candies and nick-nacks, in demand during the holidays, is unsurpassed. Mr. Williams, as will be seen, has made large reduction in prices, to save the cost and loss resulting from his contemplated removal to his new block East of the bank.

The next term of the DeKalb county Civil Circuit Court begins on Monday the 18th inst., Judge H. H. Tousley presiding. There is a large docket to be disposed of consisting of 338 cases, of which some 20 are on the criminal side and the remainder civil suits. There are also 308 probate cases awaiting the action of the court. The grand jury will meet on the 20th, being the second day of the term and the petit jury on the third day of the term.

This morning the ceremonies known as the "Forty Hours Devotion," began in the Catholic Church. The exercises will continue until Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. A. Young, will be assisted by Rev. P. Smith of South Bend, Rev. Father Lavanduskey, of Toledo, also several ministers from Fort Wayne, and other places. The principal sermons will be in the evening of each day and all are cordially invitd to attend.

An Ex-County Officer Bound over to Court.

Charles R Wannamaker, was yesterday tried by Justice Walborn, on a State warrant charging him with usurpation of office—a grave misdemeanor under the law. The State was represented by W. H. Dills and Moody & Penfield, the prisoner by Rose & Hartman. There were but two other witnesses examined besides Wannamaker, Messrs. Blair and County Clerk Moss. After hearing the testimony and arguments of counsel the Squire bound Wannamaker over to answer before the Circuit Court, Wannamaker recieved but little sympathy even from Republicans, as there seem to be no ground whatever upon which he could justly attempt to deprive Mr. Blair of his office.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The estimation in which these medicines are held by the public, steadily increases their demand. They act directly on the system, removing all obstructions, renovating all the springs of life, purifying the blood, and totally eradicating liver complaints, indigestion, pain in the side and general debility. Sold everywhere. 25 cents per box.

Billy Rickel, of the firm of Rickel & Seward, last week bought the entire stock of cigars lately owned by Don Miguel Puffero, of Havana, at a greater sacrifice than has been known since the days of Abraham and Isaac. He therefore sells a genuine Havana at five cents. Smokers, take notice. This is a less price than you pay for Connecticut cabbage elsewhere.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.

☞Cashmere in all shades

☞New fall style Prints

☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☞Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00

☞A new line of Alpaccas and all and winter dress goods

J. R. LANNING.

Mr. Stephen Masters, one of the substantial citizens of Corunna, made our office a visit last week, and paid for his COURIER a year in advance, although his old subscription had not expired by several weeks. This has been his custom ever since the COURIER was started. The man who throughout life pays his printer with such promptness, will go slap bang to paradise when he dies. By the way there are a number of COURIER subscribers who cannot ofset their sins by pleading that they have done likewise.

The People Want Proof.

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case, Try it. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Meeting of the Town Board.

The Town Board met at the Engine House last night. The following members were present:

F. D. Ryan, President of the Board, and Messrs. E. Berry, John Treesh, John Otto, and the Town Clerk, L. J. Roth.

The following claims were allowed:

T. C. Mays, advertising, $12; R. H. Weamer, advertising, $1.05; William Synder, blacksmithing, $3.15; Samuel Evans, lumber, $15; T. A. Clark, same, $70; F. E. Davenport, stationery, etc., $7.15; John Treesh, labor on street, $2.48; S. T. Galloway, services as Marshal, etc., $13.80.

An ordinance was introduced in accordance with the petition of A. Shutt and others, ordering the construction of a sidewalk on the north end of Van Buren street. Also an ordinance ordering the construction of a sidewalk on the western part of Second street in accordance with a petition presented by D. Walborn and others. The ordinances as introduced were read and passed.

A Holiday Bazar.

H. H. Stamets, in the McIntyre block, is displaying a magnificent stock of millinery, furs, embroideries, scarfs, gloves and ladies wear generally. It is safe to say that no stock of goods ever in this section heretofore has equalled this, either in way of fine taste shown in the selection, excellence in quality or cheapness. It is not only a pleasure to look over the articles so well adapted to the adornment of the fair, but the prices at which they are sold, is a matter of surprise to all who know the figures demanded for similar goods elsewhere. We call especial attention to the stock of embroideries, ladies and childrens furs, hats, artificial flowers plumes, feathers and tips, worsted goods, linen, handkerchief scarfs, head shawls, dress goods, cloakings and in fact everything in the line of ladies wear or ornaments. If you have ever seen what is on his shelves and counters, you need no second invitation to call. If you have not examined for yourself be certain that you do before investing elsewhere.

Davis' Sewing Machine.

You who are contemplating buying a machine should not fail to see the DAVIS. Call at the drug store of Bodine & Siler.

A First-Class Jewelry Store.

Mr. Abright, our popular Auburn Jeweler, is demonstrating that all kinds of goods in his line can be sold here at lower figures than in the larger cities. The low price of silver and the general depression in business has enabled him to lay in a splendid assortment of goods which are offered to the people of Auburn and vicinity, at a very slight advance on cost. In looking over his stock, one is surprised, not alone, at the extent and value of the stock, but at the remarkably low figures at which everything is selling.

If you desire to purchase a set of silverware, a fine watch, or an article of jewelry, either for yourself or as a present for a friend or relative, you can find no better place to invest. All the goods have been selected with excellent taste and judgment, and cannot be surpassed in design or finish; besides dealing with a responsible home merchant, and you run no risk in being sold by having an inferior article foisted on you as is often the case in making purchases abroad.

We have not the space to enumerate a portion of goods kept by Mr. Abright. The best way is to go and look for yourself. You will find among other things clocks and watches in all styles and prices, musical instruments, watch chains, rings, bracelets, lockets, gents charms and every variety of ladies and gentlemens ware in jewelry and in fact everything usually kept in a first-class establishment. A full line of Rogers & Bro's. celebrated silverware always on hand.

Disolution Notice.

THE partnership heretofore existing between Jas. Casebeer and Abraham Miller, under the firm name of Jas. Casebeer & Co., has this day been disolved by mutual consent, Jas. Casebeer retiring. The business will be continued by Miller & Getrost.

JAMES CASEBEER,
ABRAHAM MILLER.

Nov. 11, 1876. 4tf.

Notice for Stockholders' Meeting.

NOTICE is hereby given that according to the articles of association of the First National Bank, of Auburn, Indiana, that the stockholders thereof are required to meet at the Banking house of said association, on the second Tuesday, in January, annually, to elect a board of five directors for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may come before said meeting. Therefore a meeting of the stockholders of said association will be held on Tuesday, January 9th, 1877, at the banking-house, in Auburn, at 1 o'clock p. m., to elect a new board of directors, and to transact such other business as may come up.

JAS. O. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 1st, 1876. dec6t4.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss
DEKALB COUNTY. }

A. J. Murbach }
vs. }
Joseph Miller. }

Before Daniel Altenburg, a Justice of the Peace for Union Township:

NOW comes the plaintiff and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit, that said defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana; notice is therefore hereby given to said defendant that unless he be and appear at my office on the second day of January, 1877, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Union township, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my hand and seal this 4th day of De-[L. S.] cember, 1876.

DANIEL ALTENBURG, J. P.

Mark These Facts.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

Holloway's Pills.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day.

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left.

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compells me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER,

and all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureaux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

Sold at the manufacture of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1, each.

☞There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Office, 112 Liberty street, New York.

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money

License Notice.

[illegible] hereby given to the citizens of [illegible] ser Township, in DeKalb county, Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application, at the next session of the Board of Commissioners, of said county, to be holden on the first Monday in Dec 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, with the privilege of having the same drank on the premises, to-wit: In the building now situated on lot No. 21 in the town of Garrett, in said township. [illegible]

Dec. 6th, 1876.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Sheafer and Allen C. Wilson, plaintiffs, and Eliphalet E. Randles, Anna Randles, and Thomas M. Stephens are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and twenty-one dollars and ninety-eight cents, with interest on said decree, and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, the 6th day of January, A. D. 1877.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot eighteen (18) in Rainier and Headley's Addition, to Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff,
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

GUY PLUM, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 14, 1876. Pr. fee $6.40.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the State of Indiana on the relation of Isaac Hague, Auditor of DeKalb County, plaintiff, and James E. Rose, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Buss, deceased, Christian C. Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Isaac M. Thomas, Sophia Thomas James E Rose administrator de bonis non estate, Christian Buss deceased, Samuel Buss Lydia Buss, Edward Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Margarett Parish, John Parish, Mary Ann Buss, Clara Buss, Ida M. Buss, Samuel W. Sprott and Camius Schneider, defendants requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and twenty-seven dollars and thirty-five cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at publice sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, the 6th day of January A. D. 1877

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots numbered seventy-three, (73) seventy-four, (74) and nine (9) in Western Addition of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, except the undivided two-thirds of said lot number nine, (9.)

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. GROSS, Dept.

RICKEL & TEFFT, Att'ys, for Plaintiff.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 14, 1876. Pr. fee $8.60.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Rebecca Davis, plaintiff and, Samuel Davis defendant, require me to make the sum of three thousand nine hundred and fifty three and 75-100 dollars and with interest on said judgement and costs. I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

SATURDAY the 23 day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1876

The north half of the northeast quarter of section thirty six, town thirty-four (34) range thirteen (13) east, also three acres in the east half of the north-west quarter of the same section, and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the center of the State Road on the east line of said tract, thence north forty rods, thence west twelve rods, thence south forty rods and thence east twelves rods to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said Judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said Judgment' interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS Dep't.

Auburn, Indiana, November 28, 1876.

W. H. DILLS, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Pr. fee $7.40.

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein William B. Taylor, James Rogers, and Calvin A. Cronlnger, Plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Defendent, requiring me to make the sum of Nine hundred and seventy-four dollars and fifty-eight cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 23day of December, A. D. 1876.

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number ninety-three (93) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the south-west corner of said lot and running thence north five and one-half feet, thence east on a line parallel with the south line of said lot, eighty feet, thence south five and one-half feet, thence west to the place of beginning, and a part of lot number ninety-four (94) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the north-west corner of said lot, and running thence east along the north line of said lot eighty feet, thence south four feet thence west fourteen (14) feet, thence south eighteen (18) feet, thence west to the west boundary line of said lot thence north to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dp't.

Auburn, Indiana, November 29, A. D. 1876.

ROSE & HARTMAN, Att'y's, for Plaintiff.

Pr fee $9.60.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows: On the north and south sides of Union street, commencing on west side of Main street, running west, on north side of lot No. 54, north end of lot No. 34 and 7, O. P. on north side of lots No. 27, 54, 107, 184, and south side of lots No. 135, 108, 55 and 56 in western addition, also on south end of lots No. 8 and 3, and south side of lot No. 55, O. P., all in the incorporated town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within thirty [30] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Nov. 18, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Prest.
EPHRAIM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. E. HARTMAN

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

TWENTY-FOUR buildings belonging to the Board of Finance of the Centennial Exposition, and a dozen belonging to individuals, were sold at auction one day last week on the Exhibition grounds, and realized $206,160. The cost of construction was $2,500,000. Machinery hall, Memorial hall, and Horticultural hall were not included in the sale. The International Exhibition Company, of Philadelphia, bought what buildings they will need in future years.

THE Brooklyn Theater, Brooklyn, N. Y., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $250,000....A Bethlehem (Pa.) dispatch says that more than one-half of the mines in the State are stopped. The number of men thrown out of work is estimated at between 35,000 and 45,000. It is believed that the the suspension will be entire by the middle of this month.

THE actual number of people who perished in the Brooklyn fire will probably never be known, for in many instances the remains were reduced by the fire to a single charred bone, while in the process of digging for bodies the limbs of some were separated and scattered until there was no means of finding out where they belonged. An entire coffinful of such fractions of bodies was collected.

THE WEST.

On the 24th ult., E. F. Carr, a farmer, living five miles south of Calamus, Neb., murdered his wife and two male children, and then hanged himself. No reason is assigned for the deed.

A REMARKABLE suicide was enacted at the penitentiary in Minneapolis, Minn., the other day. James McCann, serving out a term of military imprisonment for desertion at Fort Snelling, ended his life by holding his head in front of a buzz-saw, completely severing it from the remainder of his body.

THE Legislature of Colorado has adopted a preamble and resolutions protesting against the action of the National House of Representatives in refusing to recognize the credentials of the Congressman-elect from that State.

THE SOUTH.

AN extensive conflagration occurred at New Orleans last week, destroying 112 houses. Loss estimated at $300,000 to $400,000; insurance, $200,000. About fifty houses were occupied by 100 families, who lost nearly all their effects, and were left destitute, many of them losing their wearing apparel. About twenty firemen were injured, several seriously. One man had his neck broken by falling from a wagon.

THE steamship Mary, of the Morgan Line, from Morgan City, for a Texas port, with an assorted cargo, struck on the Aransas bar one day last week, and soon after went to pieces. The vessel and cargo are a total loss. The vessel was valued at $125,000; no insurance. No lives were lost.

D. H. CHAMBERLAIN was inaugurated Governor of South Carolina, at Columbia, on the 7th inst. The inaugural ceremonies were very quiet, and very few persons in the city knew anything of it until some time after it was over. The Democratic Legislature met the same day, and appointed a committee to ask Gen. Ruger to remove the troops from the State House.

WASHINGTON.

THE public debt statement for December is as follows:

Six per cent. bonds	$ 984,999,650
Five per cent. bonds	712,320,450
Total coin bonds		$1,697,320,500
Lawful money debt	$ 14,000,000
Matured debt	2,291,700
Legal tenders	366,976,607
Certificates of deposit	40,725,000
Fractional currency	27,403,509
Coin certificates	37,413,800
Total without interest		472,523,716
Total debt		$2,186,136,516
Total interest		35,550,389
Cash in Treasury:
Coin	$79,862,471
Currency	11,742,215
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	40,725,000
Total in the Treasury		132,349,686
Debt less cash in the Treasury		$2,080,386,099
Increase of debt during November		457,562
Decrease since June 30, 1876		10,103,246
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railway Companies, interest payable in lawful money:
Principal outstanding		64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		1,615,587
Interest paid by the United States		32,080,718
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc.		6,990,335
Balance of interest paid by United States		25,089,882

IN the treasury estimates for the next fiscal year are found the following Western items: Sub-treasury at Chicago, $500,000; Custom House and Postoffice at Cincinnati, $500,000; Evansville Custom House, $40,000; Grand Rapids Custom House, $55,000; Port Huron Custom House, $10,000.

THE State Department has received satisfactory evidence that Tweed bribed the United States Consul at Santiago de Cuba to procure him a vessel to escape from Cuba. The Consul has been dismissed....In the Senate, last week, the Chairman laid before that body a communication signed by Carl Schurz and J. B. Henderson, praying that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the various States by which the counting of the electoral vote for President and Vice President and declaring the result thereof may be conferred upon the Supreme Court of the United States. The communication was laid on the table on the motion of Senator Edmunds, who stated that the subject had already been reported to the Senate.

THE Democrats of the House of Representatives met in caucus the other day and appointed a Committee of Safety, consisting of seven members, who shall have charge of the parliamentary management of the House, and keep a sharp lookout for the main chance generally. The committee is composed of Hewitt (Chairman), Payne, Wood, Randall, Holman, Warren of Massachusetts, and Sparks.

POLITICAL.

THE following table shows the vote for President in the States mentioned:

	Hayes.	Tilden.
Alabama (maj.)	....	34,353
Arkansas	38,669	58,083
California	78,699	76,041
Colorado (maj.)	730	....
Connecticut	58,939	61 918
Georgia (maj.)	....	95,185
Illinois	277,236	258,672
Indiana	208,111	213,526
Iowa	171 327	112,099
Kansas	78,330	37,902
Kentucky (maj.)	....	63,080
Maine	66,139	49,410
Maryland	71,981	91,760
Massachusetts	150,078	108,976
Michigan	166,534	141,095
Minnesota	72,962	48,799
Missouri	144,398	203,087
Nebraska	31,896	17,558
Nevada (maj.)	1,050	....
New Hampshire	41,522	38,449
New Jersey	103,515	115,960
New York	489,929	522,518
North Carolina (maj.)	....	16,178
Ohio	330,698	323,182
Oregon (maj.)	1,157	....
Pennsylvania	384,148	366,204
Rhode Island	15,787	10,712
Tennessee	89,566	133,166
Vermont	44,091	20,254
Virginia	95,558	139,671
Wisconsin	130,067	123,926

THE General Assembly of Rhode Island convened in special session on the 1st inst. Gov. Lippett communicated the opinion of the Supreme Court that Corliss, the Presidential elector-elect, is ineligible by reason of being a member of the United States Centennial Commission. The Hon. W. D. Slater was elected to fill the vacancy, receiving 81 votes, to 12 for Charles R. Cutler, the Democratic candidate.

The electors for President and Vice President met at their respective capitals, in accordance with the provisions of the constitution, and cast their ballots. The following-named States voted for Rutherford B. Hayes and Wm. C. Wheeler, namely:

California	6	Minnesota	5
Colorado	3	Nebraska	3
Florida	4	Nevada	3
Illinois	21	New Hampshire	5
Iowa	11	Ohio	22
Kansas	5	Pennsylvania	29
Louisiana	8	Rhode Island	4
Maine	7	South Carolina	7
Massachusetts	13	Vermont	5
Michigan	11	Wisconsin	10

The following States cast their ballots for Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks:

Connecticut	6	Maryland	8
New Jersey	9	Mississippi	8
New York	35	Missouri	15
Indiana	15	North Carolina	10
Alabama	10	Tennessee	12
Arkansas	6	Texas	8
Delaware	3	Virginia	11
Georgia	11	West Virginia	5
Kentucky	12

In Oregon two sets of ballots were cast—one of them giving the three electoral votes of the State to Hayes, and the other giving Hayes two votes and Tilden one. Gov. Grover maintained that Watts, one of the Republican electors, was ineligible by reason of having been a Postmaster when elected, and issued certificates to Odell and Cartwright, Republicans, and Cronin, Democrat. The latter declined to show his authority at the meeting of the electors, and the Republicans refused to recognize him. Cronin then elected J. N. T. Miller and John Parker Republican electors, and proceeded to cast the vote, two for Hayes and one for Tilden. The Republicans organized, Watts resigned, was at once re-elected, and three votes were cast for Hayes and Wheeler, which, with their sworn statement, and copies of the abstract of votes cast in the State, certified to by the Secretary of State, were sealed and sent on.

THE Florida Canvassing Board concluded the canvassing of the vote of the State the day before the time set for casting the electoral vote. The Hayes electors were declared elected by an average majority of 946, and Stearns, Governor, by twenty-four majority. The Democrats have a majority of five on joint ballot in the Legislature.

A MONTPELIER (Vt.) telegram of Dec. 6 says: "Aldrich, the contesting elector, appeared this morning with counsel before the Electoral College. Counsel informed the college that Aldrich wished to take a part in the deliberations, and to protest against Henry N. Sollace taking any part. The college refused to hear anything from counsel for Aldrich, and, after casting their votes for Hayes and Wheeler, adjourned. Aldrich asked Nichols, the messenger, to carry his vote to Washington, and was refused. He then appointed himself messenger, and signed his own certificate of his votes, which was in common form, and gave Nicholls notice that he should go to Washington at the same time he did and present his vote and fight it out in Congress. Aldrich has not been sworn in as an elector."

IN each of the three disputed Southern States—Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida—the Democratic candidates for Presidential electors met at the State capitals, on the 6th inst., cast their votes for Tilden and Hendricks, certified to and sealed the returns, and appointed a messenger to carry them to Washington.

GENERAL.

THE New York canals were closed by ice on the 1st inst., and the day afterward was the time appointed by the State Board for their final closing. Nearly all the grain-laden boats on the Erie canal got through from Buffalo to tide-water before the freeze set in.

FOREIGN.

COL. J. A. MACDONALD, Captain of the Scottish Rifle Team which recently visited the United States, has been appointed Solicitor General for Scotland....Arthur B. Glass, Teller of Molson's Bank, at Montreal, was arrested recently for the embezzlement of $15,000.

A SPECIAL from Constantinople says an inundation has occurred at Adrianople by which 1,000 houses were swept away....A terrible gale occurred on the 3d inst. in the British Isles, by which considerable damage was done. The freight steamer Prince was foundered in the storm. All on board, fourteen in number, were lost.

BISMARCK has made another important speech on the Eastern question, his remarks on this occasion being addressed to the German Parliament. He gave the assurance, in the most definite and emphatic manner, that the triple alliance remains close and firm, and that the hopes of its enemies that it may be broken are absolutely groundless. Germany, he said, would remain perfectly neutral in the affair between Russia and Turkey, preserving alike her friendly relations with Russia and England, and laboring to maintain peace and to mediate between the powers in order to remove all differences and localize the war if it proves to be inevitable....A Rio Grande dispatch says that Gen. Diaz has occupied the City of Mexico, and that Lerdo and his Ministers have fled westward.

CARDINAL SIMEONI, the successor of the late Cardinal Antonelli, has arrived at Rome....The Roumanian Government has ordered 80,000 Chassepot rifles, and the necessary ammunition. The Servian Government has also given a fresh order abroad for arms and ammunition....A Constantinople dispatch says that much patriotic excitement prevails throughout Turkey. Sons of the best families are voluntarily enlisting.

FORTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

MONDAY, Dec. 4.—Senate.—The Senate met and was called to order promptly at 12 o'clock.... The new members were sworn in, and the two from Colorado drew for their respective terms. Chaffee secured the long term, ending March 4, 1879, and Teller the short term, ending in 1877.... Edmunds submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Privileges and Elections, when appointed, to inquire whether in the recent election in South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida, the right of any citizen to vote has been denied or abridged, and also as to the eligibility of electors; which was read and ordered printed, and to lie on the table....Ingalls submitted a joint resolution recommending that a convention be held at Columbus, O., in May next, to revise and amend the constitution of the United States. Ordered printed, and to lie on the table.

House.—In the House of Representatives the opening of the session was witnessed by an immense concourse of spectators. There were very few members absent. The Speaker's chair was draped in mourning, in respect to the memory of the late Speaker Kerr. There being, therefore, no presiding officer, the House was called to order at noon by Clerk Adams, who thereupon called the roll of the members. The call showed 249 members present, the whole number on the roll being 293. As soon as the call was finished, Holman rose to offer a resolution for the election of a Speaker, but Banks interposed, as a question of superior privilege, the right of the member-elect from Colorado to have his name placed on the roll so that he might participate in the election of Speaker, and sent up the credentials of the member from Colorado. A discussion ensued on the question of precedence, Mr. Holman and other Democrats contending that the organization of the House was necessarily the first business in order, while Mr. Banks and other Republicans contended that all the members had a right to participate in the election. Mr. Frye claimed the same right for his colleague, elected in place of Mr. Blaine. Finally the Clerk decided that the resolution offered by Mr. Holman took precedence. From that decision an appeal was taken by Mr. Banks, which appeal Mr. Cox moved to lay on the table. Agreed to—yeas, 165; nays, 84. Mr. Holman's resolution then came up for action, and it was adopted without opposition. It was as follows: The House being informed that since the last adjournment M. C. Kerr, who at the commencement of the present Congress was elected Speaker of the House, has departed this life, creating a vacancy in the office of Speaker; it is therefore ordered that the House do now proceed to the election of a Speaker, viva voce. Mr. Cox nominated S. J. Randall as Speaker, and Mr. McCrary, of Iowa, nominated James A. Garfield. The former was elected. Mr. Randall had 161 votes; Garfield, 82; Williams of Wisconsin, 1; G. F. Hoar, 1; and Morrison, 1. The Speaker was conducted to the chair by Messrs. Cox and McCrary.... Objection was made to the swearing in of Butts, of South Carolina, and Belford, of Colorado. In relation to the latter Springer offered a resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire and report at as early a day as possible whether Colorado is a State in the Union, and declaring, until such report is received, that no person claiming to be a Representative from Colorado shall be sworn in as a member. After some discussion the resolution of Springer was adopted. The House proceeded to the consideration of the question of admitting Butts, of South Carolina, to his seat, the point against his admission being that he had been counted in by the Returning Board. Hoskins presented a memorial and protest signed by the citizens of the district against the admission of Butts, and moved the reference of the question to the Committee on Elections. Morrison's motion was adopted, 142 to 80....A resolution was offered by Hewitt, and adopted, for the appointment of three selected committees, one of fifteen members to proceed to Louisiana, one of six members to proceed to Florida, and one of nine members to proceed to South Carolina to investigate the action of the Returning or Canvassing Boards, as to the recent elections in those States, and report all facts essential to an honest return of the votes of the electors for President and Vice President, and to a fair understanding thereof by the people, and whether the electoral votes of those States should be counted.

TUESDAY, Dec. 5.—Senate.—Morton submitted a joint resolution, proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States to provide for the election of President and Vice President by a direct vote of the people, which was read and laid on the table until the appointment of the committees, and will then be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. In submitting the resolution, Morton said it was identical with the proposition reported by Committee on Privileges and Elections two years ago....A bill was introduced to establish the Territory of the Black Hills. ......Edmunds moved to take up the resolution submitted yesterday, ordering an inquiry into the late election in various Southern States. The motion, after a long debate, was agreed to by a strict party vote....Merrimon introduced a bill to alter the time for holding elections for President and Vice President and counting the vote in the Electoral College. Ordered printed, and to be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections when appointed. It provides that the Revised Statutes shall be amended so that the election for President and Vice President shall be held in October, and the Electoral College shall meet in the January following.

House.—The House proceedings were dull and spiritless. A resolution was adopted assigning Saturday, Dec. 16, for the presentation of suitable resolutions on the death of the late Speaker Kerr. ... The Speaker then announced the President's annual Message, which was thereupon read by the Clerk....On motion of Wood (N. Y.), the Message and accompanying documents were ordered printed forthwith in pamphlet form, and were referred to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.... The Speaker announced the following select committees: On Louisiana—Messrs. Morrison, Jenks, McMahon, Lynde, Blackburn, Meade, House, Phelps, New, Ross, Townsend (Pa.), Danford, Hurlbut (Ill.), Crapo and Joyce. On Florida—Messrs. Thompson, De Bolt, Walling, Hopkins, Garfield and Dunnell. On the South Carolina committee the name of Cochrane was substituted for that of Stenger, excused on account of illness in his family.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 6.—Senate.—Mr. Withers called up his resolution requesting the President to inform the Senate under what authority and for what purpose troops were sent to Petersburg, Va., on the day of the recent election. After a long debate, participated in by Messrs. Withers, Thurman, Morton, Edmunds, and Logan, the resolution was adopted in a slightly modified form....The Chair laid before the Senate a Message from the President of the United States inclosing the report of Senator Sherman and other members of the committee which visited New Orleans, together with accompanying testimony in regard to the recent election in Louisiana, and moved that it be printed and lie on the table. A lengthy debate followed, the Democratic Senators objecting to printing the communication of the committee and the accompanying affidavits.... Edmunds moved to take up the joint resolution of which he gave notice yesterday, proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States in relation to counting the electoral vote. Merrimon objected, and read the 21st joint rule, requiring that bills, resolutions, etc., not acted upon at the close of the first session of a Congress shall be taken up and acted upon at the beginning of the second session, as if no adjournment had taken place. He raised the point of order that as the joint rules were in force unfinished business from the last session should be taken up....The Chair overruled the point of order, and decided that the joint rules were not in force....Merrimon appealed from the decision of the Chair, and proceeded to address the Senate, but soon yielded for a motion to adjourn, and the Senate adjourned.

House.—The Speaker laid before the House a Message from the President transmitting a letter accompanied by the testimony addressed to him by Hon. John Sherman and other distinguished citizens in regard to the canvass of the vote for electors in Louisiana. The Speaker, after a review of the rule on the subject, decided that the paper in question was in the nature of information and a step toward correct legislation, and that therefore it must be read. The Clerk thereupon proceeded with the reading of the paper. When it was finished, Mr. Wood, of New York, rose and expressed surprise at such a Message having been sent by the President. He regarded it as most extraordinary and unprecedented, but remarked that this was a marvelous and extraordinary time. The exception which he (Wood) took to it was that the President should have transmitted in such an unauthorized way an unauthorized document of a mere partisan and ex-parte character, and his first impulse had been to move that the communication be returned to the President. He should simply move that the Message of the President and the accompanying documents be laid on the table. [Applause.] Hoar said that his side of the House desired to debate the subject. The motion, however, was undebatable, and it was adopted—yeas, 153; nays, 99; a party vote.

THURSDAY, Dec. 7.—Senate.—The Senate indulged in another long political debate on the proposition to print the President's special Message, and the accompanying report of the Republican Visiting Committee to Louisiana. Mr. Thurman led the debate on the Democratic side, and was answered by Messrs. Morton and Sherman. It was finally decided, 40 to 13, to print all the depositions accompanying the report....Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, offered a resolution that the Committee on Privileges and Elections be instructed to investigate the facts attending the action of the Governor and Secretary of State of Oregon in giving a certificate of election to one of the Tilden electoral candidates....Mr. Howe, of Wisconsin, introduced a bill to restrain unauthorized persons from assuming to act as electors for President and Vice President....Mr. Paddock introduced a bill for the free distribution of public documents printed or ordered to be printed.... Mr. Cameron (Wis.) introduced a bill concerning commerce and navigation, and the regulation of steam vessels and sailing vessels.

House.—Mr. McCrary, of Iowa, introduced a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five members and five Senators to decide upon some rules governing the counting of the electoral vote, so as to prevent any trouble. The resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee.... The Pension bill was reported to the House. It appropriates about $29,000,000; or some $2,000,000 less than last year....Frye presented a protest of the Colorado Legislature against the refusal of the House to admit to his seat the member-elect from that State. Referred.... Wood (N. Y.) asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the President for copies of all orders and directions emanating from him, or from any of the executive departments of the Government, to any military or civil officer with regard to services of the army in Virginia, South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida. Kasson objected.

The Official Result in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—The Returning Board to-day promulgated the result of the canvass of the votes for President and State officers. The net result is the return of the Hayes electors, the entire Republican State ticket, a majority of Republicans in the Legislature, and of four Republican and two Democratic Congressmen. Appended are the figures on Presidential electors:

Hayes Electors.		Tilden Electors.
Kellogg	75,135	McEnery	70,508
Burch	75,127	Wickliffe	70,509
Joseph	75,114	St. Martin	70,5 3
Sheldon	74,027	Poche	70,395
Marks	74 418	De Blanc	70,537
Levissee	74 003	Seay	70,536
Brewster	74,0 7	Cobb	70,4[illegible]
Joffrion	74,736	Cross	70,508

The majority of the lowest Hayes elector over the highest Tilden elector is 3,437.

The following is the vote as returned on State officers: Governor, Packard, Republican, 74 624; Nicholls; Democrat, 71,198; Packard's majority, 3,426; Lieutenant Governor, Antoine, Republican, 74 669; Wiltz, Democrat, 71,092; Antoine's majority, 3,577; Attorney General, Hunt, Republican, 75,136; Ogden, Democrat, 70,686; Hunt's majority, 4,15; Auditor of Public Accounts, Johnson, Republican, 75,355; Jumel, Democrat, 70,391; Johnson's majority, 3,164; Superintendent of Public Education, Brown, Republican, 74,446; Lusher, Democrat, 71,109; Brown's majority, 3,337; Secretary of State, Honore, Republican, 74,553; Strong, Democrat, 70,696; Honore's majority, 3,857.

APPALLING DISASTER.

Destruction by Fire of a Brooklyn Theater—A Panic, During Which 350 Persons Perish—Details of the Terrible Calamity.

The Brooklyn (N. Y.) Theater was destroyed by fire on the night of the 5th inst., and about 350 people perished in the flames. Dispatches from New York give the following details of the awful calamity:

The fire originated on the stage at 11:30 p. m., when the company was about half through with the last act of the "Two Orphans." The fire spread with lightning rapidity, and burst out through the door on Washington street. The panic and confusion among the audience were terrible.

The fire originated in the flies, which, blazing, fell on the top the scenery. One of the actresses came to the front of the stage and said: "A small accident has occurred, but don't be alarmed. Only a piece of fly is on fire." On the mention of "fire" the audience rose to their feet and made a wild rush for the doors. The smoke soon became suffocating, and women fell fainting in the aisles, and were trampled over. Numbers jumped out of the windows and were seriously injured. It is thought that not less than 350 persons were killed in the rush to the exit or burned to death, being unable to escape.

The fire broke out during the performance of the last scene of the "Two Orphans," in which Miss Claxton, who plays the part of the heroine, lies on the boat-house floor. In five minutes more the audience would have been dismissed, and there would have been nothing more serious to record than the destruction of property.

The house was about two thirds filled, those below sitting well forward toward the stage. For those in the family circle, dress circle, and galleries there was no way of escape, except by Washington street.

The panic-stricken people rushed pell-mell toward and down the stairways. The main exit became immediately choked up, and a scene of terror, confusion, and distress ensued which beggars description.

Just above the landing-place of the stairway a woman in the crush had her foot pushed between the balusters and fell. The crowd behind, forced forward by the terrified people still further behind, fell over and piled on top of each other four and five feet deep.

The police from the station-house, next door, were promptly at the scene, but, owing to the manner in which the people were piled upon top of each other and massed together, they could extricate comparatively few, and these were all bruised, bleeding and maimed.

Kate Claxton, at the preliminary inquiry of the Fire Marshal, said: "At the beginning of the last act, just as the curtain went up, I heard a rumbling noise on the stage, and two minutes after I saw flames. The fire seemed to be all on the stage. Mrs. Farren, myself, Mr. Studley and Mr. Murdock were on the stage at this time. We four remained there and endeavored as best we could to quiet the audience and prevent a panic. I said to people: 'Be quiet, we are between you and the fire. The front door is open and the passages are clear.' Not one of the audience jumped on the stage. Flames were then coming down on us. I ran out and jumped over several people. Mr. H. S. Murdock, after endeavoring to calm the fears of the panic-stricken people, went to his dressing-room to get his clothing, and must have been suffocated."

J. W. Thorp, the stage manager, states that the fire occurred in this wise: A drop was ignited from a border light by some means inexplicable, as one was guarded from the other. He immediately directed Stage Carpenter Weaver and two supernumeraries to endeavor to extinguish the flames, but the difficulty was to reach the part on fire. The stage carpenter, with the supernumeraries, essayed to effect that object by lowering the drop, and in so doing added fuel to the flames. The scene, the last in the play, embraced a ceiled apartment, and the instant that the burning drop came in contact with the inflammable ceiling, it seemed to spread the existing flames. In a flash, as though powder had previously been scattered about the scenery, the entire properties were in a blaze. The usual avenues of escape were thus summarily closed at the rear, and an exit, if at all possible, had to be made by way of the box entrance. All, except perhaps one or two, thus escaped.

A later dispatch from New York gives the following additional details: Horror upon horror accumulated as the day advanced. Corpse after corpse, charred and blackened, was passed out, and still the pile of bodies in the cellar did not seem to diminish. As the number mounted to 150 and 160, the belief that the number would reach 200 grew into a certainty, and, finally, at 4:30, the 200th body was removed. Some were found with limbs and hands burned off, and nothing left but a ghastly, blackened trunk.

At 5 o'clock the number had reached 220. Twenty bodies were taken out in half an hour. A look into the pit at this time still showed a considerable pile of corpses lying crosswise, like sticks of wood, and there were apparently still fifty or sixty corpses remaining. This was in the cellar under the inner vestibule, from where all the bodies taken out to-day were removed. They lay in a pile, apparently where they had been pitched into the cellar when the floor and stairway gave way. As night approached, two calcium lights were placed in position, and the work of removing the ghastly forms of the dead (made more so by the light) was continued. They were under the galleries, but no estimate could be made of the number. The charred remains of the victims were taken out in front and rear of the theater and rapidly loaded in boxes, and placed upon the undertakers' wagons. Still the pile of bodies in the cellar did not seem to diminish.

At a late hour to-night 285 bodies have been recovered.

The city authorities were in session to-day to make arrangements for interment in Greenwood Cemetery of the dead not identified.

The Times says that Fire Marshal Keady, who has made an exhaustive examination of the circumstances attending the fire, is of opinion that at least 350 persons perished in the flames.

Further Particulars—Heartrending Scenes and Incidents—Death's Convulsions

[New York Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

A medical gentleman stated that the position of nearly all the bodies indicated that a mighty struggle was going on when death overtook them. Arms were flexed and hands clenched in the act of pushing. Knees were bent and legs drawn up as though fighting off some advancing, overpowering foe. Whether this was caused by the pressure of the crowd, or falling debris, or even the heat of the flames, could not be told. It was the general opinion, nevertheless, that some portion of the building gave way, precipitating the crowd into the flames below. The rapid fall of the roof that followed buried those who escaped the other catastrophe.

A young man named Dietz was identified by his sister and a friend, who, in discovering that it was the body they were in search of, were so overcome that it was all the authorities could do to keep them from falling on and embracing the corpse. The sister stood near it crying, and giving vent to such exclamations as, "Poor Abe! Oh, if mother can only stand this blow!"

The body of one young man was discovered by his sister, who, casting one glance at what was left of his coat, gave a cry of "My Tom!" and fell fainting in the arms of her father, and was carried insensible to the street. It was afterward found that this young man was the only support of his mother and sister, his father being a drunkard, who had not contributed toward the support of his family for two or three years.

A dense crowd filled the streets in the vicinity of the place of the disaster. The crowd was so great that it was almost an impossibility for those who were permitted to enter the line to make their way through it. All classes of people composed the assemblage—women and children as well as men—all drawn to the spot by the excitement.

Most of the buildings opposite the theater run through from street to street, and the windows of all of them were crowded with spectators, principally women. A temporary wooden inclined plane was built from the horrible pit in which most of the bodies were found. Along this they were carried in boxes covered with blankets. They were then placed in the undertakers' wagons, which were in waiting to carry them to the Morgue. The wagons of all the undertakers in Brooklyn were in use, and were drawn up in line along the edge of the sidewalk. One after another of them was backed up to the theater door to receive the boxes containing the dead. At intervals of a few minutes several men would emerge from the door carrying a coffin shaped, leaden-lined box, covered with a blanket to conceal the ghastly spectacle presented by the charred and blackened corpses. The blanket outlined the deformed and shapeless mass. A hand or foot protruded above the box, and in some cases bodies were stiffened in almost sitting posture, and, as the wagons were driven rapidly up the street, their heads nodded to and fro beneath the blankets, or protruding limbs quivered horribly.

The sight caused many strong men to turn away from the spot with tearful eyes.

Miss Kate Claxton said that, at the time the fire broke out, she was reclining on a mattress on the stage at the opening of the first scene of the last act of the "Two Orphans." She was lying without a pillow, face upward, with her eyes closed, but, hearing the confusion, she partially opened her eyes, and could see, through the canvas cover of the house represented on the stage, the flames above. The scene proceeded with the knowledge on the part of the actors that there was a fire on the stage, but all were hoping that it would be extinguished. The actors on the stage at the beginning of the act were Miss Claxton and Mr. Murdoch. Mrs. Farren and Mr. Studley also took their parts soon after, and the scene was about half-played when the scenery was seen to be in flames. The people in the parquette also became alarmed at the confusion on the stage and the fire, which was now plainly seen. The four actors ranged themselves in a line across the stage close to the footlights, and as far as possible from the flames in the rear. Mr. Studley begged the audience to be quiet, saying that there was no cause for alarm. Miss Claxton cleared her throat and shouted, "Will the people keep their seats? We are between you and the flames, and we will be burned first. Will the people in the front seats sit down?" Miss Claxton is of the opinion that, had not the actors remained firm in a line across the front of the stage, the people would have leaped upon the stage and attempted to escape by the rear, where the flames were raging. In a moment or two, however, the alarm seized upon the people in the balcony and gallery, and a rush was then made for the doors.

Drunkenness Cured.

A correspondent sends the New York Times the following recipe for the cure of intemperance:

In the first place, the patient must have a desire to reform, coupled with a determination that he will conquer the enemy or perish in the struggle. Then the physical system of the patient should be relieved from impurities as far as possible by a thorough cathartic treatment—blue pills and citrate of magnesia recommended. Then there must be a complete cessation from all alcoholic drinks, even to the lightest wines, beer or cider. There must be no gradual stoppage, but teetotal abstinence; here the will-power of the patient will receive its severest test, and must prove the mettle of the man. Begin at once to use the following prescriptions, which are readily procured at any first-class apothecary store:

NO. 1—FOR NERVOUSNESS.

R. Elix. Valerianate ammonia............1½ oz.
Water.............4½ oz.
Mix. Take a small wineglassful when necessary.

NO. 2—FOR STRENGTHENING.

R. Citrate iron and quinine............1 drachm
Tincture Gentian comp............¾ oz.
Simple elixir............2½ oz.
Mix. Dose, a teaspoonful twice daily.

NO. 3—FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

R. Bromide sodium............¾ oz.
Pepsin............1½ drachms
Sub-nitrate bismuth............1 drachm
Tincture of capsicum............30 drops
Simple elixir............1 oz.
Water............sufficient to make 4 oz.
Mix. Dose, a teaspoonful three times during the day, and two teaspoonfuls at bedtime.

If the patient has been a heavy and prolonged drinker, the shock to the nervous system will be considerable, no doubt, but the antidote will sustain even the worst cases, and very soon a restored and natural appetite, which should be supplied with a generous diet of substantial food, and either tea or coffee will restore and build up a patient's system to its natural condition. He will then rejoice in the freedom of his new life, and, like my friend, become impervious to all temptations to indulge evermore in the cup which has caused him and his friends so much misery.

An Arkansas Tragedy.

A bloody tragedy was recently enacted at Mackville, Green county, Ark. A short time ago two desperadoes, named Vowell and Duncan, assisted a peddler, who was under arrest, to make his escape from the county authorities, and then robbed him. They were captured and tried, but the peddler had been bought off and refused to prosecute the desperadoes. They then declared their intention to take revenge on Robert McCullom, the Deputy Sheriff, and Berryman Harvey, the Justice of the Peace. While the funeral of a woman was in progress near Mackville, Vowell and Duncan made their appearance. They gave no evidence of belligerent intentions, but aided in filling the grave. When the work was completed Duncan drew his revolver without a word and commenced shooting at McCullom, Vowell at the same time drawing on Justice Harvey. The last named grabbed up a grub-hoe, which had been used in digging the grave, and knocked Vowell down before he could shoot. He then turned to aid McCullom, but the latter was down, and Duncan was rapidly emptying his revolver. Harvey knocked the desperado over, but Vowell coming to his partner's assistance the Justice turned and ran. Vowell and Duncan gave their attention to McCullom, shooting him three times after he was dead. McCullom was armed, but was able to fire but once, that shot penetrating Duncan's abdomen. Harvey got off badly crippled. The desperadoes are hiding in the woods, but it is thought their capture is sure, as Duncan's wound is a bad one.

The New Proverbial Philosophy.

Ask no woman her age. Never joke with a policeman. Do not play at chess with a widow. Never contradict a man who stutters. Be civil to rich uncles and aunts. Your oldest hat, of course, for an evening party. Always sit next the carver if you can, at dinner. Keep your own secrets. Tell no human being you dye your whiskers. Wind up your conduct, like your watch, once every day, minutely examining whether you are fast or slow. Make friends with the steward on board a steamer—there's no knowing how soon you may be in his power.

THERE is a law still unrepealed on the New Jersey statute books forbidding church fairs and theatrical entertainments of every description, whether on a Sunday or a week-day, and a manager has lately been convicted under it with a view to making a test case.

Street Loafers.

Whence do they come, those idlers in the streets who, wandering in single rank or dispersed detachments among the busy and the purposeful, are confounded with them, and never seen for what they are till something happens which calls them together, when they astonish us by their numbers and the problem of how they are able to live at all—idling not being a profitable investment of one's capital. Men and women who, one would suppose, had enough to do to keep things straight, and to find food and clothing for themselves and those belonging to them, if they worked diligently for twelve hours out of the twenty-four, gather into compact masses of gaping idleness at every unusual occurrence, every trifling accident, and pass hours staring at the sight, if hours are needed to be passed before the obstruction gets itself removed, or the show vanishes into space. Masterless men, surely, they must be; yet evidently they are not their own masters, so far as having the whip-hand of circumstances goes—women without home or duties, for all that dress and appearance and the betraying wedding-ring would seem to point to both; mere idlers cumbering the ground which others till, and living as best they can on food which they only help to consume, taking no trouble to create or prepare. These multitudes of idlers to be collected together in the streets of any large town at a moment's notice have always seemed to us to be the oddest phenomenon of our social life. Men with the need and marks of work legibly written on every square inch of their person and attire, why are they not at their bench, in the factory, the foundry, the ship-yard, at the anvil, at the loom! Or, if they belong to none of these trades, and are of that queer, nondescript class which seems to have no settled occupation, and one may well believe no settled home—which calls itself generically the class of the "handy man," "ready" for jobs of any kind and living on the disregarded crumbs of labor—how is it that they give so much time from their scratchings on the surface of the great field of work, and spend in street sight-seeing that precious jewel to humanity called time! Who can tell? All we know is that, like vultures gathered to the carcass, not the least event can happen in the streets out of the ordinary run of daily traffic—a horse cannot fall, a new kind of hurdy-gurdy cannot grind out a familiar tune, a mountebank cannot go through tricks that were stale a hundred years ago, nor Punch repeat a pantomime known by heart to all but the rising generation—but the idlers are gathered in crowds; and for them, at least, all the duties of life are suspended for hours to come.

The Russian Loan.

The surprising quickness and readiness with which the recent Russian loan of 100,000,000 roubles was taken by the two cities of St. Petersburg and Moscow alone only finds its parallel in the case with which the French raised the enormous German war indemnities. The ukase of the Czar authorized the Bank of Russia to issue notes for 100,000,000 roubles, receiving cash subscriptions at 92, the notes to have the character of bonds and bear 5 per cent. interest. Estimating the rouble at 78 cents, the amount would be equivalent to $78,000,000, which would yield to the Government, at 92, the sum in cash of $71,760,000. No time is fixed for the loan to run, and it will be at the option of the Government to redeem the notes whenever it sees fit. Looking at the loan from an unfinancial standpoint, the quickness with which it has been taken shows the uncompromising spirit of the Russian people upon the questions at issue between Turkey and the Sclaves. It is an eloquent testimonial of the determination of the people that the Sclaves shall be free.

A Decision and a Problem.

A Georgia colored debating society was lately discussing, "Which is the best for the laboring man, to work for wages or part of the crop?" An old "uncle" spoke the sense of the meeting when he thought "bofe was the best, if dey could only be brung togedder somehow."

IN London a Jew had been charged with the murder of a Jew. It is said that this is the first time such a thing has happened, and that the last Jew hanged in England was hanged 200 years ago for forgery.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	7 25	@11 00
HOGS	5 75	@ 6 25
COTTON	12	@ 12½
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 75	@ 5 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 26	@ 1 30
CORN—Western Mixed	54	@ 61
OATS—No. 2 Chicago	45	@ 50
RYE—Western	80	@ 83
PORK—New Mess	16 50	@16 75
LARD—Steam	10½	@ 10½

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@ 5 25
Choice Natives	4 50	@ 4 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 00
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@ 4 00
Medium to Fair	4 25	@ 4 40
HOGS—Live	4 50	@ 5 00
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@ 7 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring, New	1 16	@ 1 16½
No. 3 Spring	1 08	@ 1 09½
CORN—No. 2	44	@ 45
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 34
RYE—No. 2	72	@ 73
BARLEY—No. 2, New	67	@ 68
BUTTER—Creamery	30	@ 33
EGGS—Fresh	22	@ 25
PORK—Mess	16 00	@16 25
LARD	9¾	@ 10

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No 2 Red Fall	1 31	@ 1 32
CORN—Western Mixed	43	@ 44
OATS—No. 2	33	@ 36
RYE—No. 2	61½	@ 62
PORK—Mess	16 25	@16 50
LARD	9¾	@ 10
HOGS	5 75	@ 6 25
CATTLE	2 50	@ 4 75

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 32	@ 1 33
No. 2	1 18½	@ 1 19
CORN—No. 2	43	@ 44
OATS—No. 2	32	@ 33½
RYE	60	@ 61
BARLEY—No. 2	77	@ 78

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 28	@ 1 35
CORN	44	@ 45
OATS	30	@ 36
RYE	72	@ 75
PORK—Mess	16 75	@16 00
LARD	10	@ 10½

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Extra	1 30	@ 1 38
Amber	1 27	@ 1 30
CORN	46	@ 48
OATS—No. 2	34	@ 35

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Medium	5 85	@ 6 40
WHEAT—White	1 35	@ 1 43
CORN—No. 2	48	@ 51
OATS—Mixed	28	@ 30
PORK—Mess	16 00	@16 50
LARD	10	@ 10½

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

HOGS—Yorkers	5 40	@ 5 60
Philadelphias	6 00	@ 6 30
CATTLE—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Medium	4 30	@ 4 75
SHEEP	3 00	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. HALL, Publisher.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The Potato-Bug's Departure.

He left his cabbage chamber,
And took his station where
The "greened" potato branches
Repelled the sun's fierce glare.

He stood a grim old hard-shell,
Beneath the stalk which he
Ten four-score days before that
Had trimmed with [illegible].

It then was young and tender,
And he was tender, too,
But with it's strength he strengthened,
And with it's growth he grew.

But death was now among them,
And soon the patch would clean
Of all that eat poisons—
Some called it Paris green.

While he thus meditated
On things which time reveals,
His appetite suggested
'Twas rather long 'tween meals.

The vine he quickly mounted,
Its branches glided through,
Until he saw a dew-drop
Reflect the emerald hue.

He stopped and there ate dinner
And sipped what nectar seemed,
But feelings soon convinced him
That he had only dreamed.

He knew his feast was over,
That he for once must fast,
So turned his paws toward heaven
And calmly breathed his last.

Around the Farm.

TOBACCO growers and dealers allege that it is an established fact that tobacco furnishes employment to more people than any other crop raised, or article produced, in this country.

A NEW HAVEN company is making a new thing to protect trees from worms. The invention is a rubber band with a single bristling row of brass pins set very close to each other, like the teeth of a comb, in the middle of the strip, and worms cannot crawl above it.

THE comb is the hen's pulse. If that be strong and bright, of a good color and full of blood, shaking with every quick movement of the bird in the combed varieties, the bird is in a normal state of health and in a laying condition. When the rim of the comb and wattles have a purplish tinge the bird is not well.

WE urge farmers to gather the leaves for bedding for pigs, sheep, cows and horses. Store them where they will keep dry and be convenient for use. Gathering these leaves gives your premises a cleanly look and furnishes one of the best articles for bedding and manurial purposes that the farm produces.—American Cultivator.

IN regard to the sweet apples for the winter list we have three that succeed in this State to perfection, Bailey sweet for early winter, Ladies' sweeting for winter and spring, and Tallman sweeting, hardy, excellent for winter baking, and a valuable fruit. To be without these is to be without any other sweet thing, and one of them should appear in any list.—Michigan Farmer.

IF the crown in cattle is high up, it is an indication of a quiet and mild disposition; if it is low down, it is an indication of a fractious disposition. I have seen cattle with the crown two or three inches above the line of the eyes, and others two or three inches below. Thirty years' experience has confirmed me in the belief of the correctness of this test, although it may not be infallible. It is generally believed to be correct by all who have observed it. It applies equally as well to cows as oxen. I would not buy cattle with the crowns two or three inches below the eyes on any consideration.—Mirror and Farmer.

IN storing turnips, select a sloping or dry piece of ground, and gather them into one long heap; cover them with straw to keep out the dirt, and pack the earth on them a foot thick; do not put any soil on the very top, but cover that with a board with holes in it, or old fence posts with the butts off. The holes in the board or posts will give ventilation, and should be covered with a board to keep out the wet. Should the weather be very severe, long stable manure put on the north side of the heap will keep the frost from going in too deeply. Grade around the heap nicely, so that no water will stand there.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

IF I could have my entire farm covered with boards lying flat on the ground a whole year, I would expect more benefit than from twenty-five loads of barn-yard manure to the acre. Now, so far as straw goes it has a similar effect. I believe the very best use of straw, except as litter for the stables of barn-yards, is to spread it on the fields. I put straw on my wheat last season with manifest improvement as compared with places where none was spread. I expected improvement to the clover, but in that I was disappointed. I noticed small spots where the straw had been in bunches the clover was out, having been smothered apparently. I took up boards from a space about twenty feet square, after they had laid two years, and planted potatoes, the surrounding ground being also planted. Where the boards had laid I had three times as many bushels as on a like plot adjoining.—Elmira Gazette.

SCATTERED thickly over France may be seen posted the following notice from the Minister of Agriculture:

MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE.

This placard is placed under the protection of good sense and public decency.

The hedgehog lives on mice, small rodents, slugs and grubs (vers blancs), animals hurtful to agriculture. Don't kill the hedgehog.

The toad, farm assistant, destroys from twenty to thirty insects an hour. Don't kill the toad.

The mole is continually destroying grubs (vers blancs), larvæ, palmer worms, and insects injurious to agriculture. No trace of vegetation is ever found in its stomach. Does more good than harm. Don't kill the mole.

The May bug and its larvæ or grub; mortal enemy of agriculture; lays from seventy to eighty eggs. Kill the May bug.

Birds, each department loses several millions annually through insects. Birds are the only enemies able to contend against them victoriously. They are great caterpillar killers and agricultural assistants. Children, don't disturb their nests.

Children will be paid 25 centimes for every 500 May bugs placed in the hands of the garde champeter.

About the House.

THE paroxysm of coughing may often be prevented or cured by using a little dry salt as a gargle. It will stop the tickling in the throat.

TO BOIL POTATOES.—Peel them and let them lie in cold water for an hour or two. Put them in salted boiling water; when done, drain off all the water and set them back on the stove to dry. Then mash them and add milk and butter. Serve hot.

TO MAKE a rabbit taste like hare, choose one that is of good size. Skin it, and lay it in a seasoning of black pepper and allspice, ground, a glass of port wine, the same quantity of vinegar, turn it over occasionally. Let it remain in the seasoning for forty hours then take it out. Do not wash it, but stuff it and roast it as a hare.

SLIPPERY-ELM TEA.—Take a tablespoonful of ground slippery elm (or the bark may be used if preferred), pour upon it a pint of boiling water. When cold strain it through a fine sieve or piece of thin muslin. Cold water poured upon it, and let stand for six or eight hours, will answer the same purpose and be a much lighter color.

TO FRY sausage with apples, take one pound of sausage, and a dozen apples, slice eight of the apples an eighth of an inch thick. Cut the other four in quarters. Fry them with the sausage a fine light-brown. Lay the sausage in the middle of the dish, and the apples round the outside. Garnish with the quartered apples. Serve with mashed potatoes.

PEA PIECRUST.—Stew the split peas as for dinner. Strain through a colander or coarse sieve. Then add equal parts good wheat meal and fine corn meal sufficient to make a soft dough. Knead well for fifteen minutes, adding mixed meal enough to make a moderately stiff dough, then roll out and use as any other piecrust. It cooks very quickly.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "We think we can give a recipe to make a wine said to be equal to Heidsieck. Take small, ripe tomatoes, pick off the stems, put them into a tub, wash them clean, and then strain them through a linen bag. One bushel will make five gallons of pure wine. Add two and a half to three pounds of loaf sugar to each gallon, then put into a cask and ferment, and fix as you do raspberry wine. If two gallons of water be added to the five gallons of juice, it will still make a very nice wine. Brown sugar may be used instead of loaf, but the wine is much more sparkling when loaf sugar is used."

The Next World's Fair.

The plans of M. Daviond for the palace on the Trocadero, which is to be the main building of the Paris Exhibition of 1878, are furnished. The building is to be of stone and enameled terra-cotta, and will probably be built so solidly that the city of Paris will buy it when the show is over, and turn it to some account. The architecture will be Arabesque. The palace will be flanked by two extensive lateral galleries for the horticultural and agricultural exhibitions. At the sides will be two lighthouses, each 250 feet high, the lanterns of which will be visible from nearly every point in Paris. These towers will be used for experiments with the electric light, and the various international methods of lighting. The slopes of the Trocadero will be decorated with gardens belonging to different nations, and with a cascade, which is thus described by Ph. Burty in the London Academy: "It will spring from the very base of the palace, from the pedestal of a group of large decorative figures in stone and bronze. A grotto nestles behind the curve described by this cascade, which will have a fall of nine metres. Through this sheet of crystal the spectator will see confusedly the whole extent of the Universal Exhibition, with its buildings and its gardens stretching away over the Champ de Mars, as far as to the Ecole Militaire, then, beyond and in all directions, the great basin of Paris, drained and intersected by the Seine, and bordered on the horizon by picturesque hills."

Double Trouble.

There was a double service in a Methodist Church at Nottingham, Manitoba, on a recent Sunday. A feud had rent asunder the congregation, and each faction called a new minister. One of them took possession of the pulpit, and the other sat behind the chancel rail. The man in the pulpit gave out one hymn and the man behind the rail another, and both were sung simultaneously by the rival factions. The man behind the railing gave out his text, and the man in the pulpit began to read a chapter from the Bible. The chapter came to an end before the sermon, and a hymn was interjected; but the preacher went on from point to point without being worried in the least. At the close of the service a deacon explained that it had been enacted "under legal advice, and to further the cause of Christ."

One Hundred and Eleven Years.

On Thursday night Alderman Isaac Stewart was called into the house of a colored family on Lake street to perform a marriage ceremony. The couple were Ruth Johnson and James H. Carter. The bride is the granddaughter of Frank Whetts, a colored man, who claims to be the oldest man living. He was present also. Whetts has documents to show that he was born Jan. 16, 1766, and will therefore be 111 years of age next January. He is still able to read and talk intelligently. He sleeps the most of his time.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

PIERRE DUMAS fell into the water at Melun, and was fished out for a dead man. The body was carried to the morgue and laid on a slab safe and sound. Next morning the keepers were scared on finding the corpse walking about; he had a fit of lethargy, which passed off at midnight, and he awoke to find himself among corpses, whose society he had to endure till the keepers unlocked the mortuary.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS.

Annual Report of the Secretary of the Treasury.

From the annual report of Hon. Lot M. Morrill, Secretary of the Treasury, on the state of the finances for the past year, we gather the following interesting figures:

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1877.

The receipts during the first quarter were:

From customs	$ 37,554,730.[illegible]
From internal revenue	28,919,536.87
From sales of public lands	202,606.[illegible]
From taxation on circulation, etc., of national banks	3,334,797.97
From repayment of interest by Pacific railways	97,902.80
From customs fines, etc.	17,680.77
From consular, patent and other fees	[illegible]
From proceeds of sales of Government property	177,976.52
From miscellaneous sources	3,128,069.16
Net ordinary receipts	$ 72,901,906.55
Premium on sales of coin	269,618.96
	$ 73,110,524.40
Proceeds of bonds of 1881, Geneva award	2,403,445.88
Total net ordinary receipts	$ 75,513,970.28
Balance in treasury June 30, 1876	121,807,722.20
Total available	$197,321,[illegible]

The expenditures during the same period were:

For civil and miscellaneous expenses, including public buildings, light-houses, and collecting the revenues		$15,667,369.41
For Indians		1,454,785.98
For pensions		8,982,387.98
For military establishment, including fortifications, river and harbor improvements, and arsenals		9,715,661.86
For naval establishment, including vessels and machinery and improvements at navy yards		6,174,[illegible]
For interest on the public debt, including Pacific railway bonds		37,107,680.65
Total ordinary expenditures		$78,751,883.26
Redemption of the public debt	$3,618,648.77
Judgments of Court of Alabama Claims	2,353,634.21
		5,972,282.98
Total expenditures		$ 84,724,176.24
Balance in treasury Sept. 30, 1876		112,597,426.08
Total		$197,321,702.32

For the remaining three quarters it is estimated that the receipts will be:

From customs	$ 89,445,271.87
From internal revenue	87,[illegible]
From sale of public lands	800,000.00
From tax on national banks	3,600,000.00
From reimbursement by Pacific railways	800,000.00
From customs fines, penalties, and forfeitures	75,000.00
From consular, patent, and other fees	1,300,000.00
From proceeds of sales of public property	200,000.00
From miscellaneous sources, including premium on coin	4,000,000.00
Total net receipts	$191,151,936.10

For the same period it is estimated that the expenditures will be:

For civil and miscellaneous, including public buildings	$39,000,000.00
For Indians	4,000,000.00
For pensions	20,000,000.00
For military establishment	26,500,000.00
For naval establishment	7,500,000.00
For interest on the public debt	61,876,860.00
Total ordinary expenditures	158,876,860.00

ESTIMATES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1878.

It is estimated that the receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1878, will be:

From customs	$130,000,000.00
From internal revenue	123,000,000.00
From sales of public lands	1,200,000.00
From tax on circulation of national banks	7,250,000.00
From reimbursement of interest by Pacific railway companies	350,000.00
From customs fines, penalties and forfeitures	1,150,000.00
From consular, letters-patent, and other fees	2,250,000.00
From proceeds of sales of Government property	250,000.00
From miscellaneous sources	5,500,000.00
Total ordinary receipts	$270,050,000.00

It is estimated that the ordinary expenditures for the same period will be:

For civil expenses	$15,500,000.00
For foreign intercourse	1,345,[illegible]
For Indians	5,342,000.00
For pensions	28,500,000.00
For military establishment, including fortifications, river and harbor improvements, and arsenals	36,500,000.00
For naval establishment, including vessels and machinery and improvements at navy yards	18,000,000.00
For civil and miscellaneous, including public buildings, light-houses, collecting revenues, mail-steamship service, deficiency in postal revenues, public printing, etc.	42,000,000.00
For interest on the public debt	94,386,204.00
For interest on Pacific railway bonds	3,877,410.00
Total estimated expenditures, exclusive of the sinking-fund account and principal of the public debt	$243,350,704.00

Upon the basis of these estimates, there will be a surplus revenue for the fiscal year 1878, applicable to the sinking fund, of $26,699,296. The estimated amount required by law to be set apart for that fund is $35,391,096.60. If, therefore, these estimates shall prove to be approximately correct, there will be a deficiency in this account of $8,691,800.60.

The estimates received from the several executive departments are as follows:

Legislative establishment		2,943,722.80
Executive establishment		15,999,199.38
Judicial establishment		3,911,400.00
Foreign intercourse		1,245,297.50
Military establishment		32,218,595.00
Naval establishment		19,430,[illegible]
Indian affairs		5,342,[illegible]
Pensions		29,533,000.00
Public works:
Treasury Department	$ 4,294,196.65
War Department	18,793,227.70
Navy Department	2,900,096.00
Interior Department	537,962.62
Department of Agriculture	13,450.00
Department of Justice	42,500.00
		26,581,432.97
Postal service		6,078,267.43
Miscellaneous		10,553,646.85
Permanent appropriations (including $35,391,096.60 for sinking fund)		146,806,576.36
Total		$299,611,671.00

REDUCTION OF THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Principal of the debt July 1, 1876	$2,232,284,531.95
Interest due and unpaid, and accrued interest to date	38,647,556.19
Total debt	$2,270,932,088.14
Cash in treasury	142,243,361.82
Debt, less cash in the treasury	$2,128,688,726.32
Principal of the debt July 1, 1876	$2,180,395,067.15
Interest due and unpaid, and accrued interest to date	38,514,004.54
Total debt	$2,218,909,071.69
Cash in treasury	119,469,726.70
Debt, less cash in the treasury	$2,099,439,344.99
Showing reduction, as above stated, of	$29,249,381.33

RESUMPTION OF SPECIE PAYMENTS.

In March, 1869, by an act entitled "An act to strengthen the public credit," the faith of the United States was "solemnly pledged to the payment in coin or its equivalent, of all the obligations of the United States, not bearing interest, known as United States notes, and of all the interest-bearing obligations of the United States;" and, further, "to make provision, at the earliest practicable period, for the redemption of the United States notes in coin."

By the act of January, 1875, Congress declared the purpose of resumption of specie payments on January 1, 1879, and to that end, and in execution of the pledge of the act of 1869, provided for the redemption of the United States notes, and for the issue of national bank notes in lieu thereof, and thus, amid conflicting theories, declared, in effect, a monetary system combined of coin and national bank notes redeemable in coin at the demand of the holder, in harmony with the constitution and the traditional policy of the American people.

By this legislation it will be perceived that the United States is fully committed to the resumption of specie payments on a given day in January, 1879, by the method of redemption of United States notes current as lawful money, and the substitution therefor of national-bank currency, the equivalent of money by its convertibility into coin on demand. The popular favor with which this enactment was hailed, looking to the consummation of an exigent measure of public necessity, was modified only by an apprehension of the possible inadequacy of its terms to accomplish its end. A return to the constitutional standard of values at any time will doubtless, to some extent, involve a reduction in nominal prices, and consequent contraction of the volume of currency, but this is not of itself necessarily an evil, and, if it were, it is an evil incident to a vicious system, not cured by the continuance of the evil, while the measure itself is demanded by the highest economic considerations and principles of honest dealing among men. Besides, the troubles likely to grow out of enforced resumption are believed to be greatly exaggerated. Restoration of the constitutional standard of values by resumption, and the extinction of irredeemable notes current as money, and the enforcement of payment in coin on demand, of the national bank notes treated as the equivalent of money, are obviously alike of national obligation and public necessity. The suspension was the act of the National Government, and to the National Government the people properly look to take the initiative in resumption. Having, under its authority to coin money, assumed to regulate the currency of the country, and as the States are inhibited "to make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts," and, as irredeemable and inconvertible paper currency is essentially repugnant to the principles of the constitution and the traditional policy of the American people, it is obviously incumbent on the Government to maintain and preserve the money standard of values of the constitution, and to enforce the obligation of payment in coin on demand, at the option of the holder of all paper money.

ISSUE OF SILVER COIN.

Immediately upon the passage of the act of April 17, 1876, the department, through its several independent-treasury offices, began to issue, in redemption of the outstanding fractional currency, the subsidiary silver which had been coined under the authority of the Resumption act of January 14, 1875. To further relieve the pressing demand throughout the country for money of small denominations, the silver coin in the treasury, previous to the passage of the act above mentioned, was also issued in payment of current obligations of the Government.

Under the authority for the issue of silver coin granted by the act of July 22, 1876, the department, in addition to redeeming fractional currency, whenever presented for that purpose, has also issued silver coin in exchange for legal-tender notes as rapidly as the coinage at the mints would permit.

From the date first mentioned, to and including October 30, 1876, there has been issued of silver coin, as above stated, $22,096,712.16, of which amount there has been issued for fractional currency redeemed and destroyed, $12,959,269.43.

The demand for silver coin for circulation, though growing less urgent, still continues fully equal to the capacity of the mints to supply it. Until this demand shall have ceased, the coinage will be continued as rapidly as practicable, to the limit authorized by law.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

The coin values of the exports and imports of the United States for the last fiscal year, as appears from official returns made to and compiled by the Bureau of Statistics, are as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise	$525,582,247
Exports of foreign merchandise	14,802,424
Total	$540,384,671
Imports of goods	460,741,190
Excess of exports over imports	$ 79,643,481

For the fiscal year 1875 there was an excess of imports over exports amounting to $19,562,725, showing a difference of $99,206,206.

Exports of specie and bullion	$ 56,506,302
Imports of specie and bullion	15,936,681
Excess of exports over imports	$ 40,569,621
Total excess of exports of merchandise and the precious metals over imports	$120,213,102

Internal Revenue.

From the annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue we gather the following interesting statistics: The aggregate receipts for the fiscal year were $117,236,833, an increase over the preceding fiscal year of $6,691,471. The aggregate receipts for the year were made up from the following sources:

From spirits	$ 57,426,361
From cigars and cheroots	11,2[illegible]2,100
From snuff and tobacco	28,557,165
From fermented liquors	9,571,280
From banks and bankers	4,006,698
Adhesive stamps	6,518,488
Penalties, etc.	914,626
Total	$117,[illegible]

The following table, geographically arranged, will show the payment of internal revenue tax for the last fiscal year by the several States and Territories:

Maine	$ 90,650
New Hampshire	260,261
Vermont	47,136
Massachusetts	2,752,216
Rhode Island	222,678
Connecticut	658,115
Total Eastern States	$ 4,031,046
New York	$14,616,724
New Jersey	3,179,950
Pennsylvania	5,973,439
Delaware	417,593
Maryland	2,877,579
Total Middle States	$27,365,275
Ohio	$18,537,674
Indiana	5,179,126
Illinois	23,780,694
Michigan	2,066,164
Missouri	2,981,942
Wisconsin	3,308,770
Minnesota	249,796
Iowa	1,312,619
Kansas	250,704
Nebraska	602,[illegible]
Total Western States	$56,970,768
Virginia	$ 7,314,394
West Virginia	430,978
Kentucky	7,705,608
Tennessee	598,714
North Carolina	1,671,129
South Carolina	105,606
Georgia	362,726
Alabama	109,341
Mississippi	85,150
Florida	174,266
Louisiana	629,788
Arkansas	86,601
Texas	245,709
Total Southern States	$19,599,310
Colorado	$ 72,669
Nevada	87,923
California	3,055,040
Oregon	49,573
Total Pacific States	$ 3,265,205
District of Columbia	$ 114,589
New Mexico	22,182
Dakota	12,158
Wyoming	15,063
Montana	20,963
Idaho	16,994
Utah	33,232
Arizona	11,976
Washington	20,411
Total Territories	$ 267,676

The foregoing tables, by States, do not include the receipts for the year from the sale of adhesive stamps, fines, penalties, etc., which amounted to over $7,000,000. It will be observed that more than one-half of the whole amount received for internal revenue tax originated with and is credited to the Western States. The credit to the Middle States exceeds that given all the other States and Territories (the Western States excepted). Seven States—Illinois, Ohio, New York, Kentucky, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Indiana—are credited respectively with more than the aggregate of the five Eastern States. Illinois and Ohio combined have a larger credit than all the Middle and Southern States, while Illinois alone exceeds the Eastern, Southern and Pacific States, and all the Territories. Two districts in Illinois, the First and Fifth, are credited respectively with $8,971,[illegible] and $8,006,049.

Report of the Comptroller of the Currency.

From the report of Comptroller Knox we glean the following interesting figures regarding the status of the banks:

Section 5,214 of the Revised Statutes provides that the national banks shall pay to the Treasurer the following taxes: One per cent. annually upon the average amount of notes in circulation, and one-half of 1 per cent. annually on the average amount of deposits and the amount of capital stock not invested in United States bonds.

The amount collected by the internal revenue office from State banks, savings banks, and private banks and bankers during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, was as follows:

On deposits	$2,772,164.97
On capital	1,416,565.[illegible]
On circulation	*17,947.67
Total	$4,006,698.[illegible]

*Of this amount $7,[illegible] was derived from the tax of 10 per cent. upon authorized circulation.

The following table exhibits the amount of United States taxes collected from the organization of the system in 1863 to July 1, 1876, the collections having been made without expense to the Government, from the compilation of the returns in the Treasury Department:

Collections on circulation	[illegible]
Collections on deposits	[illegible]
Collections on capital	[illegible]
Total	$72,[illegible],141.96

The following table gives the amount and ratio to capital of State and national taxation for the year 1876, by geographical divisions:

NEW ENGLAND STATES.

Capital	$164,316,222
United States taxes	[illegible]
State taxes	3,016,[illegible]
Ratio of U. S. taxes to capital	[illegible]
Ratio of State taxes to capital	[illegible]
Total ratio	3.0

MIDDLE STATES.

Capital	$1[illegible]
United States taxes	3,300,490
State taxes	4,082,489
Ratio of U. S. taxes to capital	1.7
Ratio of State taxes to capital	2.1
Total ratio	3.8

SOUTHERN STATES.

Capital	$ 34,465,483
United States taxes	446,083
State taxes	476,236
Ratio of U. S. taxes to capital	1.3
Ratio of State taxes to capital	1.4
Total ratio	2.7

WESTERN STATES AND TERRITORIES.

Capital	$111,300,585
United States taxes	1,634,969
State taxes	2,602,890
Ratio of U. S. taxes to capital	1.5
Ratio of State taxes	2.4
Total ratio	3.9

NOTE.—The banks reporting State taxation in 1856 possessed a united capital of $493,798,408.

The Government is receiving a revenue from the banks which is more than equal to all taxes paid by them before the war; while the States are also increasing very greatly the burdens which were previously as great as could be borne. Within the past two years seventy-one banks, and since the organization of the system 207 banks have gone into voluntary liquidation, chiefly on account of excessive taxation; and during the last year fewer banks have been organized than in any previous year since 1880, and, unless some favorable legislation is obtained, a large number of banks will retire from the system to engage in private banking.

Report of the United States Treasurer.

The Treasurer of the United States, in his report, simply reviews the business of this important branch of the financial department of the Government during the past year. No recommendation of amendments or modifications of the statutes governing the financial operations of the Government are made, it being considered that such propositions appertain solely to the office of the Secretary, and should emanate directly from that officer. The statistical portions of the report give the following exhibit of the business of the Redemption Agency.

The receipts of national bank notes by the National Bank Redemption Agency for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1876, amounted to $204,299,615.91, a net increase of $48,978,995.46 over the fiscal year 1874–'75. On July 1, 1875, the cash balance on the books of the agency was $5,036,902, and the uncounted packages on hand with unbroken seals on the same date represented $904,120.[illegible]. The United States notes drawn from the treasury for redemption of bank notes at the counter were $4,738,979, and "overs" reported in bank notes received for redemption were $16,491.42, making the aggregate operations of the agency $215,066,368.68. Of this sum the agency was credited with $5,000,000 in national bank notes fit for circulation deposited in the treasury; $34,927,900 notes of failed, liquidating and reducing banks deposited in the treasury; $97,478,700 assorted bank notes fit for circulation returned to the several national banks; $78,643,155 assorted national bank notes unfit for circulation delivered to the Comptroller of the Currency for replacement with new notes, leaving a cash balance of $7,942,539 on June 30, 1876. The amount of notes of each denomination redeemed and assorted for the fiscal year was:

	Fit for Circulation.	Unfit for Circulation.
One dollar	$ 216,700	$ 1,312,800
Two dollars	189,100	403,400
Five dollars	20,022,200	30,810,065
Ten dollars	24,622,000	22,182,860
Twenty dollars	18,702,000	12,722,100
Fifty dollars	11,326,400	4,454,700
One hundred dollars	21,051,000	5,730,100
Five hundred dollars	1,092,000	476,550
One thousand dollars	152,000	55,000

Net increase, 1,269,828 notes—$45,798,919.

The Army.

Gen. W. T. Sherman, in his annual report, says: By the annual Appropriation bill, approved July 24, 1876, the limit of enlisted men was reenacted at 25,000; yet a proviso permitted the recruitment of the "cavalry" up to 100 men per company, "to be kept as near as practicable at that number," and "a sufficient force of cavalry shall be employed in the defense of the Mexican and Indian frontiers of Texas." To fulfill the requirements of this law literally would necessitate 12,000 enlisted men for ten cavalry regiments, and further deducting 2,500 for recruiting, general service and necessary detachments, would leave only 10,500 for the thirty regiments of artillery and infantry, or about thirty men to a company—practically less than twenty-five—a number entirely too small for efficient service. Subsequently, however, by the act approved Aug. 15, 1876, Congress provided for an additional 2,500 enlisted men, who were absolutely required to admit of the increase of the cavalry arm, as provided for in the first-cited statute. Under this act recruitment, for the cavalry arm especially, has been stimulated, so that at this time the military establishment consists of:

General officers	11
Aides-de-camp (not counted in aggregate)	32
General staff officers	388
Engineers	107
Ordnance	65
Signal officer	1
Chaplains	30
Cavalry, officers	419
Cavalry, enlisted men	9,267
Artillery, officers	279
Artillery, enlisted men	2,583
Infantry, officers	871
Infantry, enlisted men	11,962
Engineer battalion	242
Permanent recruiting parties, etc.	623
Recruits at artillery school	[illegible]
General service men employed as clerks	[illegible]
Ordnance department	[illegible]
West Point detachment	227
Hospital stewards	200
Ordnance sergeants	112
Commissary sergeants	146
Indian scouts	316
Available recruits	58
Prison guards at Fort Leavenworth	61
Total	28,581

Of which 2,151 are officers and 26,430 are enlisted men, so that the aggregate number of enlisted men has not yet reached the lawful limit of 27,500. Enlistments have recently been checked in all branches of the service, except cavalry, and extreme care will be taken that in no event shall the legal limit be passed. It is well known that no military force can be kept up to the full legal standard, and that the combatant force always falls far below the paper organization. This now consists of:

Cavalry, officers and men	9,686
Artillery, officers and men	2,862
Infantry, officers and men	13,833
Aggregate	26,381

The Navy.

Secretary Robeson's report shows that there are belonging to the navy 146 vessels of 160,157 tons' measurement. They carry 1,142 guns. Of these, 123, carrying 913 guns, with a measurement of 120,808 tons, have steam power; 75 are in actual service, and 4 are preparing for sea. Sixteen may be considered entirely unfit for future service, and the remainder are at various navy-yards, some requiring slight and others extensive repairs, but most of them could be made ready for any special service in a short time.

Our navy is now far more powerful for warlike purposes than it has ever before been in time of peace. As a remedy for the reduction of the force of our fleets from 8,500 to 7,500 men, and for the purpose of maintaining a trained class of men skilled in their duties and devoted to their flag, the Secretary repeats the recommendation of last year, that Congress give the necessary authority to enlist annually 750 boys for the navy in addition to the number of men now allowed. He also urges that enlisted men of the navy may be allowed an outfit of clothing, and a banking system for the navy such as now prevails in the army.

The Naval Academy has kept pace with the changes which have taken place, and the branches there taught are those adapted to the naval profession of to-day. The Secretary refers to the report of the Bureau of Astronomical Observation, Ordnance, the Naval Signal Service, the Nautical Almanac, Surveys of the Inter-Oceanic Canal, and other subjects connected with the navy, and speaks in commendation of those who have obtained important results in these branches.

The estimates for general maintenance of the navy for the next year are $16,[illegible]. The amount estimated for new buildings and repairs and improvements necessary at various navy-yards, stations, and hospitals, is $2,[illegible]. There is also submitted by the Bureau of Ordnance an estimate for $775,509 deemed necessary to provide proper armament for our large iron-clads and other ships now being fitted for sea. This shows an aggregate sum of about $800,000 less than the amount asked for last year for like purposes.

The Pension Bureau.

The Commissioner of Pensions, in his report, recommends the repeal of the present law admitting ex parte affidavits in support of claims and the existing system of medical examinations. In reference to the admission of ex parte affidavits, he says that if such species of testimony in support of claims be continued it will swamp the office. Last year the increase of original claims exceeded 40,000, exclusive of [illegible]. Of the [illegible] per cent. were passed. There are now on file in the office [illegible] 80,000 rejected cases. In correction of this abused system it is proposed to abolish the 1,[illegible] examining surgeons, as the local associations and influences dispose them to too great liberality in passing subjects of examination. It has been found also that testimony in most cases is entirely untrustworthy. In addition, the number of persons ready to perpetrate frauds seems to be on the increase. [illegible] than they were, without adding a corresponding amount of trustworthiness. It is recommended that the entire country be divided into sixty districts, to each of which a surgeon be appointed for medical examinations, and a competent clerk be detailed to look into the status of the parties and make up their papers, to be sent in form ready for adjudication by the Pension Bureau. It is estimated that this system will cost at least $12,000 less than that now in vogue. At present the examining surgeons receive $2 for each examination, which alone costs the Government an outlay of $100,000 a year. It would also enable the Commissioner to make a reduction of at least one-third the present force of the bureau.

The Postoffice Department.

The annual report of the Postmaster General contains a very gratifying exhibit of the business of the department for the last fiscal year, showing a very large increase of receipts and a considerable reduction in the expenses as compared with the previous fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1875.

The following statement, taken from the books of the department, shows the receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, and form the basis of the annual report of the Postmaster General:

Receipts from all sources	$28,644,197.50
Increase over last year	1,682,[illegible]
Expenditures of all kinds	33,263,487.58
Decrease from last year	347,[illegible]
Excess of expenditures over receipts	4,619,290.08
Excess of expenditures for previous year was	6,472,126.[illegible]

Nearly the entire receipts of the department are derived from the sale of stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards, the receipts from these sources being $26,878,612.10.

Among the items of expenditure the following were the principal ones, viz.:

Inland transportation	$14,743,[illegible]
Compensation of Postmasters	[illegible]
Clerks for postoffices	2,480,730.36
Letter-carriers	1,950,799.62
Railway clerks	1,[illegible]
Manufacture of stamped envelopes, postal cards and wrappers	690,[illegible]
Foreign mail transportation	220,128.76

The revenue from money-order business was $120,030.

The Public Lands.

The following are the main points of interest embraced in the report of Hon. J. A. Williamson, Commissioner of the General Land Office:

The cash receipts of the office during the fiscal year ended June 30 aggregated $1,747,215; the total number of acres of public lands disposed of during the year was 6,524,326, of which 2,875,910 acres were absorbed by homestead entries; 607,885 acres were obtained by entries under the timber-culture law; 1,600,000 were approved to various States as swamp lands; 1,001,078 acres were certified to railroads under land grants of Congress, and 640,692 were disposed of by ordinary cash sales. The total disposals were 644,945 acres less than those of the preceding year. The Commissioner renews the recommendation of Commissioner Burdette, that, as the only practicable means of preserving the forests of the country from waste and destruction, the Government timber lands should be transferred to private ownership by immediately surveying and offering them for sale in unlimited quantities at not less than properly appraised valuations. Commissioner Williamson also recommends the consolidation of the Preemption and Homestead laws into one general homestead system.

The Ordnance Bureau.

Gen. Benet, the Chief of Ordnance, in his annual report recommends a large increase of appropriations for the use of the Ordnance Department for the next fiscal year over those for the present year. He says the limited appropriations made by Congress, much below the estimates submitted by this bureau, have in many instances prevented the supplying of the army of the frontier with that superior quality of ordnance stores which the nature of such service demands.

Upon the subject of small arms, Gen. Benet says he deems it of the most vital importance that the manufacture of arms be steadily continued in sufficient quantities to render a gradual accumulation of them in store a certainty; that a better arm than the Springfield may some day be invented is not at all improbable, and a magazine gun will no doubt be the arm of the future, but until such an arm suitable for the military service has been perfected and approved, a [illegible] stock of Springfields is a necessity.

The Engineer Department.

Gen. Humphreys' annual report on the Engineer Department's work gives in small compass a valuable mass of figures concerning the sums needed to perfect our lake and seacoast system of fortifications, and the sums needed to continue our river and harbor improvements. Particular stress is laid upon the necessity of providing an adequate store of torpedoes for marine use. The report shows that of the $5,000,000 appropriated at the late session of Congress for river and harbor improvements, $2,000,000 only was allotted for various works under the instructions of the Secretary of War.

The Patent Office.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Patents shows the Patent Office to have been more than self-supporting during the past year. Its receipts for fees and other services were $787,000, and all its expenses, including salaries, were but $661,000. There were 22,408 applications received for patents, and 15,911 patents issued, during the year, besides 3,812 patents allowed, but not issued, for want of the final fee, also 1,087 trade-marks and 400 labels registered, and 2,943 caveats filed. Only two patents were extended.

The Secret Service.

The report of J. J. Brooks, Chief of the Secret Service of the Treasury Department, represents the business of the past year to have been the arrest of 223 counterfeiters and other criminals, the capture of over ninety engraved plates, dies, presses, and other implements for counterfeiting, the seizure of $[illegible],000 and over in counterfeit money, and various other operations. A large percentage of the persons arrested were convicted in court, and about $[illegible] was collected by way of fines.

Agricultural Bureau.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Agriculture shows there were distributed during the past year 1,320,000 packages of vegetable and field seeds and textiles, including nearly 95,000 of vegetable, 372,000 of flower, 60,000 of wheat, 64,000 of tobacco, and [illegible] of cotton. Seeds were collected from all parts of the world because of their peculiar excellence.

A Dog that Didn't Live in Vain.

A well known Memphis coal dealer, not long since, had a big dog of wonderful sagacity. He (the dog) stayed around the coal yard, and whenever a coal cart was hauled on the scales the dog always took a stand under the wagon like a coach dog. He weighed nearly one hundred pounds, and was weighed as coal thousands of times, and nearly every coal consumer in the city purchased that dog at so much per barrel. The practice went on for months, and was only discovered by a funny accident. A negro wanted a barrel of coal, and wheeled a hand-cart with coal on the weighing scales. The clerk in the office worked at the scales, and hallooed through the window, "take out a lot of that coal." The negro did so, and kept on until all the coal was out of the cart. The clerk tried the scales again, but the pea indicated too much. "Take out more coal," shouted the clerk; "d—n it, you have a boat-load of coal on that cart." "Look hyar, boss," replied the negro, "the coal is all out, and I'll have to take the wheels off the cart if you want to lighten it." Then the negro looked under the cart, and, seeing the big, fat dog at his post, exclaimed: "Lord God, massa, you's selling me that dog for coal." The dog was missed in a few days, and was found dead on the scales, the animal having taken some poison accidentally, but he came back to die at his post. A [illegible] fine example of "faithful unto death."—Memphis Ledger.

PARIS has a grave difficulty to solve, what to do with her dead? For ten years has this subject been under consideration, and Baron Haussman complained that the dead gave him far more trouble than the living.

Auburn Fruit House

GREAT REDUCTION

Read the Following list of Discounts:

FRUITS AND CONFECTIONERY.

2 lb Table Peach 16c, former price 18c,
3 lb " " 22c, " " 25c,
2 lb Whortleberries 18c, former price 20,
2 lb Strawberries 20c, " " 25c.
2 lb Peas 15c, " " 20c.
2 lb String Beans 12½ " " 20c.
2 lb Blackberries 15c " " 20c.
6 lb Pie Peaches 30c " " 35c.
2 lb French Peas 25c " " 35c.
3 lb Quinces 20c " " 35c.
1 qt Queen Olives 45 " 75c.

A Deduction of from 5c to 10c per can on

Bartlett Beans, Cherries, Tomatoes, Salmon, Lobsters, Clams, Table Sauces, Chow-Chow, Gherkins, Mixed Pickles, Olive Oil, Cup Sauce, "Irish Bullin's" Celebrated Punkin Pie Timber, Canned Plums of all kinds. Flavoring extracts of all kinds Raisins, from 15c to 20c, worth 18 to 25c, Cultivated Cape Cod Cranberries 12½c worth 15c, Mince-meat Halibut, Cod Fish, Salmon by the pound.

ALL AT SLAUGHTERED PRICES.

French Prunes, Zante Currants, Dried Blackberries, Peaches, Apples Nuts of all kinds.

GROCERIES.

TEAS! TEAS!! TEAS!!! TEAS!!!! TEAS!!!!!

Young Hyson from 55c to $1.00, Japan from 45c to $1.00, Oolong 35c to $1.00.

Having bought a large stock of CANDIES and HOLIDAY GOODS before the advance in prices I am enabled to offer them at unusually low figures.

In a word, all goods sold at

Reduced Prices

To avoid moving. Everybody is invited to call and examine goods and prices. My goods are all warranted to be fresh and pure, and cannot fail to please the purchaser, both in quality and prices.

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUS!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.

AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES.

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at,

ZACHER'S.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Stereoscopes, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.
Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades & Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti aticles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS.

HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heating Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of

HARDWARE STOVES

always on hand at lowest prices

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

The largest stock brought to Auburn. We are sel'ing at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons
Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich SoutlernRB

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler	1:45 p m.	x 2.40 a m.	6.05 pm
Waterloo	2.05 "	3.00 "	6.25
Sedan	2.15	3.07	6.37
Corunna	2.20	3.15	6.45

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.52 pm	x 12.00 a m	6.55 a m
Sedan	2.20	11.40 "	6:32 "
Waterloo	2:25 "	11.26 "	6.21 "
Butler	2.30	11.20 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Dec. 4th, 1875,

GOING WEST.

	No 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 30 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 40 am	10 15	3 14	7 35
Alliance	3 55	12 50 pm	5 55	11 00
Orrville	4 43	2 22	7 42	12 55 pm
Mansfield	6 55	4 40	9 30	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	10 25	3 55
" lv.	7 50	5 40	10 30 pm
Forest	9 25	7 10	11 58
Lima	10 45	9 25	1 00 am
Ft. Wayne	1 30 pm	12 10 am	3 25
Plymouth	4 00	3 20	5 49
Chicago	7 20	7 20	9 20

OING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 40 pm	8 20 a.m	5 35 pm
Plymouth	2 40 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 45
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 50
Forest	10 10	5 20	3 05
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 40
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 50 am	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 20	6 55
Orrville	2 33	9 38	7 12	8 15
Alliance	4 10	11 15	9 00	12 20
Rochester	6 25	1 20 am	11 10	2 00pm
Chicago	7 35	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. MRYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 3, 1875.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Exp.	Ac.& H.	Accom.
lv New York	* pm		*2 55 pm
Philadelphia	1 am		6 00
Baltimore	†	6 20pm	10 10
Washington		7 35	11 30
Wheeling	m	*8 00am	12 30
Bellaire		2 18	1 17
Barnesville		3 40	2 23
Cambridge		10 44	3 42
Zanesville		11 48	4 50
lv Columbus		12 10pm	4 15
New Aark	*	2 30	6 25
Mt Vernon	7 46	3 23	7 32
Mansfield	9 24	1 3	9 08
Shelby	10 10	4 25	9 56
Chicago Junction	10 40	5 00	10 25
Tiffin	11 34	6 13	11 20
Fostoria	12 01pm	6 42	11 43
Deshler	12 55	7 48	11 36am
Defiance	1 47	8 51	1 27
Auburn	3 00
Auburn Junction	3 08	10 40	2 43
Garrett	3 25	11 00	3 00
Avilla	3 36	11 15
Milford Junction	4 40	12 24am
Walkertown Junction	5 45	1 43
Chicago	8 10	4 40	10

GOING EAST.

Chicago	+8 55am	+5 08	+9 40
Walkertown Junction	11 50	8 08	1 15
Milford Junction	12 51pm		2 35
Avilla	1 53		3 55
Garrett	2 20	10 20	4 20am
Auburn Junction		10 35	4 25
Auburn	2 25
Defiance	3 34	11 45	5 47
Deshler	4 22	12 30am	6 30
Fostoria	5 12	1 26	7 40
Tiffin	5 36	1 40	8 13
Chicago Junction	6 40	2 45	9 30
Shelby Junction	7 25	3 17	10 10
Mansfield	7 55	*3 40	10 35
Mt. Vernon	9 25	4 51	1 59
Ar Newark	10 25	5 40	1 00pm
Lv Zanesville	11 50	6 30	2 30
Cambridge	12 50am	7 20	3 21
Barnesville	1 55	8 14	4 31
Ar Bellaire	3 00	9 20	5 30
Wheeling	5 10	10 35	6 50
Washington	+5 20pm	9 20pm	7 00
Baltimore	6 50	10 00	8 50
Philadelphia	12 00	2 35am	*1 20pm
New York	6 15am	6 15	5 10

L. M COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALLAND SALOON.

On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, where will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. All kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

It May Save Your Life.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than to pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonishes every one that try it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, F. E. Davenport, and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it, or a regular size for 75 cents.

Ladies Cloaks as low as $2.75.
Ladies Felt Hats 50c.
Children Trimmed Hats.
Fur Trimming a good assortment.
Germantown and Zephyr all shades
Water-proof and Ladies cloth.
Two Button Kid Gloves 65c.
Cambrick Dress Goods 50c.
Ladies' and Children's Furs.
Old Muffs lined.

H. H. STAMETS

CHICAGO ROCK ISLAND R R

AND

Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for
JOLLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENRY
LACON, PEORI, GENESEO, MOLINE,
ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT
MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON
IOWA CITY, GRINNELL,
NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	4 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all point in Kansas. Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement o Palace Drawing room and Sleeping cars, which fo external beauty and interrior arrangements fo the comfort, convenience and luxury of passenger are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars o the kind in the world.

Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	466 Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	471 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	489 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	321 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hanniba', Quincy, Keokuk

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS
KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA,
COLORADO AND
CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New Eegland.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (610 miles), and be tween Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles.)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pullman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOOTS & SHOES

Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repaing promptly attended to.
Remember place
At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

M Bolond

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, DECEMBER 21st, 1876. Number 52.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year,.........$2. | Six Months,...... $1.

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6 m.	1 y.
1 Square......	2 50	5 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column.........	8 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column..........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

RICKEL and TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Moody.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellows Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLUM,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McCLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in o r hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Good sample rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $1.50 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
B. SCHNIDERS, Pro.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel.] Clerk.
O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE,

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an xperienced corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at low rates.

JAS. CLIFFORD,

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public, we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

Shearer & Wilson.

THE above named gentlemen are conducting a Planing Mill on South Jackson street They are prepared to execute all kinds of scrol work, re-sawing turning matching and moulding of all discriptions, and can, in consequence give the best figures possible, having this advantage over competitors. Their work for the past is a sufficient recommendation as to their competency and responsibility. They also take contracts for all kinds o wooden work.

ENGLISH INK for Printers,

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of Superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of Ink made by us.

EXCELSIOR
PRINTING INK CO.,
MANUFACTURERS,
(Formerly of London, England),
184 & 186 MONROE ST., CHICAGO,
And 13 Barclay Street, New York.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

as the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promtly attended to. Go and see his largest stock

IT IS HERE.

WHAT

The Largest F Stock of Fine

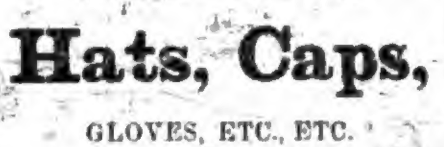
Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this line of goods can get them from 100 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

He prepared to send out rigs at anytime and a Reasonable prices.

THE AUBURN MARKET.

—Corn 35c.
—Oats 22c.
—Eggs 8c.
—Butter 16c.
—Potatoes 60c.
—Live Turkeys 5c.
—Clover Seed $8 50.
—Live Chickens 4c
—Wheat $1.03 @ 109.
—The COURIER $2.00 a year.

The Dove of Peace.

[Detroit Free Press.]

A bootblack lost a dove from his cot about a week ago, and yesterday, while crossing the Campus Martius, he discovered the missing bird. Seizing a handful of mud he gave it a throw just as the bird arose. A man was standing on a box, selling some sort of oil, and the mud struck him flat in the face. He got down, eyes full of mud, and, feeling around him, called out:

"I want it understood that this bold attempt to crush out free speech does not make me quail in the least! Some one slideup hear within reach!"

Several persons slid the other way, taking a large part of his stock. When he had cleared his eyes and discovered his loss, he mounted the box and said:

"Gentlemen, tyrants and usurpers, I take it all back. Trot up your state of anarchy bring out your red-handed bastiles, and let me hear the siren voice of monarchy! Who'll have the next bottle?"

A Visit From Boreas.

The British tar who returned to his native England after a long cruise under sunny Italian skies, remarked, as he stood once more in the gloomy fogs of of "Hold Hengland," to the following effect: "This ere is what I call weather now. None of yous blawsted blue skies for me!"

If any one delights in genuine Hoosier weather, we hope he, like the sailor, had his hearts content of it during the last week, for its variable ways was well illustrated in that time. As we write, we can sit in our sanctum in our shirt s'eeves, with no fire in our room, and experience no discomfort. Last Friday night, on the contrary, was cold enough to freeze the horns off of a muley steer. The thermometer between Friday night and Sunday morning ranged from ten to fifteen degrees below zero. No one stirred out during Saturday except from necessity, and business was almost entirely suspended. Scarcely a team was to be seen on the streets. The intense cold was aggravated by a sweeping breeze which made it doubly disagreeable. The most remarkable thing of the freak in the weather, however, lies in the sudden change which made the air almost as warm and balmy as that of spring by Wednesday.

BRING ON YOUR TROOPS.

We want a Fair Count.

WE have been made the victim of some wretch with a proclivity for returning board tactics. A week ago an honest yoeman brought us a load of fine wood. It was unlike wood usually furnished the "rural rooster," by the average rustic subscriber in arrears. There were actually knots in that load of wood that the Devil could split, (we mean our printers devil.) But where is that wood now? It has been buldozed. It has gone where the gentle woodbine twineth—disappeared—mizzled—vamoosed the ranche—wilted like Hayes majority on election day. We hereby give the unregenerated wretch and degraded minion who buldozed us out of that fuel, fair notice. At the hour of midnight, when grave yards yawn, we prepared what remained of our wood-pile for his especial benefit. There is now a torpedo of nitro-glycerine in every other stick. We have marked what is safe to burn with cabalistic signs, known only to us. Every one stick so marked is equal to a starting a blow-up on its own accord, if molested, to which Hell Gate isn't a circumstance. We have also taken out a heavy accident policy on our valuable life for fear we might perchance, ourselves fool around the wrong billet by mistake. We have also the satisfaction of knowing that the vile horse thief who counted us out of that hickory, will need gobble up any one's fuel after he dies. He will more likely sigh for a refrigerator for the climate will be too hot for fuel of any kind.

Notice.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to the undersigned will please call and settle on or before the 15th of January next. I wish to settle up my books at the end of each year.

DR. J. J. LITTLEFIELD.

Dec. 14-4t.

THE PEOPLES COLLEGE.

In Other Words, the Auburn High School---Some Interesting Reading About the New School Building.---Its cost Construction, etc.---The Auburn Schools as Reorganized.

The new High School building was opened for the reception of pupils on Monday last. The inauguration of educational work in this fine edifice by a corps of trained and experienced teachers, marks the beginning of a new era in intellectual progress here. A few facts in relation to the same will be of interest, as all our readers are justly proud of our advantages in this respect.

The old fashioned school house wherein many of our citizens received their education, is yet familiar to many. It was in most cases constructed of rough logs, and was small in size and inexpensive as to cost, rude seats constructed of slabs, were ranged around the inside, while at one end a young rustic taught the youthful idea how to shoot at a magnificent salary of say from six to twenty dollars a month. His chief merit with the directors was often the well developed muscle, hardened by the healthy exercise of mauling rails in vacation, and which was brought into frequent play in administering the gad to the big boys. Turning to our advantages to-day we see a remarkable contrast.

Work was began on the Auburn High school building last spring, under the general supervision of the School Board. It stands in a little park of five acres, which in course of time will form a beautiful play ground for the pupils, and be in itself an ornament to the town. The building is of brick, two stories in height, underneath which is a roomy basement, the walls of which are constructed of freestone. The dimensions are 61 x 75 feet, and the highest point is some 60 feet above the ground.

The contract was let to J. W. Case who was the successful bidder out of thirteen contractors, the contract being given him at $9,670. The other bids ranged all the way up to $13,000.

Work was begun in May, according to plans and specifications, proposed by Moser & Gibbs, of Toledo, the architects engaged by the board. Mr. S. B Gibbs, of the firm, acted as Superintendent of construction, and the edifice was substantially built. Some changes for the better were made, after the contract was let, in the way of substituting iron cornices for wood, etc., which increased the cost by a few hundred dollars.

The furniture for seats and desks were furnished by Mr. C P. Houser, at a cost of $800 and are models of convenience and comfort, as well as being of a most substantial character and fine design. The furnaces cost $400; the necessary out buildings about $650, and these with the extra items, run the cost up to $12,332. The grounds purchased some years ago, made an additional item of $2,000, making the total cost of buildings, grounds and appertenances but a little inexcess of $14.300.

We had the pleasure of inspecting the building on Monday, in company with the members of the School Board, and it certainly seems that the money paid out on the enterprise was well expended.

Entering at the main door, the visitor is ushered into a spacious vestibule. On the front side are the two rooms for the pupils in the primary grades. These pupils are taught by Miss Rush and Miss Ford. The south-west room on the same floor is used for pupils in the intermediate grade, and is taught by Miss Zeigler.

On the second floor, the north room has been assigned to pupils in the intermediate grade, taught by Mrs. Thomas. The south-east room is used by the High School pupils, and is in charge of Prof. Seiler and Miss Murphy. Each room is provided with a closet in which the children may hang up their hats and clothing, while the High School room is provided, in addition to this, with a roomy recitation room for the hearing of classes.

The entire building is heated with hot air furnished from the basement by two of Boynton's patent furnaces, which were given an award at the Centennial.

It is the intention of the members of the school board to enclose the entire grounds with a suitable fence next summer and also to gravel the walks and provide a reservoir for water to be used in case of fire and for general purposes. In addition to the rooms in the High School building, there is the Ward School in the northern part of town, taught by Miss McTighe and Miss Clark. It is contemplated to construct a similar building to the north Ward School near the Eel River depot, next summer, so that all parts of town may enjoy equal advantages.

The salary of the Superintendent has been fixed for this year at $1,050 per annum, that of Mrs. Thomas at $40 per month, and the salaries of all others at $35 per month.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 11, 1876.

DEAR COURIER.—Winter has arrived punctually with December, and old Boreas had a physic last night, in a storm of wind that made everything groan. This morning frosty breaths, red noses, gloved hands, overcoats, buckwheat-cakes and, we s'ppose, "hot drinks" are in order. The shivering tramp and the fashionable belle, each seek a warmer atmosphere than the wind affords and thus extremes do meet. There is plenty to write about in these terrible times, the only difficulty being to sift out that from the great mass of chaff that will prove interesting to the general reader. I saw a newspaper correspondent set down the other day and write a whole column about a French quotation some one used the House, yet you might read it a hundred times and get little news or information out of it. One should write for the benefit of their readers and not for themselves. American life is not stupified or devoid of that element of romance which beguiles and interests. There is enough raw material to be found every day in the public prints to stock a dozen sensational novels. The burning of the Brooklyn theater in which over three hundred lives were lost, the other day, gives one little episode on which a volume might might be written. Miss Colfax and the lost Murdoch going on with their parts after the fire was discovered, then clasping each others hands, and walking calmly down to the foot-lights, calling upon the audience not to be frightened, and holding their positions until the roaring sea of flames scorched their cheeks, and the audience had fled—is not this a scene as heroic as any in history, worthy to be preserved with the picture of that pilot standing at his wheel amidst the flames, and turning his boat's prow towards the shore? Or if you want something in the way of a checkered life read about the enamored gardner in Denver, who, after being deceived by his wife, and rejected by another woman, turned hermit, took to liquor and finally to strychnine. Here is another about a beautiful young Morman lass in a hair store at St. Lake, who fell in love with her gentile employer, has her face slaped by her Morman brother, and finally elopes with the young man. There is a case of a railroad official in Kansas City, whose wife flirted with the boss of a shirt factory, the husband became jealous and indignant, poor fool; the wife made a scene; the shirtist left town the wife coaxed her husband to go east and find work, and build her a new home; and in his absence the the playful festive lady gets a divorce through her lawyer, and now the shirt factor is in imminent danger of being either killed or married. Here is a solder in Wheeling, who sues out a writ of "habeas corpus" for the remains of his sister, a nun, in order to bury her where he pleases, and not where the Bishop says they must lie. Whoever says this is a dull country had better subscribe for a western paper, price $2 a year. But this is not giving you much news from the capital.

THE OPENING OF CONGRESS.

The second session of the forty-fourth Congress opened last Monday. Washington awoke and rubed its eyes with a sensation of a peculiar nature, a feeling, as it were, as if something out of the general order of things was about to transpire. Business men hurried to their work, wearing encouraging smiles, which seemed to say, "Ah, the dull yoke of times is about to be broken off. Congress meets to-day and business will move once more." Politicians hurriedly bolted their breakfasts, rushed from their hotels and boarding places, and turned with hastening footsteps toward the capital, where in a short time the stars and stripes would float proudly upon the breeze from the roofs on each side of the dome. As some may not know, perhaps it would be proper to say that the flag is always raised on the flagstaff over each House as soon as they commence, and taken down when they adjourn, each day they meet, and a golden eagel, mounted on a perch, is placed beneath the Speaker each time he takes his seat from day to day. By ten o'clock Pennsylvania avenue was crowded with people, all hurrying in the same direction, while from side streets streams of people flowed like rivulets from the mountains, mingling with the human tide that hurried and jostled against each other in their eagerness to gain admission to the capital. Among them might be seen the portly, grey-haired Senator, whose face wore a look of expectancy and seemed to denote that the time for real work was at hand. His pockets were bursting with documents and papers, and as he strode along hurried in deep thought, one would almost suppose that the cares of the world rested upon his broad shoulders. As he mingled and disappeared among the way-farers, another smiling Representative appeared, wearing upon the lapel of his coat, a bouquet, the gift no doubt of the pretty but cheaply clad maiden who walks at his side, and as they pass along, a sad story is gleaned from her eyes as she tremblingly asks, that her case be not forgotten, that he will procure her a long promised situation. Next comes the young male aspirant for a clerkship. Flashily dressed and with evenly divided hair, he twists the first crop of a pale mustache with the kid gloved fingers of his left hand, while with his right hand he flourishes a twenty-five cent cane, and his looks seem to say, "I'm here and certain of success." This same young man several months hence, will be arranged in shabby clothing, drooping mustache, dull eyes, while heavy weary sighs will escape his thin lips, as he says, "Well, if I had money enough to get home with, I'd leave to-morrow. Each day I have been to see Senator ———, and thus far have accomplished nothing." Thus it is, thousands of applicants in town all the time, living in a vain hope which pays them nothing, while at the same time they might be profitably engaged. Observing all these things and moralizing accordingly, I reach the capital. As you pass through the Rotunda many improvements are noticeable, made during vacation. Pictures retouched, new coatings of paint here and there, and the usually sleepy police man seems to have awakened and attending to his duties. The halls, corriders and nooks are crowded, pages rush to and fro, messengers arrive and depart, doors slam, people laugh, and a steady tide of humanity ebbs and flows between the Senate and House. I go with the former for a few minutes to take a bird's eye vew of the Solons of the Senate. They come in slowly and there is very little bustle about the hall Everybody appeared to be in the best of spirits and perfect good feeling prevailed. Noon being at hand there was an air of expectancy among the spectators who had by this time filled the galleries, and all eyes turned towards the clock. Suddenly there was a pause the gavel fell upon the Presidents desk, and after prayer the Vice President declared the Senate open.

But I was anxious to get to the House as a new offices was to be installed. To go from the Senate to the House is like going from church to a corn husking, from a quiet, reserved, digified body to one where the loudest voice is the best man, where confusion is a characteristic and actively the main feature. The clerk called the House to order a few minutes before twelve, when Gen. Banks got the floor and made an effort to have the new member from Colorado sworn in. This was objected to, and sparing commenced and at one time it looked as if the day would be occupied fillibustering. After a roll call or two, a decision was reached that the clerk could not swear in a member from a new state. Then Mr. Cox arose and nominated Samuel J. Rundall, of Penn. for speaker. Mr. Garfield being nominated by the Republicans. Randall was elected and escorted to the chair, when he made a brief speech, the last sentence of which, "remember that we are American citizens with a country to save which may be lost if unauthorized and unconstitutional acts of executive officers be not frowned down at once with relentless and unsparing condemnation," being loudly applauded. The Presidential question is still the subject of much comment. The Tilden elector from Oregon, check-mates the Republicans and they are far from pleased. This gives Tilden and Hendricks 185 votes, certified to by Governors. The Republicans have claimed all along that none but electors certified to by the respective Governors of states would be counted. Now, however, they are backing down from that position since the Gov. of Oregon has certified to a Democratic elector. If they go behind a Governors certificate, then it will give the Democrats an opportunity to go behind the Returning Boards of the Southern States, just what they want. The Reps. heap censure upon Gov. Grover, of Oregon, for his acting and yet are going for Gov. Hardin, of Missouri, for not doing the same thing in the case of a Republican elector

I met Prosecutor elect, Baxter, the other day, who is still on duty here, and will doubtless remain for some time.

Mr. H. J. Long has obtained a good position in the Government Printing Office, a position of which he is well worthy.

TOM.

To Parents.

Parents of school children can do much for the good of the schools by requiring their children to come home for their dinners. Two hours should be sufficient time for that purpose.

M. SEILER, Supt.

HOW JERRY COUNTED TURKEYS.

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the room,
From the floor to the ceiling, were shadows and gloom,
In a snug little house near to good Boston town,
Just close to where Malden road winds its way down.
Jerry's wife was at work, waiting Jerry's return
From his trip to the town, whence the news she could learn;
For Jerry had gone, as his wont at such times,
To raffle for poultry and hazard his dimes.
'Twas late and 'twas cold—Jerry's wife was provoked,
And all her [illegible] for sprees she invoked—
Excepting, indeed, had he happened to win
A fine lot of turkeys and brought them all in.
She had stuffed both the stockings, hung slyly with care—
For Jerry's two boys looked for Santa Claus there—
Which said boys, being twins, were all snug in their beds,
Both down with the measles, with pains in their heads.
There she sat in her gown, with a bowl in her lap,
And preparing the gruel for each sick little chap,
By a very dim light—for the candles were froze,
And one of them sputtering up to its nose.
'Twas a true Eastern winter, when ponds are all still,
And Brighton road lonely and Malden road chill,
A poor draught up the chimney, the fire burning blue,
Using plenty of coal and poor heat giving, too,
On this very cold night, when the winds were at war
And snow-flakes were drifting from dull clouds afar.
She had just then concluded to hazard a nap,
And was just cross enough to give some one a rap,
When a rap at the door, and a foot-stamping clatter,
Called her down to the gate to see what was the matter.
'Way from the kitchen she flew like a flash,
With the gruel put by with an ill-natured dash,
When what to her half-sleepy eyes should appear,
But a man on the step, with a stutter and leer.
She shielded her lamp from the soft flakes of snow,
And, casting her eyes on the object below,
Found a smart little man, without satchel or trunk,
Whom she recognized soon as her Jerry—home drunk.
He was covered with snow from his head to his foot,
And his pants were tucked clumsily into each boot,
And the briar-wood pipe that he held in his teeth
Was turned upside down, with the ashes beneath.
A blue-looking bird on his shoulder was hung,
While a bundle of evergreens next it was slung;
For Jerry, though "full," was decidedly merry,
With his face like a full moon, his nose like a berry.
His queer little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
As her Jerry proceeded his trophies to show,
And the boy took the horse, which stood still at the door,
As often the sleepy lad had done before,
"My darling," said Jerry, "you see, I've come home—
You wanted a Christmas, and I've brought you some—
I'd jolly good luck, and like all loving men,
Instead of one turkey, my dear, I've brought ten."
"Ten turkeys, you brute—ten drinks you must mean—
You've only won one, as is plain to be seen;
You're drunk as a fool—you're as full as a tick,
Leaving me all alone, with both the boys sick."
Now Jerry was jolly, but dreading a squall,
Stopped to argue the point with his wife in the hall:
"My love," stuttered he, "you are such a good nurse,
That, if I had the measles, I'd never grow worse,
When you made the gruel, and watched me by night,
So I knew that the darlings up-stairs were all right.
You've so often told me of a Christian's true mission
To do things in charity, and learn true submission.
That I know you are right—I am drunk—that's no fun;
But I've turkeys enough to give all the folks one.
There's old Mrs. Jones, and there's little Nan Brown—
Just make them both happy by sending one down.
You can hang up the rest; so forgive me, my dear,
When you see all the turkey's I've brought you this year."
The good woman gave in—brushed the snow from his coat,
And loosened the 'kerchief that circled his throat.
As for Jerry, not rife to be caught unawares,
He laughed to himself, and then staggered up-stairs—
Gave a look at the boys, and then tumbled in bed,
With his boots on his feet and his cap on his head.
Mrs. Jerry then searched in the sleigh, all about—
But nothing like turkeys or ducks she found out,
And her bosom with virtuous anger then throbbed,
When she saw that her good-natured man had been robbed.
Up-stairs in a twinkling her nimble feet flew,
And her look, like the one bird, was verging on blue.
"Jerry, Jerry, wake up—you've been robbed on the way!
There's not even a tail-feather left in the sleigh!
Where can you have stopped, and with whom have you been?
You're the drunkest and stupidest fool to be seen!"
Jerry's look was a study—with air most perplexed—
Which angered his wife, who was fearfully "vexed."
He sat up in the bed, and with stutter and wink,
Seemed to settle his brain to composedly think.
"My dear, don't you scold, and I'll prove to you now,
Where the turkeys have gone, and I'll just tell you how."
"You lost them, you fool! You're a shame and a sin—You've been drinking all day, down at Harry Smith's inn."
"No, Mary, my darling, I fell down in the snow,
While waiting for Thomas—he drove very slow.
My dear, when I fell, the turkey fell, too,
So I picked myself up, and kept staggering thro'.
I fell down just nine times, and each time I was down
I picked up a turkey—my dear don't you frown—
You see, Mary, love, that my count is right, then—
For the one that you have—and the others make ten."

'Twas no use to quarrel. Mrs. Jerry was floored.
Jerry turned on his side, gave a grunt, and then snored.

THE BELL SPRITE.

How the bells did ring! One would have supposed they had a fit or had gone mad, if everybody hadn't known what they were making such a noise about. First one, then the other, and then all together; and not in one church, but in all the churches, for it was Christmas day morning. But when the chimes began it was lovelier and brighter and more merry than ever; little May Nelson thought so, as a sweet, old-fashioned hymn came floating out in the clear, still air from the belfry of the church in the next street. She was lying on a bed in such a poor, little room. There were only two really bright things in it—the sunshine on the floor, and her own sweet, bright, little face.

"I'm so glad the sun is shining," she said. "I don't feel half so lonely when you're gone if the sun shines, mother."

Mrs. Nelson was putting on a bonnet and shawl as May spoke, and she turned round, showing a kind, pleasant face, but one that looked tired and thin, and said, as she went to the side of the bed and leaned over to kiss her:

"I'm glad it shines, too, darling; and I wish I could make this a real shiny Christmas for you all day long."

"Why, so you have, mother," said May, putting two little, thin arms round her neck. "It's a lovely Christmas, I'm sure; so much jollier than it was last year, 'cause I can sit up while you're gone. And then, I've got so much this year—grapes and oranges and two books. There's just two things I want, mother."

"What, dear? Hurry, I'm late now to do Mrs. Johnson's hair, I'm afraid."

"You to stay home all day; an' something live to stay home when you can't."

"What would become of all the heads if I should stay home? And where would the bread and butter come from? But perhaps I can get a kitten for you somewhere."

"Oh! splendid!" And May almost jumped. But she didn't, because she couldn't—she had some trouble with the spine. So her mother kissed her, and went out to her long day's work of hair-dressing at ever so many houses, and May was all alone. She lay quite still for a little while, listening to the bells that were still chiming. And, when they stopped, she thought how nice it was to have two new books, and such a nice, warm room to be in; and not to be like some poor little newsboys she had been reading about, who had to sleep in areas or any old box they could find. Presently, a voice right in her ear said: "Isn't it jolly, though?" She turned her head, and there, sitting on her pillow, was the oddest little man, just about as long as my hand, dressed in a suit of gray, with slashed sleeves, where blue showed through, and a little gold-colored cap on his head. There he sat, as quiet as could be, and with such a merry, kind face—sort of old, and yet it wasn't, either.

"How do you do?" he said, as May looked round.

"Who in the world are you?" she said. "You can't be Santa Claus. You ain't big enough."

"Not a bit of it," laughed the elf. "I'm the Bell Sprite. I come, I go here, there, everywhere. Nobody sees me or hears me; they only feel me. I get into people's hearts, whether they will or no. Sometimes it's hard digging; but I do get in, if I keep at it long enough. But I love the hearts best that are wide open for me, like yours—pleasant kind of hearts that see things right. Dear! dear! I've had a dreadful time in the next street digging into some children's hearts who squabbled in a shocking way over their presents. I declare I'm tired out!" And he put on a comical look of despair.

"Why, how do you get round?" said May.

"I go anywhere where the sound of any bell goes; no matter where. Oh! I've seen lots of things in my time."

"Oh! do tell me about 'em."

"Ho! ho!" laughed the elf. "Why, I never could get through. I've lived always—long before there were any bells. But stay!" and he put his finger to his forehead, and then nodded his head in a knowing way. "I'll tell you one story—one I'm fond of myself."

"Oh! do," said May, settling herself in bed.

"Let me see," said the Bell Sprite, "this is what they call Centennial year. What a fuss the people do make about it, to be sure! A century! Why, it's nothing. I'll go further back than that for you, and tell you of a Christmas day, more than 200 years ago. It was down near the sea, in what is now Maine. But the only name the place that I'm going to tell you about had then was 'The Garrison House.' There ruled at that time in England the Puritan, Oliver Cromwell, who thought he was doing the very best thing for his country when he cut off the head of the King, Charles I.; and then he exiled a great many friends of the dead King, who were called cavaliers. One colony landed at Boston. But there were so many Puritans there that they were afraid to stay there; and so they went further eastward along the coast to the Spanish colony. And there they were afraid to keep them, because they did not dare to displease Cromwell; so the poor people had to go still further into the wilderness.

"Fortunately, it was spring, and growing warmer every day, and at last they made a stop at the top of a high hill, and decided to build a house. These men were not used to working and cutting down trees, and their wives did not know how to cook their food at first, and, in the learning, they wasted a great deal of precious food, because it often wasn't fit to eat and had to be thrown away. So the supplies began to get low before the house was finished. They cut down the largest trees they could find, and squared them off, and then laid them one upon another, with joints into each other at the corners. That we call dove-tailing. And they built the upper story of the house to project over the lower part. In the floor they made holes to put the barrels of muskets through, so they could shoot Indians or wild animals, if they came close to the house. For the country was full of Indians then, and they hated the white people, who came and took their land, and never asked them whether they were willing or not. And so they burned the houses and killed the white men and their wives and little children whenever they found the chance to do so. And when the house was built, the men drove trees into the ground closely together around it, to make a stockade. And by that time winter had come, and the different families, who had been living in little huts made of birch-bark during the warm weather, were all very glad to go into it to live, and to have a real roof over their heads once more.

"There were only two children in the house—Eleanor and Roland Plaisted. They were 8 and 10 years old. Roland was the eldest, and took great care of his little sister. In the summer they hadn't minded much being in a strange, wild country; for they had played in the forest, all day long, when the men had been cutting the trees, or they had made ships of sheets of birch-bark, and put on acorns for passengers, and sent them sailing down the little river. Sometimes they kept right side up till they were out of sight, and sometimes they tipped over right away. But it was all great fun until winter came; and then, when they were shut up in the little rooms, they didn't like it at all. The rooms were so low that their father could only just stand up in them, and then his head nearly touched the ceiling; and when he went through the doorways he had to bend way, way down, for fear of hitting his head. The children longed for the great hall at Plaisted Grange, that had been such a fine place to play in; and for the fire-place, with a settle on each side, where they had sat on winter evenings with old Ralph, the gamekeeper. They had a fire, of course, because there was such a lot of wood to burn; but the fireplace was a little one, and the rooms were very small and very full of people. And there was no hall at all; for the space at the head and foot of the stairs was not nearly so large as the landing by the window on the staircase at home. They were pinched and cold, too, for their clothes had not been made to wear in such a cold climate, and, besides, they were nearly worn out. Roland's fine black-velvet suit was torn and dirty, and nearly all the nap was worn off the velvet; and Eleanor's pretty, quilted satin petticoat was frayed and torn, too, and her bodice was sadly soiled, which distressed her very much, for she was a neat little girl. Their shoes had been gone long before, and their hair was not kept in the beautiful, long curls that it had been in England. It was matted and tangled—Roland's as well as his sister's; and his mamma would not cut it off, because she said he would look like a 'Roundhead' then. So it came to be the day before Christmas; and it was very, very cold and gloomy, and the snow lay very deep about the house. The women were all busy with the loom in one of the chambers, trying to weave some cloth, to make some clothes for themselves and for their husbands and children. The men sat huddled gloomily over the fire, and talked in a dreary way of their sad condition; for their stock of food was almost gone, and the snow was so deep that they were afraid to try to get to the Spanish colony for help. And they were afraid of the Indians besides. As they talked, one of the men said:

"'This is the day before Christmas. I had well-nigh forgotten it.'

"'Ay, so had we all, Squire,' said another. And then, as he took Eleanor on his knee, he said: 'There can be no holidays, this year—no maskers and no yule log, not even a Christmas carol from the waits, my little lassie. There is no Christmas here.'

"'I know that,' said Eleanor. 'But mamma told me we could keep Christmas in our hearts; for Jesus was born to help everybody to be good, even in a cold land like this, even if we could not be merry.'

"'Bless thy sweet heart!' said the man, 'and thy mother, too; for,' he added, turning to the men, 'sweet Mistress Plaisted has a brave heart under her bodice, and it ill becomes us to sit crooning over the fire like old beldames when her gentle hands hold the tough flax for us, and she alone of us all remembers the Christmas-tide in the spirit of it. Who will come with me to try for a shot at the birds we saw but now flying just without the stockade?'

"So the children were left alone; and they sat down by the hearth, made of square, red tiles, and huddled as close to the fire as they could. 'What makes everybody so cross, to-day, Rolly?' said Eleanor, spreading her hands over the fire. 'Nobody is pleasant now, as they used to be in the summer-time in the wood.'

"'It isn't cross, dear Nelly,' said her brother. 'But don't you know they are all frightened, lest we would starve? The grain is almost gone, and we have no more to make bread.'

"'Gone! Rolly, there was so much of it, too!'

"'Yes, I know. But Clifford said some strange animal must have burrowed up and carried it off; for there is a hole in the ground in the cellar.'

"'Oh! what shall we do? It will be dreadful to starve'—and Nelly began to cry softly—'and to starve on Christmas day, of all the days!'

"'Oh! we shall not starve to-morrow, only the meat is all gone. I heard them whispering about it to-day; and mamma does not know that, and you must not tell, Nelly.'

"Eleanor looked into the fire for a few minutes, and then said: 'And can we do nothing to help, brother?'

"'I don't know, I'm sure. I wish we could cheer them up.'

"'We might eat only a very, very little.'

"'That would only make them all sorry.'

"'Oh!' said Roland, 'it makes me sorry, too, when I think of the good times we had at home, two years ago, and to think there will be no joy bells, to-morrow. That makes mamma sad, I know.'

"And then Roland began to tell his sister about the times they had at home, for she had been so very little when they had last kept the holidays that she couldn't remember anything about it, for that had been two years before. The last Christmas in England, they had been hiding away in the house of a Puritan friend from the soldiers. And Roland told his sister how the bells rang in the morning, and the village children sang a carol under the windows, and of how mother had loved to hear it.

"Suddenly Eleanor jumped and clapped her hands. 'Why can't we sing a carol out by the stairs in the morning?'

"'So we can, if you know one,' said Roland.

"'I do know part of one, and you can tell me the rest; and then we can sing it, to-morrow morning, while it is yet quite dark.'

"'I never thought of that,' said Nelly, 'Oh! wait, though. I have something that will do. See!' And she opened a tiny, little cupboard and took out a little triangle.

"'Why!' said Roland. 'Where did it come from? It's the one I had from the maskers, so long ago.'

"'Mamma found it at the bottom of the old chest, yesterday; and I was going to give it to you, to-morrow.'

"'It will do nicely,' said Roland, and he struck it. 'Ting, tang, tong' rang out; and the children smothered it in Nelly's petticoat for fear the sound should betray their secret. But I heard it, and was there in a second. It sounded like a bell; and when I got there and found it a mistake I stayed, because I knew they meant it for a bell. Oh! how blue and cold those dear children were! It makes me shiver when I think of it.

"'Squire Plaisted and his wife talked a long time, that night, and Roland heard his father say that somebody must have courage on the morrow to try to reach the Spanish colony and get help from them, or they should surely starve. 'But,' he said, 'the men are all afraid of getting lost in the forest and perishing in the snow, and I must go myself. If we could but shoot some game, it would be a blessing; for the meat we had is spoiled, you know.'

"'Yes,' said his wife, 'I know it. But do not despair. The morrow is Christmas day, and it may bring us good cheer.'

"Scarcely the faintest streak of dawn was in the sky when the two children crept out on to the landing in the staircase; and presently all the people in the house thought they were dreaming of home and the Christmas carol. But it wasn't a dream, for the little triangle, under Roland's vigorous strokes, pealed away, as hard as ever it could, and two sweet little voices sang, in the darkness and the cold in the solitary house in the wilderness, the sweet old carol:

> 'God rest you merry gentlemen;
> Let nothing you dismay,
> For Jesus Christ our Savior
> Was born upon this day,
> To save us all from Satan's power
> When we were gone astray,
> Oh! tidings of comfort and joy,
> For Jesus Christ our Savior
> Was born on Christmas day.'

"Everybody in the house listened, and tears stood in some eyes as the children sang all the sweet verses that they had heard often before at home. And when they stopped, a voice down-stairs cried: 'A merry Christmas, brave little ones. Nothing shall dismay us, and I, for one, will start for the Spanish colony as soon as it is light!' 'And I!' 'And I!' came from other rooms. And so, helped by the little children, they started off.

"Three of the men stayed, and all the women; and when they were gone those that were left felt very sad, because it was a hard journey through the snow and the wild forest. In the middle of the day the children were playing together in the room up-stairs, where the muskets were kept in a rack; and presently Roland heard a strange rubbing and sniffing at the side of the house under them. He looked out of the window, and saw that the gate of the stockade was open, and that there were tracks in the snow that he knew very well. It wasn't Indians; but it was a big, black bear. Roland knew if he could only kill that bear they would have meat for some time; and he determined to try to kill it himself, because he was afraid if he ran to call one of the men that the bear would go away. He didn't dare to fire without telling Eleanor what it was, for she was in constant terror of Indians; so he whispered to her softly that he was going to try to shoot a bear, and then he very softly pulled a plug out of one of the holes in the floor, and, looking through, saw the bear just underneath. Very quickly and very softly he took a gun from the rack, where they always stood loaded, and put it carefully into the hole; but, in spite of all his care, he made a little noise, and Master Bruin looked up just as Roland pulled the trigger. As it happened, nearly the whole charge went into his eye, and with one long, horrible howl, the bear dropped dead, and the snow round him was covered with blood.

"Such a fright as the garrison had! The men drew their pistols and ran for their guns, not knowing what had happened. The women ran to find the children; and there stood Roland, as proud as a king, with such a color in his pale cheeks as hadn't been seen for many a day. How they praised and petted him I could never tell you, nor of how they enjoyed their famous dinner of bear-steak, for one would have to be as hungry as they were to know how they did enjoy it. Best of all, that very night, the men who had gone to the other colony came back safe and sound, with plenty of provisions for the cold months before them. They had met messengers coming to them on the way, and so it was a right 'merry Christmas,' after all. Such a capital rug as that bear-skin made for the children to lie on by the fire, and it was always called Roland's bear."

"There," said the elf, folding his arms and twinkling his bright little eyes, "isn't that a good story?"

"Splendid," said May. "How I wish I could have given 'em some of these oranges, too. I've got such a lot. But what became of 'em? Did they ever go back to England?"

"No, they never did. They grew to love the old Garrison House and to feel that it was home; and by-and-by others were built, and there was a colony. And both Eleanor and Roland grew up and married and died, leaving ever so many children and grandchildren. And, come to think of it," added the elf, thoughtfully, "it was two of Roland's grandchildren who squabbled so this morning; and you, Miss May, are very like your grandmother Eleanor, with ever so many 'greats' before it."

"Was she my grandmother?" said May, opening her eyes very wide.

"Your very own. Way back, to be sure; but still yours," said the elf.

"And the old house, did it fall down or burn down?"

"Not a bit of it. There it stands to this very day; very old and decayed outside, but with the logs almost as sound and true as when they were laid more than 200 years ago. And you may see for yourself if you ever go to York, in Maine."

"But I never shall," said May. "I can't get up."

"We'll see," said the elf. And he passed his hand to the back of her head, and it felt cold on her neck. He mumbled something to himself, gave a funny little sniff, and was gone, crying: "Good-by, till next year."

But as he stood for a minute, looking in her face, hair began to grow on it, and he grew bigger and bigger, and his eyes grew bigger, too, and his mouth disappeared, and his nose grew out to be—that of the most cunning Scotch terrier that was ever born. May gazed at him, rubbed her eyes, said, "Oh! thank you, sir!" and opened them wide, to see her mother standing beside her, laughing.

"Oh! how you jumped when he put his cold nose on your neck. See what a present you have to-day. John, the stableman sent it to you."

"Oh! dear doggie," said May. "But it was the Bell Sprite, mother. And why are you home now?"

"Mrs. Johnson didn't need me, after all. So here we are, to eat our Christmas dinner together."

"And a fairy came and told me a lovely story, mother," said May.

"Did it! Tell it to me, after dinner."

Now, that was a kind of mother worth having. She never made fun of fairies. It's really astonishing how much some people don't know, and how they don't believe in fairies or elves. If they did believe in them, the fairies would tell them stories, too. And they never will until they do.

The London Economist notices as a remarkable fact that the American Government has, directly or indirectly, bought £200,000 of silver in the London market for the purpose of coining, and shows that the export of silver from the United States to England has steadily decreased since 1874.

Sings Like a Bird.—The delightful effects of this new principle, Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. As the saliva in the mouth acts on the Globule a gas is generated which soothes and heals irritation of the throat and lungs, makes the voice clear as a bird, cures Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, and Consumption. Trial Boxes, by mail, 25 cts. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut St. Louis.

A Novel Plan of Dealing with Highwaymen.

The Chicago Tribune of a recent date says: "Quite a number of people have been stopped recently in well-lighted and well-traveled neighborhoods, and compelled to give up what money and valuables they had, at the solicitation of two or three highwaymen, who pointed pistols at them by way of suggestion. This class of gentry are hard to catch, since they never appear in the same vicinity twice. A novel plan, however, has been devised, which promises to be successful, although it may be attended with the shedding of blood. It has been called 'trolling.' Fifteen or twenty of the best-looking patrolmen are to be dressed like business men, and scattered through the localities where people live who are apt to be attacked for their wealth. They will walk along quietly, assume to be under the influence of liquor if occasion requires it, and wait to be called upon to stand and deliver. They will deliver lead, not lucre, for the orders say 'Shoot if the highwaymen present revolvers.' To guard against being overpowered, two officers will travel together—not side by side, but one will be a half-block or a block behind, with overshoes on, so that his footsteps cannot be heard. This scheme will undoubtedly work well, and, as not over half a dozen men are doing this Claude Duval business, it cannot be long before they are either in the County Jail or in the Potter's Field. Assistant Superintendent Dixon, who is autho of this plan, is confident of its success, and it is to be hoped that he will not be disappointed. The only way to get rid of the foot-pad, who is a meaner thief than a burglar, is to shoot him on sight. Public sentiment would justify the officers who do it, and a gold-headed cane would perhaps be presented the officer who kills the first one."

Traveled Far Enough.

A good story is told of a tramp who, some months ago, hailed from the North, and ahead of him came the report of his unmitigated cheek in his manner of bumming along the road. On arriving at a station he would call up every lounger and fellow-passenger, and order the drinks or cigars for all hands. After the usual ceremony of mustache-wiping, etc., he would wink at the barkeeper and say, "That's on me." The astonished cocktail-diluter would naturally inquire, "Who in the thunder are you?" The bummer would lay one hand on his revolver and make the rather heavy statement, "My name is Poker Bill. I have traveled all the way from Omaha on this." That was the news the stage-drivers imparted at a place not a great way from Independence, and a few days later along came the irrepressible individual from Omaha. The proprietor of the station had been forewarned, but he set up the refreshments, and the same performance above described was enacted until "Poker Bill" started to tell how he had traveled all the way from Omaha, when he suddenly found himself looking down the muzzle of a huge Colt's pistol in the hands of the barkeeper, who quietly informed the bummer that he had traveled far enough. "Poker Bill" did not even demur, but paid his bill like a little man, remarking something about the people being so particular about trifles.—Mayo (Cal.) Independent.

Payne's Flame.

It is not perhaps generally known, says the St. Louis Republican, that the author of "Home, Sweet Home," was madly in love with Miss Maria Mayo, of Richmond, Va., afterward Mrs. Gen. Winfield Scott. Miss Mayo was a famous belle, and as remarkable for her wit as for her beauty. Poor Payne was not the only one who had laid his heart at her feet and had to take it up again; but he probably suffered more from his disappointment than the rest of the rejected lovers. When all hope of winning the fair prize was abandoned, he went abroad never to return; and there is no doubt that the corroding sorrow hastened him to the grave he found in a foreign land. The tradition in Richmond is that Scott addressed Miss Mayo when he was only a Captain in the army, and received a prompt dismissal. He repeated the experiment when a Major, but with no better success. The third time he proposed he wore the epaulettes of a General, and then was accepted. A friend of the lady asked her why she changed her mind. The reply was, "In my estimation there is a vast difference between Captain or even Major Scott and General Scott."

An Unfortunate Wise Man.

A gentleman made application for a school in Maine, and presented himself to the board for examination as to his qualifications. Arithmetical questions were proposed. The teacher stumbled and halted, but finally made out to cipher out the answers. Said the committeeman: "Can you locate Boston?" He answered: "I know all about it, probably, just as well as you do; have heard of the place several times, but can't, somehow or other, seem to locate it." With a view to helping him out, the committeeman said: "It is the capital of some State, is it not?" "Yes; I believe it is." "What State?" "Well, I know, probably, as well as you do what State Boston is the capital of, but, you see, I haven't got the flow of language to express it."—New English Journal of Education.

A tourist describes the sale of snails in the town of Tivoli, near Rome, as a source of much profit to the peasants of that district in rainy weather, when this curious edible is abundant in the olive groves. The flavor is pronounced delicious, more so than scollops or oysters. When artistically cooked, the reluctant foreigner does not long decline this much-despised crustacea. The cooked snail is further said to possess the quality of restoring tone to the coating of the stomach when badly injured by strong drink.

Cleaning machinery in motion is described by the inspectors of English factories as "continuing to lead to very numerous and painful mutilations." In the half year ending April 30, 1876, 1 persons were killed in England through factory accidents alone; 488 amputations were necessary; there were 260 fractures of limbs or bones, and 2,193 other injuries in factories; in all, 2,497 males and 769 females.

THE CRITICS.

So, child, you are driving the turkeys home,
And a chase you've had for 'em, far and wide;
Never such creatures as they to roam,
Miles away o'er the country-side.
I say that a turkey is Freedom's bird,
For it certainly likes a free foot best
Of all the fowls I have ever heard
Any one tell of, East or West.

The other day, when I went to mill,
Who but the biggest gobbler there
Should meet me, strutting under the hill,
As though he had bidden good-by to care,
And set on his travels to see the world.
What do you think of him, Mary Jane?
A cynical fellow—his lip is curled,
And he doesn't admire Miranda's rain.

He'll make a dinner fit for a king;
And now that I think of it, Christmas day,
When the church bells ring and the children sing,
Is only a bit of a week away.
Lassie, it's strange how the time goes round
When a man has turned his fiftieth year;
The days have in them a deeper sound—
The festal days, with their tones of cheer.

You see, the lads that we used to know
Are grown, like us, into gray-haired men,
Grizzled and tough, who to and fro
Over this queer old world have been.
Some that we loved in our early time
Are lying still in a narrow bed,
And many a winter's frosty rime
Is over the stones at their feet and head."

"But, father, the turkeys, we came to choose."
You're right, my girl; and there's little sense
That a man like me should the daylight lose
In moralizing across a fence.
That foremost bird is the bird for me;
The next, he goes to the parson's gate;
And the rest for the market-day must be Prepared—and I hope they are not too late.

And, Molly, you'll look that the children come,
All of them, little and big, to stay,
And a dinner of dinners to eat at home,
With father and mother on Christmas day.
And though the weather be foul or fair,
'Tis best to enjoy it all we can;
That's been the rule of the turkeys there,
And that, on the whole, is the rule for man.
—Harper's Bazar.

Pith and Point.

A motto for young lovers—So-fa and no father.

Long-range practice—Twenty years' experience as a cook.

All men are not homeless, but some men are home less than others.

A lady writes about the "watery, sober moon," when really the moon is full.

Shakspeare spoke of "the sleep of winter." But he didn't take much account of the snower.

"A cast-iron grandmother" is not a term of reproach, but only a new machine for darning stockings.

The agriculturist of the Graphic informs the farming public that now is the time to graft whiffletrees.

"Why," asks an English review, "is the British lion so afraid of having his toes stepped upon?" Because he once had a unicorn on them.

Mamma—"Annie, how came those apples to be bitten in this way?" Annie—"Perhaps, mamma, they have been frost-bitten; you know it was so cold last night."

Letting well alone: "Oh, Mary, the well's got broke, and we can't get no water; and oh, hain't it prime! Father says as p'raps we shan't 'ave to wash for a fortnight."

The man who manages a hand-car cannot be called a chief engineer, and if you style him a hand-car chief he might be confounded with the wipers of the locomotives.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Stable-keeper—"By the way, shall I put in an extra buffalo?" English blood—"Couldn't you let me 'ave an 'orse, you know? Er-er rather not drive a buffalo first time, you know."—Omaha Herald.

"I'll tell you why I'm Russian things as I am," says the Czar; "those heathenish Turks keep killing off Christians in cold blood every Dey, and by all the Great Powers at once, I ask, Ottoman to stand it?"

Student, to V. P.—"Professor, I'd like to have a leave of absence. I want to go home to attend the funeral of a cousin." V. P. (reluctantly)—"Well, you may go, I suppose, but I wish it was a nearer relative."

Somebody remarks that young ladies look upon a boy as a nuisance until he is past the age of 16, when he generally doubles up in value each year until, like a colored meerschaum pipe, he is priceless.—Buffalo Express.

Tim—"An' is it me health ye'd be asking afther? Sure, an' it's half dead I am, coming down to work in all that rain this mornin'." Mike—"Divil a bit did ye, Tim. By the hokey, I come down in part of it myself."

Four hundred head of cattle, newly slaughtered, were sent to England yesterday. They went by steer-age, of course.—New York Commercial. Entirely wrong. They were hung in the rigging. Entered "Beef-o'er the mast," you know.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

In the hard-drinking days an old Scotch laird and his eldest son were riding home together from a hospitable gathering. Their ride for a while was silent, but at last the son said: "Feyther, I wish ye was deid." The old man rather sadly replied: "Well, laddie, I hae aften thought that of my feyther, but I never hae the impudence to say't."

The Boston Transcript says that not long since Prof. Longfellow had a call from a couple of Englishmen, one of whom, on meeting the poet, remarked: "Aw—you don't—aw—have any ruins—aw—in your country, and so we have come to see you—aw." Mr. Longfellow quietly replied that he was "Quite a ruin, quite a ruin."

The following is timely, these dark mornings, when late rising and early breakfasts occasion hazardous haste in fire-making:

> One morning Miss Bridget O'Farrel
> Sphlitted up a petroleum barrel;
> "Now," said she, "I'll have a foine fire;"
> And surely she did,
> For when they found Bid
> She was baked like a brick,
> Only dryer.

"Mamma," said a Vicksburg boy, "is the bad man a hog?" "What do you mean, my son?" "I mean Satan. Is he a hog?" "Well, no; he is generally spoken of as a serpent by Christians, but he is popularly supposed to be without definite form, that is, capable of assuming any shape that might suit his purposes. But why do you ask?" "Because when I was down town yesterday papa got right red in the face and told another man 'if he didn't whip Tom Trotter the devil's a hog.'" "And didn't he do it?" inquired the anxious parent. "N'm, he didn't, but he tried like blazes, and when they wiped the blood off his face he gimme a new ball to tell you he'd fell out of a buggy."

THE NORTH POLE.

Resumé of Arctic Explorations.

[From the Chicago Times.]

The recent return of the steamers Alert and Discovery from a fruitless mission to the frozen region about the North pole seems to call to mind how much treasure has been squandered, how much suffering has been endured, and how many lives have been lost in the vain attempt to penetrate an ocean which nature closed by impassable barriers. Scarcely had Columbus published his account of the discovery of this continent before John Cabot set about finding a way of reaching India by sailing north of the newly-found continent. His first voyage in this direction was made in 1497, and was attended by severe hardships. During the following 300 years some 200 voyages were made by different navigators to the same frozen sea. Great Britain took the lead of the commercial nations in undertaking to find a northwest passage to the Pacific ocean. A reward of £5,000 was offered to the fortunate individual who would sail from sea to sea. Some thirty expeditions have been fitted out by Great Britain alone for the purpose of discovering a northwest passage. The same nation sought to encourage exploration by conferring titles and distinctions on the men who hazarded their lives in the perilous undertaking. Parry, Franklin, Ross, Bock and Richardson were all knighted for the services they were supposed to render their country by the explorations they made in the regions about which we know so little, but of which we know quite enough, after all.

The expedition which attracted the most attention was the one commanded by Sir John Franklin. The two vessels, the Erebus and Terror, which conveyed his party, left England May 24, 1845, but never returned. The loss of the brave men who constituted this party seemed to stimulate rather than to discourage the spirit of adventure. There were now two things instead of one to find—the lost party and the passage they were to discover. Twenty-one expeditions in all sailed from different countries for the purpose of obtaining information in regard to the fate of Sir John Franklin. Great Britain offered rewards amounting to $20,000 for his discovery, and expended $5,000,000 in the various expeditions sent out. A spirit of rivalry sprang up among the different nations to see which would penetrate the vast frozen sea the greater distance. This spirit was shared by the people of the United States, as was shown by the expeditions of Kane, Hayes, and others.

These expeditions resulted in little else than in demonstrating that there is no passage available for the purpose of navigation, and in obtaining some evidence that there exists an open sea about the North pole. The expedition just returned to England found the best proof against the existence of such a sea. The party which composed it found ice varying from 80 to 150 feet in thickness, and so broken and rugged that a progress of only a mile per day could be made over it. It is to be hoped that the day for Arctic expeditions has passed. It is not possible that any benefits to commerce can result from them, and it is very hard to see in what way science is to be benefited by future Arctic voyages. Had the money that has been spent in fruitless expeditions in the direction of the North pole been employed in stimulating discoveries in practical science, the world might have been better and wiser therefor. Half the people in this country rely on soft coal for fuel, but we have not found out how to burn it without having the best portions of it pass into the air in the shape of soot or unconsumed gas. Botanists inform us that no use has been found for thirty-nine-fortieths of the plants now known to them. We are in comparative ignorance to-day of the science of making steel, and still our civilization largely depends on its manufacture. With so many things to find out, any one of which would be of immense value to the world, we may as well remain awhile in ignorance of some matters pertaining to the polar sea.

A Wonderful Surgical Experiment.

English surgical and physiological students will find in the Gazette des Hopitaux interesting details of an operation of gastrotomy, attended so far with successful results, which has been performed at the Hopital de la Pitie, by Dr. Verneuil. The patient, a lad of 17, had inadvertently swallowed a quantity of the solution of caustic potass. This occurred in February, and, in spite of the most skillful treatment, the constriction at the upper orifice of the esophagus became so complete that death from inanition must inevitably have ensued without an operation, which was accordingly performed on the 26th of July.

The results will be seen from the medical bulletin of the 10th of September, which states that the patient is in good health, remains up all day, and even helps the hospital assistants in their work; he has almost as much strength and energy as he had before the accident. His diet is composed of soups, fine chopped meat, mashed vegetables, and drink, which are injected through a large elastic tube inserted in the incision made in the stomach. Under this treatment he gained upward of ten pounds in weight between the 18th of August and the 14th of September.

At the moment of the injection of food a flow of saliva in the mouth is produced, in the ejection of which a motion curiously resembling the action of chewing is remarked; he can distinguish between warm and cold substances, but otherwise all are indifferent to him. It is stated this is the first time the operation has been successfully performed; the last time it was attempted, but unsuccessfully, was in 1849, by M. Sedillot, Professor of the Faculty of Medicine of Strasburg.—Paris Cor. London Standard.

Queen Victoria and the Emperor of Germany.

I have heard, from a source which I have reason to trust, that the rumor that Queen Victoria had sent an autograph letter to the Emperor of Germany is true. The letter contained an earnest and solemn appeal to the Emperor to use his power and influence to save Europe from the calamity of war. From the same source I have heard that a very remarkable reply has been received by Her Majesty, one not likely to be laid before the English public. In it she is reminded that a few years ago, when Germany was attacked and had to enter upon deadly strife, no such impressive appeal for peace came from Her Majesty, and that the war was then prolonged by the continual supply of strength to France from England—just enough to prolong bloodshed after the hope of successful resistance was passed. However, the Emperor says—if my information be correct—he will not on that account fail to do his utmost to preserve the peace of Europe.—Conway, in the Cincinnati Commercial.

A COLORADO HEROINE.

An Affecting Story of Frontier Life—Mrs. Ostrom's Mournful Bivouac in the Rocky Mountains.

[From the New York World.]

On Friday night of last week, in one of the small parks of Colorado, lying among the mountains on the North Platte, there was a curious scene. There in a place fifteen miles away from the nearest neighbor sat a woman, surrounded by her family of seven children, and watching the dead body of her husband. A large fire which she and her oldest boy, a lad of 14, had built, threw a ghastly glare over the lonely landscape. The broad sky above, and the huge hills around made more intense the sense of desolation and the littleness of humanity, and the murmur of the stream near by and the bark of the fox in the distance were the only utterances of solitude to grief. This woman's story, as told in the Denver Tribune, is one of the most affecting in the strange annals of American pioneer adventure. Her husband, W. H. Ostrom, had come to Colorado from Alabama, and, on account of the depredations of the grasshoppers had not been very prosperous. He had prepared a new home for his family in a park on the North Platte, and set out that morning from Pine Grove gulch for the journey of twenty miles, in a Western wagon drawn by a team of mules, and loaded with his household and his household goods. Toward evening, as he was crossing a small stream at a rough part of the road, one of the mules shied, and the wagon was overturned. It is probable that Ostrom was walking beside it, and flung himself in the way to try and save his wife and children. They were thrown violently out and he was caught under the overturned wagon and borne to the ground with the cross-bar of the wagon-bed across him and a weight of 1,500 pounds crushing him. His terrified wife found him lying in this way, cool and considerate, but very pale. He directed her in her vain efforts to pry the wagon over, and died within five minutes, even while assuring her that he was not dangerously hurt. The oldest boy was on foot, driving a cow, and came up only in time to join his mother in her attempts to release his father's dead body. With true pioneer readiness and sternness the team was unhitched and put to drag off the wagon, the corpse was rolled in a sheet, a fire was built, the mules were corralled, and the widow and orphans sat down in their dismal bivouac. Even when death comes by slow approaches and with fair warning, where the care of anxious friends and the comforts of civilized life mitigate suffering, the loss of a husband and father is a calamity that evokes our sympathy for the afflicted. It is a grief that no condolences can soften, no wealth alleviate, no companionship render endurable. It would be useless, therefore, to dwell upon the terror of death when it struck down the head of a family unexpectedly and violently in a Colorado wilderness, leaving a woman and children desolate, with darkness and the desert about them. We think a picture of this night-watch of Mrs. Ostrom would be as characteristic of a great phase of American life as any scene that the imagination could conceive of. In her bitter experience, giving us a glimpse of the sufferings of the women of the Western frontier, we have something to suggest the trials and labors of all that hardy generation which pushed slowly on from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, before whom the wilderness receded like the horizon. It is the fault of our time to underrate the rough virtues of the pioneers, and forget the value of their achievements. We are losing sight of the romantic and heroic aspects of their life, in the refinements and luxuries of our own. Her story should bring back old memories to those in the heart of civilization, and teach them what they cost. It was not by enchantment that the log cabin was changed to the brown-stone mansion, the homespun dresses to silk, the emigrant wagons to family carriages. The metamorphosis was rapid, but it was the result of the sacrifice and endeavor of ages heaped into a few years. The Colorado woman, sitting all night in her mournful bivouac, with her seven children around and the corpse of her husband just outside of the glare of the fire, stiffening in the frost—this penniless widow a rousing herself in the morning, taking the dead body on the wagon and retracing her steps toward civilization, is as distinct a type of American womanhood as the gayest lady that attends church in New York to-day. They have different missions; but neither of them should forget that they are sisters.—N. Y. World.

CHARLES LANGHEIMER, aged 74, has been held to bail at Philadelphia for stealing an overcoat. He is known as Dickens' Dutchman, having been singled out by the great novelist, during the visit of the latter to this country in 1842, as an example of the terrible effects of the Pennsylvania "silent system" of punishment. In his "American Notes" Dickens devotes nearly half a page to this man.

MERCHANT'S Gargling Oil has become one of the most popular liniments for human flesh that is now prepared, while for horses and cattle it has no equal in the world. We are assured by those who have used it for the piles—one of whom is a distinguished physician—that among all the various pile remedies none afforded such speedy relief as the Gargling Oil.—Louisville (Ky.) Daily Democrat, June 4, 1856.

THAT languid, helpless, sallow-complexioned woman must use Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It is exactly what you want to vitalize, purify, and enrich your blood and give you back the bloom of health again. Dr. J. H. McLean's office, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

Moon's Stroke.

An Indian correspondent writes to Nature: "There is a popular belief that it is dangerous to sleep in full moonshine, as it is supposed to produce some injurious effect called moonstroke. A clear sky admits of rapid radiation, and any person exposed to such radiation is sure to be chilled by rapid loss of heat. There is reason to believe that under the circumstances paralysis of one side of the face is likely to occur from chill, as one side of the face is more likely to be exposed to rapid radiation and consequent loss of its heat. The chill is more likely to occur when the sky is perfectly clear and in a full moon. I have often slept in the open air in India on a clear summer night when there was no moon, and, although the first part of the night may have been hot, yet toward 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning the chill has been so great that I have often been awakened by an ache in the forehead, which I have as often counteracted by wrapping a handkerchief around my head and drawing the blanket over my face. As the chill is likely to be greatest on a very clear night, and the clearest nights are likely to be those on which there is a bright moonshine, it is very possible that neuralgia, paralysis, or some other similar injury, caused by sleeping in the open air, has been attributed to the moon, when the proximate cause may really have been the chill."

The Minnesota Liquor Law.

The Supreme Court of Minnesota has affirmed the constitutionality of that very excellent and wholesome law, passed in 1873, requiring each liquor-dealer in the State to pay $10 annually for the establishment and maintenance of a State Asylum for Inebriates. Grounds for the asylum were long since located at the charming city of Rochester, and this decision of the Supreme Court removes the last remaining obstacle to the early erection of the necessary buildings.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

Scribner's Monthly.

AN UNRIVALED ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE.

When SCRIBNER issued its famous Midsummer Holiday Number in July, a friendly critic said of it: "We are not sure but that Scribner has touched high-water mark. We do not see what worlds are left to it to conquer." But the publishers do not consider that they have reached the ultima thule of excellence—they believe "there are other worlds to conquer, and they propose to conquer them."

The prospectus for the new volume gives the titles of more than fifty papers (mostly illustrated), by writers of the highest merit. Under the head of

"FOREIGN TRAVEL,"

we have "A Winter on the Nile," by Gen. McClellan; "Saunterings About Constantinople," by Charles Dudley Warner; "Out of My Window at Moscow," by Eugene Schuyler; "An American in Turkistan," etc. Three serial stories are announced:

"NICHOLAS MINTURN,"

by Dr. Holland, the Editor, whose story of "Sevenoaks" gave the highest satisfaction to the readers of the Monthly.

The scene of this latest novel is laid on the banks of the Hudson. The hero is a young man who has been always "tied to a woman's apron strings," but who, by the death of his mother, is left alone in the world—to drift on the current of life—with a fortune, but without a purpose.

Another serial, "His Inheritance," by Miss Trafton, will begin on the completion of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," by Mrs. Hodgson Burnett. Mrs. Burnett's story, begun in August, has a pathos and dramatic power which have been a surprise to the public.

There is to be a series of original and exquisitely illustrated papers of "Popular Science," by Mrs. Herrick, each paper complete in itself.

There are to be, from various pens, papers on

"HOME LIFE AND TRAVEL."

Also, practical suggestions as to town and country life, village improvements, etc., by well-known specialists.

Mr. Barnard's articles on various industries of Great Britain include the history of "Some Experiments in Co-operation," "A Scottish Loaf Factory" in the November number, and "Toad Lane, Rochdale," in December. Other papers are, "The British Workingman's Home," "A Nation of Shopkeepers," "Ha'penny a Week for the Child," etc.

A richly illustrated series will be given on "American Sports by Flood and Field," by various writers, and each on a different theme. The subject of will have a prominent place, while the latest productions of American humorists will appear from month to month. The list of shorter stories, biographical and other sketches, etc., is a long one.

"HOUSEHOLD AND HOME DECORATION"

The editorial department will continue to employ the ablest pens both at home and abroad. There will be a series of letters on literary matters, from London, by Mr. Welford. The pages of the magazine will be open, as heretofore, so far as limited space will permit, to the discussion of all themes affecting the social and religious life of the world, and specially to the freshest thought of the Christian thinkers and scholars of this country.

The publishers say they mean to make the magazine sweeter and purer, higher and nobler, more genial and generous in all its utterances and influences, and a more welcome visitor than ever before in homes of refinement and culture.

FIFTEEN MONTHS FOR $4.

SCRIBNER for December, now ready, and which contains the opening chapters of "Nicholas Minturn," will be read with eager curiosity and interest. Perhaps no more readable number of this magazine has yet been issued. The three numbers of SCRIBNER for August, September, and October, containing the opening chapters of "That Lass o' Lowrie's," will be given to every new subscriber (who requests it), and whose subscription begins with the present volume, i. e., with the November number.

Subscription price, $4 a year—35 cents a number. Special terms on bound volumes. Subscribe with the nearest bookseller, or send a check or P. O. money order to SCRIBNER & Co., 743 Broadway, N. Y.

SOMETHING new for your aching back—Collins' Voltaic Plaster. They cure when all other plasters fail, and may be relied on to relieve painful affections of the kidneys, liver, muscles, and joints.

RUFUS CHAPMAN, of Liberty, Me., had a stiff leg, bent at the knee, lumbered and strengthened by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

THE Mason & Hamlin Organ Co. have sustained their well-earned reputation as best makers of instruments in their line, at the Centennial. Their organs are the only ones at the exhibition declared by the judges to belong to the first rank, and this not merely because of one or two qualities, but in "the several requisites" of such instruments, which is equivalent to saying they were "unequaled" by others in any important quality. We congratulate the company on having added to their Paris, Vienna and Santiago medals this emphatically highest award at Philadelphia.—Boston Traveller.

THERE can be no mistake about it, "Matchless" plug tobacco takes the lead. Old fine-cut chewers say it gives better satisfaction and is cheaper than fine cut. You cannot be imposed upon, as each plug has the words, "Matchless P. T. Co." on a wooden tag. Try it once and you will always chew it. Manufactured by the Pioneer Tobacco Company, New York.

Neglected Coughs and Colds.

Few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "Common Cold," in its first stage; that which in the beginning would yield to "BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," if neglected, often works upon the Lungs.

THE editor takes pleasure in calling the attention of sufferers from rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and lumbago to Durang's Rheumatic Remedy. It has been before the public for three years, and, it is said, has never failed in a single case. It is taken internally, and cures at once. Sold by wholesale and retail druggists everywhere. Price $1.00 a bottle.

CHAPPED hands, face, pimples, ringworm, saltrheum, and other cutaneous affections cured, and rough skin made soft and smooth, by using Juniper Tar Soap. Be careful to get only that made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, as there are many imitations made with common tar, all of which are worthless.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.—The attention of heads of families is invited to the superior quality of BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS. They are highly concentrated, have all the freshness and delicacy of the fruits from which they are prepared, and are less expensive.

"WHY, Maud, where did you get that beautiful corset?" "It is Dr. Warner's Health Corset, and is the most comfortable and elegant corset I ever saw. I sent $1.75 for it to Warner Bros., 763 Broadway, N. Y."

THE proprietors of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, Parsons' Purgative Pills, and Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders have published a readable and instructive pamphlet, which may be had free by mail.

THE BEST PAPER
—IS THE—
CHICAGO LEDGER
Only $1.00 a year, and 15c for postage, will secure you the Best Story and Family Paper in the United States. It is larger and better than the great weekly papers of New York, and is sold for one-third the money. Address
THE LEDGER,
Chicago, Illinois.

HOLIDAY MUSIC BOOKS.
Two Splendid Volumes for Presents.
THE WORLD OF SONG!
Price in Boards, $2.50. Cloth, $3.00. Gilt, $4.00.
Rarely have we issued a book of songs including such a variety of really first-class and popular Vocal Music. 200 pages, full Sheet-Music size. Songs by nearly sixty different composers, and among the compositions are many such gems as "Come to Me Quickly," "Golden Locks are Silver," "My Heart's Best Love," "She's a Rosy, she's a Posy," and Millard's "Whippoorwill."
We publish nineteen valuable collections, uniform with the "WORLD" and "GEMS." Send for Catalogue of "HOME MUSICAL LIBRARY," and select one or more of its books for Christmas.
GEMS OF THE DANCE!
A Companion to the famous "Gems of Strauss!"
$2.50 in Boards, $3.00 Cloth, $4.00 Gilt.
The "GEMS OF STRAUSS" had a wonderful success, and this new work is fully its equal, and contains the recent "Strauss" pieces and many others by Gung'l, Lamothe, Faust, Coote, Zikoff, and other eminent composers. 232 pages, full Sheet-Music size, well filled with Waltzes, Galops, Polkas, Quadrilles, etc.
Either book mailed, post free, for retail price.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
J. E. Ditson & Co., Successors to Lee & Walker, Phila.
☞ Mention this paper in ordering.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,
Is the Grand Old
MUSTANG LINIMENT,
WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

DR. WARNER'S HEALTH CORSET,
With Skirt Supporter and Self-Adjusting Pads.
Secures HEALTH and COMFORT of Body, with GRACE and BEAUTY of Form. Three Garments in one. Approved by all physicians.
AGENTS WANTED.
Samples by mail, in Coutil, $2; Satteen, $1.75. To Agents at 25 cents less. Order size two inches smaller than waist measure over the dress.
Warner Bros. 763 Broadway, N.Y.

DANCING SKELETON.
A Mystery! What makes it dance? "Spiritualistic" humbuggery outdone. A jointed figure of a Skeleton, 14 inches high, will dance at command of the director, who may be in any part of the room. May be examined by spectators, who cannot discover the trick. Immensely sensational. Skeleton and Davenport Brothers Rope Trick. Sent postpaid for 25 cents.
Address NOVELTY MFG. CO., 89 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

ELASTIC RUPTURE BELT.
The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. No humbug claim of a certain radical cure, but a guarantee of a comfortable, secure, and satisfactory appliance. We will take back and pay full price for all that do not suit. Price, single, like cut, $4; for both sides, $5. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price. N. B.—This Truss will cure more Ruptures than any of those for which extravagant claims are made. Circulars free.
POMEROY TRUSS CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

Chicago Business Directory.
AUCTION AND SALE ROOMS OF HORSES, CARRIAGES AND HARNESS.
WESTON & CO.'S, 196 and 198 E. Washington, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 10 a. m.
AUCTION MART FOR THE SALE OF HORSES, HARNESS AND VEHICLES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION AT AUCTION AND PRIVATE SALE.
NORTHWESTERN TATTERSALLS, 1 to 9 Monroe.
AWNINGS, TENTS, TWINES AND CORDAGE.
GILBERT HUBBARD & CO., 205 to 208 South Water.
DESIGNER AND ENGRAVER ON WOOD.
J. MANZ, 88 LaSalle, cor. Washington.
ENGRAVER AND DIE SINKER, STENCILS AND STOCK.
L. BOCHE, 171 E. Randolph.
ENGRAVER, SEALS, PRESSES, STEEL AND BRASS STAMPS, STENCIL TOOLS AND STOCK.
C. H. HANSON, 38 South Clark.
ENGRAVERS ON WOOD, Etc.
BEARS BROS. & CO., N.W. cor. Clark and Washington.
FLOWERS AND STRAW GOODS—SPECIALTY.
DALY HENROTIN & CO., 144 and 146 Wabash-av.
GRASS AND FIELD SEEDS.
ALBERT DICKINSON, 117 and 119 Kinzie.
HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—WHOLESALE.
EDWIN HUNT & SONS, 58 and 60 Lake.
HEAVY HARDWARE—WHOLESALE.
KIMBARK BROS. & CO., 80 to 84 Michigan-av.
HOTELS.
WOOD'S HOTEL, 116 & 118 Fifth-av. Enoch Wood, prop., late proprietor of Wood's Hotel, State-st.
WILSON'S PATENT ADJUSTABLE CHAIR FOR INVALIDS, IRON FOLDING BEDSTEADS, ETC.
M. KLEIN, 227 South Dearborn. Send for circular.

UNEQUALED OFFER.
A MONTH'S AMMUNITION FREE.
Tramps, Burglars and Thieves infest all parts of the Country. Every One Should go Armed.

Specially adapted for the Pocket. Weight, 7 ounces. Loads without removing the Cylinder, either to receive Cartridge or eject Shell.
Uses Regular 22-Cal., kept by all dealers.
This is the Weapon for Police, Bankers, and Household use. 5000 Testimonials.
Our NEW Model LONG RANGE Revolver,
"TRAMPS' TERROR,"
Price $3 INCLUDING 100 CARTRIDGES!
EVERY REVOLVER WARRANTED.
Full Nickel Silver Plated and best English Steel, Rifled Barrel; Deadly Accuracy and Long Range combined; Automatic action, Cylinder revolves when Hammer is raised. In short, the best low priced revolver [illegible]ence can produce.
With 100 Cartridges only $3.
Address WESTERN GUN WORKS, 69 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Cut Out Certificate Below and Return with $3.00.

WESTERN GUN WORKS PREMIUM CERTIFICATE.
A BOX OF EXTRA FINE TARGET CARTRIDGES FREE!
THE WESTERN GUN WORKS hereby agrees, on receipt of this CERTIFICATE and THREE DOLLARS, to send every subscriber to this paper One Elegantly Mounted Full Nickel Silver Plated SEVEN SHOT New Model Long Range TRAMPS' TERROR REVOLVER, including a Box of 100 Cartridges, and also an EXTRA BOX of SUPERFINE TARGET CARTRIDGES, loaded with extra strong Rifle Powder, and made specially for long range. These costly Cartridges are only presented to holders of this Premium Certificate and not sold in any other way. This offer only holds good for THIRTY DAYS from the date stamped hereon. Fill out address below in full and inclose it with $3.00 to WESTERN GUN WORKS, 69 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, and you will receive the EXTRA Premium Box of Long Range Target Cartridges. Remit by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, Draft, or Express, at our risk. This Certificate only entitles to the Extra Long Range Cartridges when accompanied by the Cash. Not good on C. O. D. Orders.
WESTERN GUN WORKS, DEC 15th 1876 C. U. CHICAGO, ILL.
YOUR Name,
$3 P. O.
Co.
State
Give name of nearest Ex. Office.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS
AUTOMATIC
Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.
Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.
Trade Mark in base of every machine.
SILENT SEWING MACHINE.
Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.
Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co., (Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York.

☞ READY FOR AGENTS—THE
CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION
DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED.
A graphic pen-picture of its history, grand buildings, wonderful exhibits, curiosities, great days, etc. Profusely illustrated, thoroughly popular, and very cheap. Is selling immensely. 5,000 AGENTS wanted. Send for full particulars. This is the chance of 100 years to coin money. Get the only reliable history. HUBBARD BROTHERS, Pubs., 86 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.
CAUTION Be not deceived by premature books assuming to be "official," and telling what will happen in August and November.

This book is a necessity for the thousands who will take up this new, pretty and useful pursuit.—Chicago Tribune.
SORRENTO AND INLAID WORK For Amateurs, by Arthur Hope. A practical manual of Scroll Sawing, Overlaying, Polishing, Inlaying, Silhouettes, &c. Containing 40 full-sized designs, new and beautiful. The designs are worth more than price of book. Tastefully bound in muslin. For sale by booksellers generally. Sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.50. Descriptive circular mailed to any address.
JOHN WILKINSON, Publisher, 55 Lake St., Chicago.
GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO AGENTS.

$77 a Day to Agts. Samples free. [illegible]
$10 a Day. [illegible]
$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.
$20 a Day. HOW TO MAKE IT. [illegible] COE, YONGE & CO., St. Louis, Mo.
20 a Week [illegible]
REVOLVERS [illegible] Western Gun Works, Chicago, Ill.
$25 A DAY to Agents. [illegible]
AGENTS [illegible] Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & Co., [illegible]
PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. Apparatus by mail 50c. Agents wanted. [illegible] Phila., Pa.
$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. Samples FREE. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.
AGENTS SIX $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., Chicago, Ill.
A GOOD BUSINESS IS INSURED to an enterprising man by addressing Box 2012, Philadelphia P. O.
50,000 Agents. Send postal for circulars. Something immense. CHI. N. G. Co., Chicago.
POPHAM'S ASTHMA SPECIFIC. Best in the World. Trial package free. T. POPHAM & CO., 119 S. 4th St., Phila., Pa.
PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, etc., who wish genuine Chartered University Degrees can address, inclosing 10 cents, J. H. YUILLE, Boston, Mass.
$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.
$3 WATCHES. A Great Sensation. Sample Watch and Outfit free to Agents. Better than Gold. Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.
WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $90 a month and traveling expenses paid. GEM MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.
$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.
MAGIC GOODS | Sporting Goods, Revolvers, Magic Wands, Secret of Beauty. Agents wanted. Catalogues free. EUREKA CO., 39 Broadway, N. Y.
AGENTS wanted for "BIG BONANZA" containing full descriptions of richest SILVER MINES in the world. Introduction by Mark Twain. Illustrated circulars free. Address A. G. NETTLETON & CO., Chicago, Ill.
$50 TO $100 a month rec'd by our graduates. Students wanted. Salary paid while practicing. Situations furnished. Ad'ss N.W. Telegraph Institute, Janesville, Wis.
WANTED—Men to solicit orders for our goods; permanent employment; good salary. Traveling expenses paid by Company. Union Industrial Works, Cincinnati, O.
NO MONEY We will start you in business; you can make $50 a week without capital; easy and respectable for either sex. AGENTS' SUPPLY CO., 261 Bowery, N. Y.
YOUR own Likeness in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 8½x7¼, from a photograph or tin-type, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 6 months for $1. One agent made $20 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.
$10 to $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.
$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.
MONEY Made rapidly with Stencil and Key Check Outfits. Catalogue and samples FREE. S. M. Spencer, 117 Wash. St., Boston, Mass.
OPIUM HABIT CURED AT HOME. No publicity. Time short. Terms moderate. 1,000 testimonials. Describe case. DR. F. E. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.
SEND A STAMP and we will send you a specimen copy of the CRICKET ON THE HEARTH, our mammoth 16-page, 64-column Illustrated Literary & Family Journal. F. M. LUPTON & Co., 27 Park Row, New York.
KIDDER'S PASTILLES. Sure relief ASTHMA. Price 40cts. by mail. Stowell & Co. Charlestown, Mass.
FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter, (1 or 2 in each Co.) to sell a few staple articles of real merit to the farmers in their own counties. Business pleasant, profits good. Particulars free. J. Worth, St. Louis, Mo.
THE ELGIN WATCH IS THE BEST AND CHEAPEST. A home production. Send for the latest descriptive price-list. JAMES McMILLAN, 28 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with Illustrations, 123 pages, 25 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.
$25,000 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN THE next 6 months by the publishers of the ST. LOUIS WEEKLY JOURNAL! For full information, write IMMEDIATELY to WOLCOTT & HUME CO., PUBLISHERS, St. Louis, Mo.
PATENTS Procured. TOTAL COST $55 Including Gov't Fee. Send for Pamphlet to KNIGHT & KNIGHT, Washington, D. C.
EMPLOYMENT. ANY PERSON of ordinary intelligence can earn a living by canvassing for The Illustrated Weekly. Experience is not necessary—the only requisites being, as in all successful business, industry & energy. Send for particulars. Address Chas. Clucas & Co., 14 Warren St., N. Y.
A BOOK for the MILLION. MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.
Prof. Hall's Magic Compound is the only preparation, one package of which will force the beard to grow thick and heavy on the smoothest face (without injury) in 21 days in every case, or money cheerfully refunded. 25 cents per package, postpaid; 3 for 50 cents. E. W. JONES, Ashland, Mass.
LADIES, READ THIS.—By sending me $2.50 I will send you one Centennial or Magic Plaiter. It plaits a yard of goods a minute, and makes a genuine hand-made plait. Agents wanted in every town, or send me your address. W. CASLER, 90 Madison St., Room 2, Chicago, General Western Agent.
NEW YORK WEEKLY Commercial Advertiser The best paper published. One Dollar per year. Specimen copies free. Special rates to agents. 126 Fulton St., New York City.
SECRET SERVICE IN THE P.O. DEP'T | AGENTS WANTED for the new book, Guarding the Mails, a most wonderful book on the Detection of Postal Thieves, by late Chief Special Agent Woodward. Illustrated circulars sent free. Address DUSTIN, GILMAN & CO., Hartford, Ct., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O., Richmond, Va.
TRUTH IS MIGHTY! [illegible]
Electricity is Life. Paoli's Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease when all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application, to P. J. WHITE, 27 Bond Street, New York.
$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. Dr. J. P. FITLER, being sworn, says: [illegible]
TEAS.—The choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular to ROBT. WELLS, 43 Vesey St., N. Y., P. O. Box 1287.
CANCER, TUMORS and Scrofula.—Dr. T. S. ROBERTSON, Supt. of the American Cancer Institute, and discoverer of the remedy for the radical cure of Cancer, Tumors and Scrofula by acting on the blood only, will send, on receipt of $5.00, a full course of medicine that has never failed in the cure of Cancer, Tumors or Scrofula. 96 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
AGENTS WANTED FOR HISTORY CENTEN'L EXHIBITION It sells faster than any other book. One Agent sold 38 copies in one day. This is the only authentic and complete history published. Send for our extra terms to Agents. NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.
WORTH its WEIGHT in GOLD. The Eclipse Automatic Extinguisher Burner makes all Coal-Oil Lamps perfectly safe. They cannot explode; cannot be filled while burning; instantly extinguished if dropped, broken or upset. [illegible] Mailed to any address for 50 cts. Sold by all Druggists. A few agents, male and female, wanted. Profits large. ECLIPSE MANUFACT'G CO., Cincinnati, O.
LOVERS GUIDE (New Edition) HOW TO WIN AND HOW TO WOO. [illegible]
ARMORY PUBLISHING CO., 89 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
G. N. U. No. 49
WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

W. G. THOMAN, Editor.

AUBURN, INDIANA, DEC. 21, 1876.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 18, 1876.

DEAR COURIER.—Just before one begins the ascent to the capitol from Pennsylvania avenue, is a small platoon around which a circular curbing has been placed. It has heretofore been the resort of loafers and street gamins, and street car managers have utilized it to corral their horses while waiting to change teams. This nuisance has been abated and in its place is to be erected the splendid naval monument, gotten up by private subscription, and costing over $100,000. This session of Congress will make an appropriation for a pedestal costing about $25,000. It will be the finest monumental work in the country, being forty feet high with the figures of two weeping maidens on the summit, the angels of peace and victory on two sides, and a lot of cupids at the base, the water flowing from the mouths of dolphins below. A circular basin of water will surround it about one hundred feet in diameter. Work has already commenced, and when finished, its fine workmanship together with its location will make it the most imposing feature of this kind in the city. The equestrain statue of Abraham Lincoln, which has also been made through private subscription, will also be placed in position in a short time. This will be a specimen of American art, cast by Clark Mills, who has several of these already located in the city. If they don't get up another war, and things keep on improving here at the present rate, Washington will soon be decorated with statues. Just see the number of Generals yet to die, all of whom will have to be represented on horseback in bronze.

I met Grant and Sartoris on the avenue last Friday. It was a warm, beautiful day, just like our western September days, almost spring-like, and one almost expected to catch the perfume of roses. The houses must have been depopulated as everybody seemed to be on the streets. I can only account for such a beautiful day coming in the midst of so many that were disagreeable, on the ground that, that Oregon elector had been heard from, and there was a change even in nature. Well, as I sauntered along down from the capital, I met the President stumbling along without a bit of grace or dignity, while his son-in-law, with his small feminine figure, dressed in the latest rage, with waxed moustache and twirling cane, made up for all loss in this respect. The General is not a votary of dress, and does not look the pink of fashion, with pants generally two inches too short, a slouch hat, a cane in one hand and that hand thrust into his overcoat pocket, he moves about in the utmost indifference to surrounding objects. He has assumed the position of dictator as to who shall be the next President. Everybody knows him to be mulish, but I think he is weakening. The fact is his little job in South Carolina did not turn out as he expected. Gen. Ruger was not the man for the place. What Grant wanted was a bull-headed man like Sheridan, with an absolutely solid skull, one who would have seized the "occasion" as it were, and turned every Democrat out of the Legislative Hall at the point of the bayonet, so that the President could have had an opportunity to express his surprise and indignation at an outrage first brought to his notice by the newspapers. Then had the Democrats offered any resistance how quickly would the radical press sound their trumpet. But the opportunity is past. Ruger made a failure and South Carolina won't rebel worth a cent, even if Hayes is counted in. Florida will count him in, and the noble band of patriots of the Returning Board of Louisiana will count what extra ballots they want out of the last caucus, and Hayes will be elected in their eyes, according to the rule of thumb. The next great act will be the counting of the electoral vote in the Senate. Let us hope that the man elected by the people—Samuel J. Tilden—will be inaugurated on the 6th of March without opposition, and that Grant will go to some community where his coming will be warmly welcomed. What will become of his cabinet? Little Jack Robeson couldn't go to sea, as no intelligent sea captain would ship him even as an ordinary seaman and he is too old for a cabin boy. Don Fandango Fish could go to Spain and keep a jail, while Chandler could go west and utilized his profanity by raising crops on the sand hills of Michigan.

The news of the quiet inauguration of Wade Hampton was well received here. The Democrats there are determined to be peaceful and proceed in order. The Democratic House has mostly withdrawn to avoid coming to blows. It seems there are two bodies of conspirators at work. Hayes offers a beautiful reward to the South in the shape of a promise to clean out all the carpet-baggers, if allowed to be fraudulently counted in. Hayes is for peace and plunder. Grant is for himself and continued power. The plot thickens. We may say with Shakespeare, "Whats the newest grief. Each minute turns a new one."

Since the session of Congress has opened, the Senate has indulged in lit- herein is the difference between the House and Senate. While the Republican Senate, in its desperation to defeat the will of the people, has been wasting its time in discussing the best manner of getting partisan papers before the country, the Democratic House confident in the justice of its cause, and relying upon the recognition of that justice by the American people, has gone regularly to the legitimate legislative business of the country. The body denominated by Republicans, the "ex-Confederate House," a term used as one of reproach, was not in session a week, before it reported and passed the bill to pay the pensions of union soldiers. The Senate which is Republican, and claims to be the embodiment of the loyalty of the country, has not touched it, and last week the House took up the Post Office appropriation bill which touches the interests of all the people, and will pass it perhaps today while the Senate was indulging in another political discussion. When the House cut down the appropriation last season, a great cry was raised that the public service would be crippled, but such has not been the case, and now a further reduction will be made. The Republicans, of course, resist the reductions and the great extravagance of their administrations will not be known until the Democracy get the full control of the government in all its branches.

I see the Democracy of Indiana met in convention last week and gave expression to their views on the Presidential question. This is causing a good deal of trouble here, and I hope they will do so no more, as Grant has had two cabinet meetings since that affair. Its wrong to worry Grant so. Senator Morton is also alarmed. He left last Friday for home. There was a little bird singing in the hearts of the Democracy in that portion of the world over which he arrogates to himself complete control, and he took the first train. I had an interview with the President before he left, and now he has gone to investigate for himself, and if he thinks there is a pronounced feeling for Tilden and Hendricks, you may expect the army in your midst in a few days thereafter. Auburn will look well with a military garrison, and the boys in blue with their glistening bayonets and bright uniforms, holding dress parade in front of the court house. Then the girls would have a jolly time flirting 'a la militaire,' and promenading with the jolly soldiers. It all depends on Morton, girls, so down on your knees, or the opportunity will be lost.

I think the House will adjourn about next Friday until after the holidays though some want to have no vacation but rush the work through and get all the bills in before the counting of the electoral vote. They want to have the decks cleared and everything ready for the final struggle against usupation and fraud.

TOM.

HARD UP.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Always the friends of the people, have never

FAILED

To regulate prices to suit the times

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Indi

A RRIVAL OF SANT CLAUS!

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

Where can be found a full and complete assortment of Holiday goods, and articles suitable for Christmas and New Years presents, consisting of Fine Albums. Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper, Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Persciptions Carefully Compounded.

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place,

DAVENPORT'S.

East of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

TAX LIST FOR 1876.

To The Tax-Payers of DeKalb County, Indiana.

In compliance with the laws of the State of Indiana, I, DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer of said county, hereby notify the Tax-Payers thereof, that the rates of Taxation for the year A. D. 1876, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the amount of tax in cents levied upon each One Hundred Dollars valuation, in the several Townships and incorporated Villages in said county, as the same appears ON THE TAX DUPLICATE OF DEKALB COUNTY FOR SAID YEAR.

Townships and Incoporated Vilages.	State Levies.				Town and Township Levies.								County Levies
	State Tax on each $100 Valuation.	State tax on each Poll.	School Tax on each $100 Valuation.	School Tax on each Poll.	Township Tax on each $100 valuation	Road Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Common School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Common School Tax on each Poll.	Special School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Special School Tax on each Poll.	Additional Special School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Additional Special School Tax on each Poll.	County Tax on each $100 Valuation.	On Bond Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each Poll.
Butler Towbship.	13	50	16	50	10	15			40	50			35	05	1 34	1.50
Jackson "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1.14	1.50
Concord "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1 14	1.50
Newville "	13	50	16	50	10	20			50	100			35	05	1 49	2.00
Stafford "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1 00
Wilmington "	13	50	16	50	10	20			40	50			35	05	1.39	1.50
Union "	13	50	16	50		10			15	25			35	05	94	1.25
Richland "	13	50	16	50	10	15			30	100			35	05	1.24	2.00
Fairfield "	13	50	16	50	07	15			18				35	05	1.09	1.00
Smithfield "	13	50	16	50	10	20			20	60			35	05	1.19	1.50
Franklin "	13	50	16	50	08	15			40	25			35	05	1.32	1.25
Troy "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1 00
Keyser "	13	50	16	50	10	15	10	50	40	50			35	05	1.44	2.00
Auburn Town.	13	50	16	50		10			25	50	50	50	35	05	1,54	2.00
Waterloo "	13	50	16	50		10	25		25				35	05	1.29	1.00
Butler "	13	50	16	50	10	20			30		50	50	35	05	1.79	1.50
Garrett "	13	50	16	50	10	15			15	50			35	05	1.09	1,50

In addition to the above, there is an assessment upon each male dog owned, kept or harbored within the county, $1. Upon each femal'e dog owned kept or harbored within the county, $2. Upon each additional dog owned, kept or harbored by the same person within the county, $2.

The new law gives the tax-payer the privilege of paying the full amount of such taxes on or before the THIRD MONDAY OF APRIL, or may, at his option, pay one-half thereof, and the remaining half on or before the 1st Monday of November following, provided, however, that all road taxes so charged shall be paid prior to the 1st Monday of November, in the manner perscribed by law; and provided further, that in all cases where as much as one-half of the amount of tax charged against a taxpayer shall not be paid on or before the third Monday of April, the whole amount charged shall become due, and be returned delinquent and collected as provided by law.

All persons having worked out their road tax must present a receipt from the Supervisor of their Road District when they come to pay their April installment of taxes, in order to receive credit for the same.

Tax-Payers, do not forget that if all taxes are not paid when the same become due, they are, by law, subject to a penalty of ten per cent. interest and cost of collection.

The annual sale of Delinquent land and lots takes place on the second Monday of February, 1877.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is all included, and no mistake in change. No county order will be paid any person owing delinquent taxes. Bring along your Road Receipts.

It is suggested to those having taxes to pay, to call early and avoid mistakes that may occur in the usual rush incident to the last few days. I will attend at my office from the 1st day of December, 1876, to the 1st Monday of November, 1877, to receive the above taxes.

DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer.

Treasurers Office, DeKalb County, Ind., December 7, 1874.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchasers.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall.

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings, $ 1.50, 1.75 2.00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

HOLIDAY PRICES

AT THE

Fort Wayne Fruit House!

Choice Raisins at 10c per lb.
Best Currants at 9c per lb.
Best Turkish prunes at 8c per lb.
Good Tea at 25c per lb.
Dried apples at 7c per lb.

Brown Sugar at 8c per lb,
Good Molasses at 40c per gal.
Fine cut Tobacco at 50c per lb.
Peaches, with all the scarity, at 15 cents per can.

We Purchase at first hand and sell direct to the consumer and there is no Middle men to eat up the profits. Some goods—take Teas for instance—pass through four different hands before they reach the consumer, and each one has to have his profit; so that 40 to 50 per cent is added to price. The importer has his profit of 10 per cent. the jobbing merchant his profit of 10 per cent. the speculator and wholesale merchant 10 to 20 per cent, and the retailer all he can get: So Sugars Coffees Spice, Prunes Fruits Tobaccos Liquors or anything we deal in. Our customers get the benefit of all these intermediate profits No Middle-men with us. We have made another

Reduction on Teas.

Young Hyson 25c, 40c and 90c.
Best 80 cents
Imperial 40 and 60c
Best 90c
Gunpowder 60c
Best 90 cents.
Black or Oolong 35 and 40c
Best 85c
Uncolored Japan 40 and 60c
Best 40 and 60c.

All of these teas are the best in the market, and 20 to 40c per lb lower than sold elsewhere.

Sugars.

New Orleans and Refined Granulated Crushed and Powdered	12½c	New Orleans clarified	9c
Coffee A.	12	" "	8c
" C.	11c	Good brown	9c

COFFEE! COFFEE! COFFEE!

Best Rio, per pound,	25c	Roasted Coffee,	26 and 30
Second Best Rio,	22c

CANNED FRUITS.

Peaches per can	15c	Pumpkin per can	10c
Tomatoes, per can	10c	Hominey per can	6c
Canned Corn per can	10 and 20c
Valencia Raisins, per pound	12½c	Peaches per pound	18c
Pitted Cherries per pound	25c	Apples per pound	7c
Raspberries per pound	45c

CANDIES

Stick Candy 18c, Mixed 20c; French Mixed 25c; Assorted 30. Toy candies, such as Fruits, Animals, etc., 30 @ 35 per lb.

A large assortment of tin and wood toys, such as dogs, cats, elephants, birds, ducks, chickens, cows, etc. for Christmas and New Years gifts. Never had such a large lot, all styles and prices, from a penny whistle to a dollar trumpet. Some nice gifts for ladies in Albums Vases, fancy goods and dolls of all descriptions for children. None shall go away without something from Santa Claus; and this being the Centennial year he will come in for a good share of the fun.

Wines and Liquors.

Good Whiskey, one year old, per gallon	$1 00	Port and Sherry Wines, per gallon,	1 50 in
Rye Whiskey, two years old	1 25	bottle	50c
Three year old	1 75 2 00	Sweet Angelica and California Muscatel, per gallon, 3 00; in bottles	50c
The $3 is for medical use and no better is sold anywhere.		Whiskey in bottles	30c and 50c

TOBACCOS, TOBACCOS.

Navy and Twist, per pound	45 and 50c	Jacksons best, of Pittsburg Va	75c
Kentucky Bright	60 and 70c	[This tobacco sells elsewhere at 90c]

Oils! Oils! Oils!

Coal Oil and Rose Oil, per gallon	20c	Machine Oil, Dark Virginia, per gallon	50
Fish Oil and Lard Oil, per gallon	1 00	Best Refined	100
Neatsfoot Oil, per gallon	$1 00

For Christmas Cake.

New Leghorn Citron per pound	35c	New Smyrna Figs per pound	18c
New Orange and Lemon Peel	30c	Shelled Almonds per pound	40c
New Seedless Raisins per pound	16c	Brazil Filberts and Peanuts per lb	12½c
New choice cooking Raisins	10c	Soft shell Almonds per pound	30c
Best layer Raisens per pound	14c	Roasted Peanuts per quart	7c
New Zantee Curants per pound,	6c

And everything else in proportion.

Fruit House, Fort Wayne, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT DECEMBER 12, 1876.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Ac.& E.	Express.
lv New York	8 55pm	8 35am	12 55 pm
Philadelphia	12 45am	12 15pm	4 15
Baltimore	7 00	4 30	8 00
Washington	8 35	6 00	9 25
Wheeling	10 45pm	8 05am	11 02 am
Bellaire	11 30	*8 45	11 30
Barnesville	12 39am	9 56	12 44 pm
Cambridge	1 40	10 56	1 44
Zanesville	2 50	12 10pm	2 50
lv Columbus	1 10	12 40	12 40
New Aark	4 25	2 00	4 10
Mt Vernon	5 32	3 00	5 15
Mansfield	7 30	4 28	6 46
Shelby	8 05	4 50	7 18
Chicago Junction	8 50	5 30	7 55
Tiffin	10 15		9 08
Fostoria	10 45		9 37
Deshler	11 43		10,35
Defiance	12 30pm		11 28
Auburn			12 56 am
Auburn Junction	2 06		1 15
Garrett	2 35		1 28
Avilla	2 50		2 38
Milford Junction	4 10		3 51
Walkertown Junction	5 12		6 30
Chicago	8 10

GOING EAST.

STATIONS:	Express	Ac.& E.	Express.
Chicago	*8 50am		5 08 pm
Walkertown Junction	11 23pm		8 36
Milford Junction	1 45		9 51
Avilla	2 58		10 02
Garrett	3 20		11 25
Auburn Junction	3 27		11 32
Auburn			1 00 am
Defiance	4 54		1 58
Deshler	5 48		2 59
Fostoria	6 47		3 27
Tiffin	7 45	9 00	4 35
Chicago Junction	8 30	10 08	5 00
Shelby Junction	9 13	10 40	5 36
Mansfield	9 49	12 13pm	7 02
Mt. Vernon	11 42	1 20	8 00
Ar Newark	1 00am	3 15	9 25
Lv Zanesville	3 20	4 25	10 30
Cambridge	4 17	5 34	11 44
Barnesville	5 16	6 50	1 00 pm
Ar Bellaire	6 05	8 35	2 25
Wheeling	7 35	12 00nn	6 35 am
Washington	9 10pm	1 40pm	8 30
Baltimore	10 50	*8 50	1 15 pm
Philadelphia	3 10am	10 15	5,05
New York	6 20

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

—AT—

J ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases,
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet.
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

LOOK! SEE!!

What a rush!

All going to

KAHN'S

Popular Clothing House for

OVERCOATS.

Christmas is coming, and what better present can you make than to make YOURSELF a Christmas present of an Overcoat while they are selling at prices which are comparatively nothing.

See the List.

LIST OF PURCHASERS:

M. L. ROTH	Auburn.
M. LOVE	"
W. E. PETERSON	"
M. F. LONG	"
H. PARENT	"
F. E. DAVENPORT	"
J. E. PEARCE	"
DANIEL SHULL	"
JOSIAH SHULL	"
WM. MURPHY	"
A. M. KESTER	"
J. C. REED	"
J. L. RHODENBAUGH	"
GEO. W. McKAY	"
BYRON RAINIER	"
W. F. SMITH	"
DAVE WEAMER	"
ALBERT ROBBINS, Jr,	"
N. McGriffin	Butler
P. MEYERS	Auburn
F. LATSON	"
JOS. CULLER	Mt. Hope
DAVID THOMAS,	Auburn
CLYDE MOOR	"
JOHN SOMERS,	"
T. C. MAYS,	"
E. D. CLEVELAND,	"
JAMES CASEBEER	"
E. L. CASEBEER,	"
L. D. SMITH,	"
L. W. HALL,	DeKalb P. O.
FERNANDO PALMER.	Auburn.
D. E. CARRUTH,	"
A. G. WELLER,	"
J. C. PROSSER,	"
EUGENE CARPER,	"
P. DITMAR,	Auburn Junction.
CHAS. WELLER,	La Otto.
N. S. HAGGERRTY,	Hamilton.

We have also a full stock of Clothing for men, youth and children of the latest styles and at popular prices.

HATS.—Late style campaign hats, namely Hayes and Wheeler, Tilden and Hendricks, Reform, Etc. Also a full line of arctic caps for men and boys.

Underwear Lower than ever. A complete line of furnishing goods, including Gloves of every description, Kid Castors, Dogskin, Buck-sheep, Cloth, Etc. KAHN.

F. D. Ryan has been receiving a splendid lot of new boots and shoes.

Ex-Recorder Hoffman has returned from a three weeks visit to Pennsylvania.

Notice change in the Fort Wayne, Jackson & Saginaw time table, in effect Dec. 10.

If you wish any calling cards for the holidays, do not forget where the Courier office is located.

We are requested to announce that the State Teachers Association will meet at Indianapolis on the 26th inst., and continue in session until Friday. A full attendance is requested.

The Presbyterian congregation will worship next Sunday morning in the German Methodist church, on south Jackson street. There will be no service in the evening.

Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup relieves the worst cases of coughs and colds almost instantly. Call on your druggist and try a bottle of it, the price is only 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, sore throat and all diseases of the lungs and chest, are readily cured with Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup. It never fails; try it. Price 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

Under the new time card on the different roads, the Eel River line now makes a close connection with the Jackson line for Logansport, Indianapolis and other Southern and Western points.

The enumeration of school children in Auburn, shows a total of 534, entitled to school privileges, estimated upon this basis, which is generally correct, we have a population of nearly 3,000 in the town.

The social connected with the Presbyterian Church, will meet at the residence of Mrs. A. J Little, next Wendensday afternoon and evening. Supper served at five o'clock sharp. Please bring napkins. All are invited.

The new Reformed Church, 9 miles south of Auburn, will be dedicated to the worship of God, on Sunday, Dec. 31st, 1876. The members and friends of the surrounding churches are invited to be present.

Found by the undersigned, a pocket book containing notes and a small amount of money. The loser can obtain the same by proving property and paying for this notice.

W. D. RICKEL.

Dec. 21, 3w.

The cold snap proved a regular blessing to the ice men, as it formed ice on the creek over nine inches in thickness. Messrs Houston & Benedict have a force of thirteen men employed cutting and storing ice for use next summer, and will put up several hundred tons.

One of the thieves who robbed Phillips, at the Junction some time ago, is said to have again made his appearance there. One of the Sheriff's deputies has been on the lookout for the rascal and the chances are that he may yet be brought to justice. Another of the gang was arrested at Fort Wayne some days ago.

George Brandon died on Tuesday afternoon from a somewhat protracted attack of typhiod Pneumonia. The deceased was highly respected by all, and in his death the community losses a valuable and industrious citizen. He leaves a wife and two children. The funeral took place on Thursday, Elder S. B. Ward preaching the sermon.

HOLLOWAYS PILLS OR OINTMENT.—Scrofula or morbid deposits in the lungs, joints and tissues. These medicines have rendered this disease a less formidable scourge than formerly. It has been incontestibly proved that in scrofulous affections they have affected thousands of cures. Sold everywhere 25 cents per box or pot.

Miss Ella Jackman and Miss Ailce Widney will teach in the Garrett schools this winter. It is hoped that the fine new building in that place will be completed by the 7th of January next, by which time the schools are to open. Miss Jackman will be principal of the school and Miss Widney will have charge of the primary department.

Money To Loan.

C. A O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money

There will be a grand Christmas ball on Monday evening for the purpose of inaugurating Holister & Benedict's new hall. The music will be furnished by Hogue's Orchestra, and the supper by the proprietors of the hall. The Committe of invitation consists of Messrs. J. L. Davis. D. D. Snyder, D. Kahn and T. H. Sprott. The committee of introduction consists of Messrs. B. F. Culbertson, E. J. Coder and J. A. Smith. The floor managers are Messrs. Tom Scott, G C. Ralston and C. M. Browne.

Let it be remembered by the business men of Auburn, Butler, Waterloo, Sedan, Corunna, Garrett, Spencerville, Newville and in fact all parties whether business men or not, that the COURIER office has facilities for doing as good job work as can be had in the county. Parties in any of our neighboring towns who wish any printing in the line of letter heads, bill heads, statements, envelopes, tags, programmes, sale bills, in fact anything from a sheet poster to the finest of ladies calling cards, wedding cards, etc., by sending in their orders, will receive prompt attention. Do not forget this, friends.

☞Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks,

☞Cashmere in all shades

☞New fall style Prints

☞A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☞Readymade Comforts, from $2 to $3 00

☞A new line of Alpaccas and alland winter dress goods

J. R. LANNING.

The People Want Proof.

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case, Try it. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

Eli Kuhlman, late of Garrett, has returned to Auburn, and bought the entire stock of drugs belonging to the firm of Bodine & Siler. He will continue business at their old place opposite the Swineford House, where he will be glad to see all his old friends and patrons. Mr. Kuhlman's stock is a fine one and well selected. As his expenses are light, he can afford to sell at low prices. Mr. Kuhlman intends to do a strictly cash business hereafter. The accounts of the old firm have been left with him for collection. Those knowing themselves indebted will take notice accordingly.

Newville Notes.

Prof. Moore, from Southern Indiana, lectured at Newville last week, on scientific subjects. He had a large audience.

—Mr. Hathaway has sold his business rooms in Newville to Anthony Stepleton, who will open a drug store and grocery in the same.

—Newville has but one attorney now, and things are very peaceable there.

—I. G. Hamilton, of the firm of J. M. Hamilton, has sold his interest in the Orangeville flouring mills to Mr. Wise, for $3,400.

BUTLER BUDGET.

Miss Maggie Mitchell, daughter of widow Mitchell, of Butler, died on last Saturday night, at her mother's residence. Deceased had been afflicted with consumption for a long time. The funeral took place on Monday.

—Stephen Haddock, of Butler, a brakeman on the Lake Shore road, had his hand severely injured while coupling cars at Archibald last week. It was found necessary to amputate two fingers, in consequence of the injuries.

—Moses Steifel died on Tuesday of consumption.

—The funeral of William Thomas took place on Thursday last. He was interred with Masonic honors.

A Card to the Public.

For many years we have made two medicines suited to the ailments of a vast class of sufferers. Thousands of cures have been made by them, and, in fact, the word failure could not be coupled with them. But within the last two years counterfeits of our medicines have sprung up, dangerous in their close imitation of our Trade Mark. To secure the people, we have placed upon each genuine of Holloway's Ointment the fac simile of the signature of our agent, Mr. Jos. Haydock. To counterfeit is felony. We shall relentlessly pursue any one who imitates this with the utmost vigor of the law. We most earnestly beg that the great mass of the American people will aid us in our efforts to protect their health, and help us in our task of bringing these most unprincipled men to the bar of justice Uniformly refuse to purchase Medicines purporting to be ours unless Mr. Joe. Haydocks signature is attached to each box of Pills or pot of Ointment and the end will soon be reached.

The public's obedient servant.

HOLLOWAY & CO.

A First-Class Jewelry Store.

Mr. Abright, our popular Auburn Jeweler, is demonstrating that all kinds of goods in his line can be sold here at lower figures than in the larger cities. The low price of silver and the general depression in business has enabled him to lay in a splendid assortment of goods which are offered to the people of Auburn and vicinity, at a very slight advance on cost. In looking over his stock, one is surprised, not alone, at the extent and value of the stock, but at the remarkably low figures at which everything is selling.

If you desire to purchase a set of silverware, a fine watch, or an article of jewelry, either for yourself or as a present for a friend or relative, you can find no better place to invest. All the goods have been selected with excellent taste and judgment, and cannot be surpassed in design or finish; besides dealing with a responsible home merchant, and you run no risk in being sold by having an inferior article foisted on you as is often the case in making purchases abroad.

We have not the space to enumerate a portion of goods kept by Mr. Abright. The best way is to go and look for yourself. You will find among other things clocks and watches in all styles and prices, musical instruments, watch chains, rings, bracelets, lockets, gents charms and every variety of ladies and gentlemens ware in jewelry and in fact everything usually kept in a first-class establishment. A full line of Rogers & Bro's. celebrated silverware always on hand.

What Shall Be The Christmas Gift?

Times are hard and grumbling will be profuse, but distasteful as it may be holiday expenditures must be met. Hearts must be made happy, and many an elegant purchase still resting on shelf or in show case, must add its shining value to make the occasion one of good feeling and enjoyment.

A gift must have actual and lasting value to command much attention, then what is more appropriate than a good Book, a Bible or an Album?

The loving brother who adds a new volume to his sisters library or presents to his sweetheart a fine book or an album, has the satisfaction of knowing that his gift will be enduring and that the pledge thus proffered will be to his constancy all that the type implies.

There is no class of merchandise that will be placed so largely under contribution as the book-sellers. Then a word to those in search of beautiful and appropriate gifts:

Your time will be spent to excellent purpose by visiting HOUSER'S Book Store, where you will find a fine assortment of Miscellaneous Books, Juvenile and Toy Books, Elegant Bibles, fine Albums, Ladies Wallets, Pocket Books, Cigar and Card Cases, Stereoscopes and Views, Writing Desks, Gold Pens and Pencils, Box Papers, Games, Toys, Pictures, and a variety of other articles too numerous to mention. It will be no difficult task, when once you have examined this stock to decide what the Christmas Gift shall be.

Text Books in Schools.

As is usual upon the opening of a system of schools, there is complaint upon the part of some parents of the school children concerning the changes in text books. There has been, however, but one change, that in geographies. All the other books remain as formerly adopted by the Board. We are told, however, that many pupils come to school with text books in their hands which they are incompetent to use; others have none at all. All are required to get such and only such books as they need in the several grades to which they belong. The Superintendent is seeking to grade the school upon a permanent basis; and when once that shall have been accomplished, the text book difficulty will disappear.

A Holiday Bazar.

H. H. Stamets, in the McIntyre block, is displaying a magnificent stock of millinery, furs, embroideries, scarfs, gloves and ladies wear generally. It is safe to say that no stock of goods ever in this section heretofore has equalled this, either in way of fine taste shown in the selection, excellence in quality or cheapness. It is not only a pleasure to look over the articles so well adapted to the adornment of the fair, but the prices at which they are sold, is a matter of surprise to all who know the figures demanded for similar goods elsewhere. We call especial attention to the stock of embroideries, ladies and childrens furs, hats, artificial flowers plumes, feathers and tips, worsted goods, linen, handkerchief scarfs, head shawls, dress goods, cloakings and in fact everything in the line of ladies wear or ornaments. If you have ever seen what is on his shelves and counters, you need no second invitation to call. If you have not examined for yourself be certain that you do before investing elsewhere.

JUNCTION JOTTINGS.

—There is scarcely any sickness at the Junction this winter.

—We saw the following notice up in the debt: "Until further notice No. 11 will carry passengers from Garrett to Hicksville and intermediate stations—this train is due here at 8:18 p. m.

—Mr. Ed Williams has moved to Auburn. He says there was to much bulldozing on the part of Whittington, to suit him. His going away leaves the only vacant house at the Junction.

—The first ice packed this year was by James Smith, it averages about 8 inches in thickness and is the cleanest we have seen for a long time. Mr. Smith packed about 20 tons. Other parties here will long for some of Smith's ice about July next, if they don't improve their time and put up some for themselves.

—The heavy winds of Friday night blew out one pane of glass in the front of the hotel. The whole front would of blown in had they not propped it securely.

—Last Thursday night Mr. Charles Darling concluded he would move from Garrett, in a way that his many creditors would not know it until he was out of the state. He got teams and in the night brought his goods to the Junction where he expected to take the morning freight unmolested, but one of his creditors in company with the Constable overhauled him here, whereupon he paid his creditor and started his goods to Michigan, meanwhile the constable had gone back to Garrett to get another creditor, but finding he had got on his way, they telegraphed to the agent at Angola to stop the goods there. We understood they failed in this, and when last heard from Darling was safely landed a Jackson Michigan.

DON PEDRO.

Tidings from LaOtto.

—To those not aware that there is a LaOtto, I would state that it is a small village situated amid the swamps of Swan township, at the crossing of the Eel River and the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroads. Four year ago it was a howling wilderness; to-day it is a thriving village of 200 inhabitants. We have two beautiful churches and a good substantial school house, where a Mr. Rechem teaches the young ideas how to shoot, for the enormous salary of $30 per month.

—We have lost one of our most prominent merchants, by his removal to Auburn. We regret that circumstances compelled Mr. Martin to leave. He was a good citizen, and it will be many days 'ere we can accustom ourselves to the change which his absence makes in our community. Farewell, Duke, our loss is Auburns' gain.

—We also lost one of our charming young ladies, by marriage. Chas. W. Weller being the happy man, and Miss Rebecca Miller, the blooming bride. They were made one at Kendallville, rather unexpectedly to their friends, who never dreamed of such a thing. The event took place on Dec. 7th, 1876. May they live a long life of happiness, and their troubles be little ones.

—Prof. Sheppard, the great vocalist, is in our midst teaching a class of our young hopefuls. The Prof. understands his vocation.

—Our medicine man, Dr. Bawker, has been quite successfull of late in his cases.

Disolution Notice.

THE partnership heretofore existing between Jas. Casebeer and Abraham Miller, under the firm name of Jas. Casebeer & Co., has this day been disolved by mutual consent, Jas. Casebeer retiring. The business, will be continued by Miller & Gelrost.

JAMES CASEBEER,
ABRAHAM MILLER.

Nov. 11, 1876. 4if.

License Notice

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of Keyser Township, in DeKalb county, Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said township, that he will make application at the next session of the Board of Commissioners, of said county, to be holden on the first Monday in Dec 1876, for license to retail intoxicating liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time with the privilege of having the same drank on the premises, to-wit: In the building now situated on lot No. 22, in the town of Garrett, in said township. CHARLES LINKENHELT.

Dec. 6th, 1876.

Notice for Stockholders' Meeting.

NOTICE is hereby given that according to the articles of association of the First National Bank, of Auburn, Indiana, that the stockholders thereof are required to meet at the Banking house of said association, on the second Tuesday in January, annually, to elect a board of five directors for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may come before said meeting. Therefore a meeting of the stockholders of said association will be held on Tuesday, January 9th, 1877, at the banking-house, in Auburn, at 1 o'clock p. m., to elect a new board of directors, and to transact such other business as may come up.

JAS. O. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 1st, 1876. dec4t4.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss
DEKALB COUNTY. }

A. J. Murbach }
vs. }
Joseph Miller. }

Before Daniel Altenburg, a Justice of the Peace for Union Township:

NOW comes the plaintiff and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit, that said defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana; notice is therefore hereby given to said defendant that unless he be and appear at my office on the second day of January, 1877, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Union township, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my hand and seal this 4th day of December, 1876.

[L. S.] DANIEL ALTENBURG. J. P.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Shearer and Allen C. Wilson, plaintiffs, and Elliphalet S. Rundles, Anne Rundles, and Thomas M. Stephens are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and twenty-one dollars and ninety-eight cents, with interest on said decree, and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, the 6th day of January, A. D. 1877, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot eighteen (18) in Rainier and Headley's Addition, to Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dept.

GUY PLUM, Att'y for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind. Dec. 14, 1876. Pr. fee $6.40.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of an execution to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Rebecca Davis, plaintiff and Samuel Davis defendant, require me to make the sum of three thousand nine hundred and fifty three and 78-100 dollars and with interest on said judgement and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on SATURDAY the 23 day of DECEMBER, A. D. 1876 between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits, for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate, to wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter of section thirty six, town thirty-four (34) range thirteen (13) east, also three acres in the east half of the north-west quarter of the same section, and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the center of the State Road on the east line of said tract, thence north forty rods, thence west twelve rods, thence south forty rods and thence east twelve rods to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said Judgment, interest and costs, I will, at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said Judgment interests and costs.

Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff
By THOS. D. GROSS Dept.

Auburn, Indiana, November 28, 1876.
W. H. DILLS, Att'y for Plaintiff.
Pr fee $7.40.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the State of Indiana on the relation of Isaac Hague, Auditor of DeKalb County, plaintiff, and James E. Rose, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Buss, deceased, Christian C. Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Isaac M. Thomas, Sophia Thomas James E Rose administrator de bonis non estate, Christian Buss deceased, Samuel Buss Lydia Buss, Edward Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Margarett Parish, John Parish, Mary Ann Buss, Clara Buss, Ida M. Buss, Samuel W. Sprott and Carolus Schnieder, defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and twenty-seven dollars and thirty-five cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at publice sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 6th day of January A. D. 1877 between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots numbered seventy-three, (73) seventy-four, (74) and nine (9) in Western Addition of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, except the undivided two-thirds of said lot number nine, (9.)

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. GROSS, Dept.

RICKEL & TEFFT, Att'ys. for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Dec. 14, 1876. Pr. fee $8.60.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

SEC. 1. Therefore be it ordered by the Board of Trustees of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be constructed and located as follows: On the east end of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on the west side of Van Buren street, commencing at the north-east corner of lot No 19, and continuing on the east end of lots No. 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 in Kuhlman's Addition to the said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, and said State. Said sidewalk to be built as follows: not less than six [6] feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings within sixty [60] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound oak or pine lumber, if made of oak timber the plank is to be not less than one and one-fourth [1¼] inches in thickness, nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed on three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of pine lumber, to be of sound lumber, not less than one and a half [1½] inches thick, nor more than twelve inches wide placed upon sleepers running crosswise of the sidewalk, at intervals of not more than three feet, five inches in dimensions, of good sound oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS, An emergency exists, this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees at their regular meeting, Dec. 12, 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Pres.
JOHN TREESH, }
EPHRIAM BERRY, } Trustees.
JOHN OTTO. }

Sheriff's Sale,

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein William B. Taylor, James Rogers, and Calvin A. Croninger, Plaintiffs, and Jesse E. Woodford, Defendant, requiring me to make the sum of Nine hundred and seventy-four dollars and fifty-eight cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder, on

SATURDAY, the 23day of December, A. D. 1876,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

A part of lot number ninety-three (93) in the original plat of the town of Auburn, bounded by a line commencing at the south-east corner of said lot and running thence north five and one-half feet, thence east on a line parallel with the south line of said lot, eighty feet, thence south five and one-half feet, thence west to the place of beginning, and a part of lot number ninety-four (94) in the original plat of the town of Auburn; bounded by a line commencing at the north-west corner of said lot, and running thence east along the north line of said lot eighty feet, thence south four feet, thence west fourteen (14) feet, thence south eighteen (18) feet, thence west to the west boundary line of said lot thence north to the place of beginning.

If such rents and profits will not sell for sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interests and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN. C. ST. CLAIR, Sheriff.
By THOS. D. GROSS, Dp't.

Auburn, Indiana, November 29, A. D. 1876.
ROSE & HARTMAN, Att'y's for Plaintiff.
Pr fee $9.70.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows; On the south sides and ends of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on the north side of Second street, Commencing at the south-east corner of lot No 84, W. A. and continuing and the south side of lot No 15 of W. A. alson on the south ends of lots No. 16, 15, 14, 13, 2, 11, 10, and 9, Ralston's Addition to the said town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within sixty [60] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS an emergency exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a news paper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Dec. 12, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Pres't.
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. Z. HOFFMAN

Mark These Facts.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

Holloway's Pills.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day."

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left.

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compells me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER.

And all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver, and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureaux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

Sold at the manufacture of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Office, 112 Liberty street, New York.

The ladies of Auburn and vicinity, are respectively invited call at H. H. Stamets' Millinery and Fancy Store, and examine the new and elegant Perfume and Lily White Combined. Nothing like it has ever been offered for sale in here and is pronounced by all parties who have used it to be the finest and best in the market. We shall take pleasure in showing it, whether you buy or not. We have also many new novelties in the Millinery line, which we are offering at astonishing low figures, and cannot be undersold by any house in this place. Come and see us.

H. H. STAMETS,
3m. Sole Agt. for Auburn.

You can find everything needed in the way of school supplies, pens, inks, paper, copy books, and school books of all kinds at Housers.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

Mayor Wickham, of New York, has appointed John Kelly Comptroller of the city, in place of Andrew H. Green.

Some of the victims of the awful Brooklyn calamity as had not been identified and claimed by friends and relatives were buried at the city's expense on Saturday, the 9th of December. From a Brooklyn paper we glean the following particulars of the mournful funeral: "The burial of the bodies of the victims this afternoon was a fitting end to one of the most doleful histories of modern times. This morning all the bodies in the morgue were removed to the temporary dead-house in the old market, where there were in all 100 of the charred corpses. A hundred coffins with German silver mountings were brought in and placed upon the floor, and into them the unidentified and destitute dead were placed. Shortly after 1 o'clock the ghastly cortege started through Boerum place, and then entered Schermerhorn street. Hundreds of men, women and children followed, rushing along the sidewalk in a state of great agitation. When the hearses and wagons reached Schermerhorn street, they were formed in parallel lines, and there was a delay of nearly three-quarters of an hour. Although the weather was bitterly cold, and a cutting wind was blowing a gale, the neighborhood of Schermerhorn street and Flatbush avenue was crowded with participants and sympathetic spectators. The sadness in the faces of the women waiting on the pavement was very marked. The soldiers who were awaiting orders to move suffered intensely from the cold. The procession immediately moved from the head of Schermerhorn street into Flatbush avenue amid general mourning, and timed by the measured roll of drums and by the fitful sobbing of the almost broken-hearted people. Within the houses and without them, far along the wide avenue and across the broad streets, many an eye was moist and many a lip quivering as the dead were borne to Greenwood, leaving behind them sacred memories and cruel poverty, too, which will not be effaced, and by their very stillness and seclusion appealing more loudly than the noise of words in behalf of their stricken and famishing loved ones for a wise and generous charity. Compared with other funeral processions, the great procession of to-day had many characteristics of its own. The number and appearance of the many crisped and dismembered forms, the occupants of carriages, all of them nearest friends of the dead, none of them, as is so often the case, distant relations and mere acquaintances with tearless and conventional sadness, were distinct and terrible features; but the one feature which pervaded the scene and lent to it distinctive and deeply-touching significance was the manifestation of popular sympathy and sorrow. A community had been afflicted, and sadness was common. Many of the private and almost all of the public buildings were heavily draped. All flags were at half-mast, and torn by the gale almost into shreds, as if the great occasion had a right to all the service they could ever render. As the cortege passed through the gate the bell in the tower tolled mournfully. On either side along the pathways, on the hillsides and invading private plats, there were large crowds of people. Turning to the left the funeral party proceeded directly to Battle avenue, where, about 150 yards from the entrance of the cemetery, a trench had been prepared for the reception of the dead. The great crowds which met near and just within the cemetery were formed about the vast grave. The site being on the slope of the hill and completely exposed, the cold was almost insufferable, but still the people held their places. There was no delay in removing the remains from the hearses and wagons and depositing them in the circular trench. Then the services began. Rev. Noah H. Schenck read the beautiful burial service of the Episcopal church, which was listened to attentively by those who were within reach of his voice. There was inexpressible sadness mingled with solemnity in the scene. Hundreds of people wept, the tears freezing on their cheeks as they issued from the eyes. After the reading of the service, Rev. A. P. Putnam, of the Unitarian Church of Our Savior, addressed the assemblage. Rev. A. Stewart Walsh, a Baptist clergyman, offered a fervent prayer at the conclusion of Mr. Putnam's remarks, and the services were brought to a close with a benediction by Rev. Joseph Odell. Previous to the dismissal of the assemblage the choral societies sang "Say, What Troubles Thee?" and "Above the Tree Top is Rest." The people now departed and all was ended except the enduring agony of the widow and orphan.

A New York dispatch says: "It is rumored that a compromise has been effected, under which the ring magnates, and notably Tweed and Sweeney, are to refund to the city of New York quite a large amount of money, and to receive in return immunity from prosecution. Tweed will very soon be released, and Sweeney will return from Europe. The compromise is thought to include Connolly also."

Joshua F. Bailey, who in 1869 fled from the country as a defaulter in his accounts with the Government, as the Internal Revenue Collector of the Thirty-second (New York) district, has returned, made good his deficit, and has received from the President a full pardon.

THE WEST.

Jack McCall was recently tried at Yankton, D. T., for the murder of Wild Bill, in the Black Hills, last summer. The jury rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is death.... J. A. Moore & Bro., loan and insurance brokers, of Indianapolis, have failed. Liabilities, $393,000. Their assets are estimated at $1,000,000.

A farmer named Edward F. Carr, living in Valley county, Neb., recently murdered his wife and two children and then committed suicide. He left a note saying: "I cannot live always, and am not willing to leave my family to suffer. Bury us all together on the top of some high hill."

Chicago elevators as per official figures, contain 2,955,070 bushels of wheat; 261,369 bushels of corn; 452,763 bushels of oats; 83,459 bushels of rye, and 1,114,420 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 4,867,090 bushels, against 2,948,767 bushels at this period last year.... Several steamboats were destroyed by the breaking of an ice-gorge at St. Louis, last week. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Single men are being committed to the workhouse daily at Detroit, Mich., on their own request, as vagrants, being out of employment, and preferring that course to begging or pauperism.

A most successful and daring robbery was perpetrated at Somerset, Perry county, Ohio, one night last week. The banking-house of William M. Beam was entered by four masked men, and over $10,000 stolen. Beam and his wife, who lived over the bank, were bound and gagged by the robbers, the former being first compelled, at the point of a pistol, to open the bank vault.

THE SOUTH.

A Columbia dispatch of the 9th inst. says the Democratic House has instructed its Judiciary Committee to employ counsel and proceed against D. H. Chamberlain for treasonable acts in usurping the Government of the State.

A telegram from Columbia, S. C., states that a committee of the Democratic House of Representatives waited upon Gen. Ruger and asked him by what authority troops were in the State House, for what purpose, and if they were instructed to resist the peaceable entrance of the Democratic members into the hall of the House of Representatives. Gen. Ruger replied as follows: "My orders to them came from the President of the United States, and I acted as I understood those orders. Gov. Chamberlain applied to the President for troops to preserve the peace against violence and insurrection. President Grant recognized Chamberlain as the Governor of South Carolina, and ordered the troops placed at his disposal. The troops as they are now placed are to preserve peace and to prevent interference with the House which Chamberlain recognizes as legal."....Three young ladies—two Misses Campbell, and a Miss Choate—and one man, James Gregory, were drowned in a mill-pond ten miles from Olmstead, Ky., Friday night of last week. They were going to a party, and were crossing the pond in a canoe, when the craft capsized.

The Chamberlain Legislature of South Carolina has declared the seat of Chief-Justice Moses vacant, in consequence of his having violated a constitutional provision by accepting another office of trust and profit—that of Professor of Law in the University—while holding the Chief Justiceship..... At Columbia, last week, Judge Bond, of the United States Circuit Court, rendered his decision in the habeas corpus case of the Board of State Canvassers. Judge Bond discharged the prisoners, and declared that the Supreme Court exceeded its powers in meddling with the duties of the Board.

A terrible explosion of a boiler in a saw-mill is reported from Texarkana, a town near Red river, on the Texas and Arkansas line. Nine men were killed, named Chauncey Beach, James May, W. White, Nicholas Rosenburg, Ed. Griffin, George Green, Tip Stewart, George Jackson, and Fred Williams. Two colored men, named Custer and Johnson, were dangerously wounded.

The Committee of the National House of Representatives to investigate the recent election in Louisiana met and organized in New Orleans, on the 12th of December. A communication signed by all the members of the Returning Board was presented to the committee denying the authority of the House of Representatives to review the decision of the Returning Board until they had delivered their documents to the General Assembly. They also protested against the attempts of the House of Representatives of the United States to obtain and review documents in their possession, and claimed that as individuals they could not, under the constitution and laws of the State, surrender them. They stated further that they would have copies of all documents made for the committee if the committee would provide the necessary means; that the State Legislature had made no appropriation for them, and they could not, therefore, furnish copies unless the committee furnished the funds. These copies, they said, would be made as soon as they were through with the documents, provided the funds were furnished. When the communication had been read the Chairman instructed the Sergeant-at-Arms to notify the members of the Returning Board that their presence would be expected at 11 a. m. on Wednesday, in obedience to orders of the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States.

J. Madison Wells, Chairman of the Louisiana Returning Board, was before the House Investigating Committee at New Orleans, on the 13th. He informed the committee that he was willing they should have access to all documents in possession of the board, provided they would furnish the clerical assistance necessary to do the work; at the same time he should decline to answer any questions regarding his action as a member of said board, for the reason that he denied the right of the committee to interrogate him on the subject. Whereat Mr. Morrison, Chairman of the committee, announced that he should not press the matter, and Mr. Wells withdrew. The counsel for the Republicans addressed a communication to the committee complaining that personal indignities had been offered to some of their witnesses at the hotel where the committee were sitting, and asking "that free access and suitable accommodation be afforded to the counsel representing the Republican party in the investigation, and also that the witnesses subpenaed by the committee may be able to reach the committee-room without passing through a crowd of hostile and disorderly persons, and that when under examination before the committee they be protected against insults and threats."

A Columbia (S. C.) dispatch of the 14th says: "The inauguration of Hampton took place in front of Carolina Hall this afternoon. The square in front of the hall was densely packed with persons of both races, and the housetops were covered with spectators. At 3:30 p. m. Hampton was escorted to a stand amid demonstrations of great enthusiasm. Members of the General Assembly occupied a space immediately surrounding the stand, with the crowd in the rear. Hampton delivered an address, at the close of which the oath of office was administered. The chair in which he was seated was then wrapped in the national colors, and he was borne on the shoulders of a dozen men to his hotel."

WASHINGTON.

The following committees have been appointed by the President of the Senate to go to Louisiana, Florida, and South Carolina and investigate the recent elections in those States: For Louisiana, Messrs. Howe, Wadleigh, McMillan, Boutwell, Saulsbury, and McDonald. For Florida, Messrs. Mitchell, Teller, and Cooper. For South Carolina, Messrs. Cameron (Wis.), Christiancy, and Merrimon.

At a caucus of the House Democrats, held last week, the political situation was discussed at length, and a resolution was adopted instructing the Judiciary Committee to examine and report as to the powers, duties, and privileges of the House in connection with the counting of the electoral vote, and respecting the Presidential question generally. It is said that the sentiment of the members present was in favor of insisting upon the right of the House to an equal voice with the Senate in acting judicially upon the returns of every State. Messrs. Thurman, Bayard, Bogy, Kernan, and Eaton have been appointed by the Senatorial caucus a committee to confer with the House Democrats in settling upon a party policy.

Mr. Windom, of Minnesota, has introduced in the Senate a very important bill for the relief of settlers on the public lands. It authorizes homestead or pre-emption settlers on any public lands; or pre-emption settlers of Indian reservations, where the crops were destroyed or severely injured by grasshoppers in the year 1876, to leave and be absent from said lands until the 1st of next July, or, if the grasshoppers reappear next year, to a like destruction or injury of the crops, to remain away until July, 1878, without impairing their rights, homestead or pre-emption, if they afterwards resume and perfect their settlement. The bill also expressly extends their time for making final proof and payment for one year after the expiration of absence above contemplated, and furthermore provides that all the proposed rights and privileges above stated shall apply to and include settlers under the Timber-culture act of March, 1873.

The House Committee on Postoffices and Post-roads has substantially agreed to recommend a formal non-concurrence in the Senate amendments to the Post-route bill of last session, which provide for the restoration of the fast-mail service and the revival of the franking privilege....The Consul at Sandgago de Cuba, who assisted Tweed in getting away from his pursuers, has been removed by the President.

The President has nominated Weden O'Neal for United States Marshal for the District of Kentucky, and John R. G. Pitkin for the District of Louisiana; Alex. M. Blair for Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Kansas, and Oliver C. Bosbyshell for Commissioner of the Mint, in place of Snowden, who is appointed Postmaster at Philadelphia.

GENERAL.

Near Petrolia, Pa., one day last week, a wagon-load of glycerine, containing some 600 pounds of the fluid, exploded with terrible force, tearing wagon and horses to shreds, instantly killing Daniel Garth, superintendent of the Roberts Torpedo Company, and Mr. Humphreys, of that place. The bodies were blown to atoms, and, with the exception of a portion of one foot and some pieces of charred flesh, have not yet been found.

The members of the theatrical fraternity in nearly all the cities of the country are giving benefits for the sufferers by the Brooklyn calamity.

Bland's Silver bill, which passed the lower house of Congress last week, provides that silver dollars of the weight of 412½ grains shall be coined, and shall be a legal tender for all debts, public and private, except where payment of gold coin is required by law. This weight of 412½ grains is the same as that of the old legal silver dollar which was a full legal tender for eighty years.

POLITICAL.

A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, referring to the complications growing out of the Presidency dispute, says, "the Republican programme will doubtless be for the President of the Senate to invite the House to be present in the Senate Chamber on the counting of the vote. The votes will then be counted as 185 for Hayes, including the Republican electors from Oregon. The President of the Senate will hold that, under the Constitution, no business is in order; that, as there are no joint rules, no motion can be entertained or debate heard, and that the only duty will be an open count and a declaration of the votes. The Senate, through the Sergeant-at-Arms, will see to it that order is preserved. The vote being declared, Hayes would be immediately inaugurated and President Grant would immediately surrender the Government to him. This appears to be the Republican programme, unless it shall be modified by the adoption of some compromise measure as to counting the votes between the two houses, which now seems as impossible as it is improbable."

Hon. Henry M. Teller has been elected United States Senator from Colorado for six years.

Prince (Democrat) was elected Mayor of Boston, Mass., last week, by 2,141 majority over Bradlee (Citizens') and Butterfield (Prohibitionist)....Gov. Hayes was serenaded at Dayton, Ohio, last week, and made a brief speech. Referring to the political complications, he said: "In the excitement that has prevailed before and since the election, people of ardent temperaments have said and done things that are indiscreet, but, as the excitement subsides, we begin to return to our better wisdom and judgment. I have too much faith in the saving common-sense of the American people to think they desire to see in their country a Mexicanized Government. Whatever may be the result at which the lawful authorities arrive, you and I will quietly submit, and I have sufficient respect and confidence in the great majority of the opposite party to believe that they will do the same. I was glad to see in a paper this evening an article from the London Times respecting the condition of this country. Such a state of affairs, it said, could not occur anywhere else in the world. The entire area of the country was agitated by the uncertain issue of the political conflict, and yet not one shot fired, not one man killed, no breaches of the peace."

The National Democratic Committee has issued the following address:

ROOMS OF NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13, 1876.

To the People of the United States:

The National Democratic Committee announce as the result of the Presidential election held on the 7th of November, the election of Samuel J. Tilden, of New York, as President, and Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana, as Vice President of the United States. We congratulate you on this victory for reform. It now only remains for the two houses of Congress, in the performance of their duty on the second Wednesday in February next, to give effect to the will of the people thus expressed in a constitutional mode by a majority of the electoral votes, and confirmed by a majority of all the States, as well as by an overwhelming majority of all the people of the United States. By order of the Executive Committee.

ABRAM S. HEWITT, Chairman.
FREDERICK O. PRINCE, Secretary.

The following response to the above has been issued by the Republican National Committee:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13, 1876.

To the People:

An address has to-night been issued by the Democratic Committee. It is the last desperate attempt to prop a falling cause. Gov. Hayes has been fairly elected by a clear majority of the electoral vote. There is no indication that any right-minded citizen has a doubt as to the result. The address of the Democratic Committee is an impudent and audacious attempt to prejudice and pervert public judgment. Hayes and Wheeler are elected, and the will of the American people will be carried out and maintained.

Z. CHANDLER,
Chairman National Committee.

FOREIGN.

A Constantinople dispatch of the 9th says: A conspiracy to depose the present Sultan was discovered on Tuesday night. The conspirators, six of whom were found in disguise in the palace itself and arrested, had planned to carry off the ex-Sultan, Murad, in a steamer which they had already engaged, to Athens. When there they intended to proclaim that Murad had recovered his reason, and the Sultan Hamed was consequently a usurper.... There has been a ministerial crisis in France, and a new Cabinet has been formed.

News comes from the interior of Mexico, by way of Matamoras, that President Lerdo and Cabinet have been captured by the revolutionists near the city of Nuncan; that Gen. Escobado, Secretary of War, was shot with several others; that the Government of Lerdo is undoubtedly overthrown; that Monterey and Saltillo have declared in favor of Iglesias, and surrendered without fighting; and that the whole Eorthern frontier of Mexico, except Matamoras, is in possession of the supporters of Iglesias.... At the annual fete of St. George, celebrated at St. Petersburg, the Czar, as usual, proposed the health of Emperor William, who is the oldest knight of the order, in complimentary and friendly terms. He also expressed hopes of a peaceable settlement of the Eastern question.

News from Egypt announces that envoys from the King of Abyssinia, who had been kept under surveillance in Cairo for some time, recently managed to escape to the house of the British Consul. They were rearrested during the night by the Khedive. The continuation of the war with Abyssinia is now certain.... A correspondent of the London Standard, at Constantinople, telegraphed the following on the 12th: "I learn from undoubted authority that the conference will certainly result in peace, a mode of satisfying all just demands and providing sufficient guarantees having been found."

The preliminary meeting of the conference at Constantinople promises well for a harmonious settlement of the vexed Eastern problem. Representatives of the different powers have had little difficulty in agreeing upon the terms to be applied to Servia and Herzegovina. The following points have been decided upon: Montenegro is to be granted a considerable territorial addition, and the boundary of Servia is to be rectified, by which that province will also gain territory. The Turkish army will be required to withdraw from Servia, and the armistice will be prolonged for a term sufficient to cover the time consumed in the negotiations.

Valparaiso, South America, was recently visited by a disastrous conflagration. The flames raged for twenty-four hours, and a great number of valuable buildings were destroyed.... A Constantinople dispatch says: "The absence of the Porte's representative from the preliminary conference creates an unfavorable impression. The fact that Russia, an interested party, is permitted to sit in judgment on the questions at issue is commented on in Turkish circles."

A Vienna dispatch says the Grand Duke Nicholas, of Russia, has asked for a reserve force of 100,000 men. Their mobilization has already commenced at St. Petersburg and Moscow. It is said if Russian troops, as expected, enter Roumania shortly, the movement will not be accompanied by a declaration of war on Turkey.

Some men never lose heart, but always look on the brighter side. We met one last night corner of Main and Colony streets. His umbrella had been blown into tatters, and he was fairly soaked through. To our "Pretty wet night," he answered cheerily, "Well, yes, kinder; but then it's a blamed good thing for the reservoir." That's the kind of a spirit we like to see in a man.—Meridian (N. H.) Herald.

FORTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

Debate on the Sherman Report.

Mr. Anthony, from the Committee on Printing, to which was referred the motion to print the depositions accompanying the communication of the Hon. John Sherman, and others, to the President in regard to the late election in Louisiana, reported in favor of printing all the depositions.

Mr. Saulsbury, a member of the Committee on Printing, dissented from the report of the majority, and said he could not give his consent to publishing such matter. He honestly believed that all these ex-parte statements should not be distributed to the public as testimony.

Mr. McDonald said he was willing to print all the testimony on both sides bearing on the late election in South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida. He sent to the Clerk's desk and had read the address of the Democratic Committee which attended the sessions of the Returning Board in New Orleans, to the effect that the Tilden Electors had a majority of the votes in Louisiana, and also from the preamble of the report made to the House of Representatives by a committee of that body on the 23d day of February, 1875, in regard to elections in that State.

Mr. Sherman, in reply to a question of Mr. Merrimon, said there were three classes of testimony presented with the communication. First, oral testimony taken before the Returning Board, and the proceedings of the board; second, statements of Supervisors of Election and affidavits sworn to by them; third, testimony taken according to the laws of Louisiana on interrogatories and cross-interrogatories.

Mr. Eaton opposed the printing of the documents because they were not brought here by action of the Senate. Proper testimony in regard to the election in South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana would be taken both by the Senate and House of Representatives, and that should be printed, not this partisan matter.

Mr. Thurman said he did not object to the printing of these papers because he wanted to suppress the publication of any facts, but he did not want public opinion to be forestalled by a premature publication of part of the facts. If this matter should be delayed till all the testimony was fully produced, as it would be shortly, he would not object to the publication. He commented on the action of the Louisiana Returning Board, and said this was the third time that board has set aside the will of that State. Now the matter concerned not the State of Louisiana alone, but the whole republic, and he (Thurman) wanted to scrutinize the testimony upon which this extraordinary result had been reached by the board. If his colleague (Sherman) had stated the acts of the Returning Board so far as he knows, then he (Sherman) had not said anything in regard to the secret sessions of that board. The country wanted to know what the secret resolutions of that board were by which an apparent majority of 7,000 for Tilden was converted into a majority of 3,000 for Hayes and Wheeler. This was done in secrecy, and the worst kind of secrecy. The vacancy in the board was never filled, and the reason of this was that the board could not agree upon a man. Not one of the 83,000 men in Louisiana who voted for Tilden could be named. The very thing on its face showed a determined purpose to do wrong. Had there been a Democrat on the board he could have seen what was done in secret. All the whitewashing in the world cannot wipe out or hide the guilt. The majority in the Senate might make efforts to forestall public opinion by distributing this testimony, but it would go to the country stamped with the stigma of being a one-sided statement. He protested against the publication of the statements in the name of fair play. He hoped they would be allowed to lay upon the table until the other side should be heard from; then print all.

Mr. Morton said the Senate had a singular spectacle here in the denunciation of the Returning Board of Louisiana for fraud, while at the same time resistance was made to laying before the country the evidence upon which the action of that board was based. The Democratic Committee in New Orleans was invited by the Republican committee to publish the testimony taken by it, together with that taken by the Republicans. But the Democrats were not willing to make public their case as it was before the board. They wanted to wait to get more testimony, and thus make a case which was not before the board. They thus confessed that they were not satisfied with their case, but wanted to make a new one. This free denunciation of the Returning Board was unfair. If the board acted unfairly let the Democrats bring forward their evidence to that effect. He was not afraid of testimony. The more the better.

Mr. Thurman said he did not know why the Democratic committee in New Orleans declined to furnish their testimony to the Republican committee, but had he been a member of the Democratic committee he would have refused to furnish the testimony, and he thought the committee acted fairly in refusing to furnish the Republicans with their testimony. His colleague (Sherman) and comrades went to New Orleans at the request of the President. They did not ask the Democratic committee to join them in making a report to the President, but asked that the Democratic testimony be placed in their hands, that they (five Republican gentlemen) might make up a verdict to send to the President, which constituted the Senator from Ohio (Sherman) and his four associates in New Orleans the sole judges in this case. There never was a time in all the history of this nation when the forms of government and constitution were put to a severer test than now, and everything done by Congress should set an example to the people of coolness.

Mr. Morton said that all the ingenuity that could be brought to bear on the other side could not change the dilemma in which the Democrats were placed. When the Republican committee in New Orleans offered to lay the whole testimony of both sides before the country the Democrats declined to furnish their side, and when the Republicans came forward to publish what they had, they were asked by the Democrats not to do so.

Mr. Sherman defended the action of the committee with which he acted, and said the committee presented every particle of testimony they could get. They tried to get it all on both sides, but could not do so. He argued that it was on the testimony now before the Senate that the decision of the Returning Board was made.

Mr. Thurman said it was upon one side of the case that the Returning Board rendered its decision and reversed a popular majority of 7,000. Where was the statute which authorized the committee which visited New Orleans to report to the President? The members of that committee were public officers. The President invited none but members of his own party to serve on the committee. The attempt to put the garment of office on this thing would not do.

Mr. Edmunds said the third section of the second article of the constitution of the United States authorized the President to transmit to Congress from time to time information as to the safety of the Union. He was commanded to perform that duty, and bound to obey it. The President, to obtain information from one of the States of the Union, invited certain citizens to go there to get such information, and after he had obtained it to communicate it to Congress, as he believed it was of a character to justify him in transmitting it to Congress. He argued that it never had, in the history of the Government, been unusual to print information sent in by the President.

Mr. Bayard said it was usual to print documents sent to the Senate by the President, but these papers were not official, and did not pretend to be official. They were not accompanied by any recommendation of the President calling for the action of Congress. The office of President of the United States no more connected him with the election in any State than the office of Senator connected him with such election. Therefore the whole action of the President in sending a committee to New Orleans was without warrant, of law. If the two committees in New Orleans had co-operated and destroyed the partisan features, there would have been a combined scrutiny of the count, and the country would have had at least an attempt to agree upon the law and the facts. If there should be a delay until the testimony of the other side was presented, so that both might be printed and go out together, he would not object. He desired every fact made public in the Louisiana case. In the position in which the Senate was now placed, there must be no shuffling, but every Senator must stand upon the rock of the law and truth.

Regular Proceedings.

Friday, Dec. 8.—Senate.—Edmunds moved to take up the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States in regard to the count of the electoral vote by the Supreme Court. Merrimon objected, and read the 21st joint rule, providing that unfinished business left over from one session shall not be taken up for action until the lapse of six days of the beginning of the subsequent session. He made a point of order that under that rule the joint resolution could not be considered now. The Chair (Ferry) overruled the point, and announced that the joint rules were not in force. Merrimon appealed from the decision of the Chair. After considerable discussion the Chair was sustained, only four votes being recorded in the negative, namely: Maxey, Merrimon, Whyte, Withers—all of them Southern Senators.

House.—The House passed Mr. Hewitt's resolution calling upon the President for information respecting the use of troops in the Southern States.... Baker (Ind.) introduced a bill proposing an amendment to the constitution, forbidding the assumption or payment of any claims for loss or damage growing out of the loss or destruction of property during the late rebellion.... The Pension Appropriation bill was passed.... Wood (N. Y.) called up his resolution calling on the President for copies of the instructions sent to, and the reports received from the military officers in the South since August....LeMoyne (Ill.) offered the following resolution: "Whereas, Serious differences of opinion may arise between members of the two houses of Congress as to their jurisdiction and powers in joint session in counting the electoral vote, and the questions involved being questions of law, "Resolved, That the Senate be requested to appoint a committee to act with a committee of five to be appointed by the Speaker of the House in presenting to the Supreme Court such questions as either of said committees may deem important in this crisis, and asking the members of the Supreme Court to give Congress an opinion thereon."

Monday, Dec. 11.—Senate.—Edmunds called up his proposed amendment to the constitution, providing that the Supreme Court shall open and count the electoral votes. Morton signified his opposition to this amendment, regarding it as dangerous. The matter was discussed at length by Frelinghuysen, Edmunds, Merrimon, and Morton.... Merrimon gave notice of an amendment he would offer so as to make any Justice of the Supreme Court ineligible to appointment to any office under the United States, and also ineligible to be elected President or Vice President until the expiration of four years next after he shall have ceased to be such Justice. Ordered printed.... Bayard offered a resolution calling upon the Attorney General for a statement of the number of Deputy United States Marshals employed throughout the country at the recent election. Laid over.... Sherman presented a petition from Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, asking the removal of his political disabilities. Referred...... A bill appropriating $26,000 to defray the expenses of the Southern Investigating Committees was passed.... Bogy, of Missouri, presented the report of the Democratic committee which attended the sessions of the Louisiana Returning Board, and moved that it be printed. Objection was made by several Senators on the Republican side, on the ground that the paper was not addressed to the Senate, and to print it would be a violation of the rules. After debate, it was decided that Messrs. Bogy, Stevenson and McDonald should prepare a memorial, making the paper a part thereof, and it could then be printed.... Mitchell, of Oregon, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported favorably on the resolution authorizing an investigation as to the eligibility of Watts, the Oregon elector.... Cameron (Wis.) introduced a bill to provide for the redemption of greenbacks.

House.—The Speaker announced the appointment of Clymer, of Pennsylvania, to fill a vacancy in the Committee on Appropriations, caused by Randall retiring. The Chairmanship of the committee remains with Holman. Under the call of States for the introduction of bills, their reading in full was required by the Republicans, so as to consume the morning hour, and leave no time for a call of the States for resolutions.... The following new bills were introduced: By Eames, reducing letter postage to two cents; by Cox, to regulate the compensation of letter-carriers; by Gannon, to promote commerce and cheaper railroad transportation between the Atlantic seaboard and the West, by chartering the American Midland Railway Company; by Glover, for the protection of the States against domestic violence.... Mr. Banning asked unanimous consent to offer a resolution reciting the eulogium passed on J. Madison Wells, of the Louisiana Returning Board, in the report of Senator Sherman and others to the President, and requesting the President to furnish from the War Department copies of all reports, orders, correspondence, etc., connected with the removal of Wells from the Governorship of Louisiana by Gen. Sheridan in 1867. Lost—yeas 141, nays 81—not two-thirds in the affirmative.... Spencer moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire what intimidation has been practiced on Government employes during the late election to compel such employes to contribute to the election fund of any political party, and what legislation is needed to abate the evil. Lost—yeas, 134; nays, 74, not two-thirds.

Tuesday, Dec. 12.—Senate.—Bogy presented the memorial of himself and Senators Stevenson and McDonald, embracing the report of the Democratic committee which witnessed the count by the Returning Board in Louisiana. Ordered printed.... Bayard's resolution, directing the Attorney General to inform the Senate as to the number of Deputy United States Marshals employed on election day, was agreed to, with the amendment submitted by Edmunds requesting the Attorney General also to communicate to the Senate a full statement as to the necessity for their employment, the object thereof, the nature of their duties, etc.... The Senate discussed the resolution of Mitchell, providing for an investigation in regard to the appointment of Cronin as a Presidential elector in Oregon.... Edmunds' constitutional amendment providing for the counting of the electoral vote by the Supreme Court of the United States was discussed, amended, and laid over.... Merrimon introduced a bill to amend section 146 of the Revised Statutes of the United States in regard to vacancies in the offices of President and Vice President. The bill provides that the Secretary of State, or, in case of his death, the Secretary of the Treasury, shall succeed to the Presidency in the event of the death, removal, or resignation of both President and Vice President.

House—The House was the scene of a spirited and interesting discussion in regard to the existence of the joint rules of the two houses. Messrs. Garfield, McCrary, Hoar, and Kasson maintained that the rules no longer existed, and Messrs. Springer, Reagan, and Speaker Randall took the opposite side of the case......Mr. Blair introduced a constitutional amendment forbidding the manufacture and sale of distilled liquors as a beverage, after the year 1900. Referred......Mr. Holman, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, reported the Postoffice Appropriation bill. The bill recommends the appropriation of $32,983,125.... The Speaker laid before the House the resignation of Smith Ely, Jr., as Representative from the State of New York. Laid on the table....The Fortification bill was reported. It appropriates $2,500,000... The Speaker appointed as the committee to inquire as to whether frauds have been practiced in the election in New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Philadelphia, Messrs. Cox (New York), Rice (Ohio), Waddell, McDougall, and Wells (Mississippi).

Wednesday, Dec. 13—Senate.—Numerous petitions of religious and temperance organizations throughout the country were presented, praying Congress to take steps to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor as a beverage in the District of Columbia and the Territories of the United States......The Senate discussed the resolution of Mr. Mitchell providing for an inquiry into the appointment of Oregon electors....Mr. Edmunds' constitutional amendment for settling the Presidential question by conferring upon the Supreme Court power to count the electoral votes was defeated by 31 nays to 14 yeas. Thirteen Republicans and one Democrat voted in the affirmative.

House.—The proceedings in the House were "flat, stale and unprofitable," nearly the entire day being consumed in discussing what is known as Bland's Silver bill. The measure was finally passed—167 yeas to 53 nays.

Thursday, Dec. 14.—Senate.—The resolution to print extra copies of the President's Message and the accompanying documents, in regard to the late election in Louisiana, was taken up. Mr. Thurman moved to amend, so as to have printed with the message and documents the memorial of Bogy, Stevenson and McDonald, embracing the report of the Democratic committee which witnessed the count in New Orleans. A later discussion followed. Mr. Sherman defended his report vigorously, while Mr. Thurman assailed it as vi.orously, and claimed that it grossly exaggerated the facts. The debate became general in character, not only involving Louisiana, but Florida and South Carolina. Mr. Randolph said, in regard to the latter, that the Democrats did not concede that it had been carried by Hayes, but that the Democrats, on a recount of the votes, expected to show that their national and State tickets had a clear majority of all the votes cast. The resolutions after being amended so as to include the report of the Democratic committee which witnessed the count in New Orleans, was then agreed to.... The Chair laid before the Senate a Message from the President in answer to a resolution of the Senate of the 8th inst. in regard to troops being stationed at Petersburg, Va., on election day. Ordered printed and to lie on the table.... Also, a communication from the Attorney General in answer to the Senate resolution of the 12th inst. in regard to the employment of Deputy Marshals on election day. The Attorney General says the information called for is not in his possession, and can only be obtained from the Marshals of the United States, who have the power to appoint deputies, but he will seek to procure information at as early a day as practicable. Ordered printed and to lie on the table.

House.—Mr. Knott, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, reported a resolution as a substitute for Mr. McCrary's resolution about counting the electoral votes. It provides for a committee of seven, to act in conjunction with any similar committee that may be appointed by the Senate, to report without delay a measure best calculated to accomplish the desired end; also another committee of seven to report what are the privileges, powers and duties of the House in counting the electoral votes. The resolution was adopted under the operation of the previous question without debate or division.... The Senate amendments to the Post-route bill of last session for the re-establishment of the fast-mail service and of the franking privilege were rejected on the ground that they should not have been engrafted on such a bill.

Christmas and the Jews.

The Jewish Messenger opposes the celebration of Christmas by Israelites. It says: "Without saying a word in disparagement of a festival that has such holy and sweet recollections for Christians, and a ceremony that is innocent in itself, and gives great pleasure to young and old, we simply ask, is it consistent for would-be liberal Jews, who have pews in a temple and family plots in a Jewish cemetery, who fall in a rage when they notice the Jews aspersed in the press—and who probably object to their daughters and sons visiting frequently among Christians—to neglect Jewish festivals and ceremonies having a biblical origin, and indulge in Christmas, that is distinctively anti-Jewish? To remember the exodus from Egypt by eating unleavened bread is barbarous, of course; but they will keep a day whose origin is problematical, just because Christians keep it. To celebrate the giving of the law by a display of flowers in home and synagogue is antiquated; but these Jews will walk Fifth avenue on Easter Sunday with violets in their coat lappel, because it is the fashion among young Christians so to act. Chanuca lights are to be tabooed, but Christmas trees are fully in order."

A Big Hunt.

The biggest job of deer-hunting on record for several years in Southern Colorado occurred Monday, at the head of Gurules' canyon, about ten miles from this place. The successful Nimrods that did the job were Ed Small, a 16-year-old boy, and Dr. Parsons, of Missouri. They killed nine deer, including one buck, one of which was slain late in the evening, of which they lost trace in the darkness. Mr. J. W. Smith went out yesterday and brought in six of them, which we saw with our naked eyes. The girls now say that though Ed is not their little dear, he is the dearest boy in Trinidad by half a dozen. Ed is holding a pretty high head now, and says we must not say anything more about old Nimrod; he is completely laid in the shade. Altogether, Ed killed five and Dr. Parsons four, three of which were killed Tuesday.—Trinidad (Col.) Enterprise.

Savannah's Scourge.

The Savannah (Ga.) News gives an interesting statement concerning the fearful plague by which that city has been scourged during the past three months. The following table shows the progress of the disease and the mortality from Aug. 1 to Nov. 26:

	Total Deaths.	Yellow Fever.	Other Disease	Whites.	Blacks.
August.	172	33	139	91	81
Sept ...	783	556	227	575	208
October	474	287	187	301	173
Nov. 6..	145	64	81	91	54
Total...	1,574	940	634	1,058	516

Some inspired young man in Oneida county, N. Y., has written a "poem" about the trotter Great Eastern. It consists of nine verses, the first of which is as follows:

> Come, all you sportsmen, far and near,
> And lovers of the turf,
> And then my story you shall hear,
> Of the greatest horse on earth.
> Great Eastern is the one I mean;
> I will explain, if you desire:
> Jack Feek drove him in 2:19,
> And walked him under the wire.

Twenty-four of the most prominent men of Jerusalem are about to buy a farm near Jericho, for an Israelitish colony.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

Beeves	7 00	@	11 [illegible]
Hogs	6 50	@	6 60
Cotton	13¼	@	13¾
Flour—Superfine Western	5 [illegible]	@	5 80
Wheat—No. 2 Chicago	1 28	@	1 30
Corn—Western Mixed	55	@	59
Oats—No. 2 Chicago	40	@	44
Rye—Western	80	@	83
Pork—New Mess	16 50	@	17 00
Lard—Steam	10½	@	10¾

CHICAGO.

Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 00	@	5 50
Choice Natives	4 60	@	4 90
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@	3 50
Good Second-class Steers	3 75	@	4 00
Medium to Fair	4 25	@	4 50
Hogs—Live	4 50	@	6 30
Flour—Fancy White Winter	6 75	@	7 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@	6 75
Wheat—No. 2 Spring, New	1 16½	@	1 17
No. 3 Spring	1 07	@	1 09
Corn—No. 2	46	@	46½
Oats—No. 2	33	@	34
Rye—No. 2	71	@	72
Barley—No. 2, New	63	@	64
Butter—Creamery	33	@	35
Eggs—Fresh	22	@	24
Pork—Mess	16 25	@	16 50
Lard	9¾	@	10

MILWAUKEE.

Wheat—No. 1	1 20	@	1 22
No. 2	1 17	@	1 18
Corn—No. 2	44	@	45
Oats—No. 2	32	@	33
Rye	69	@	70
Barley—No. 2	75	@	76

ST. LOUIS.

Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 31	@	1 32
Corn—Western Mixed	41	@	42
Oats—No. 2	33	@	33
Rye—No. 2	70	@	71
Pork—Mess	16 00	@	16 25
Lard	9¾	@	10
Hogs	5 50	@	5 90
Cattle	2 50	@	4 75

CINCINNATI.

Wheat	1 30	@	1 45
Corn	44	@	47
Oats	30	@	[illegible]
Rye	79	@	[illegible]
Pork—Mess	16 50	@	16 75
Lard	9¾	@	10¼

TOLEDO.

Wheat—Extra	1 [illegible]0	@	1 44
Amber	1 [illegible]	@	1 [illegible]
Corn	[illegible]	@	51
Oats—No. 2	[illegible]	@	35

DETROIT.

Flour—Medium	6 0[illegible]	@	6 50
Wheat—White	1 [illegible]	@	1 42
Corn—No. 2	[illegible]	@	59
Oats	[illegible]	@	40
Rye	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Pork—Mess	16 [illegible]	@	17 00

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

Hogs—Yorkers	[illegible]	@	5 65
Philadelphias	[illegible]	@	6 00
Cattle—Best	[illegible]	@	6 50
Medium	[illegible]	@	4 75
Sheep	[illegible]	@	5 00

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MAYS, PUBLISHER.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

Music at Day-Dawn.

Who the melodies of morn can tell?
  The wild brook babbling down the mountain side;
The lowing herd; the sheepfold's simple bell;
  The pipe of early shepherd dim descried
In the lone valley; echoing far and wide
  The clamorous horn along the cliffs above;
The hollow murmur of the ocean tide;
  The hum of bees, the linnet's lay of love,
  And the full choir that wakes the universal grove

The cottage curs at early pilgrim bark;
  Crowned with her pail the tripping milkmaid sings;
The whistling plowman stalks afield; and, hark!
  Down the rough slope the ponderous wagon rings;
Through rustling corn the hare astonished springs;
  Slow tolls the village clock the drowsy hour;
The partridge bursts away on whirring wings;
  Deep mourns the turtle in sequestered bower
  And shrill lark carols clear, from her aerial tower.
—Beattie.

Around the Farm.

ANY farmer can build a wood-house, and the saving in time and quality of wood will pay for the lumber in one year. It is a convenient place to spend a wet day, or be protected from the storms of winter.—Iowa State Register.

A CANADIAN farmer missed a valuable heifer, and, after several days' unavailing search, found that she had eaten her way thirty feet into a straw stack. She had taken a winding course inside the stack, which accounts for her not having eaten her way through.

IN feeding oxen, it must be remembered that they are ruminating animals, and need to be fed differently from horses. Having a large stomach, an ox needs coarse food to fill it. An ox, therefore, is not refreshed by a feed of fine meal, but is by one of cut hay or straw and meal mixed, and the noon feed for oxen should be of this kind. Give ample time for feeding and rest at the noon spell

THE Gardener's Chronicle relates a case of an orchard of apples and pears, plums and cherries, which was planted in heavy clay, trenched down to an iron pan on which it rested. For a few years the trees grew very well, that is to say, as long as their roots were near the surface and got the warmth of the summer's sun, but as they advanced downward the growth became small, and by degrees less and less, till at last the trees ceased to grow, and nothing flourished except gray lichens, with which the branches soon became covered.

A RECENT writer has compiled the following table of weights and measures for ready reference: A bale of cinnamon weighs 92½ pounds. A ceroon of cochineal weighs 140 pounds. A last of corn measures 80 bushels. Diamonds, 151¼ carats make 1 ounce, troy. A German mile measures 5,866 English yards. A dicker of hides is 10 skins. A last of hides is 20 dickers. A dicker of gloves is 10 dozen. A gallon of honey is 12 pounds. Indigo, 3½ maunds are 260 pounds. A pocket of hops is 150 to 200 weight. A cade of herrings is 500 fish. A cran of herrings is 37½ gallons.

TO REMEDY the fault in a horse which carries the tail on one side, a simple operation may be resorted to, which is neither painful nor injurious. It is to cut through the skin, on the side of the tail to which it is desirous to draw it over, a few scores close together, removing the skin between two or three of the scores; or, the skin may be fired with a sharp-edged instrument, and a few scores made close together upon the side required. Then a thick pad should be placed on the crupper, so as to force the tail into the proper position and keep it there until the skin on the side opposite to the pad is healed. After that the tail will keep its proper position.

THE milk of cows soon after they have calved contains more butter, and is much more easily churned than it is afterward. About five months after calving the milk undergoes a change, and the cream is not only less in quantity, but the butter globules are smaller. The reason why milk froths in churns is that when it sours alcohol is formed by the decomposition of the sugar of milk, and this causes the milk, when shaken or beaten, to foam or froth. If this froth exists to a large extent, butter will not come, and the milk is useless for churning purposes. The longer a cow is milked after calving the less is the yield of butter, and the less nourishment is there contained in her milk.—Land and Water.

THE fact that stock which is not prospering is just a machine for the destruction of farm produce ought to startle many a man who will read these words. Let him remember, too, that all live stock are inevitably machines for destroying a certain portion daily, which is as directly daily wasted and burned up in every animal that feeds, as if it had been put on the fire. How much greater the premium, then, on keeping cattle, whose fattening is done in a lifetime of 700 days, than on keeping those whose fattening requires 1,200 days or more. The weeding of the flock and herd upon a farm is a part of live stock management which needs as much promptitude and decision as the weeding of our crops and fields.—English Gazette.

IN the spring, move back the soil and gravel, roll the walks nicely, and they look as clear and fresh as if new. Before finishing the walks, clip the edgings so as to have them only six or eight inches high. Treated in this way, the top of the edging is sometimes slightly frosted, but no more is injured than is desirable to cut off in clipping. I have practised this method, says a correspondent in the Practical Farmer, and have seen others do the same for two score years, and have never seen a failure with it. For dividing walks from beds, both in the kitchen and flower garden, no other edging is as good or as lasting as this. It should never be allowed to grow more than ten inches high, and six inches high and thick is better. When over a foot high and thick, it looks clumsy, injures the crops near it, takes up too much room, and injures the appearance of both walks and beds.

About the House.

A PIECE of charcoal boiled in the water with "high" meat or fowls will render it or them quite sweet. A piece of charcoal or powdered charcoal should be kept in every larder. Hams, after being smoked, may be kept for any length of time packed in powdered charcoal.

OATMEAL GRIDDLE CAKES.—One pint of oatmeal mush, one pint of flour, two eggs, piece of butter size of an egg, one and a half pints of sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda. Beat well and add the soda dissolved in a little boiling water just before frying.

GINGER CAKE.—One and one-half pounds of flour, three-fourths of butter, one pint of molasses and five tablespoonfuls of ginger; rub the butter and sugar together; then roll them out very thin and cut them into rounds, place them on tin sheets and bake them well, and they will keep good a year.

CHILDREN'S PUDDING.—Cut up a loaf of stale bread the day before it is required, put to soak in a pan of cold water; when going to mix, squeeze the water through a colander; put the bread in a pan, with two ounces of suet chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of flour, some grated ginger, a little mixed spice; beat well up with a fork; mix half a pound of treacle (not golden sirup) with a little warm milk, then stir altogether, and boil three hours in cloth, basin or mold. This will make a large pudding, much liked by children; it is cheap and wholesome.

OLD ENGLISH PLUM PUDDING.—Take of raisins well stoned, currants thoroughly washed, one pound each; chop a pound of suet very finely and mix with them, add a quarter of a pound of flour, or bread very finely crumbled, three ounces of sugar, one ounce of grated lemon peel, a blade of mace, half a small nutmeg, one teaspoonful of ginger, half a dozen eggs, well beaten; work it well together, put it into a cloth, tie it firmly, allowing room to swell, and boil not less than seven hours. It should not be suffered to stop boiling.

"GYPSY" writes to the Country Gentleman: "Our hired man would think it queer if the boss told him to pitch hay with a scythe, and yet he will sit at the table with his abused boss and pitch 'meat and taters' with his knife all through the meal-time, to the imminent danger of cutting his 'tater trap' larger and longer. When will the average 'farm hand' learn that knives were made to cut with, and forks or spoons to convey food to the mouth with, and that to draw his knife from his lips and cut butter or bread from the common supply plate is a proceeding that decent people ought not to tolerate?"

All Sorts.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND cans of tomatoes were packed last season at San Jose, Cal.

WONDERFUL to relate, the gas company of Panama has failed, and the Panamaniacs have gone back to coal oil.

THE voyage of the Discovery and the Alert makes the 134th expedition to the frozen regions since the days of Cabot.

SOME Cincinnati proprietors of retail dry goods stores have the lady clerks searched before they leave for the day.

"STEER & TURNER" is the firm name of an organ-building copartnership in Westfield, Mass. The partners ought to have been boat builders.

A JOB lot of Maine islands, sixty-two in number, were auctioned off at Rockland, the other day. The whole of them only brought $1,500.

DURING the past twenty years the British Government has added 617 ships to its navy. It has sold 110, broken up 125, and 31 have been lost.

COL. J. A. MCDONALD, Captain of the Scottish rifle team which recently visited the United States, has been appointed Solicitor General for Scotland.

THE population of Peru is decreasing, being less than 3,000,000. The decrease is attributed to earthquakes, diseases, civil war and brandy, especially the latter.

A CINCINNATI girl of 19, but only four feet high, complains to the police that children of lesser age and larger proportions roll her in the mud and pull the feathers out of her hat.

LAST week a Hartford clergyman, on rising from his pillow in the morning, exclaimed, "How well I have slept! How well I feel!" He then fell back and died almost instantly.

A LEADING florist in New York says that in the past twenty years he has cut 1,800,000 violets, 1,760,000 tea roses, 1,450,000 tuberoses, and has made $12,000 button-hole bouquets.

A LADY and gentleman created a sensation in Quincy the other day by riding through the streets mounted on one horse, he before and she behind. They were from Hannibal, on their wedding tour.

THE silver springs just discovered in Oregon are remarkable. The waters are impregnated with liquid silver so that an iron bar floats on the surface. A hunter recently rowed across one of them and found $15 worth of precious metal in the basket work of his canoe.

WM. A. JONES, foreman of the composing-room of the New Orleans Times, died last week. Just before his death he became conscious for a moment, and, in that gleam, dwelling upon the habit of his life, he suddenly exclaimed: "The ads are all right, Sherman; lock up the forms and let's go to press."

MARY MILLER, a shoplifter, who is mentioned as having "eluded the detectives of a hundred cities," has just been arrested in Detroit, along with her son, who personated a country merchant while his mother was "lifting" whatever she could reach. When captured she was loaded with plunder.

AN old negro testifying in the Criminal Court of Memphis, Tenn., concerning the loss of his wardrobe by theft, fixed the following values upon the same: Coat, $3; "briches," $2; "top shirt," $1; "onder shirt," 50 cents; "draws," 25 cents. The latter articles he apologetically remarked were "very ole ones."

THEY turn the "jim-jams" to good account in Nelson, La. A snake appeared to one of the citizens of that town not long since, but when he strove to kill the reptile the latter crept away to his hole, or seemed to do so. The friends of the unfortunate dug up the dirt where he alleged that the snake had disappeared, and found a jar containing $400 in gold and silver.

LAST OF THE BIG SHOW.

Sale of the Exhibition Buildings—An Outlay of $2,500,000 Bringing Returns at Auction of Only $296,160.

[Philadelphia Cor. New York Tribune.]

Probably the largest sale of property ever held in a single day took place today on the Centennial grounds, when the twenty-four buildings belonging to the Board of Finance and a dozen structures of varying dimensions belonging to individuals or firms, were exposed at public auction. The total cost value of the property offered for sale was estimated in round figures at $2,500,000, and the actual figures realized from the sale were $296,160. Machinery hall, Horticultural hall and Memorial hall, not being in the list of properties owned by the Finance Board, were not included in the list.

The sale began with the Main building, in which the gas-pipes, elevators, and other personal property were reserved from the sale, while the chandeliers were included. The building cost about $1,600,000. The only bids for it were one of $200,000, by R. J. Dobbins, and one of $250,000, by John S. Morton, Esq., who made the bid on behalf of the Permanent Exhibition Company. It was knocked down to Mr. Morton, amid the general applause of the audience.

The two Mineral annexes, which cost together over $19,000, were next offered, with the privilege of taking one or both. The successful bidder was Mr. William King, of Philadelphia, an oil merchant, to whom both the buildings were knocked down—the larger at $600 and the smaller at $400.

The Carriage building was then put up. It cost about $55,000, and the terms of sale require its removal before the 1st of April. The first bid was one of $1,000, and from this start the bidding ran up rapidly to $4,100, at which sum it went to Mr. James C. Adams, for Richard J. Dobbins, Esq.

Photographic hall, which is to be removed by March 1, and for the construction of which between $22,000 and $23,000 was expended, was the next on the list of sales. In answer to a question as to who would bear the loss in case of fire between the time of purchase and removal of any of the buildings, Mr. Welsh replied: "I guess we will have to assume that risk." The building was then disposed of at $1,000 to Mr. Orons, of Reading, Pa.

The Art Gallery annex, which cost $110,000, was next offered for sale. The first bid of Mr. R. J. Dobbins of $1,600 appeared for a time to have no second, but finally rose to $3,050, and at this sum was knocked down to A. P. Bilyew & Son, builders, of Philadelphia.

Judges hall, which cost $30,000, was sold for $1,500 to John S. Morton, Esq., for the International Exhibition Company. The gas fixtures of the building, according to an estimate by Mr. Welsh during the bidding, were worth $1,500. The building will probably be retained in its present position, the purchasers having until May 1 to make any necessary arrangements. The list of buildings offered was then proceeded with and disposed of at the rates and to the purchasers named as follows:

The Medical Department building for $300, to Henry H. Yard, of Ocean Beach, N. J., dealer in real estate.

The Department of Public Comfort building, which cost $22,000, for $1,000, to James and John Hunter, of Philadelphia.

The Shoe and Leather building, costing $30,750, was disposed of for $3,000 to R. J. Dobbins.

The Centennial Guard Reserve building, a small frame 20x30 feet, which cost $500, sold for $155.

The British boiler-house, costing $15,396, sold for $100 to R. J. Dobbins.

The Corliss boiler-house, costing $20,976, and containing 8,125 cubic feet of masonry, 243,450 bricks, and 25,000 pounds of iron, was sold for $1,400 to John Welsh, for either Fairmount Park or the Franklin Institute.

Boiler-house No. 3 and machine shop, costing $39,700, were sold for $2,200 to Frank H. Ward, Philadelphia.

Boiler-house No. 4, costing $24,000, was sold for $1,400 to John Shedrick & Sons, Philadelphia.

The saw-mill and boiler-house No. 5, costing $12,000, were sold for $1,275 to Lewis Haehnlen, Philadelphia.

Boiler-house No.6, costing $3,131, was sold for $300 to Andrew Watson, Philadelphia.

The Music pavilion brought $100.

The Wagon annex was sold for $850 to Samuel A. Simes, Treasurer Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company.

Agricultural hall boiler-house was sold for $250 to R. J. Dobbins.

The annex to Horticultural hall was sold for $600 to John Welsh.

Agricultural hall, covering ten acres, and costing $275,000, was bid for at one time at a lively rate by Messrs. Allison and Dobbins, the effect of the brief rivalry being to increase the price some $4,000. It was finally knocked down to R. J. Dobbins for $13,100.

The Pomological building, which cost $19,000, was sold for $1,250 to R. J. Dobbins.

The Butter and Cheese building, which cost about $15,000, brought $1,100. The owner proposes to take it to Asbury Park, N. J.

The Centennial National Bank, with stationary counters, "vaults," etc., included, which cost $7,000, went for $600, and will be taken to Ocean Grove, N. J.

The Grand American Restaurant, 273 by 18[illegible] feet in size, which cost over $30,000, and which, according to the statement of the auctioneer, the architect had offered to take down, remove, and reerect for less than $7,000, sold for $1,100 to W. E. Baker, of Boston, and will be taken to Ridge Hill farm, Wellesley, Mass.

Cook's "World's Ticket Office," which cost over $6,000, sold for $525.

The Liberty Stove works went to J. C. Shaw, of New York, for $325. The purchaser intends to remove the building to his farm at Bound Brook, N. J.

The Averill Chemical Paint Company's pavilion sold for $550.

The Boston Daily Advertiser building went for $160 Rowell's Newspaper pavilion sold for $520.

The Pennsylvania Educational hall, costing $12,000, went for $900 to James A. Bradley, and is to be taken to Asbury Park.

The British police barracks went for $650.

The British workmen's headquarters for $425.

The Turkish cafe, costing $4,000, for $250.

Two of the eight cigar pavilions offered brought $46, cash, spiced, the remainder not being disposed of.

At the close of the sale it was announced that another sale would soon be held of all gates, fences, and movable property to be removed from the grounds.

BURNED AND URNED.

Successful Cremation of the Body of the Late Baron De Palm in Dr. LeMoyne's Furnace, Near Pittsburgh, Pa.

[Washington (Pa.) Cor. Chicago Times.]

When the body of Baron De Palm arrived on yesterday, and was taken in course to the crematory, the good people of Washington held up their hands in horror, for it now seemed certain that there would be a consummation of the pagan rites of which they had heard so much. A delegation of narrow-minded citizens called upon some leading lawyers, with a view to have the proceedings stopped, but learned that there was no legal authority for such interference, and consequently the purpose of the projectors would be carried out. So, at an early hour this morning, Dr. LeMoyne, Col. Olcott, Dr. Newton, Dr. Otterson, of the Board of Health of Queen's county, New York; Dr. Folsom, of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts; Dr. Asgate, of Pittsburgh; Aug. Buckhorst, undertaker and embalmer, New York Theosophical Society; M. D. Evans, Philadelphia; many prominent people from different cities of the country, and representatives of the Chicago, New York and provincial newspapers, proceeded up the steep grade of Gallows hill to the crematory.

Here the Baron lay in the reception-room, tucked up nicely in an iron coffin-shaped crib. His living weight was 170 pounds, but the embalming process, whereby the stomach and entrails had been removed, together with the ravages of decomposition which had taken place since death, had reduced him to ninety-two pounds. His face was exposed, and was of a gray, brownish color, as if he had lain for years in the crypts of Egypt. His whiskers were white, and worn under the chin and extreme edges of the cheeks, after the fashion of the plain old philosopher, Horace Greeley, and on top of his head were little tufts of white hair. The scientific gentlemen and members of the press then removed their hats, while Col. Olcott proceeded to decorate the body with immortelles, pea blossoms, myrtle, primroses and evergreen emblems of immortality, as prescribed by the society of which deceased was a member. The body was also enriched with fragrant spices, myrrh and frankincense, after which the retort door was opened.

Here a discussion arose between LeMoyne and Col. Olcott about the way the Baron should be put in, the former insisting that it would cremate better with the toes toward the retort door, while the latter wanted him put in feet foremost. LeMoyne's plan was finally adopted, and the body was removed into the furnace-room and slipped into the retort. At this moment there was a strong, offensive smell of burning meat and spices from the body, but it was over soon, and the fireman shut the retort door and stirred the fire vigorously. The latter was a strictly honest fellow, for at midnight last night, when he and a couple of representatives sat alone in the crematory, he refused a $100 bill and fare to Pittsburgh to put the Baron in and burn him up before morning, which could easily be done in half an hour. After the body was placed in the retort, by looking through a small peep-hole a dull mist was observed similar to that seen over water at early sunrise, but there was no smell whatever, and the evergreens, flowers and myrtle lying on the iron crib had apparently not been disturbed by the ravages of fire. After the lapse of an hour the remains assumed the shape of the charred hull of a miniature steamboat. The head had disappeared, but the ribs remained erect, standing up prominently from the keel or backbone, but every now and then one would drop off and fall crumbling into the crib. "It is beautiful!" said Col. Olcott, alluding, no doubt, to the man inside. At 11 o'clock, LeMoyne, Olcott, Folsom, Otterson and other medical men went into the furnace-room, and, taking a long piece of iron, gave the Baron's crib a smart punch, and instantly what bones had up till that time been erect toppled over, and the whole structure of the man lay a heap of ashes on the floor of the retort. Two hours and a half were occupied in bringing about this complete incineration, and the Baron was now pronounced done—or, in other words, completely cremated.

Following is the official report of Col. Olcott:

Body inserted at 8:27.

At 8:45 o'clock vapor cleared away; body seen plainly against the brilliant red background of the retort. A flue-mouth was white hot and seemed like a radiant crown floating over the old man's head. The form of every sprig of evergreen was seen, the pointed branches arching, and turned toward the center. The sheet enfolds the corpse, the alum experiment being a perfect success in preserving elements of decency in covering bodies.

At 9 o'clock and 15 minutes the sheet was charred at the head and stood up black and ragged.

A remarkable effect is to be noticed. The left hand is raised, and points upward, seeming to indicate that the dead man had ascended from the consuming remains.

At 9 o'clock and 25 minutes Dr. Otterson tested the draft through the eye-hole with a bit of paper. It had been suggested that there was not enough oxygen. It was found that there was a draft, and the left arm was seen to fall again. A glorious rose-colored light about the remains, and a sort of faint mist and faint aromatic odor stealing through the vent-hole.

At 10 o'clock and 25 minutes crib red-hot; body surrounded by a golden-tinged mist.

A NEW aspirant for cheap notoriety is one Clara Uply, the young lady telegraph operator who has been suspended during the investigation of the fatal railroad collision at London, on the Pennsylvania railroad. She was visiting the railway water-works, recently, and deliberately registered her name in the visitors' book as "Clara Uply, train smasher." We soon expect to see her announcement as a lecturer.

WHILE a man was waiting lately for a train at the Whalley (Eng.) station, his terrier dog ran on the track after a rat. The train coming suddenly along, the dog at once lay down close to the ground, the cars passed over him, and he walked off as though nothing had happened.

THE LOUISIANA INFAMY.

Address of Messrs. Palmer, Trumbull and Others of the Visiting Committee.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1, 1876.

To the People of the United States:

On our arrival here, in casting about for approaches to the officials who control the elections in this State, we discovered that they were all of one political party; that the Governor had appointed none but Republican Supervisors of Elections, and that the returning officers constituting the State Board were of the same political school. Influenced by these inauspicious surroundings our thoughts and hopes were turned toward the eminent gentlemen who have been selected by the President to be present and see that the Board of Canvassers made a fair count of the votes actually cast, and on the 14th of November we invited these gentlemen to meet and confer with us. This co-operation was declined, but we nevertheless have reason to believe that to this correspondence may be attributed the invitation to us, on the 18th ultimo, by the Returning Board, to attend and be present at its meetings as spectators and witnesses of its proceedings. Through this courtesy and the services of a competent stenographer we became possessed of all essential facts developed on the face of the official papers. We have been furnished with a certified copy of the duplicate statements of votes, made by the Commissioners of Election at each place of voting in the State, and from these statements it appears that the Tilden electors received the following votes:

McEnery	83,712	De Blanc	83,667
Wickliffe	83,850	Sears	83,843
St. Martin	83,676	Cobb	83,579
Poche	83,529	Cross	83,652

And the Hayes electors received the following votes, to wit

Kellogg	77,152	Marks	75,221
Burch	77,164	Levissee	75,370
Joseph	74,889	Brewster	75,457
Sheldon	74,844	Joffrion	75,397

The result of the vote for Presidential electors as disclosed on the face of the returns opened by the Returning Board in our presence:

For the Tilden Electors.		For the Hayes Electors.
McEnery	82,223	Kellogg	77,023
Wickliffe	82,326	Burch	76,963
St. Martin	82,129	Joseph	74,642
Poche	82,086	Sheldon	74,678
De Blanc	82,061	Marks	75,087
Sears	82,242	Levissee	75,187
Cobb	81,952	Brewster	75,270
Cross	82,109	Joffrion	75,300

In most cases the returns opened by the Returning Board corresponded with the certified copies of the statements of Commissioners of Election furnished. The most material difference arose from the failure of the Supervisors of East Baton Rouge, Tangipahoa, and Orleans to forward the statements of votes from all voting places in their respective parishes.

In thirty five out of the thirty-eight States in the Union these figures would be conclusive, and no one would claim that Tilden and Hendricks were not entitled to the electoral vote of the State; but in Louisiana a tribunal has been set up which on former occasions has overthrown the will of the people as expressed at the polls, and for which the power is now claimed at its discretion to change the result of the popular vote of the recent election. In view, however, of the returns, and the law and facts which should control the Returning Board, with which we have made ourselves familiar, we have no hesitation in saying that the result shown by the votes actually cast cannot be changed without a palpable abuse of the letter and spirit of the law governing the Returning Board and a manifest perversion of the facts before it. Irregularities have been committed in some instances by officers conducting elections and in making returns, but they are about as much on one side as the other; and, as to intimidation and violence or other illegal acts preventing a free and fair election, there is evidence on both sides, but not of such a character as to affect the general result. In most instances the acts of violence proceeded from mere lawlessness, as in the case of Henry and Eliza Pinkston, and had no connection with politics.

It is a significant fact that in the parishes where it is alleged that voters were kept from the polls by intimidation the total vote of such parishes was as large as at any time heretofore, and in the whole State is 1,550 above any vote heretofore cast. An honest and fair canvass of the returns, even under the Louisiana law, cannot materially reduce Tilden's majority as shown on the face of the returns.

JOHN M. PALMER, GEO. H. SMITH,
LYMAN TRUMBULL, GEO. W. JULIAN,
WM. BIGLER, P. H. WATSON.

A SCENE TO BE REMEMBERED.

Should This Happen at Our State Capital What Would the People Say?

[From the Richmond Dispatch.]

A stack of muskets is standing directly in front of the statue of Washington.

Gen. Gordon, United States Senator from Georgia, and Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, State Senator from Virginia, went to the State House just now, accompanied by Messrs. Peek and Jeffreys, members of the Legislature from Union. The sentinels brought their muskets to the "port" and halted the party.

Senator Gordon—We want to go in the House. These gentlemen are members of the Legislature.

Sentinel—You can go in with a pass.

Gordon—What are your orders?

Johnson (interrupting)—Call the corporal of the guard.

Sentinel—"Corporal of the guard!" The corporal comes up.

Gordon—What are your orders?

Corporal—Not to admit anybody without a pass from Mr. Jones or Gen. Dennis.

Gordon—Who are Mr. Jones and Gen. Dennis?

Corporal—I don't know. These are my orders; I can bring Gen. Dennis, though.

Johnson—Bring him here.

The corporal walks back, and returns with a stubby-looking man as Gen. Dennis.

Mr. Jeffreys, member from Union—I am a member of the Legislature from Union, and I want to go into the House.

Dennis—You can't come in without a pass.

Jeffreys—Will this do? It is a certificate from the Supreme Court (handing it to him).

Dennis—No, it won't.

Johnson (taking the paper and spreading it open before Dennis' face)—Here, look at it; will not the certificate of the Supreme Court answer?

Dennis—No, it won't.

Gordon—By what authority do you claim to exercise this power of excluding members?

Dennis—By what right do you ask me?

Gordon—By the right of a free man.

Johnson—Who are you?

Dennis—I don't know that it is any of your business.

Johnson—It is the business of every citizen to know it.

To the sentinel—Who is this man?

Sentinel—I don't know.

Johnson—His name is Dennis.

Sentinel—Yes; he is Gen. Dennis.

Johnson—Well, we will find out who you are.

This ended the colloquy, and the United States Senator, and Virginia State Senator and members of the Legislature walked off.

The Final Outcome.

Samuel J. Tilden is the lawful President-elect of the United States. It only remains for Congress to ascertain, determine, and declare the result.

But a revolutionary conspiracy among influential persons desiring to overrule the decision of the country and set up by fraud and force an executive usurpation has been formed to hinder, and, if possible, prevent, the determination of the fact in the usual way. By the most arbitrary and lawless acts, the conspirators have overruled the lawful decision of the voters in Louisiana and Florida, and probably in South Carolina, and have procured the issue by corrupt officials in those States of certificates of election to persons who were rejected by the people in place of those who were elected by large majorities. The next step in their revolutionary programme was to have been to arbitrarily include the votes of these bogus electors in the Congressional count, and to arbitrarily exclude the votes of the electors actually chosen, by ignoring the popular representative branch of Congress altogether, and proclaiming Gov. Hayes as President upon a mere pronunciamento of the person acting as President of the Senate. Thus the citizen really chosen by the country for President was to have been set aside, and a citizen whom the country had rejected was to have been placed in the executive office. This revolutionary programme of executive usurpation has been blocked by the votes of the electors in Oregon. Nevertheless, there is every reason to believe that the revolutionists will throw every possible obstacle in the way of a determination of the result by the usual mode.

But one thing can be regarded as settled beyond any further question, namely, that Congress must and will go behind any certificate of any Governor or Returning Board. There can be no more dispute on that point. The result will doubtless be irreconcilable disagreements between the Senate and House. The Senate will object to the votes of the actually chosen electors in Louisiana and Florida, and the House will object to the votes cast up by the bogus electors, "counted in" by order of the conspirators. On both sides persons have voted as electors who were not qualified as the constitution requires. Here is ample ground for more objections, which will undoubtedly be made. The inevitable upshot will be that Congress can not and will not attempt to declare an election upon the electoral votes. The decision of the matter will devolve, in pursuance of the constitution, upon the House of Representatives. The House will elect the President, and the citizen whom the House will elect is Mr. Tilden, whom the country has already elected. Thus the decision made by the country will prevail. But the Senate will elect the Vice President, and the citizen whom the Senate will probably elect is Mr. Wheeler, whom the country has rejected. In this part of the outcome, the decision made by the people will be overruled by a body composed upon the plan of the "rotten boroughs" of England.

But such will be the outcome of the Presidency contest, which has already absorbed the attention of the country for almost half a year.—Chicago Times.

TRUTH FROM LOUISIANA.

Why the Negroes Voted for Tilden and Reform—Republican Intimidation.

[From the New Orleans Democrat.]

J. W. Dedrick, being sworn, testified: I am a physician and a planter. I reside in Ward Twelve, Parish of West Feliciana. I am a Conservative in politics, and voted the Democratic-Conservative ticket at last election. I was present all election day at the poll near Starr hill, in Second ward. When there I neither saw nor heard any disturbance. The election passed off in peace and quiet in the strictest sense of the words.

The canvass preceding the election was earnest and active; all classes taking an active part in it. The colored people were alienated from their former party leaders owing to the corrupt administration of the latter, their dishonesty, incompetency, and even criminality. Weber and Swayzie, who have represented West Feliciana in the Legislature, are generally believed to have been guilty of the assassination of W. D. Winter, a prominent lawyer of the parish. Weber has had ignorant and corrupt police jurors appointed and has profited pecuniarly by this.

It is well known by the colored people that the school funds had been embezzled; that two successive Treasurers of the board were so ignorant as to be barely able to write their names; that the taxes for parish purposes exceeded the State taxes by 22 mills. These facts were kept before the colored people during the canvass, and they were urged to join the whites who had a common interest with them in remedying these evils. The only difficulty met with in inducing them to join the Democratic clubs was the moral intimidation in which they were kept by their party leaders. They have been told that if they voted the Democratic ticket they would lose their rights, that they would be put back into slavery again.

I know of only one prominent citizen being killed for political opinions in the parish during the past twelve months; this was Mr. C. T. West, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff.

Cross-examined—I never knew of any bulldozers or regulators except those commanded by Col. Frank Powers in the fall of 1875. Powers was a Radical; was soon after appointed Tax Collector of East Feliciana through Weber's influence; knew of no negroes being hung in the parish during the last twelve months.

All the negroes on my place belonged to a Democratic club, and voted the Democratic ticket voluntarily. I have always treated them kindly. They respected me and my advice; had perfect confidence in me. The negroes of the parish are indebted to the whites for many kindnesses, and would long since have trusted and confided in them but for the evil influence and advice of Weber & Co.

Wedding Anniversaries.

Fashion has established a custom, of late years, of celebrating certain anniversaries of the marriage, these being named as follows:

The celebration at the expiration of the first year is called the cotton wedding; at two years comes the paper; at three the leather; at the close of five years comes the wooden; at the seventh anniversary the friends assemble at the woolen, and at ten comes the tin. At twelve years the silk and fine linen; at fifteen the crystal wedding. At twenty the friends gather with their china, and at twenty-five the married couple that have been true to their vows for a quarter of a century are rewarded with silver gifts. From this time forward the tokens of esteem become rapidly more valuable. When the thirtieth anniversary is reached they are presented with pearls; at the fortieth comes the rubies; and at the fiftieth occurs the glorious golden wedding. Beyond that time the aged couple are allowed to enjoy their many gifts in peace. If, however, by any possibility they reach the seventy-fifth anniversary, they are presented with the rarest gifts to be obtained, at the celebration of their diamond wedding.

In issuing the invitations for celebrating these anniversaries, it is customary to print them on a material emblematical of the occasion. Thus thin wood, leather, cloth, tin-foil, silk, silver, and gold paper, and other materials are brought into use.

Of course, those who accept such invitations, and partake of the hospitalities of the host and hostess, are expected to contribute to the collection of gifts that will grace the occasion.

A Wealthy Commonwealth.

The assessment of taxable property in Massachusetts for the present year shows a decrease. It is $1,769,433,000, against $1,840,732,000 a year ago, and $1,881,601,000 two years ago. The decrease in value is $71,299,000. Of the loss $22,410,000 is on personal property, and the rest on real estate. The large portion of the decrease, $66,353,000 is in the large cities. Boston falls off 6 per cent., Springfield 11 per cent., and other cities a less degree. The total cost of government for the cities and towns in the State last year was $24,800,000, which is 10 per cent. less than for the year before.

The Jews in Palestine.

The Jews of Palestine are at present more inclined to engage in agriculture than at any time previously, and twenty-four of the most prominent men of Jerusalem intend to buy a farm near Jericho, eighteen miles from Jerusalem, in order to establish a Jewish colony. There, orchards of Esrogim would be immediately planted, as on the banks of the Jordan, and they would prosper splendidly. At a later time other colonies could be founded and the Jews draw a from the cities to the country.

Auburn Fruit House

GREAT REDUCTION

Read the Following list of Discounts:

FRUITS AND CONFECTIONERY.

2 lb Table Peach 16c,	former price	18c,
3 lb " " 22c,	" "	25c,
2 lb Whortleberries 18c,	former price	20,
2 lb Strawberries 20c,	" "	25c.
2 lb Peas 15c,	" "	20c.
2 lb String Beans 12½	" "	20c.
2 lb Blackberries 15c	" "	20c.
6 lb Pie Peaches 30c	" "	35c.
2 lb French Peas 25c	" "	35c.
3 lb Quinces 20c	" "	35c.
1 qt Queen Olives 45	"	75c.

A Deduction of from 5c to 10c per can on

Bartlett Beans, Cherries, Tomatoes, Salmon, Lobsters, Clams, Table Sauces, Chow-Chow, Gherkins, Mixed Pickles, Olive Oil, Cup Sauce, "Irish Bullin's" Celebrated Punkin Pie Timber. Canned Plums of all kinds, Flavoring extracts of all kinds Raisins, from 15c to 20c, worth 18 to 25c, Cultivated Cape Cod Cranberries 12½c worth 15c, Mince-meat Halibut, Cod-Fish, Salmon by the pound.

ALL AT SLAUGHTERED PRICES.

French Prunes, Zante Currants, Dried Blackberries, Peaches, Apples Nuts of all kinds.

GROCERIES.

TEAS! TEAS!! TEAS!!! TEAS!!!! TEAS!!!!!

Young Hyson from 55c to $1.00, Japan from 45c to $1.00, Oolong 35c to $1.00.

Having bought a large stock of CANDIES and HOLIDAY GOODS before the advance in prices I am enabled to offer them at unusually low figures.

In a word, all goods sold at

Reduced Prices

To avoid moving. Everybody is invited to call and examine goods and prices. My goods are all waranted to be fresh and pure, and cannot fail to please the purchaser, both in quality and prices.

Odd Fellows room, north Court House

E. E. WILLIAMS.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUS!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.

AT

R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS very low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES,

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at.

ZACHER'S.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.

TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Stereoscopes, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Stereoscopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.

Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper,

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti anticles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

PARLOR STOVES.

J. L. DAVIS,

☞HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

☞Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heating Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of

HARDWARE STOVES

always on hand at lowest prices

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

The largest stock brought to Auburn. We are selling at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

☞YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DE WALD & CO.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern RR

Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1875, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler	1:45 p m.	x 2.40 a m.	8.05 pm
Waterloo	2.05 "	3.00 "	8.25
Sedan	2.15	3.07	8.37
Corunna	2.20	3.15	8.46

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.52 pm	x 12.06 a m	6.53 a m
Sedan	2.38	11.45 "	6.32 "
Waterloo	2.25 "	11.36 "	6.22 "
Butler	2.20	11.30 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Dec. 4th, 1875.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No. 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 30 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm	6 00am
Rochester	12 40 am	10 15	3 14	7 35
Alliance	3 35	12 50pm	5 55	11 00
Orrville	4 43	2 32	7 42	12 55pm
Mansfield	6 55	4 40	9 50	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	10 25	3 55
" lv.	7 50	5 40	10 30 pm
Forest	9 25	7 40	11 58
Lima	10 45	9 25	1 05 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20pm	12 10 am	3 25
Plymouth	4 00	3 20	5 49
Chicago	7 20	7 20	9 20

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 40 pm	8 20 a.m	5 35 pm
Plymouth	2 40 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 45
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 50
Forest	10 10	5 20	3 05
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 40
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 59 am	6 10am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 21	6 55
Orrville	2 33	9 38	7 12	8 15
Alliance	4 10	11 15	9 00	12 20
Rochester	6 25	1 20 am	11 10	2 00pm
Chicago	7 35	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. MRYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect Dec 10—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 11pm
Cincinnati	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 25am		7 30a
Ft Wayne	10 15 "		3 55p
Auburn	11 24 "		5 33
Waterloo	11 40 "		6 00
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 45 pm	5 40	7 00
Reading	1 45 "	7 10	7 53
Bankers	2 00 "	7 20	8 08
Jonesville	2 18 "	7 55	8 20
Jackson	3 25 "	9 10	9 15
Detroit	6 15 "	5 45	3 35a
Grand Rapids	6 45am	4 45	6 45
Lansing	9 13 "
Saginaw
Bay City

Going South.

Bay City
Saginaw	7 23 am		3 55p
Lansing	10 12 "		7 25
Grand Rapids		11 15a	8 30
Detroit	7 00 "		10 15
Jackson Dep	11 45 am	4 00p	6 45a
Jonesville	12 47 pm	5 25	7 55
Bankers	1 03 "	6 25	8 13
Reading	1 15 "	6 50	8 27
Ar Angola	2 10 "	8 15	9 21
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 48 "		10 10
Auburn	3 00 "		10 38
Auburn Junction
Fort Wayne Arrive	4 00 "		12 10p
Indianapolis	9 35 "
Cincinnati	9 00 am		9 40
Louisville	8 30 am

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. S. LOOMIS, Pres't

S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALL AND SALOON.

On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, where will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. All kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

Bargains, Bargains.

I take pleasure in announcing to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity, that I will this week open up a choice stock of

DRY GOODS,

HATS AND CAPS,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
NOTIONS, GROCERIES,
ETC., ETC.

Which I am offering at remarkably low figures.

GIVE US A CALL

I will guarantee satisfaction both in quality and price,

Remember the place, on the west side of Main street, just south of Granger Hall. The highest market price paid for

Country Produce

In exchange for goods. I offer inducements to purchasers which will well justify them in giving me a call, and want all my old friends to come and see me.

W. MARTIN.

CHICAGO ROCK ISLAND R. R

AND

Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for

JOLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENRY, LACON, PEORIA, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT, MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON, IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS,

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 00 a m
Peru Accommodation [Sat ex]	5 00 p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 00 p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all points in Kansas, Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement of Palace Drawing room and sleeping cars, which for external beauty and interior arrangements for the comfort, convenience and luxury of passengers are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars of the kind in the world.

☞Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.

A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	465 Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	473 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	439 Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	321 Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hannibal, Quincy, Keokuk

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS
KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA,
COLORADO AND
CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Throughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New England.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (510 miles), and between Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles.)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOOTS & SHOES

Store

Is the popular place for all kinks of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repairing promptly attended to.

Remember place

At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

M Bolond

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 6. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, DECEMBER 28th, 1876. Number

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

TOM. C. MAYS.

One Year..........$2. | Six Months,...... $1

Advertising Rates.

Space.	1m.	3m.	6m.	1y.
1 Square	$ 50	4 00	7 00	12 00
¼ Column........	6 00	12 00	18 00	30 00
½ Column........	10 00	18 00	30 00	50 00
1 Column........	15 00	30 00	50 00	100 00

Legal Notices 10 cents per line, first insertion, 5 cents each insertion thereafter. Business cards Five Dollars.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

NICKEL and TEFFT,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Auburn, Ind. Special attention given to collections. Office over First National Bank.

Penfield & Mead

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office under Odd Fellow's Hall north of Court House, Auburn, Ind. Practice in all Courts of the State.

H. C. PETERSON,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

WOODHULL and CROXTON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW Angola, Indiana. Practice in Steuben and DeKalb Counties.

A. F. PINCHIN

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

McBRIDE and MORLAN

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in any of the courts of the State. Office over O. T. Clark's Dry Goods store.

GUY PLU

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office in the Court House. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for Home Insurance Company.

BEST and McLELLAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Indiana. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb and Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all First-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

COURTS IN STEUBEN CO.	COURTS IN DEKALB CO.
1st Monday in February	3rd Monday in Feb.
4th Monday in April	2nd Monday in May
1st Monday in September	3rd Monday in Sep.
[illegible] Monday in November	2nd Monday in Dec

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. LITTLEFIELD,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over McIntyre's Block, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

DR. J. A. COWAN,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, Auburn, Ind. Office on Main street, over Central Grocery.

W. S. ALLEN.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store. Same office lately occupied by Dr. Cowan.

HOTELS.

Bigler House,

BUTT & RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo. Ind. Good sample rooms.

Central House,

MR. M. C. MARKEL, Prop. Corner Main and Seventh streets. Good Sample Rooms for Drummers.

AVELINE HOUSE,

MILLER & MORITZ, Prop's., corner Calhoun & Berry Sts., Fort Wayne, Ind.

AMERICAN HOUSE

AT FORT WAYNE, only $1.50 a day. Good accommodations for traveling men.
B. SCHNIDERS, Pro.

SANDS HOUSE.

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
Geo. S. Palmer, [Late of City Hotel,] Clerk. O. Sands, Proprietor

MISCELLANEOUS.

H. Wartenslaben

PAINTER and paper hanger. House painting a specialty. Residence corner Williams and Cedar street.

PRINTING.

COURIER OFFICE.

JOB PRINTING neatly executed. Fine work a specialty. Office in Odd Fellows' Building 2nd floor.

Thomas Baldock

Building Contractor

AUBURN INDIANA.

will be ready at all times with an experienced corps of workmen to erect Houses, Barns, and carpenter and joiner work of all kinds at low rates.

JAS. CLIFFORD.

WATERLOO, IND.

Keeps constantly on hand the best and choicest brands of all kinds of

Wines and Liquors,

Cigars, Tobaccos, &c.

He also has, in connection with the above a first-class

BILLIARD HALL.

To our citizens and the traveling public we would say that this is the popular resort at Waterloo. First door south of the railroad.

ENGLISH INK for Printers.

News, Book and Job Inks all warranted of Superior quality. No cheap or inferior grades of ink made by us.

EXCELSIOR PRINTING INK CO., MANUFACTURERS, (Formerly of London, England),
184 & 186 MONROE ST., CHICAGO
And 13 Barclay Street, New York.

J. G. FLEDDERMAN

No. 27, East Main-St.

FORT WAYNE, IND'A

has the largest and finest stock of

CLOTHS, COATINGS, CHEVIOTS,

—AND—

CassimereS

in Ft. Wayne. The finest line of

Made up Clothing!

ever shown in Fort Wayne

Youths' and Children's Clothing!

Furnishing Goods, &c.

Mrchant Tailoring.

All work done in all the latest styles, promptly attended to. Go and see his largest stock

IT IS HERE.

WHAT

The Largest Fine Stock of Fine

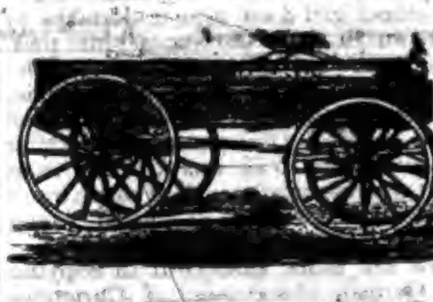
Hats, Caps,

GLOVES, ETC., ETC.

Ever brought to Auburn. Those wanting this line of good can get them from 110 to 150 per cent cheaper than they were ever sold before in the county by calling on

WILLIAM LESSIG

The Auburn



WAGONS

Made from the Best Materials,

And constructed with all the late improvements

The new and extensive

WAGON SHOPS

—OF—

J. W. SHAFFER

South Main Street

are now in full running order and all orders fo

WAGONS BUGGIES &c.

promptly attended to. Special care taken in getting the best Seasoned Timber. Our prices are very reasonable and we solicit the public to give call and ascertain our prices.

AUBURN LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLE!

Hiram Parent, Pro.

Having on hand everything in the line of

Carriages, Buggies, Wagons, etc

He prepared to send out rigs at anytime and at Reasonable prices.

Mark These Facts.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE WHOLE WORLD.

Holloway's Pills.

"I had no appetite; Holloway's Pill gave me a hearty one."

"Your pills are marvelous."

"I send for another box, and keep them in the House."

"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."

"I gave one of your pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little being got well in a day.

"My nausea of a morning is now cured."

"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of noises in the head. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ear, and the noise has left.

"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."

"I enclose a dollar, your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."

"Send me five boxes of your pills."

"Let me have three boxes of your pills by return mail, for chills and fever."

I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

FOR CUTANEOUS DISORDER.

And all eruptions of the skin, this ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effects to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Invariably cures the following diseases:

DISORDER OF THE KIDNEYS.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order, no medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these pills; they remove all acidity occasioned by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasm—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Asthma Billious Complaints, Blotches on the Skin, Bowels, Consumption, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention, Stone and Gravel, Tic-Douloureux, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. Haydock, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills, and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same, knowing them to be suspicious.

*Sold at the manufacture of Prof. Holloway & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicines throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

Office, 112 Liberty street, New York.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

—AT—

J ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry repaired on short notice and in good style.

Bargains, Bargains.

I take pleasure in announcing to the citizens of Auburn and vicinity, that I will this week open up a choice stock of

DRY GOODS,

HATS AND CAPS,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
NOTIONS, GROCERIES,
ETC., ETC.

Which I am offering at remarkably low figures.

GIVE US A CALL

I will guarantee satisfaction both in quality and price,

Remember the place, on the west side of Main street, just south of Granger Hall. The highest market price paid for

Country Produce

In exchange for goods. I offer inducements to purchasers which will well justify them in giving me a call, and want all my old friends to come and see me.

W. MARTIN.

Democratic State Convention

A call has been issued for a convention of the Indiana Democracy on the 8th of January next. The object is to organize and give expression to the popular sentiment in regard to the efforts of the Hayes conspirators to inaugurate their candidate through fraud. It would be well to take early steps to have this county and district ably represented in the convention.

Court opened on Tuesday last week with Judge Tousley on the bench. The first two days of the session was devoted to calling the civil docket, and a large number of cases have been disposed of. His honor presides in his new position with ability, and his extensiv learning and fine legal talents will have full scope in deciding the many important cases which are coming up for adjudication. The bar of this and adjoining counties is largely represented, there being over thirty lawyers in attendance.

A Good Winter Wife.

[From the Raleigh Sentinel.]

A negro man has just applied to a Milton Magistrate to know how to get his wife back. Milton is only separated from the Virginia line by a small creek, and it seems the woman's brother had run her off from her husband and taken her across the creek.

"How can I get her, boss, an what's de law in Virginny?" asked the negro.

"The cheapest way," said the Magistrate, "is to have no law about it; just go across the creek and overpower her and bring her home."

"I'll soo do it, boss," said the negro; "a hard winter settin' in, no wood and no nuffin; but dat gal weighs 200, and she gibs out heat like a stove, d'only time when a wife's a comfort."

He waded the creek with a steer whip in one hand and a long rope in the other.

Death of an Early Settler

Mrs. Susanna Fetters died at her residence near Concord Corners, on Sunday the 17th inst. Deceased was 70 years of age at the time of her death, and had been a resident of this county for nearly 40 years. There are few of our residents who endured more hardships or experienced greater difficulties in settling in this section, than did Mrs. Fetters. Coming from Virginia when this country was almost an unbroken wilderness, she lost her first husband within less than a week after her arrival. She, however, after a brief trip back to her native State Varginia, returned, and with the assistance of four small children, cleaned up the farm on which she died, and managed with this small aid in securing a very comfortable competency. She had the satisfaction of seeing all her children well established and became respectable members of the community where she had lived so long.

Unappreciated Munificence.

Danbury News.

As a Bates street saloon keeper was yesterday morning wishing that some one would come in and offer to bet him one to five, that the temperance ticket would be elected, a well dressed stranger walked in, lit his old cigar stub at the gas get, and then said:

"My name is Deerfield. I have just purchased a residence here, and I am about to establish a wagon shop, employing 3,000 men."

"Well, that's good," replied the man behind the bar.

"I always patronize some one's saloon," continued Mr. Deerfield. "I suppose my patronage amounts to about $12,000 per year, and it is cash on the nail."

"Glad to see you—very glad," replied the saloonist, trying to look very pleasant.

"I operate in this way," said the stranger, sinking his voice a little: "I enter a saloon, as I have yours, ask for a bottle of wine and a box of cigars, and then walk out without paying. If called back, I say I am absent minded. If allowed to go I send the man a check of $500, give him a diamond pin on Christmas and allow him to make 30 per cent. profit on all bills. I'll go out, wait till I see three or four fellows in there, and then I'll come in, after my usual style. You must pretend astonishment, and it will be as good as a side show for the crowd."

The bar tender's lower jaw had been steadily falling all the while, and when the stranger ceased speaking a dark shadow stole along the counter and made a rush for Mr. Deerfield, and reached the outside door only a foot behind him. Mr. Deerfield don't return to carry out his programme.

Learning the Value of a Draft.

A good joke is told at the expense of a young man who lately went from his home in Jackson township, on a visit to relatives in Illinois. Whiles absent he ran short of funds and in response to his request, a draft was procured from one of our DeKalb county banks and sent him. Unfortunately for the young granger, he had never before handled a draft, and likewise was a debtor at the bank where it was issued, and in this perdicament, instead of showing the draft to some one who knew its value, he put it in his pocket, afraid to show it to any one, lest they should find out that he was not only out of money, but also in debt. He had an uncle in Iowa of whom he knew he could borrow money, and accordingly set out on a tramp of two hundred miles to find him. His uncle supplied him with money to return here. When he got back, for the first time found out what his draft was worth—drew the proceeds of it, sent it like an honest youth to repay the loan which he had plodded two hundred miles to procure, ignorant all the while of the fact, that he was carrying more money with him than he needed for his expenses.

Hiding His Tracks.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

There were vigorous inquiries at the Post-office yesterday for the chief clerk, and when the Captain's face appeared at the window the inquirer asked:

"Has a cross-eyed woman been here asking for letters addressed to me?"

The Captain hadn't seen her.

"Well, she'll be here this forenoon. She's my wife, and she's a little weak in the head. She's got the notion that I get love-letters from a woman in Canada, and she'll be here to ask for my mail."

"Well?"

"Well, I don't get any such letters, of course, but you mustn't give her my mail. She might get one with a draft in, and not know its value. Just say to her that you never knew of my receiving a letter here, and that you have repeatedly heard me say that I have the best wife in town."

"But I don't know you."

"Never mind that. In dealing with an insane woman it's best to be soft and slick and smooth. Just shake hands with her, praise her small feet, and tell her she ought to be proud of such a husband as I am."

Wants to Know.

GARRETT, IND., Dec. 19, 1876.

EDITOR COURIER, Sir:—Brother Parker has a small article in the News of the 13th inst., to which I wish to make a brief reply. He says, "We often hear people inquiring about our marshal, they want to know if we have one—can he be found when wanted, and is he drawing $25.00 per month as services? Garrett is too poor to pay out money unless it is legally earned." Bro. Parker I wish to inform you the marshal was appointed by the town trustees for one year, and is under their control. You are mistaken, he is not under the control of the school trustees. You had better devote your attention to the school house which you are trying to build, and not try to cover too many eggs at the same time, and I think you will be more popular in the eyes of the public. I often hear people inquiring about those desks, seats and stove, that were furnished the Garrett school one year ago, by B. F. Moody, trustee of Butler township, out of the public money. Can they be found if wanted? Can it be, Bro. P., appropriated the desks and seats for kindling wood? Can it be that he has confiscated the stove for his printing office. Bro. P. please make a truthful statement in your paper of what became of the articles, and let the public see that you can make a true statement. Is that the stove you have in your office? How many cords of wood did you take off of the school house ground, and how much have you paid the town of Garrett for it? What will the school do for wood? Of whom did you get authority to take that wood? In the face of all this, you are a fit subject to advocate economy to the people of Garrett. We all recognize the dignity of your presumption and your spicy articles certifys as to your high literary attainments. We know we have no right to question your infallibility, or presumptive authority in the proceedings of your high office. You hold the power to make all the appropriations and confiscations you may see proper, and we must foot the bill by paying our taxes. You threatened a few week ago that you were going to publish the names of those who had discontinued taking your paper. As you are such a great economist, would it not be better for you to publish the names of those who are taking your paper. I think it would be less labor. I have a few more questions of more importance to ask you, but will wait until due time. I would kindly advise you to attend to your own business and keep your nose out of other peoples affairs, by which practice I think your paper will increase in circulation. I would also advise you to soap that stove occasionally.

JAS. R. SKILLING, T. M.

South Sea Savages.

Capt McDonald of the schooner Star of Fiji, has given the following particulars of the murder of the master and crew of the Dancing Wave.

The Dancing Wave, chartered by a pearl fishing company in Sydney to recruit labor for their pearl fisheries, and commanded by Capt. Harrison, arrived in Makira harbor, Solomon Group, in May, and engaged an American negro named Freeman as recruiting master, also a boy belonging to Makira. She left the island of Guardalcanar, recruited 12 laborers and stood for small group of islands the Floridas, and came to anchor, and began recruiting.

The men on board all spoke English. As each man consented to accompany the vessel he received a tomahawk or knife as an acknowledgment of the engagement. Soon after, the natives with a yell sprang upon the crew, and commenced hacking them frightfully with the tomahawk, while one seized the last ground sharp from the hand of the carpenter and planted it in his head, The captain fared no better, for as he was writing a name in the book he was struck down. He with the mate, stewart, and one of the crew, managed, amid the blows that were showered upon them, to get down to the cabin where the captain expired. The stewart got a revolver and shot himself. The mate said, "I am dying and I will do the same." The seaman got a rifle loaded it, and fired through a porthole. Immediately after he heard the report of another gun or revolver, and on turning around saw that the mate also had shot himself He than lost all self-possession, and going on deck jumped overboard. By a strange coincidence the shot thus fired killed the chief in command of the murderous assailants, thereupon used all speed in getting clear of the vessel. The vessel was foun windbound at Guadalcanar. The seaman who was the sole survivor was wounded in several places, having received a blow on his head and a gash on each shoulder, and injured with a bolt on his spine."

Old John Harker's Philosophy.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a house painter swinging on a scaffold attached to a high building on Woodward avenue, heard some one calling upon him to come down. Thinking it was the proprietor of the block, he decended and met a wrinkled faced old chap who was holding an ancient umbrella over his head.

"Is your name Duke?" inquired the old man in a soft voice.

"No, sir," was the reply. "My name is Ogden."

"That is it, you see!" cackled the old stranger. "Your name isn't Duke because it is Ogden. A plainer case never came to my attention. If your name was not Ogden it would be Duke.

"Did you want to see me," asked the painter.

"Nominally, yes. Did you ever devote any time to the study of philosophy?"

"Philosophy be hanged!" growled the painter. "If you didn't want me what did you call me down here for?"

"You illustrate another principle," chuckled the old man. "Why do you betray vexation? Simply because you are vexed. If you were pleased you would smile. Let us go back 1800 years, to the first principles of mind formation."

"You'd better go back to the lunatic asylum," muttered the painter.

"Why are the lunatic asylums necessary?" asked the old man. "Because we have lunatics. Why do we have lunatics?"

"Dont talk to me," replied the painter, starting to enter the building.

"Why do I talk?" inquired the quaint old character, barring the doorway. "I talk because I have a voice. Fish do not talk, and why not?"

"I don't want any more fooling around!" exclaimed the painter, trying to pull the old man out of his way.

"We'll go back to what is known as the stone age," said the stranger, spitting on his hands, as if he ment to resist. "Did you ever reflect that you might have been a hill or a valley, as well as a man? Suppose you had been a sidehill. What would have been your policy?"

"Just about this!" gasped the painter, as he got a collar hold and jerked with all his might.

"I sometimes think," said the old man, as he kicked the painter twice in the stomach in succession, "that man may have descended from earth. I may have been a hill, you a knoll, that man over there a glade."

There was a pause for a minute, as the painter hit him on the mouth. He retaliated by a left-hander on the nose, and securing a hold on the painter's hair he held him against the wall and went on.

"Why do we fight? Because we are mad! Go back to the days of Adam let us see how madness came to exist."

They were about half way back there when a policeman came along and collared the old philosopher and marched him off. He was recorded as John Harker, and as he was placed in the cell, he remarked:

"Why this prison jug? Because there are juggers. Let us retrace our steps to the drift period, and discover who was first incarcerated in a cooler."

The painter looked after the old coon as he walked on, and giving his bleeding nose another wipe he said:

"If that's what they call philosophy I'm going into training to-morrow."

THE OLD MAN'S CHRISTMAS.

BY THOMAS DUNN ENGLISH.

Why, let the wind whistle—who cares? let it blow,
Driving hither and thither the flakes of the snow;
Let the wretches without, as they[illegible] pass,
Gaze with envy and hatred at me through the glass;
I am safe from the storm, with all men could desire,
A dinner of dainties, a hickory fire.
This luxury round me; all cheerful and bright;
And my sixtieth Christmas is with me to-night.

Wheel the chair around, William; the cloth take away.
Drop the curtains, and then light the taper—but, stay—
Place the [illegible] in reach; put cigars there at hand—
A dozen or so of my favorite brand.
You may go. Should I need you, the bell-rope will bring.
Obedient to summons the slave of the ring.
I'm alone; but not lonely; unseen by this light,
There are guests from the past who are with me to-night.

First is Albert, my brother, the golden-haired one,
The pet of his mother, the youngest-born son.
He died on the ocean—the blue, swelling wave,
The home of his choice, at the last was his grave.
He comes as he went, with a frank, earnest gaze,
And he warms his wet frame in the bright, cheerful blaze.
Dead now twenty years, but his eyes are as bright—
No matter—you're welcome, dear brother, to-night.

There is Milton on whom I could ever depend—
Just less than a brother, and more than a friend—
Stout Milton, who died not a twelvemonth ago,
From his home in the churchyard wades here through the snow.
He comes to spend Christmas, as often before;
But less briskly than wont seems to enter the door.
What makes him so quiescent and pallid and white?
Cheer up; we'll be jolly together to-night.

Ah! Amy, my darling! ten years since we laid
Your body to rest in the cypress's shade,
And now you return to the husband who pressed
That sad night in anguish your form to his breast.
Come back on a visit? No! come to remain,
For I swear nothing ever shall part us again.
Thirty years since your eyes cheered my life with their light;
And yet you look younger than ever to-night.

What! Sybil, my daughter, have you too returned
To the father whose heart for you evermore yearned?
Has he whom you chose at the risk of my curse
Sent you back here to open the strings of my purse?
Why, you died through neglect of the husband who vowed
To cherish and love—died, despairing and proud.
Does the grave give you holiday? Would that it might,
And you were but living to sit here to-night.

All well-desired guests for the revel are near—
Wife, daughter, friend, brother—all risen and here.
Yet it seems to my judgment the sherry lacks taste,
The cigar has no flavor—it all burns to waste;
The taper expires, and the gas-light sinks low;
The fire falls to embers—what troubles me so?
All here, no one missing—the list is not right;
One guest, and the greatest, is lacking to-night.

He enters at last. 'Tis a stranger to me,
So draped with dim shadows, so gaunt—who is he?
Sunk deep are his eyes, there is ice in his breath—
A guest most unwelcome! I know him—'tis Death.
Unwelcome? Not so! Most desired of them all.
His skeleton foot has a musical fall;
His shadows have changed to a halo of light—
Best friend and deliverer, welcome to-night.

JOHN AUSTEN'S CHRISTMAS.

The advertisement read as follows:

WANTED—A shipping clerk, to receive freight and load vessels; references required. Apply between 10 and 12 at ——.

The man who cut this from a newspaper on the morning of the 24th of December was an idiot at the age of 50 to have said: "There are no Brothers Cheerybles nowadays. The very last of those good souls died when I was a boy. As to the Cheeryble fortune, what was left of it—very little, in fact, for the brothers were not thrifty—went to distant relatives who are reported to me to have been of a singularly miserly and uncharitable disposition. Wanted a shipping clerk." Here John Austin put the scrap of paper into a lank wallet, and tried quite decidedly to prevent it from blooming and flowering there. Somehow or other every advertisement he had put in his pocket—and they had been innumerable—regularly passed through some horticultural forcing process before they shriveled up and went into impalpable fragments. "Like air plants," the man added, "drawing their nourishment from nothing in particular, and blossoming quite in vacuo."

Though John had a decided tendency toward gushing, even allowing that it was simply internal, it nevertheless was to be deprecated. A good deal of misery and trouble had hardened the man externally. Like water in the rock, his fancies trickled feebly inside of him, in a decidedly useless kind of way, but were fortunately so unobtrusive as scarcely to be ever visible. Very possibly had some utilitarian hydraulic moralist bored into John Austin, and laid on the pipes and mains, with the most laudable desire of benefiting a parched and thirsty public, it would all have resulted in a most miserable failure.

"A shipping clerk!" the man said as he took from off the shelf a fragment of bread. "A windy berth on the wharves! and what under the heavens do I know about it? What I do know, is that my crust here is old, hard, and stale, and not in large quantity, and that I have precisely 25 cents left, or three 8-cent loaves of bread, just sufficient to carry me over until Monday next; three whole days, when, if I do not earn a dollar, this room of mine will have to be vacated. If snow would only fall, I might pick up some trifle that way by shoveling it off the sidewalks. In fact, I may be at this moment just skirmishing with that terrible wolf, starvation. His lone howl may be supposed to be reverberating in my ears, and I ought not to be eating this bit of bread with singular zest and appetite, but should shed tears over it, only that at 50 the lachrymal ducts, if not dried up, are supposed to be frozen over. A shipping clerk! Probability of chances against me, 50,000 to one. Nothing in the least prepossessing about me—neither mirth, sprightliness, nor good looks. But yet," here John Austin picked a crumb from off his sleeve, "there was once a young man, it was in Venice, who unloaded a ship coming from Crete or Candia, and out of a coarse package of cast-off clothing there tumbled a round, white pearl, which flashed a dainty sphere of lustrous opalescence in the gutter. It was within an ace of falling plump into the canal. That evening, when the galleon was unloaded, the young man carried the pearl to his master, who, of course, embraced his shipping-clerk for joy. That old bale of goods, it seemed, by some strange luck contained treasures which had belonged to the commander of the Dardanelles, Moldovangi Bassa by name, who, of course, under the circumstances, was an accredited foe of the republic, and his goods and chattels were, therefore, confiscable as lawful prizes. I do not think the Council of Ten or the Doge were particularly informed about it. When the package was opened, riches untold were discovered, untarnished gems blazing amid a mass of filthy rags. "One-half is yours," said the master. "I will have some of them save this pearl," replied the clerk; "and oh! my master, I would give it to the most beautiful girl in Venice, thy daughter." "Take them both," cried the merchant. "And I have seen," added John Austin, with an astounding amount of conviction, as he finished his crust, "at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, on free days, when it is open, and when I go there to keep warm, the very piece of old majolica that shipping-clerk had made to present to his mistress as a dedicatory offering expressive of his love. Yes, the absolute plate in which he put the big pearl."

The man's breakfast was over, and buttoning on his threadbare overcoat he hurried down the dirty stairs of his tenement-house, stopping just a moment to caress a little girl who loitered on the landing.

"See," said the child, showing a bit of faded silk, and holding up a needle in her small, blue fingers, for it was bitterly cold and gusty in the passage, "mother has given me a piece of an old dress she was turning. If I only had some beads to trim it with! I am going to make myself a doll's dress for Christmas. If only I had a doll to dress!"

"No doll! That is hard, little sister. And is to-morrow positively Christmas?" inquired John Austin, as if with some vague idea, for the child's sake, at least, that there was some possibility of making Christmas a movable holiday.

"Mother had saved some money to buy me a doll, but father is worse, and the money had to be spent for cough mixture."

"You do not say so!" The man's and was in his pocket. Had his twenty-five cents by any chance been divided up then, there might have been twenty cents between him and nothing.

Now John Austin was in the streets, and the stupid fellow was wondering over a story he had picked up somewhere, all about a great Russian Prince, in the time of Peter the Great, who happened to have been born just about that time. How a peasant of the Ukraine, who never before in his life had done anything else but chop down fir trees with his hatchet, as if by inspiration, in anticipation of the happy event, under imperial command, of course, had made a complete set of automatic soldiers, an army in fact, with music and Generals in front, and cavalry and artillery, and how it all worked, the soldiers presenting arms, the cavalry charging, the artillery cannonading, and the trumpets blowing. John Austin saw it all, and had become even for the moment godfather to some possible Czar, when into one corner of his picture there was protruded a little wan face that had not even a doll, and the fancy was gone. Mechanically walking along, John Austin now found himself quite suddenly amid an assemblage of men and boys, all wanting to be shipping clerks, in the act of besieging a business house. "There are people enough here," thought John, "to furnish two men per package for every lot of goods to be shipped out of the port of New York for the next month. I wonder whether, in the present dearth of work, an advertisement headed, 'Hands wanted,' might not bring out Briareus in person?"

Presently John had his innings. The faintest appreciation of the postulant's presence on the part of a stripling in office, who cast a rapid side-glance on John Austin, assured the supplicant that at least his chances of filling the position were in the highest degree problematical.

"Perhaps that clerk," thought John Austin, "has been bred up in the house for this particular line of duty, selecting shipping clerks, and exercises his calling with some fine shadings of discrimination, which I can neither understand nor appreciate."

"You are too old," said the clerk.

"How too old?"

"We want a young man. Can't you understand?"

"Here is my name with good references. May I call again?"

"Perfectly useless," replied the young man. But John had pushed in to the clerk his rather dingy letter of recommendation, which told how the bearer had really been confidential clerk for twenty years in a respectable house, and how by their failure, John Austin at the age of 50 had been turned adrift.

"I say—no use at all for this," cried the clerk, as he picked up John's thumb-marked paper, and tried to shove it back through the pigeon-hole. But John Austin had gone. His rude reception as the possible incumbent of the position advertised for had not disturbed him a particle. His experience for the last year had been pretty much of the same character.

John Austin went up Broadway with a brisk step. He would go to the Cooper Institute or the Astor Library, and would pass some three hours there. The temperature there was always pleasant—he might read a book. Then there was a baker on Fourth avenue who sold a very superior loaf of bread for 8 cents. John Austin knew that, for he was critical in regard to the staff of life. He passed a hack-stand by the City Hall, and remembered when cab-drivers always said to him, "Hack, sir!" "That inquiry," thought John Austin, "depends solely upon how a man is dressed. Once they used to apostrophize me." John now pondered about clothes, and gazed at a large poster pasted against the front of a store, which announced "that for only thirty days and 'no more,' the entire stock of clothing would be disposed of at retail." John Austin loitered for a moment, when two men came out of the door, evidently Hebrew priests, intent on a clothing sacrifice. "It's no use, Reuben, nobody is coming in as long as the hand-bills are not distributed," said one of the men. "Bring out a stack of them small bills and get some man to distribute them. It ought to have been done two hours ago."

"I should be only too glad to take the job, sir. I even think I have capabilities for that kind of thing," said John, stepping to the front.

"Well you as anybody else," replied the clerk; "here, take hold," and John had some reams of papers stuck into his arms. "It's 15 cents an hour until 4 o'clock. Now, work your passage and deal 'em out lively. When all your bills are out come in for more."

Fifteen cents an hour! Sixty cents; that was bread for another week. John Austin went to work cheerfully, though perhaps scarcely discriminatingly, for he insisted on giving the shabbiest and most poorly-clad of the passers-by his hand-bills. "If," thought John, "I only had the faith of the Buddhists who distribute pictures of prancing horses to weary travelers, or gayly-painted boats to those foundering at sea, every one of these poor flimsy bits of paper, with probably specious announcements of shoddy coats printed on them, would bestow in an actual way on shivering humanity the heaviest kinds of ulsters and the warmest of pea-jackets."

What harvest John Austin sowed outside to be garnered inside will never be known. At 4 o'clock 60 cents was handed him, and he was discharged. Sixty cents would buy him a hot meal, and the man had not had one for a week. He knew where 15 cents would get a coarse but satisfactory dinner. It was thriftless on his part, but he dived down a narrow street leading to the North river in quest of food. Just a block from Broadway a street-vender pushed a doll into his face. It was a coarse, vulgar, rubicund doll, of primitive type, decidedly archaic in character. It had gorgon eyes, with flat plastered hair, with no possible regard to proportion, sawdust perhaps refusing to mold itself into anything symmetrical. Had he bargained an instant for the doll or examined it critically, he would have perceived that the doll was minus a leg. "But 10 cents was very cheap," John Austin thought, "for even an ugly doll with a squeak in it." He had quite a decided idea that somebody wanted a doll, and vaguely now that somebody else wanted a dinner. He bought the doll with the same airy grace that would have shown a young millionaire disdaining to chaffer with a jeweler as to the price of a solitaire diamond which was to deck the hand of his betrothed on Christmas day. It was a foolish thing for a man with 85 cents in the world. He pushed the doll, now done up in a piece of coarse paper, into his pocket. "Don't," said the vender; "don't ram her in your pocket that way, or you will bust her, and then your little 'un would be disappointed." "Oh, thank you," said Austin, as he extricated the doll and carried it in his hand.

It was half-past 4 when John Austin, still hungry, remembered that he had better go to that office where a shipping-clerk was wanted, and get back his papers. He knew that he had not even the ghost of a chance.

The office was empty now.

"Back again! Well, now, I closed up that annoying advertisement business some three hours ago," said the clerk. "Didn't I tell you you wouldn't suit? We are just shutting up. Don't bother. The place is filled."

"Would you kindly return me my letter of recommendation?"

"Your papers! Oh, you are the party that shoved papers on me! Indeed! Just as if my life wasn't worn out by everybody in the world shoving papers on me. Do you suppose I am going to hunt them up now? Just as likely they are in the waste-basket. See here, you are a regular nuisance hanging around. All you fellows answering advertisements are just the same. Papers! Stuff! Get somebody else to write you up a brand-new lot of papers."

"But," gasped out John. The slide before the pigeon-hole was pushed to with a snap, and a voice cried out from behind the partition, "Clear out. I didn't tell you to leave your papers, did I?"

John was dismayed. His poor, useless old letter he felt was the barest shred of a seeming respectability which was left him. He had been treated most discourteously. There was a table near. John dropped his package on the table, and rapped vigorously with both hands on the glass partition.

"If you are going to make a row," said the voice, "if I can't put you out the porter must."

John Austin was on his mettle now, and felt prepared for any emergency, when a gentleman of about John's age entered. "What is this most unseemly disturbance? What is the matter? What do you want? This is my office, sir." Saying this the gentleman, who had several bundles under his arm, placed them on the table.

"Simply this, sir," said John Austin; "I answered in person an advertisement for a shipping clerk—reference required. I left a letter of recommendation with your clerk. He refuses to return it to me, and has been, if not uncommonly rude, at least singularly abusive. These papers are all I have in the world."

"But, sir," said the clerk, addressing his principal, "I told this party not to leave his papers, and the party forced them on me. I might find them, of course. If the party will call to-morrow—no, that is Christmas—on Monday next"—

"You will be good enough to find them for this person at once, if he requires them. It is optional with him whether Monday next will do," and saying this in an imperative way the gentleman picked up his parcels and left.

There was some grumbling behind the screen. "I want them now," said John Austin, "if you and I have to stay here all night." In about fifteen minutes afterward, when the young gentleman had blacked his boots in the most careful manner and washed his hands, in sign of a capitulation a broom-handle was protruded over the partition, on the end of which broom-stick there was a letter, and both were pitched over on to the floor. Indifferent as to the further insult, John picked up his letter, took his doll package from the table, and went homeward. In a moment he had regained his equanimity.

"You will come into my room for a moment, little sister," said John as he met the child, "always providing your dress is done. But how shall I ever tell whether it will fit?"

"You have not a real, true doll for me?" cried out the child, bounding up the stairs after him.

"I have such grave doubts whether your dress will become her," said John, exhibiting the package.

"It wouldn't matter," exclaimed the child.

"Well, then," John untied the string, glanced at the contents, but amazement! It was not his doll. What he held concealed, for he had run now into a corner of the room, was the personification of beauty. A French doll—one of those only the most elegant children deign to play with. A doll of Paris make, in all the supple grace of a kid epidermis and with a costume of [illegible] ate character. [illegible] dolls [illegible] finds its way to South America, where, dressed in silk and decked with gems, Indians and negroes worship at their festas. John even dared to exert a gentle pressure on the bosom and back of the doll, but no rough sound came. It struck him that such superlative dolls must be necessarily soulless images, there to [illegible], in fact, wanting perfume. They were made daintily pretty, but dumb and voiceless. There was no room in them for anything more. All had to be sacrificed to outward appearances. Fortunately the child knew nothing of what was passing in the man's mind. "My little girl," said he, "you know now, at least, that I have something for you. You must be satisfied with an outside look now. Go finish your dress, and, if indeed to-morrow is Christmas, I think you may count on some kind of a doll."

"All right. I am so glad. Please kiss me. May I tell mother?"

"Yes—now clear out." John Austin passed his hands through his short gray hair, and was dazed for a moment, then looked at the paper which enveloped the doll. It bore an address, somewhere up one of the avenues. "It's a longish walk for a man who has only breakfasted—but think of the disappointment in store for that gentleman's daughter;" and with this John hurried out, bent on the interchange. Of course it was a fine house in the vestibule of which John Austin stood in about an hour and a half afterward.

"All right," said the man-servant. "Leave your bundle."

"But it ain't all right. Your master took my package and left his in its place. I do not want to trouble him, but only ask him to give me back my own. He will understand all about it."

John Austin may not have been said to have been forced to cool his heels very long in the vestibule, for, tired out with his long walk, he sank into a hall chair, and the surroundings were so warm and comfortable that he awoke from a doze when a voice said: "Quite curious, indeed. My fault entirely. See here, my good man, I must positively have made away with your package, but exactly how or under what circumstances I am completely in the dark about. Would you kindly inform me? Yes, I think this is my doll. I am quite decided on this point, and this ought to be yours. My wife laughed in quite an astounding way when I displayed what, if I may be allowed to designate it, not being familiar with the subject, is rather a substantial and solid piece of work in the doll way—quite lasting, in fact. But, notwithstanding its comparative excellence, I am rather inclined to think my little girl might not have cherished your doll as it deserved." Here the master of the house put on a pair of eye-glasses and looked at both dolls critically, and then at John Austin. "I am exceedingly obliged to you for your kindness and the trouble you must have taken about this trifle, for we were in the very act of sending out for another doll—more dolls, in fact. But, as I was saying, might I request some clue as to how this quite ludicrous, may I say ridiculous, interchange was accomplished? My curiosity is quite aroused."

John Austin was on the point of telling him the prettiest of Perrault's stories, and would have embroidered into the theme the "Arabian Nights," for he felt he might have an audience; but he checked himself and only said, "I was a disappointed shipping-clerk to-day; I was one of the unlucky, not wanted. You must have put your doll on the table, and, as you left first, you took mine."

"Bless me! It must be exactly as you state it. You will excuse the absurd blunder on my part. I have not the faintest recollection of ever having seen you before. Ah! indeed! we wanted a shipping clerk, did we?"

"I suppose so," said John bluntly.

"You look tired, will you not take a glass of wine? Would you allow me to offer you some slight pecuniary re—". John covered his face with his hands—perhaps an empty stomach had made him weak—for there was a tear there. He had never been so poor and wretched before; but yet he never could receive a penny he had not bravely earned. "I am sorry, my good man. I meant no offense. Was this doll for your own child?"

"No, sir; I have no children."

"You do not seem very well off in the way this world goes. Was the situation you sought for a necessity?"

John Austin, had he a grain of sense, would have stated that for him it was a place at once or starvation. But he did no such thing; he simply took the proffered glass of wine, bowed to the master of the house, and kept his peace. He was about going when the gentleman said, "You are sure you have the right doll—"

"Certain of it. My doll is done up in coarse straw paper—yours in best Manila," replied John, rather gruffly.

"Pray, write your address, then, on something—here, on the paper of my doll. Thanks," and the servant showed John Austin the door. En route homeward the hungry man bought his bread and ate it with thankfulness. It was after 9 o'clock when the girl got her doll. "I give it to you now," said John Austin; "hold it fast to your bosom all night, or it might be changed before morning."

Though there are no postmen of a Christmas day in New York, John Austin received a note, however, on that day, requesting his presence on Monday morning, the 28th of December, at a certain office where a shipping clerk was wanted.

"It seems that you are the lucky man, after all," said the young clerk in the office, looking still quite defiantly at John Austin.

"God bless me! you don't say so!" exclaimed John.

"Yes; the head of the house, who never does interfere, has taken on himself to mix things up dreadfully. Overslaughed everybody. Now, I beg you to think that I have had no hand in it. I even fancy you do not imagine that you are indebted to me for the position."

"What a rude little jackanapes you must be," replied John Austin. "Still, though you annoyed me on the 24th, I can't bear you much of a grudge to-day, after Christmas, for, if you had not been impertinent, why your chief would never have interfered, and so made way with my doll."

"Doll! See here, my old party, if you are quite crazy, you are likely soon to become a lunatic. A precious shipping-clerk you will make, and the lots of papers that will be stuck at me when I have to hunt for your lost goods. Here, don't bother me. Report to the manager—that man there, biting his nails." And the slide was snapped to with a spiteful jerk.

John Austin was regularly installed as shipping-clerk. When he had held the position for a day he chanced to meet the head of the house. The shipping-clerk, as he saluted his chief politely, might have been inclined to grab the least possible bit, but the master gazed at him in a vacant kind of way, for John Austin had entirely passed out of his mind. Perhaps the duties imposed on Austin are the only ones the man can fill now. The [illegible] clerk's prophecy about packages going astray may in time become true. When spring sets in it is quite likely that John Austin, reclining against a wharf timber, his eyes half closed, may be freighting his fancied light argosies with all kinds of useless and perishable goods, and will be forwarding impossible packages to those drifting clouds which float in the summer skies. Strange to say, like many men's feeble romances, which accidentally center around themselves, the causes of which are ignored, John Austin will always think he owed his place, and relief from misery and starvation, to his famous letter of recommendation. As to his Christmas doll, he entirely ignored it.

CHRISTMAS.

The American Way of Observing the Day—Something About Holiday Presents.

[From the Chicago Times.]

The custom of giving presents on Christmas was imported to this country from England and Germany. Like a good many other imported customs, we never exactly know what to do with it, and it is a question if the custom has not resulted in more harm than good. We have not yet learned how to keep Christmas in this country, and it is very doubtful if we ever will. In New England the day is hardly celebrated at all except by the comparatively few Catholics and Episcopalians. In the Southern States the day is set apart for coon-hunting, horse-racing, and playing whisky-poker. It is reported that an Indian once came into a Southern frontier town on a Christmas morning with some furs which he wished to exchange for fire-water. Seeing all the places of business closed except the taverns and dram-shops, he inquired the cause, and learned that it was the birthday of the Savior of the world. After surveying the field for some time, he expressed the opinion that the aforesaid Savior must have been a very fast fellow, who owned a large number of fast horses and who was mighty fond of hunting coons. In the West a good many people try to celebrate Christmas, but make a ridiculous failure of it. They read in one of Walter Scott's poems or novels how the thing is done in the old country, and foolishly think they can do it here. They succeed no better than the boarding-school girl does who undertakes to make an English Christmas plum pudding by the aid of the information she derives from a cook-book. The truth is, neither she nor her elders are educated up to keeping Christmas. Everything is against its observance. Our trees don't provide mistletoe; our cattle won't kneel in the stable, and even young children have no faith in Santa Claus.

We are more successful in copying the German observances of Christmas than were the English. In truth, the only German custom we ever took very kindly to is that of drinking lager beer. It was reported at the close of the war that a colporteur of the Young Men's Christian Association presented some one-legged soldier in a hospital with copies of tracts on the evils of dancing. Christmas presents are generally selected with about the same degree of appropriateness; cigar cases are given to people who never smoke, while elaborately embroidered shaving leaves are presented to men who habitually wear full beard. Sometimes an article of wearing apparel is sent to some poor female who has a scanty wardrobe. If this is done it is very certain to be of a character to make her clothing look the worse for the addition. It is customary in some country towns to present the minister's wife with an opera cloak on Christmas. It is as much use to her as a hand-sled is to a boy living in the West Indies. As a rule, Christmas presents seem to be selected with an eye single to making the recipient of them as uncomfortable as circumstances will allow. If the present comes in the form of clothing, it is commonly some article that will make the remainder of one's dress look shabby. Young ministers always come in for slippers, while the thing they need by way of foot-gear is walking shoes. The chief effect of making Christmas presents is that those who receive them seem to think they are in strict duty bound to make returns on New Year's day, or on the succeeding Christmas, and they set to studying maliciously what inappropriate thing can be made or bought to fire back to the person who put them under "obligations" to him.

Theatrical Disasters.

The disaster which Brooklyn and the whole country mourns has never been exceeded in this country in respect to loss of life; but 800 people were killed at the burning of an Amsterdam playhouse in 1772, and 1,000 perished in the Saragossa Theater in Spain the same year; nearly 500 died when the Palais Royal, at Paris, was burned, in 1781, and 1,000 men and women were crushed and burned to death when the Cafe d'Istria Theater in Italy fell and took fire in 1794.

Grover.

Gov. Lafayette Grover, of Oregon, is a native of Bethel, Me., and over 50 years old. Gen. Cuvier Grover, of the regular army, is his brother. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College, and has lived in Oregon since 1850. He has held all sorts of Territorial and State offices, and was the first Representative of the State in Congress.

"WE can breed horses, but not men," says an English paper.

MAUDIE'S CHRISTMAS GIFT.

BY ETHEL LYNN.

Honest Farmer [illegible] by his fireside sat,
[illegible] pipe alight and his sleepy cat,
[illegible] watched how daylight and night would [illegible]
In the twilight dim of the Christmas-eve;
On the other side, in the old arm-chair
Ruddy firelight shone on the silver hair
Of the faithful wife, who, for forty years,
Through the vale had shared all his hopes and fears.

Apart, with her face to the window-pane,
Looking out, adown, and beyond the lane,
Stood a girlish figure, so round and trim,
While her white hands circled [illegible]
Close about her face to the [illegible]
With the breathless gaze of a thought intent,
Looking outward [illegible], till the [illegible]
Showed naught but the firelight's fitful spark.

Then the [illegible] turned at last, with a weary sigh,
And crept to her chair in her wonted place;
But her little face glimmered, pinched and white,
In the crimson glow of the gay firelight.
She answered soft to their lightest word,
And [illegible]
That told of the coming Christmas time.
Then turned, with her taper aflash alight,
To kiss them softly, and say "Good-night."

Then the old wife spake, and her voice was low,
"Little Maudie's cheeks—they are white as snow,
And her step is weak. Should the angels call,
Can we answer them through a pinioned pall?
Roger, I was young when I wedded you;
And Rob is an honest lad enough;
Shall we make their path, Roger, always rough?"

'Tis Christmas morn. The bells are ringing.
Oh! waken Maud, the day is bringing
A gift to you. Father [illegible] to-day
Just to bring it home. Guess it now, I pray!
You will find it safe in the parlor near;
It will suit, I hope; it has cost us dear.
You will keep it, always! Should you choose
To send it back, why, we won't refuse.

Maudie's Christmas gift! 'Twas six feet high,
And an arm reached out as the maid drew nigh,
But to draw her head to a bosom broad,
As he whispered low, "Will you take me, Maudie?"
Slowly, hand in hand, came the plighted pair,
Till they, smiling, stood by the old man's chair.
"Bless me, oh, my father!" [illegible]
With the silver sound of the Christmas bell
Adown the vale. I have never learned
That the Christmas gift has been returned.

Pith and Point.

"HORSE doctoring and singing school" is practiced by a Michigander.

IF a man is determined to preach on grumbling he can always find occasions and texts.

A MISSOURI paper, speaking of the cold winter of 1827, says: "Hogs and cattle and turkeys roosting on the trees were frozen to death."

BUFFALO Express: The small boys are said to be inoculated with a feverish desire to distinguish themselves in their Sunday-school classes. This is said to be a good indication that the Christmas season is at hand.

SCENE at a Connecticut postoffice: Lady—"Is there a letter for me?" Clerk—"No'm." Lady—"Why?" Language fails the clerk, and the lady goes off growling about "sassy clerks," and howling for a change in the administration.

THE Graphic takes the palm for bad puns. Here is an instance: The season of base-ball now glides silently into the era of buckwheat cakes. The batter escapes from the pitcher and surreptitiously assumes forms in which the hungriddleight.

A YOUNG New Yorker at a party asked and received the consent of a young lady to accompany her home. He waited in astonishment while the company slowly departed, and finally hinted that it was time for them to go. "Oh," said she, demurely, "I am boarding here."

ONCE upon a time, sagely remarks the San Francisco Stock Exchange, when a popular favorite started down grade and brought up at the poor-house or pauper's grave, his friends would say: "Poor fellow! he took to drink, and you know the rest." Now they say: "The darned fool took to stocks and got busted." Stocks and whisky are oftentimes convertible terms and inalienable friends.

AN inebriated Jerseyman in New York, led by flaming posters advertising the play of "The Forty Thieves" at Niblo's, went to the box-office and called for a ticket—at the same time throwing down a five-dollar greenback. On receiving in return three dollars and a ticket (he had expected to pay about fifty cents), the astonished countryman, looking first at the money and then at the ticket, exclaimed: "H-h-how much d'yer ask to (hic) see these 'Forty Thieves?'" The ticket-seller informed him that the price was two dollars. "Well," said Jersey, throwing back the ticket and looking sharply at the official, "you may k-k-keep yer ticket—I don't care about seeing the other thirty-nine."

A RURAL SANTA CLAUS.

One night, when the ground was all covered with snow,
Old Santa Claus saddled his reindeer to go—
For the hills were so covered with sleet and with frost
That he knew if he went in his sleigh he'd be lost.
So he saddled his reindeer and put on his pack,
And then he sprang up on the animal's back;
(I will tell just here what I found out at school—
That the gentleman's reindeer, translated, means mule).
The night was a cold one—uncommonly dark—
The steed was unbroken, and kept crying "Hark!"
And Santa kept telling himself, all along,
That he never found matters so dreadfully wrong.
Afar on a hill, through the comfortless night,
Some broad parlor windows burst, gleaming and bright;
Then Santa's kind bosom beat warm with content,
For right to that dwelling of course he was bent.
He brushed with his mitten the frost from his chin,
Then pushed the door open and softly stole in;
The little folks sprang from their corners—ha, ha!
And caught the old fellow, and he was—papa?

War Claims.

Following is the joint resolution introduced into the House of Representatives by Mr. Baker, of Indiana, proposing an amendment to the constitution forbidding the assumption or payment of any claim for loss or damage growing out of the taking, use, or destruction of property during the late war of the rebellion:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following be proposed as an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as a part thereof, to wit:

ARTICLE ——.

Neither the United States nor any State thereof shall ever assume or pay any claim or demand for loss or damage arising out of the taking, use, or destruction of any property by any person engaged in the military and naval service of the United States, or under its authority, during the late war of the rebellion, if the owner of such property ever gave any aid, countenance, counsel, or encouragement to secession or rebellion, or to any pretended Government or authority inimical to the Government of the United States.

HOW MANY children die from Croup, Diphtheria, &c. This new principle, Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules, will cure Croup and Throat diseases, Consumption, Coughing, Hoarseness. Trial boxes, 25 cts. by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean's office, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

HISTORICAL.

Congress from the Beginning of the Government.

[Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

There have been two distinct periods in the history of Congress, that of the Colonial Congress and that of the present form, provided for in the constitution. The first continued from Sept. 5, 1774, until 1789, part of a year later than the date of the adoption of the Federal constitution in 1788. There have been forty-four Congresses of the new form, of which the second session of the forty-fourth began to-day. The Continental Congress was composed of delegates from the original colonies. It was a creature of circumstances, and held its meetings at different places, according to the changing exigencies in the uncertain days of the infancy of the new republic. It was held at Philadelphia, at New York, at Baltimore, at Lancaster and Yorktown, Pa., at Annapolis, Trenton, and Princeton. From several of these places it fled before armed opposition, or was removed to preserve it from the assaults of a foreign foe.

The Colonial Congress had for the most part but one work to do—to provide the ways and means for the creation of the new Government which it in its infant stages represented. That work saw the beginning of its end in the signing of the Articles of Confederation on July 9, 1778, by the then forty-eight Representatives of the Colonial States. This was followed in the same year by the ratification, in popular convention, composed of delegates from these Colonial States, of the constitution which was so long discussed. Gen. Washington presided at this constitutional Convention. The original Constitution adopted by this convention (September, 1787) consisted of seven articles. It was speedily approved by Congress and submitted to the several State Legislatures for ratification. It was returned from these Legislatures with several important amendments. Under its own provisions the first President of the United States and the members of the first Congress of the new era were elected.

THE FIRST FEDERAL CONGRESS.

The first Congress of the new era, a Congress of the Federal constitution, assembled in New York, March 4, 1789. There were three sessions of this Congress, of which the two first were held in New York and the last in Philadelphia. Congress continued to assemble in Philadelphia until the second session of the Sixth Congress, when, Nov. 17, 1800, in accordance with an act which had been passed ten years before that day, fixing Washington city as the home of the new Government, the Sixth Congress reassembled at the present national capital. The circumstances attending the passage of the act providing for the permanent location of the capital at Washington city were peculiar. Congress since its first removal here has continued its sessions in the Capitol building, with the exception of the period from 1814 to 1819, when, owing to the partial destruction of the Capitol building by the British invaders, temporary quarters were found in the building now immediately facing the east Capitol Park, which is used as a boarding-house.

CHANGES IN THE CAPITOL.

There have been as many changes in the form and appearance of the Capitol building itself since its early days as there have been in the outward appearance and in the political complications of the nation itself. The present chambers of the two houses of Congress are of comparatively modern date. They are located in the new wings, which were first occupied in 1856. The sessions of the earlier Congresses were held in the old hall now forming a part of the central portion of the present building, the Senate chamber being occupied by the United States Supreme Court rooms, and the old hall of the House of Representatives being devoted to collections of statuary, and designated "Statuary Hall."

VANDALISM.

This last hall, until this summer, contained a striking reminder of the old period in the ancient gallery and the antique iron railing at one end. The architect of the Capitol during the present summer, instigated by the spirit of modern iconoclasm, but ostensibly for the sake of greater harmony in the proportions of the new Statuary Hall, has caused this old gallery to be destroyed, and has removed the ancient railing. For thirty-nine years the Congresses of the Federal constitution assembled in these old halls, when they were removed to their new quarters.

INCREASE OF REPRESENTATION.

The second session of the Forty fourth Congress commenced to-day. The First Congress was composed of sixty-five members, representing the thirteen original States. In the Second Congress three States, Vermont, Kentucky, and Tennessee, were added to the number of representatives from the original territory, and the membership increased to 107. There were no changes in the number of States or membership until the Seventh Congress, when Ohio and Louisiana entered the Union, and the number was increased to 142. In 1816 the number of Representatives had become 182—the ratio of representation remaining the same as it had been from the beginning, one Representative to 33,000 people. At this time the basis of representation was increased to 35,000, and Indiana was admitted. From that date, new States were admitted at almost every Congress.

The Twenty-third Congress increased to 248 members. The increase of population in the States was so great, and the number of the States themselves was so speedily increasing, that Congress then threatened to be the unwieldy body which it already has become, and the basis of representation was changed in 1836 to 47,000. This change prevented any considerable increase in the representation until the Twenty-sixth Congress. In 1845 the basis of representation was again changed to 70,680, and under this basis Florida, Texas, Iowa, and California were admitted to the Union. In 1850 again the ratio of representation was increased to 93,420, and the membership was kept at 246 until the Thirty seventh Congress. In this Congress the war of secession began, and there were but 181 members left in Congress.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

In the history of Congress the Speakership has been geographically distributed as follows: It has been held by Pennsylvania three times; by Connecticut once; by New Jersey three times; by Maryland once, a pro-tempore Speaker; by Massachusetts six times; by North Carolina three times, for three successive Congresses, and by one man, Nathaniel Macon; by Kentucky eight times, Henry Clay being six times Speaker; by New York twice; by Virginia seven times; by New Hampshire once, pro tempore; by Tennessee three times, James K. Polk being twice Speaker; by Indiana five times, Schuyler Colfax being Speaker three of these five times; by South Carolina once, and by Maine three times.

DENOMINATIONS AND THE CHAPLAINCY.

The various religious denominations have at different times been represented in the Chaplaincy of the two houses. During the early period of the history of the new Congress the Episcopalian Church controlled the Chaplaincy of the Senate for eighteen Congresses. Since that time the office has been given to the Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists and Congregationalists. There was at one time a Roman Catholic Chaplain of the Senate. In the House, on the contrary, the Episcopalians have had but two Chaplains. The remaining Congresses have been divided between Methodists, Baptists and Congregationalists, the Methodists having the office nearly twice as many times as any other denomination.

MEXICAN POLITICS.

The Fate of Gen. Escobedo, the Man Who Sentenced Maximilian to Death.

A curious fact in connection with the Mexican troubles is that Gen. Escobedo, the Minister of War, shot by the adherents of Gen. Diaz, is the officer who defeated Maximilian at Queretaro in 1867, captured him, court-martialed him, and sentenced him to death. Maximilian was shot with as little decency as was displayed in the execution of Escobedo. In seeking a reason for the summary execution of Gen. Escobedo, it is well to remember that he was one of the most accomplished soldiers of Mexico, and this carries with it the idea of skill in diplomacy and intrigue. Less than two years ago he was accused of an intrigue with Cortina, the bandit chief. Correspondents friendly to the rebels asserted that he visited Cortina just previous to taking his seat in the Cabinet. Cortina was afterwards taken to the capital as a prisoner, but in due time he returned to the Rio Grande district. There were evidently complications with the rebels that led President Lerdo to call Escobedo to his Cabinet, and, in accepting the place and identifying himself with the Lerdo party, Escobedo possibly broke pledges, or failed to meet the demands of the Diaz party. His captors held him as a traitor to their cause, probably, and on this ground will seek to justify his execution.

President Lerdo will receive different treatment, however. Previous to the death of Juarez the Diaz party were friendly to Lerdo, then Chief Justice, and when Lerdo succeeded to the Presidency the rebels made a great parade of meeting the supporters of the Juarez Government on common ground in support of the new President. We were told then that, Juarez being out of the way, Lerdo would have little difficulty in uniting the two factions. All was fair for a time, until Lerdo proceeded to carry out the Juarez, or independent, policy. Then the old conservatives, or the old "State and Church" party, rallied under Diaz.

This Gen. Diaz represents one of the oldest and proudest families in Mexico. It is a mistake to describe him as a "pure Indian." He represents rather the old Spanish blood and sentiment, and the family name runs back with conservative and church associations clinging to it for a century. He was the leader of the opposition to Juarez. Juarez represented the native Mexican spirit and principles, while Diaz represented the aristocrats and old monarchists. The fight is now between Diaz and Iglesias.

A Dog That Had Never Seen a Woman.

A half mile farther on we came upon the camp of the men who were building the road. "Camp" is an elastic word. In this case it meant merely a small pine grove, two big fires and some piles of blankets. Here the road ceased. As we halted, three dogs came bounding toward us, barking most furiously. One of them stopped suddenly, gave one searching look at me, put her tail between her legs and with a pitiful yelp of terror turned and fled. I walked slowly after her; she would look back over her shoulder, turn, make one or two lunges at me, barking shrilly, then with the same yelp of terror run swiftly away; at last she grew brave enough to keep her face toward me, but continually backed away, alternating her bark of defiance with her yelp of terror in a way which was irresistibly ludicrous. We were utterly perplexed by her behavior until her master, as soon as he could speak for laughing, explained it.

"Yer see, that 'ere dog's never seen a woman afore! She was reared in the woods, an' I hain't never took her nowheres, an' that's jest the fact on't; she dunno what to make of a woman."

It grew droller and droller. The other dogs were our good friends at once, leaped about us, snuffed us, and licked our hands as we spoke to them. Poor Bowser hung back and barked furiously with warning and menace whenever I patted one of the other dogs, but if I took a step nearer her she howled and fled in the most abject way.—Atlantic Monthly.

WHETHER for use on man or beast, Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable liniment, and worthy of use by every resident in the land. We know of no proprietary medicine or article now used in the United States which shares the good will of the people to a greater degree than this. Yellow wrapper for animal, and white for human flesh.—N. Y. Independent.

THE Herald of Health says that the right way to cook an egg is to pour water on it at a boiling temperature and leave the egg in it for fifteen minutes.

IS IT possible that one will be so foolish to suffer from Catarrh, Cold in the Head, bad Smells in Nose and Throat, when by this new antiseptic principle, Dr. J. H. McLean's Catarrh Snuff, you can be cured? Trial boxes, by mail, only 50 cts. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

The Moral Effects of Hurry.

To the thoughtful, says the London Lancet, the moral consequences of tension and hurry are very saddening; to the physician their results are a matter of profound concern; their grave evils come under daily observation. No evolution of force can take place with undue rapidity without damage to the machine in which the transformation is effected. Express railway stock has a much shorter term of use than that reserved for slower traffic. The law is universal that intensity and duration of action are inversely proportioned. It is therefore no matter of surprise to find that the human nervous system is no exception to the law. The higher salubrity of rural over urban life is not entirely a matter of fresh air and exercise. Rural life involves leisure and pause in work, which are very essential to the maintenance of the nervous system in a state of due nutrition. Unremitting spasm soon ceases altogether. The tension of life produces weakness at the very place where strength is most needed. The damage done to the health of the most valuable part of the community, the best-trained thinkers, and most useful workers, is incalculable. Work and worry, though not proportional, are closely connected, and an excess of the former soon entails an increase in the latter beyond the limits which the nervous system can bear with impunity, especially under the conditions under which the work has to be done. The machinery and organising the work of a community had to be rigid and inflexible, and in the strain involved in bringing a changing organism into harmony with a machine, the former must inevitably suffer.

THE CHICAGO LEDGER is said to have spent $50,000 in advertising the past two years, and, by the looks of the newspapers throughout the United States, we should say it would take as much to go round this year. And to cap the climax the proprietors have announced their paper at $1.00 a year. How it is done is a mystery, unless they have more than "a barrel of money" to give away. We believe, however, it is the theory of the publishers that all they ask of the reader is to pay for the white paper and postage; for their labor, when the paper reaches 100,000 or more circulation, their advertising will pay the profit. While they are building up the paper they do not solicit advertising, and hence the readers get a great paper for $1.00 that is worth $3.00. As the publishers have the money, no doubt they will succeed. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill., inclosing $1.00 for subscription and 15 cents for postage.—Chicago Times.

THE Mason & Hamlin Organ Co. received from London, a few days since, a single order for 250 of their organs, which are becoming nearly as celebrated in Europe as they are in America. They have just completed to order an organ for the celebrated Dr. Franz Liszt, Pesth, Hungary, for use in his concerts. —N. Y. Phil. Journal.

AT our request, Cragin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have promised to send any of our readers gratis (on receipt of 15 cents to pay postage) a sample of Dobbin's Electric soap. Try it. Send at once.

PIMPLES on the face, rough skin, chapped hands, saltrheum and all cutaneous affections cured, the skin made soft and smooth, by the use of Juniper Tar Soap. That made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, is the only kind that can be relied on, as there are many imitations, made from common tar, which are worthless.

THERE can be no mistake about it, "Matchless" plug tobacco takes the lead. Old fine-cut chewers say it gives better satisfaction and is cheaper than fine cut. You cannot be imposed upon, as each plug has the words, "Matchless P. T. Co." on a wooden tag. Try it once and you will always chew it. Manufactured by the Pioneer Tobacco Company, New York.

SINCE our last issue we have heard of several persons who have used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy for rheumatism; and all pronounce it a success. It comes to our market highly recommended; and, as it is the only reliable remedy now in use, it will have a large sale. It is taken internally. Price, $1.00; six bottles, $5.00.

PERSONS who have become thoroughly chilled from any cause may have their circulation at once restored by taking into the stomach a teaspoonful of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment mixed in a little cold water, well sweetened.

EVERY farmer who owns a good stock of horses, cattle and sheep, and intends to keep them through the winter, should get at once a good stock of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders. One dollar's worth will save at least a half-ton of hay.

HELP for "Hard Times."—Read the advertisement elsewhere on this subject. You cannot expend a small sum just now better than to get the help there offered.

SEE advertisement in another column headed "Down with High Prices."

A Valuable Gift.—By an arrangement with the Publisher, we will send every reader of this paper a sample package of Transfer Pictures free. Send 3-cent stamp for postage. They are highly colored, beautiful, and easily transferred to any object, so as to imitate the most beautiful painting. Agents wanted. J. L. PATTEN & CO., 162 William Street, New York.

INVENTORS, PENSION AND BOUNTY Claimants, should write Col. L. BINGHAM & Co., Att'y's for Claims, Patents, Land Titles, Washington, D. C.

A LUCRATIVE BUSINESS.

WE WANT 500 MORE FIRST-CLASS SEWING MACHINE AGENTS, AND 500 MEN OF ENERGY AND ABILITY TO LEARN THE BUSINESS OF SELLING SEWING MACHINES. COMPENSATION LIBERAL, BUT VARYING ACCORDING TO ABILITY, CHARACTER AND QUALIFICATIONS OF THE AGENT. FOR PARTICULARS, ADDRESS

Wilson Sewing Machine Co., Chicago,

827 & 829 BROADWAY, New York, or New Orleans La.

We should be pleased to have the address of every unemployed person, Lady or Gentleman, especially that of experienced Agents and Canvassers. It will cost but one cent to place yourselves in communication with us, and the mutual benefits that may be derived from it, are not to be estimated in dollars and cents, alone. We furnish more lucrative employment to individuals scattered throughout the Union than any other house in America. Don't delay, but investigate this at once by addressing

THE ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY,

113 East Monroe st., Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

CANCER.

Cincinnati Cancer Institute, Office No. 162 Plum St.

Established for the cure of Cancer, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula, and Skin diseases by local and constitutional remedies. Cancer cured without the use of the knife or caustics. This treatment has been successfully employed for many years, and in no case does the Cancer return as when removed with the knife. As evidence of good faith and honorable dealing, we require no fee for our services until the patient is cured. For further information enclose two stamps for book containing theory of treatment, testimonials from patients that have been cured, and first class city references, etc.

Address L. H. GRATIGNY, M. D. Box 598. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

NEW SUNDAY MAGAZINE

CONDUCTED BY THE REV. DR. DEEMS.

Number 1 of this new publication, for January, 1877, is just issued. [illegible] religious tone, upon all subjects and topics of human interest.

Embracing History, Philosophy, Art, Science, Biography, Music, Fiction, and every human [illegible] the Revealed Word of God, our Heavenly [illegible] the foundation stone upon which the SUNDAY MAGAZINE rests.

Utterly free from anything savoring of sectarianism, and recognizing the broadest humanity, [illegible] within the scope of its columns; and, in this aspect of its mission, the family and the fireside shall be the objects of its care.

FRANK LESLIE'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE is conducted by the Rev. Dr. Deems, of the Church of the Strangers—an able scholar, an experienced editor, and a gentleman distinguished for his Christian virtues, and for his widespread influence in both social and religious circles. The intention is to produce a periodical which shall be "WORTH MUCH AND COST LITTLE."

It is profusely illustrated by designers and artists of the highest order of merit, and will be published on the first of every month at the exceedingly low price of $2.50 per annum. It contains 128 pages of engravings and closely-printed matter. Ask your newsdealer for it, or send 25 cents for sample copy. Address

FRANK LESLIE'S PUBLISHING HOUSE, 537 Pearl Street, New York.

Agents Wanted. Special terms to Clergymen and Teachers.

Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.
Hard Times.

One EGG, or 1 Quart of WHEAT, or 3 Pints of CORN, or 2 Quarts of POTATOES, or 1 CABBAGE, or 3 Pints MILK, or 1½ Ounces BUTTER, or 2 feet of WOOD, or ½ lb. of SUGAR, or ½ Ounce TEA, or one P. O. STAMP, saved or produced,

ONCE A WEEK WILL DO IT.

BEAUTIFUL, VALUABLE, . . . CHEAP.

For City, Village, and Country.

One of the Best Helps for these Hard Times IS TO EXPEND Half a Cent a Day for the Best, Plain, Practical Information, showing how to get more from one's work, and how to make most of his receipts.

Nowhere else can one now secure, at so little cost, so many really practical, useful hints and suggestions, so much good information, on just these topics, as in that most valuable Magazine, the American Agriculturist, thus named because first started, 35 years ago, as a rural journal, but now greatly enlarged and adapted to exactly meet the wants of every FAMILY, every MAN, WOMAN and CHILD, in CITY, VILLAGE & COUNTRY.

Every number contains 44 large double octavo pages, full of the best original information, every way reliable and trustworthy—prepared by a large force of practical, intelligent, working men and women, who know what they write about. $20,000 a year are expended in gathering and preparing just the kind of information that every one needs....600 to 700 finely-executed Engravings, pleasing and instructive, are given in each volume, with more than a Thousand Columns of first-rate original reading for the Household, for the Village or City Plot, for the Garden, for the Farm, for the Mechanic, for the Mercantile or Professional man having the smallest plot of ground, or if he has none, for his family, including the Little People.

An Immense Circulation so divides the cost of gathering useful information, of engravings, etc., that the Publishers can supply this most valuable journal for only $1.60 a year, postpaid; or four copies for $5.40; or ten copies for $12. Single numbers, 15 cents each....Volume 36 is just beginning.

You want it: it will PAY well. It will help out the hard times. The cost is less than half a cent a day. An extra Egg per week, produced or saved, will pay for it; so will a quart of Wheat a week, or 3 pints of Corn, or 2 quarts of Potatoes, or 1 Cabbage, or 3 pints of Milk, or 1½ ounces of Butter, or 2 feet of Wood, or ½ lb. of Sugar, or ½ ounce of Tea, or 1 P. O. Stamp, a week.

Make one of these small savings or extra productions, and supply yourself and family with Vol. 36 of American Agriculturist. It will pay. Try it. Only $1.60 in advance.

ORANGE JUDD CO., Publishers, 245 Broadway, New York.

DOWN WITH HIGH PRICES

CHICAGO SCALE CO.,

68 and 70 W. Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

4-Ton Hay Scales, $60; old price, $160. All other sizes at a great reduction. All Scales warranted. Full particulars upon application.

ORGAN

THE "ESTEY" LEADS THE WORLD

[Established 1846.]

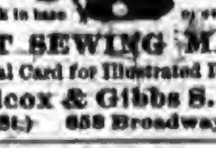
J. ESTEY & CO.

Brattleboro, Vt.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue

NEW WILLCOX & GIBBS

AUTOMATIC



Latest Invention, and producing most Marvelous Results.

Only machine in the world with Automatic Tension and Stitch Indicator.

Trade Mark in base of every machine.

SILENT SEWING MACHINE.

Send Postal Card for Illustrated Price List, &c.

Willcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.,

(Cor. Bond St.) 658 Broadway, New York

AGENTS WANTED FOR OUR New BOOK, GREAT CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION ILLUSTRATED. GET THE BEST. Every American wants it in his home. 330 engravings, that cost over $20,000.00, show the best exhibits. Low price, immense sales. Send for circular, terms, and sample engravings. P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., 201 S. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

$12 A DAY at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

CATARRH

SORELY AFFLICTED.

J. G. Bosworth & Co., Denver, Col.: Gentlemen,—Prompted by a fellow-feeling for those afflicted with Catarrh, I wish to add my testimony in behalf of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. I have been sorely afflicted with this fearful disease for four years, and have tried every known remedy, without avail, until I bought a bottle of the above Cure from you, which gave me almost instant relief. It being a constitutional as well as a local remedy, I believe it to be all that is claimed for it, a Radical Cure for Catarrh.

Very truly yours, WM. AMETIVE.

DENVER, Sept. 28, 1875. With Jenson, Bliss & Co.

GREATLY AFFLICTED.

Messrs. J. G. Bosworth & Co., Denver: Gentlemen,—I take pleasure in recommending SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH to all who are afflicted with this disease. I was greatly afflicted with it for a long time, and cured it with two bottles of the above CURE. About a year afterwards I was again taken with Catarrh quite severely, and immediately sent for another bottle, which fixed me all right, giving me relief from the first dose. I am confident that this remedy will do all that is claimed for it, and more too. Wishing you success in its introduction, I am, very truly yours,

A. W. SMITH, of Smith & Doll.

DENVER, Oct. 4, 1875.

TRIED EVERYTHING.

Messrs. J. G. Bosworth & Co., Denver, Col.: Gentlemen,—I have used SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH, and it has given perfect satisfaction. I have tried almost everything, and it is the only thing that has given me relief. I therefore take pleasure in recommending its use to all afflicted with Catarrh of any kind, and offer this as my testimony to its benefits.

Very truly, W. S. DECKER.

DENVER, Oct. 1, 1875.

Each package contains Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, with full directions for use in all cases. Price, $1.00 per package. For sale by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS

Afford the most grateful relief in all Affections of the Chest and Lungs.

CHRONIC PLEURISY CURED.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—Having for many months past suffered with a very lame side, called by my physician Chronic Pleurisy, caused by a former injury and strain, and for which I used many prescriptions and liniments, as well as the so-called rheumatic cures, without the least benefit, my physician recommended one of your COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS, which, to my great surprise, relieved the pain and soreness almost immediately, and I have been able to attend to my household affairs ever since with perfect ease and comfort, whereas before the application of your invaluable plaster I was scarcely able to do anything. I consider them inestimable, and shall with pleasure recommend them to the afflicted.

Yours respectfully, Mrs. FRANCES HARRIMAN.

ORLAND, Me., April 21, 1876.

There is no medical or protective appliance that will prove so grateful and effective in Tickling Coughs, Irritation and Soreness of the Chest and Lungs. We believe them capable of preventing serious diseases of these organs.

Price, 25 cents. Sold by all druggists. Mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents for one, $1.25 for six, or $2.25 for twelve, carefully wrapped, and warranted, by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

WOOD'S IMPROVED HAIR RESTORATIVE

What It Does!

It restores, quickly, Gray Hair to its glossy Natural color. It has the effect of Restoring the Hair to prematurely Bald Heads. It Removes Dandruff, Humors and all Eruptions from the Scalp. It prevents Irritation, Itching and Scaly Skin. It Restores Dryness of the faded, dry, harsh and falling Hair. It renews, dresses, softens and gives vigor to the growth of the Hair. It accomplishes more desired effects in a short time than any Restorative ever made, always leaving the hair soft, lively and glossy, whether used as a Dressing upon the natural hair or upon the hair in an unhealthy condition; thus rendering it, for the Old and Young, an article of unequaled excellence. No preparation offered to the public produces such wonderful results. Try it! Try it!! Call for "Wood's Improved!" as it contains no injurious qualities.

It was originally introduced 29 years ago by Prof. O. J. Wood, but the recent change of ingredients in this article is making a demand for it in all parts of the United States, Canadas and foreign countries.

ANNOUNCEMENT — TO — CONSUMERS!

The great radical improvement introduced in this article has induced us to take the agency and advertise its virtues to the world. Its effects as a Restorative are what has been long sought for and wanted for many years, being more decided and satisfactory than has ever before been attained. No Druggist in the world knows its composition, and cannot make it; therefore when you call for it, "Wood's Improved," do not let any unprincipled dealer convince you that he has a Restorative or Renewer as good, or something similar, as there is none like it! Insist upon having "Wood's Improved," and take no other, for your money! It will not be long before all dealers everywhere will have it. If you should fail to find it, you can send $1.00 to us by mail for a bottle, or $5.00 for six bottles, and we will send it to you, prepaid, to any Express Station desired.

Address C. A. COOK & CO., Chicago, the Sole Agents for the United States and Canadas, who will fill all orders and supply the Trade at Manufacturers' Prices.

J. B. KIMBALL, Proprietor.

Sold in Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and St. Paul by all Wholesale Druggists, and by Retail Trade generally.

The Enemy of Disease, the Foe of Pain to Man and Beast,

Is the Grand Old

MUSTANG LINIMENT,

WHICH HAS STOOD THE TEST OF 40 YEARS. THERE IS NO SORE IT WILL NOT HEAL, NO LAMENESS IT WILL NOT CURE, NO ACHE, NO PAIN, THAT AFFLICTS THE HUMAN BODY, OR THE BODY OF A HORSE OR OTHER DOMESTIC ANIMAL, THAT DOES NOT YIELD TO ITS MAGIC TOUCH. A bottle costing 25c., 50c. or $1.00, has often saved the life of a human being, and restored to life and usefulness many a valuable horse.

READY FOR AGENTS—THE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED.

A graphic pen-picture of its history, grand buildings, wonderful exhibits, curiosities, great days, etc. Profusely illustrated, thoroughly popular, and very cheap. Is selling immensely. 5,000 AGENTS wanted. Send for full particulars. This is the chance of 100 years to coin money fast. Get the only reliable history. HUBBARD BROTHERS, Pubs., [illegible] LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

CAUTION Be not deceived by premature books assuming to be "official," and telling what will happen in August and September.

Prof. Hall's Magic Compound is the only preparation, one package of which will force the beard to grow thick and heavy on the smoothest face (without injury) in 21 days in every case, or money cheerfully refunded. 25 cents per package, postpaid; 3 for 50 cents. E. W. JONES, Ashland, Mass.

Agents' Guide [illegible]

$10 a Day. [illegible]

20 [illegible]

$55 2 $77 a Week to Agents. [illegible]

$20 a Day. [illegible]

REVOLVER [illegible]

PORTRAITS, etc., drawn by machinery. [illegible]

$25 A DAY to Agents. [illegible]

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Maine.

50,000 Agents. Send postal for circular. [illegible]

AGENTS [illegible] Chromos FREE. [illegible]

FREE—A BOSOM PIN, or three nice STUDS, mailed free by J. W. SMITH, Palatine, Ill.

ADDRESS Business College and Telegraph Institute, Kalamazoo, Mich., for Journal and Penmanship.

AGENTS wanted, on salary or commission. New business. Address J. K. MARSH & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

$15 for $5 [illegible]

ASTHMA. [illegible]

A GOOD BUSINESS IS INSURED to an enterprising man by addressing Box 2792, Philadelphia P. O.

AGENTS FOUR $10.00 Chromos FREE. J. M. MUNYON & CO., Phila., Pa.

MONEY made, taking orders for Picture Frames. Samples free. Chas. Clucas & Co., Chicago

WINTER Work in your own town at good wages. Address EUREKA MFG. CO., Chicago

OPIUM Consumers can procure fresh TURKISH OPIUM at wholesale rate, secure from observation, by mail. Address C. A. BOHANNAN, St. Louis, Mo.

USEFUL GIFT for THE HOLIDAYS. [illegible] F. J. MORROW, Publisher, 41 & 43 Warren St., N. Y.

PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS, etc., who wish genuine Chartered University Degrees [illegible] inclosing 10 cents, J. R. YUILLE, Boston, Mass.

$3 WATCHES. [illegible] Address A. COULTER & CO., Chicago.

$984 Made by one Agent in 57 days. 13 new articles. Samples free. Address, C. M. LININGTON, Chicago.

WANTED Men to sell to Merchants. $90 a month and traveling expenses paid. GEM MFG. CO., St. Louis, Mo.

$80 a month, hotel and traveling expenses paid for salesmen. No peddling. Address MONITOR MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

SEND A STAMP and we will send you a specimen copy of the CRICKET ON THE HEARTH, our mammoth 8-page, 40-column Illustrated Literary & Family Journal. F. M. LUPTON & CO., 27 Park Row, New York.

PARTNER IN EVERY COUNTY. [illegible]

NO MONEY [illegible]

$350 A Month.—Agents wanted. 36 best selling articles in the world. One sample free. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$10 to $25 a day sure made by Agents selling our Chromos, Crayons, Picture and Chromo Cards. 125 samples, worth $5, sent postpaid for 85c. Illustrated Catalogue free. J. H. BUFFORD'S SONS, BOSTON, MASS.

$50 to $100 a month made by our graduates. Student wanted. Salary paid while practicing. Situations furnished. Address N. W. Telegraph Institute, Janesville, Wis.

WANTED—Men to solicit orders for our goods [illegible] Salary. Traveling expenses paid by Company. Union Industrial Works, Cincinnati, O.

DR. S. S. FITCH'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN. Sample Copy, Paper Cover, 10 cents. Bound in Cloth, with illustrations, 112 pages, 25 cents by mail. Address to 714 Broadway, New York.

$25,000 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN THE next 6 months by the publishers of the ST. LOUIS WEEKLY JOURNAL! For full information write IMMEDIATELY to WOLCOTT & HUME CO., PUBLISHERS, St. Louis, Mo.

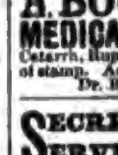
AGENTS. Investigate the merits of The Illustrated Weekly before determining upon your work this fall and winter. [illegible] CHAS. CLUCAS & CO., 14 Warren St., New York.

FARMERS or their sons wanted this fall and winter [illegible] J. WORTH, St. Louis, Mo.

Electricity is Life. Paoli's Belt, best in the world. Cures Disease where all other remedies fail. Testimonials and circulars sent free on application. to P. J. WHITE, 21 Bond Street, New York.

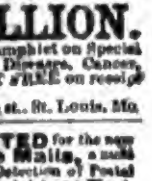
YOUR own LIKENESS in oil colors, to show our work, painted on canvas, 14x17½, from a photograph or tin type, free with the Home Journal, $2.50 a year. Sample Picture and paper 3 months, 50 cts. Agents make $30.00 in a day. Address L. T. LUTHER, Corry, Pa.

$250 REWARD for an Incurable Case. [illegible]



TRUTH IS MIGHTY!

[illegible]



EPILEPSY [illegible]

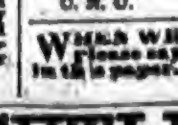
A BOOK for the MILLION. MEDICAL ADVICE A 40 page Pamphlet on Special and Chronic Diseases, Cancer, Catarrh, Rupture, Opium Habit, &c., SENT FREE on receipt of stamp. Address Dr. Butts' Dispensary No. 12 N. 8th st., St. Louis, Mo.

SECRET SERVICE IN THE P.O. DEPT. AGENTS WANTED for the new book [illegible] DUSTIN, GILMAN & CO., Hartford, Ct. [illegible]

WORTH its WEIGHT in GOLD. The Eclipse Automatic Extinguisher Burner makes all Coal-Oil Lamps perfectly safe. [illegible] ECLIPSE MANUF'G CO., Cincinnati, O.

SEND 25 CENTS to ADAMS & CO., Box 1860, Philadelphia, Pa. [illegible] CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS, [illegible]

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE NEW FARMER'S BOOK. [illegible] J. C. McCURDY & CO., Chicago, Ill.



The Best Truss without Metal Springs ever invented. [illegible] POMEROY TRUSS CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

C. N. U. No. 51

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

MERIDEN CUTLERY CO.

Received the HIGHEST CENTENNIAL PRIZE.

THE "PATENT IVORY" HANDLE TABLE KNIFE.

MANUFACTURE ALL KINDS OF TABLE CUTLERY.

Exclusive Makers of the "PATENT IVORY" Celluloid Knife, [illegible] WHITE HANDLE [illegible] MERIDEN CUTLERY CO. [illegible]

Auburn Courier.

W. G. THOMAN, Editor.

AUBURN, INDIANA, DEC. 28, 1876.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 25, 1876.

DEAR COURIER.—Something unusual has happened in this locality outside of the troublesome Presidential question. The other day the clear, bright sky clouded over, the air grew cold, and soon the crystal snow began to fall, "filling the sky and earth below," until three inches of beautiful white covered the ground. Then gaiety sat upon her throne, and never was Washington so animated. "It snows" cried the news boy, and away he ran yelling forth his evening paper, while tramp, tramp, tramp went the people,—the rich in their neatiness and pride—the poor in their garb of honest toil, yet all happier for the time being, over the coming of the beautiful snow. Suddenly there is a sound of sweet music on the air, and soon a gay equipage dashes by accompanied by the music of the bells, and in a few moments the splendid avenues become as animated as the sidewalks. Stand at the foot of Capitol Hill and look down the avenue, the handsomest street in the world, and see the passing to and fro of the happy crowd, hear the peal of the genuine laughter, and feel the invigorating influence of the joyous scene. The liveries are taxed to their utmost, and the limited number of sleighs are in great demand, for seldom does nature afford an opportunity for their use, as snow is quite a variety in this locality. There goes a four-in-hand doubtless some rich nabob, who made his money in the army, in oil speculation or by government contract, and he too, seems to enjoy that which is pure. A quartette of handsome girls are snugly ensconced in rich, warm robes, as though the themometer was 18 below instead of 18 above zero, and there is a sound of mirth and their eyes twinkle, and in the broad glare of the street lamps, they looked like a bouquet of sweet flowers, as they pass the cynosure of all eyes. Here comes a government clerk at $1,500 a year, with his sweetheart close at his side, and nestling as only woman can, under his strong arm, while he endeavors to get all the enjoyment he can out of the rig, that costs him five dollars per hour. Next comes a set of jolly rovers, full of fun and whisky, bent on a lark, while perhaps their poor parents are passing their time at home, with not a thing in the house—to give to a poor beggar. Here come the representatives of another class, and even with this enjoyable panorama before you, a shade of sadness springs to the heart of those who are continually hounding down the sinful. Human frailty with modest virtue disport in the scene. Two splendid bays with liveried driver, draw up at the corner, while a handsome woman, gaily dressed, joins a bevy of the same already seated in the magnificent turnout. As she raises her skirts, perhaps too high for modesty, but to the great delight of the rougher animal—man, and steps daintily within, a chorus of unsubdued voices falls upon the ear. Not absolutely disipated or fallen, they are easily distinguishable, from the true lady. With flirting glances and roguish impudence, they attract and often receive the homage of those who deserve a better fate. With beauty of face and form, with hardened hearts, hardened by the inhumanity of man, they have but one ambition in life, and that is dress. Many a bright girl has gone to her ruin through fondness of dress, developed and cultivated, heaven knows, unknowingly, under the tutelage of a kind mother. This brings to mind a sad event which occured here the other week. In the bureau of printing and engraving, there have been about eight hundred hands employed. Here is where all revenue stamps are printed. Recently a bank note printing company in New York was given a contract by the government to print them, and the event referred to was the discharge of four hundred employes from this bureau, most of them women. When the superintendent gave them notice that they were discharged, it fell like a knell upon them. It was a most pitiable scene. Many wept bitterly, and had scarcely strenght to carry them from the room, others fainted and several had to be carried home. Even tears coursed down the cheeks of rough men who had families depending upon them, and to be thus thrown out in the dead of the winter, without work and little means, appalled and terrified. Widows who had children depending upon them were almost distracted, for the long gloomy winter is upon them. Young girls, far from home, without money, and no protecting hand near them, are left upon the surging billows, to battle for themselves, perhaps to go down in that tide of woe, in which so many are lost. There are always enough by to assist them down, but none to raise them up. Why the government officials gave this work to a New York house, when they had every facility, and $400,000 appropriated by the last congress, with which to pay hands, no one knows, but it looked sufficiently suspicious for the House to investigate the matter, and a committee will go to work after the holidays. It is one of the many curiosities of this administration.

I wish you could see the magnificent display in the show windows here. They are so attractive that each window is surround with a small crowd, principally ladies, all admiring the scene. From four o'clock until eight at night, they seem to be employed at nothing else than sight seeing. Grand preparations are being made for the holidays, and the city is very lively. The market is full of spruce-pine, fur and arbor vitaes for christmas trees, and almost every household will have one of these cheerful reminders of the festive occasion. Amid all the suspense, uncertainty, doubt and depression, into which the nation has been plunged, Christmas comes as a relief, not in the same bearing it first came, when the shepherds hailed the Prince of Prince, but it comes gladly to a weary and prostrate people, who look down the vista of time with many longings, and remember the pleasant pastimes of youthful days, and then turn to the gloomy present and future, yet still hope on, and assume a cheerfulness they may not feel.

Happy are those whose means justify a liberal indulgence in all of these things: May charity open their hearts to the cry of the poor and needy for from our midst the cry goes up daily for bread from the gaunt, shivering and starving poor. The rigors of northern winter so suggestive to the wealthy of comfort in their cheerful homes brings to the less fortune only famine and suffering. Many a mother to-day will weep over benumbed babies whose sufferings are intensified by every fall of the themometer. Poorly clad, meagerly fed and miserably housed, their wails appeal to our sympathies and in the interests of humanity, of morality and of civilization must not be neglected. Remember this command of Him who said: "Feed the lambs."

TOM.

A Fatal Encounter.

On Friday last, John Morgan, sent to to the Reform Farm at Plainfield, from this county, made his escape together with two companions. They broke from the ranks as the inmates were being mustered into line. Some of the boys, who from good conduct had won the position of guards of honor, started in pursuit, and caught up with the fugitives half a mile from the institution. In the scuffle which ensued, Edward Swager, one of the pursuers, was stabbed and instantly killed, while another of the pursuers named Cousins, received some bad cuts. One of the runaways named Perry, was captured, but Morgan and a companion named Silas Eaglan, made their escape. A reward of $100 is offered for their capture. Morgan was originally sent to this county by one of the eastern benevolent societies. The murdered boy Swager was one of the best lads at the Reform Farm. His relatives live at Roann, Wabash county.

Detroit, Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TO TAKE EFFECT DEC. 18th 1876.

GOING EAST.

	MAIL. No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 6.	LOCAL FT. No. 8.
Lv. Logansport	7 15am	6 [illegible] pm	7 [illegible]
Adamsboro	7 20	6 42	7 30
Hoover's	7 43	7 03	8 00
Mexico	7 54	7 20	8 30
I P & C Crossing
Denver	8 05	7 37	9 00
Chili	8 13	7 50	9 20
Pettysville	8 20	8 00
Paw-Paw	8 24	8 06
Roann	8 29	8 15	10 10
Eby's Crossing	8 40	8 27
Laketon	8 46	8 48	10 45
C W & M Cros'g
N. Manchester	8 57	9 00	11 18
Liberty Mills	9 06	9 15	11 37
Collamer	9 20	9 37	12 10
S. Whitley	9 24	9 42	12 20pm
Taylor's	9 38	10 01	12 57
P F W & C Cro'g
Columbia City	9 47	10 29	1 30
Coleson's	10 05	10 45	2 20
Churubusco	10 16	11 15	2 57
Potter's	10 21	11 25	3 25
La Otto	10 28	11 40	3 55
Cedar Creek	10 45	11 53	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	11 00	12 17	4 55
B & O Crossing
Auburn	11 04	12 25	5 10
Mooreville	11 25	12 56	5 55
Butler	11 40am	1 20	6 20pm

Going West.

	No 1.	No. 5.	No. 7.
Logansport ar	6 55pm	2 00pm	5 30pm
Adamsboro	6 42	1 35	5 50
Hoover's	6 37	1 17	4 15
Mexico	6 21	1 00	3 48
T. P. & C. Cross'g
Denver	6 12	12 32	3 20
Chili	6 05	12 28	2 50
Pettysville	6 00	12 17
Paw Paw	5 57	12 12
Roann	5 51	12 00	2 05
Eby's Crossing	5 46	11 50
Laketon	5 37	11 33	1 33
C. W. & M Cros'g
Northmanchester	5 32	11 15	1 12
Liberty Mills	5 21	11 00	12 55
Collamer	5 03	10 36	12 28
South Whitley	5 04	10 30	11 20
Taylors	4 54	10 19	11 45
P. F. W. & C. Cro'g
Columbia City	4 40	9 47	11 10
Collin's	4 29	9 30	10 08
Churubusco	4 15	9 00	9 40
Potters	4 08	8 40	9 10
La Otto	3 55	8 23	8 50
Cedar Creek	3 45	8 11	8 3[illegible]
Auburn Junction	3 30	7 50	8 00
B. & O. Crossing
Auburn	3 27	7 45	7 48
Mooreville	3 08	7 18	7 00
Butler, lv.	2 55	6 55am	6 30am

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana administrator of the estate of Susanna Teeters, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is said to be solvent.

GEO. W. DRAGGOO, Admin.

Dec. 22, 1876.

Disolution Notice.

THE partnership heretofore existing between Jas. Casebeer and Abraham Miller, under the firm name of Jas. Casebeer & Co., has this day been disolved by mutual consent, Jas. Casebeer retiring. The business, will be continued by Miller & Getrost.

JAMES CASEBEER,
ABRAHAM MILLER.

Nov. 11, 1876. 4tf.

Notice for Stockholders' Meeting.

NOTICE is hereby given that according to the articles of association of the First National Bank, of Auburn, Indiana, that the stockholders thereof are required to meet at the Banking house of said association, on the second Tuesday, in January, annually, to elect a board of five directors for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may come before said meeting. Therefore a meeting of the stockholders of said association will be held on Tuesday, January 9th, 1877, at the banking house, in Auburn, at 1 o'clock p. m., to elect a new board of directors, and to transact such other business as may come up.

JAS. O. HAZZARD, Cashier.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 1st, 1876. decctt.

Attachment Notice.

STATE OF INDIANA, }
DEKALB COUNTY. }

A. J. Murbach }
vs. }
Joseph Miller. }

Before Daniel Altenburg, a Justice of the Peace for Union Township:

NOW comes the plaintiff and files his complaint herein, together with an affidavit, that said defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana; notice is therefore hereby given to said defendant that unless he be and appear to said defendant that unless he be and appear at my office on the second day of January, 1877, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Union township, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said complaint, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness my hand and seal this 4th day of December, 1876.

[L. S.] DANIEL ALTEMBURG, J. P.

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

SEC. 1 Therefore be it ordained by the Board of Trustees, of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be located and constructed as follows; On the south sides and ends of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on the north side of Second Street, Commencing at the south-east corner of lot No 54, W. A. and continuing and the south side of lot No 15 of W. A., alson on the south ends of lots No. 16, 45, 14, 13, 12, 11, 10, and 9, Relston's Addition to the said town of Auburn. Said sidewalks to be built as follows: Not less than six feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings, within sixty [60] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound Oak or Pine lumber. If made of Oak, the plank is to be not less than one and one fourth [1¼] in thickness nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed upon three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions. If made of Pine lumber, to be of good sound lumber, not less than one and a half inches [1½] in thickness, nor more than twelve [12] inches wide, placed upon sleepers running crossways of said walk, at intervals of not more than three [3] feet, said sleepers to be three [3] by five [5] inches in dimensions, of good sound Oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS an emerginey exists, this ordinance shall take affect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a news paper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees, at their regular meeting on Dec. 12, A. D. 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Presi-
EPHRIAM BERRY,
JOHN TREESH, Trustees.
D. Z. HOFFMAN

Ordinance to Build Sidewalks.

WHEREAS, Public convenience requires that a sidewalk be built and maintained, said sidewalk located in the incorporated town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

SEC. 1. Therefore be it ordered by the Board of Trustees of said incorporated town of Auburn, that sidewalks be constructed and located as follows: On the east end of lots and parts of lots bordering on and lying on the west side of Van Buren street commencing at the north-east corner of lot No 19, and continuing on the east end of lots No. 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 2 and 26 in Kuhlman's Addition to the said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, and said State. Said sidewalk to be built as follows: not less than six [6] feet in width, on a grade with the street and alley crossings within sixty [60] days after this ordinance shall take effect. To be made of good sound oak or pine lumber. If made of oak timber the plank is to be not less than than one and one-fourth [1¼] inches in thickness, nor more than eight [8] inches wide, placed on three [3] sleepers running lengthways of the walk, of not less than three [3] by five [5] inches in dimentions. If made of pine lumber, to be of sound lumber, not less than one and a half [1½] inches thick, nor more than twelve inches wide placed upon sleepers running crosswise of the sidewalk, at intervals of not more than three feet, five inches in dimensions, of good sound oak lumber.

SEC. 2. WHEREAS, An emergency exists, this ordinance shall take effect immediately after its publication in the Auburn COURIER, a newspaper printed and published in said town of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

Done by the Board of Trustees at their regular meeting, Dec. 12, 1876.

Attest, J. L. ROTH, T. C.

F. D. RYAN, Pres.
JOHN TREESH,
EPHRIAM BERRY, } Trustees.
JOHN [illegible]

TAX LIST FOR 1876.

To The Tax-Payers of DeKalb County, Indiana.

In compliance with the laws of the State of Indiana, I, DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer of said county, hereby notify the Tax-Payers thereof, that the rates of Taxation for the year A. D. 1876, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the amount of tax in cents levied upon each One Hundred Dollars valuation, in the several Townships and incorporated Villages in said county, as the same appears ON THE TAX DUPLICATE OF DEKALB COUNTY FOR SAID YEAR.

	State Levies.				Town and Township Levies.								County Levies
Townships and Incoporated Vilages.	State Tax on each $100 Valuation	S[illegible] each Poll.	School Tax on each $100 Valuation.	School Tax on each Poll	Township Tax on each $100 valuation	Road Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Common School Tax on each $100 valuation.	Common School Tax on each Poll.	Special School Tax on each $100 valuation	Special School Tax on each Poll	Additional Special School Tax on each $100 valuation	Additional Special School Tax on each Poll.	County Tax on each $100 Valuation.	On Bond Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each $100 Valuation.	Total Tax on each Poll.
Butler Township.	13	50	16	50	10	15			40	50			35	05	1 34	1.50
Jackson "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1.14	1.50
Concord "	13	50	16	50	05	15			25	50			35	05	1 14	1.50
Newville "	13	50	16	50	10	20			50	100			35	05	1 49	2.00
Stafford "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1 00
Wilmington "	13	50	16	50	10	20			40	50			35	05	1.39	1.50
Union "	13	50	16	50		10			15	25			35	05	94	1.25
Richland "	13	50	16	50	10	15			30	100			35	05	1.24	2.00
Fairfield "	13	50	16	50	07	15			18				35	05	1.09	1.00
Smithfield "	13	50	16	50	10	20			20	50			35	05	1.19	1.50
Franklin "	13	50	16	50	08	15			40	25			35	05	1.32	1 25
Troy "	13	50	16	50	10	15			50				35	05	1.44	1.00
Keyser "	13	50	16	50	10	15	10	50	40	50			35	05	1 44	2 00
Auburn Town.	13	50	16	50		10			25	50	50	50	35	05	1.54	2.60
Waterloo "	13	50	16	50		10	25		25				35	05	1.29	1.00
Butler "	13	50	16	50	10	20			30		50	50	35	05	1 79	1.50
Garrett "	13	50	16	50	10	15			15	50			35	05	1.09	1.50

In addition to the above, there is an assessment upon each male dog owned, kept or harbored within the county, $1. Upon each female dog owned kept or harbored within the county, $2. Upon each additional dog owned, kept or harbored by the same person within the county, $2.

The new law gives the tax-payer the privilege of paying the full amount of such taxes on or before the THIRD MONDAY OF APRIL, or may, at his option, pay one-half thereof, and the remaining half on or before the 1st Monday of November following, provided, however, that all road taxes so charged shall be paid prior to the 1st Monday of November, in the manner perscribed by law; and provided further, that in all cases where as much as one-half of the amount of tax charged against a taxpayer shall not be paid on or before the third Monday of April, the whole amount charged shall become due, and be returned delinquent and collected as provided by law.

All persons having worked out their road-tax, must present a receipt from the Supervisor of their Road District when they come to pay their April installment of taxes, in order to receive credit for the same.

Tax-Payers, do not forget that if all taxes are not paid when the same become due, they are, by law, subject to a penalty of ten per cent. interest and cost of collection.

The annual sale of Delinquent land and lots takes place on the second Monday of February, 1877.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is all included, and no mistake in charge. No county order will be paid any person owing delinquent taxes. Bring along your Road Receipts.

It is suggested to those having taxes to pay, to call early and avoid mistakes that may occur in the usual rush incident to the last few days. I will attend at my office from the 1st day of December, 1876, to the 1st Monday of November, 1877, to receive the above taxes.

DANIEL GONSER, Treasurer.

Treasurers O[illegible]lb County, Ind., December 7, 1874.

ROOT & COMPANY

Will offer this week a large line of new and attractive

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

In every Department at very low prices.

CARPETS.

Our new Fall importation of Carpets, Oilcloths, Curtain Goods, Etc., is now in and we are prepared to offer great inducements to purchasers.

DRESS GOODS!

For Fall and Winter wear, in the newest colors. Ladies in search of Fabrics for Fall and Winter will find it to their interest to inspect our splendid stock before purchasing.

SILKS, SILKS, SILKS

At old PRICES. No advance. Our stock is large and contains all the new shades for fall

VELVETS, VELVETS, VELVETS,

Black and colored Velvets in all widths, for trimmings, $ 1.50, 1.75 2.00, 2.25, and 2.50 per yard.

MERINO UNDERWEAR—A full assortment for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, at great bargains

Root & Co.

46 and 48 Calhoun-st, Fort Wayne, Ind.

ARRIVAL OF SANT CLAUS!

AT

F. E. DAVENPORT'S

DRUG STORE!

Where can be found a full and complete assortment of Holiday goods, and articles suitable for Christmas and New Years presents, consisting of Fine Albums. Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Views, Toilet Articles, Perfumery, Brushes &c.

School Books suitable for use in the Auburn and country schools. Writing paper. Pens, Inks, Copy Books, Slates, &c. Also a full line of Drugs and Medicines.

Perscriptions Carefully Compounded

The finest Tobaccos and Cigars to be found in the county. Remember the place,

DAVENPORT'S.

East of the Court House, Auburn, Ind.

HARD UP.

SAM, PETE & MAX,

Always the friends of the people, have never

FAILED

To regulate prices to suit the times

Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

OUR NEW ROOM

New Stock, and New Arrangements

We are now doing business in our splendid brick room on Main Street, and have opened out for the Fall and Winter trade a large stock of fresh

Dry Goods and Groceries,

HATS, CAPS, ETC.,

which we would be pleased to have our friends call and examine. Ours will be sold

AT THE LOWEST BOTTOM PRICES

FOR READY CASH.

CHARLES KLOTZ.

One Hundred OVERCOATS to be sold within two weeks
Must be sold! Got to be sold! Bound to be sold at prices never known before in Auburn. Call early in order to secure a bargain.
KAHN.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous.

A happy New Year to all.

"The Seven Clerks," next Saturday night."

The Commissioners met on Tuesday and will continue in session all week.

Charles Linkenhelt, of Garrett, was granted a license to keep a saloon, yesterday.

The finest and cheapest line of rubber boots, overshoes, artics, etc., in the market, at Lordier's.

Ladies wear in every variety kept at Lordier's, and at prices which cannot fail to attract buyers.

W. D. Rickel has taken the agency of the Detroit Evening News and has now a list of 67 subscribers in Auburn.

The parents of town marshal, S. T. Galloway, are here on a holiday visit fron their home in Ashland county, Ohio.

The Rev. W. L. Sanders was presented with a splendid polyglot Bible, on Christmas, by the nembers of his congregation.

A nice cosy pair of slippers make as acceptable a holiday present as you can offer. Inspect the fine display at Lordier's before investing.

The pupils in W. H. Hoaglands school in Wilmington township, presented their teacher with a handsome album as a Christmas gift.

Jas. Campbell, Esq., a prominent attorney of Columbia City, made his appearance in our court yesterday, as counsel in an important suit.

It is a pleasant surprise to see how Eli Kulhman, is picking up business at his new Drug Store opposite the Swineford House. Go and see him.

If you want a boss suit of clothes, go around to the next door south of Abrights and have your measure taken. G. H. Yesbera is the man.

Don't forget to go to Ensley's Hall on Saturday evening, next. The hall will undoubtedly be crowded, as the Adelphians are well known to the people of Auburn.

Everyone is conversant with the excellent quality of all articles sent out from the Fruit House. As to the remarkably low prices at which the goods are sold, Mr. Williams advertisement in another column speaks for itself.

Smith, the Waterloo larcenist, was tried in the Circuit Court on Friday and given ten days in the county jail, the court then adjourned until Tuesday in order that all might have their Christmas vacation.

The Adelphi troup of Albion, will appear at Ensley's Hall, on Saturday evening, in the sterling drama of "The Seven Clerks." A carefully trained amateur company like this is far supeior to most troupes of strolling professional actors.

The weather yesterday morning was cloudy, the thermometer standing at 16 degrees above. This we learned from the Hotel register kept by Capt. John Butt, at waterloo, a very useful, easy and practical way of keeping a record of the weather.

The services of the Rev. Henry Johnson were called into requisition on Christmas in marrying a handsome looking couple, temporarily stopping at the Swineford House. The names of the happy pair were John H. Carroll, and Sarah H. Imus, of Corruna.

The dedication of the new Presbyterian church will take place on Sunday, January, 7th, and not on next Sunday as was at one time expected. Prominent clergymen from abroad will assist in the ceremonies. There will be no other services until that time.

A fine watch, set of jewelry, or silverware makes a holiday present of permanent value, and one which the recipient can use and cherish for a lifetime. Abright has all these goods of the best make and most approved designs. Bear the fact mind when making your investments.

The Rev. Welch, of the M. E. Church, has been conducting a series of revival meetings for some time past. Until last week the meetings were held in the lecture-room of the church, but now they are held in the main room. There was some talk of uniting in these evening meetings with the Presbyterians, but the idea has been given up.

Mr. George Picker has purchased one of the celebrated Estey Organs as a Christmas present for his wife. We can say to Mrs. Picker, that she has an instrument whic is unexcelled for sweetness of tone, durability or beauty. The Estey is acknowledged by competent Judges to be the finest organ made. Any wishing to test one of these instruments can do so by calling G. H. Yesbera.

Accident.—While France Snyder and John Keeran were out hunting rabbits the other day, the latter was duly instructed how to shoot the cotten tail on the wing. Snyder knocked one over on the run, and in showing his comrade how he did it, the gun was accidentaly discharged, and Keeran, standing about twenty feet in the advance received the full load in his thigh. It was a painful but not dangerous wound.

E. E. Williams, of the Auburn Fruit House, is now nicely established in his own fine building, east of the bank. In his new room he has splendid facilities for carrying on his extensive business. The main store room is finely fitted up, and east of it is a large room with a subbasement for storage of bulky and perishable articles in summer and winter The new headquarters, are said by those who know, to be unsurpassed by anything found, even in the larger cities

Miss. Irena Cowan, will give a course of reading at the new Presbyterian church on the evening of January 2nd. Miss. Cowan has a splendid reputation as a reader and elocutionist, and has appeared before fine audiences in Chicago, Baltimore and other cities. Among the selections, will be "The Burning of Chicago," "Shamus O. Brien," "Over the Hill to the Poor House;" "Ringing of Bells" and other popular pieces. The admission will be 25 cents and the proceeds will go to benefit the Presbyterian church.

Ex-Commissioner Wannamaker last week gave up his hopeless endeavors to retain a seat in the board of Commissiners. He would have been able to stave off the "quo warranto proceedings,' owing to some informality in serving the papers on him. Very sensibly he had no desire to figure in a State suit, and showed his good sense by vacating. Mr. Blair will no doubt make an excellent collegue for his fellow members of the board and in their care the interests of the country are in good hands.

Five converts were baptized in the Cedar creek near the road bridge on Sunday last. The weather was quite cold, notwithstanding which the candidates bore the ordeal like martyrs. A large number of spectators were present to witness the ceremony. The names of those immersed were Thomas Baldock, Joseph Lawrence, Mr. Logan, Clara Wheelock, and Rebecca Canon. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shilling also united with the church but had been immersed previously.

The Christmas Ball.

The hop at the inauguration of Hollister & Benedict's new hall, on Christmas night, was one of the most pleasant affairs which has taken place here for a long time. Over fifty couples were present including a number of young folks from abroad. Everything during the evening was conducive of the most perfect enjoyment. The music was excellent, and the supper furnished by Messrs. Hollister & Benedict, was superb. The advantage of having the supper room in the same building where the dance took place, was appreciated by all. It is proposed to have several more balls at the same place during the winter.

☛Ladies' Cloth and Fur Trimmed Cloaks.

☛Cashmere in all shades

☛New fall style Prints

☛A full line Dress Finish Plain Prints

☛Readymade Comforts from $2 to $3 00

☛A new line of Alpaccas and alland winter dress goods

J. R. LANNING.

The People Want Proof.

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians, or sold by druggists. that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case, Try it. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

A word to the Wise. If you are suffering with a severe Cough or Cold, call on your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, and save large doctor bills. It relieves almost instantly. price 25 cents. For sale by F. E. Davenport.

A very large party from Waterloo took advantage of the sleighing, last Tuesday night, and came down to enjoy themselves at the Swineford House, and from what we learn they were entirely successful.

The following were among the party; J. A. Barns and wife, D. Y. Husselman and wife, A. D. Benedict and wife, S. Z. Dickinson and wife, Chas. Bassett and wife, A. B. Darby and wife, R. Wes. McBride and wife, W. H Leas and wife, John Bigler and wife, C, A O. McClellan, wife and daughter, S. C. Stough and wife, John Butt and wife, Frank Darby and wife, E. S. Patterson and wife, J. I. Best and wife, J. H. Stough, Richard Shull, W. T. Bozer and lady, D. S. Otis and Lady.

Equine Abduction.

Chas. Heitman, the thief who stole Dr. Chamberlain's blooded mare at Waterloo last fall, was tried before Judge Tousley and a jury on last Friday. The prosecution was conducted by McBride & Morlan and the defence by Gen. L. J. Blair. The prisoner, it will be remembered, stole a valuable trotting mare last fall, and through information given by two liverymen at Syracuse, was arrested and lodged in jail. The main point in the defence was the claim that Heitman was not mentally responsible. He testified in his own behalf during the trial, but without helping his case. The jury after a short consultation gave him five years in the State Prison.

Diseases of the Lungs. Chest and Thoat are so prevelent in our every changing climate, that such a medicine as Dr. Marshalls Lung Syrup is invaluable to the whole community. It cures almost instantly. Price 25 cents. Sold by F. E. Davenport.

The Grand and Petit Juries.

The following are the names of the gentlemen serving on the grand jury: Benjamin F. Blair, foreman, William H. Rodarmer, B. F. Cornelius, John Carper, Daniel Lintz, Lyman Chidsey.

Indictments were returned by the grand jury last week against Charles Heitman, Peter Smith for grand larceny, and Charles Rice for petit larceny. The last named was sentenced to the State Prison for one year. The result of the trial of the two others has already been given. Indictments have also been found against James Whitfield, for larceny, he was acquitted on trial yesterday David Sharley, charged with forgery, will be tried to-day. Both from Waterloo.

The following gentlemen compose the petit jury, in the Civil Circuit Court I. B. Goldsmith, foreman, J. D. Porter, Daniel Grogg, Amos Britton, John Taylor, John Philips, Henry Shutt, Sr., Joseph Weller, James Goetschius, R. S. S. Reed, J. J. Latson and J. S. Jackman Both juries are composed of fine looking men and there is no doubt but what they will perform their duties well.

Holloway's Pills.—In all crowded cities, malarious fogs are breathed over and over again, till the strongest lungs are incapable of producing pure blood, hence the sluggishness of mind and body, the weariness and irritability of many persons during this season of the year. These medicines neutralize these impurities and give vigor to the head heart and stomach. 35 cents per box or pot. For sale by F. E. Davenpot.

Church Dedication.

The new English Lutheran Church was dedicated on Sunday last with appropriate ceremonies. The building, though not large is exceedingly cosy and comfortable, and will form a valuable addition to the church privileges of Auburn. A new steeple has been erected, the building has been repainted inside and out, and refurnished in good style. The entire indebtedness w s but $400, and this sum was readily raised last Sunday, Mr. Jacob Stangels heading the list with $50, Miss Sibert gave $25 in cash. The music was furnished by a choir composed principally of singers from the M. E. Church choir, the members being as follows: Miss Alice Widney, Miss Jennie Coller, Miss May Lewis, Mrs. H. H. Stamets, Mrs. G H. K. Moss, and Messrs Long, Scott and Totten. They acquitted themselves very creditably indeed.

An Expensive Coon.

The old fashioned coon hunt is a time honored institution, but the sport of late years sometimes involves it votaries in heavy expenses. A crowd of young men near Newville, have found this out to their complete satisfaction. While engaged in a hunt some time ago they cut down a dry oak tree on the premises of Dr. Emanuel. To this proceeding the Dr took exception, and entered suit against the parties in the Circuit Court for satisfaction and damages. The defendants have at this term of court compromised the case by the payment of $75 in the way of costs, lawyers fees and damages. Had the suit come to trial, it is said their bill for that coon tree would have come to over $150. As it is the owner sold it for full value after it was felled, and it would seem that the hunters were not only compelled to pay for the tree, but cut it down gratis.

A FRAUD.

Parties are here with a stock of goods which they want to sell out at auction. It is doubtless some old worthless stock they have gathered up which has laid upon the shelves of country stores for years, and which has been purchased at a mere song. They ask the people to buy of them and pay their cash, and thus withdraw their patronage from our own merchants, who help with their time and money to build up the business interests of the town and county. We believe there is more or less swindling done by these traveling parties, and they are generally regarded as humbugs. We would advise our farmer friends to give them a wide berth, and keep away from them. We regret that our local authorities do not protect the people who pay taxes here, by assessing a much larger license than is usually imposed on swindling operators. We hope our citizens will stand by their own business men, who sell as cheap as they can and retain their character for honesty.

A Celestial Visitor.

A most remarkable phenomenon was visible to the people of this section on last Thursday night. A little before nine o'clock a luminous red light was seen in the western horizon, followed by a large ball of fire the size of the full moon, or larger. It appeared west and south of the spectator, and was moving from west to east. The ominous ball of fire was visible for more than a minute, and then it burst with a deep and continuous report like that of heavy artilery, the reveberations of which continued at least five minutes. While the meteors was visible, surrounding objects were plainly lighted up and outlined by the light. The explosion which caused the report, was also remarkable. As the flaming mass exploded, each smaller meteor immediately set out on an explosion of its own accord, until the entire mass had divided itself into a thousand fragments, making a grand spectacle, and such as no one in this community has ever before witnessed. The shock from the explosion caused a visible tremor, like that of an earthquake, and such was, by many, supposed to have been the cause of the commotion. The flames which accompanied the appearance of this strange visitor, are said by some to have been nearly a quarter of a mile in length. These, together with the nucleus of fire, seemed very near the ground. It is said further that a man sitting in a chair at the Junction was shaken to the floor, and there are reports of windows having been shattered by the force of the concussion. The remarkable occurrence was visible as far west as Kansas, and reports of its appearance come from the east as far as Dayton, Ohio. As it moved from west to east it is quite likely that the belt of territory in which it was seen was not more than a couple hundred miles wide from north to south. A number of fearful people were firmly convinced that the sight portayed some great calamity, such as war or famine, and the topic has excited much discussion among all classes.

A Sensible Innovation.

County Clerk Moss has made some changes in the system of entering up witness and other fees in his office, which very much simplifies the manner of keeping such accounts. The saving of time will be appreciated by those who have been compelled to wait for hours, while the clerk under the old way hunted up his accounts. The only guide then by which any amount due an applicant could be found, was by looking up each case in which he appeared. By keeping a register and cash book, as is now the case, the amount due any person can be found in a few moments instead of searching through an entire docket as was necessary before the new register was made out.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

JUNCTION JOTTINGS.

—Now is the time to swear of.

—Mr. Smith failed in his attempt to start a writing school at the school house The boys had not the wherewith.

—Joe. Wherrett, from Kokomo, Ind., is spending the holidays with his brother John. Joe. reports everything lively on the I. P. & C.

—Geo. Mitchell, the night operator, has gone to his home at Jonesville, to see his Ma. and spend christmas. Mr. Lower, from Hicksville, puts in the sixes in his absence.

—Mr. and Mrs. Price, from old Stark county, Ohio, are visiting friends and relations at this place. They are the guests of David Krider. It is not strange that Dave would pass by his mother after an absence of 15 years and not know her.

—Now the pitiful notes of the aged gobbler is heard as he pleads for mercy, but all in vain. Dad and Marm have invited all the children home and we are going to have a new year's dinner, and we are going to have it if it takes the last turkey on the place.

—Christmas day was passed in a lively manner; the boys all in good spirits and bound to have fun even if they didn't get their pay. One fellow living not less than a thousand miles from here, thought he would play a joke on Charley Fox, but his joke turned out to be a serious affair, and it cost him five dollars to square the thing and probably is not settled yet, and will be made hot for some one before it is settled.

Don Pedro.

LA OTTO.

—Dr. Josh Simons, of North Manchester, is visiting his numerous frinds here.

—Messrs. Rice & Rowly, of Ada, O., are carrying on a protracted meeting here. Rowly is a very good inger, and both men seem to be honest and faithful christians.

—Died on the 17th inst., at her residence, after a brief illness, Mrs. Mary Perry, aged 70 years. The deceased who with her husband, came to this county many years ago, was a lady loved and esteemed by all who knew her.

CORUNNA.

—A pleasant, jovial hop was had at the Union House, some time since.

H. Little, Esq., late of the Auburn Courier is spending the holidays with us.

—Henry Brumback and Al. Moore, of Plymouth, Ohio, are visiting friends in this neighborhood.

—Lipsett Bros. have shipped about 15,000 pounds of poultry since the 10th of November.

—Sleighing is fine, and business is beginning to look up in consequence thereof.

—The Corunna schools are being largely attended this term. The primary department having about 49 scholars enrolled.

—Brumback & Quince are making large shipments of stock hogs from this station weekly, together with sheep and cattle. They find lately the Chicago market the most inviting, as prices range from 2 to 2¼ higher than Buffalo.

—Dr. Mercer has associated with himself Mr. A. De Pew, in the drug business. The Dr. leaves for Indianapolis next week to join the tie vote in preventing "Blue Jeans" from calling out the State militia (?)

—A very young man with a swivel eye and an amateur mustache calling himself F. E. Watson, hailing from Lansing, Michigan, was billed for a lecture at the hall on Saturday last: subject, "The Marriage Tie," but failed to speak his piece owing to the lack of an audience. That young man ought to go west.

—Corunna contains a curiosity in the way of a dreamer, who dreamed a dream recently, in which he claims it was revealed to him that the democrats would rise on a certain night and massacre the republicans! Watchman, what of the night?

—Corunna Market.—Wheat $1.30, Oats 35c, Corn 40c, Hogs, live 4½ @ 5½, Dressed 6½ @ 6¾, Poultry 4 @ 6, Potatos, 80 @ 90, Butter 16c Eggs 18c.

NEWVILLE, IND.

—Mrs. Hawkins, an old resident, died very suddenly with heart disease. Buried on Wednesday of last week.

—Christmas was a jolly day in our little busy village. Candies and sleighbells had to suffer, say nothing of the horses.

—The party given by the Christian church, was a success; also the supper given by H. D. Hathway, and the Christmas tree at the U. B. church.

—The following gentlemen were installed as officers of Wm. Hacker Lodge F. & A. M. on Monday night: Wm. Seeley, W. M., C. L. Thomas, S. W. C. Coats, J. W.

—We are gratified to learn that our much respected townsman, B. F. Blair, Esq., has been granted the Commissioners seat which he justly deserves. We understand Mr. Wannamaker expects to go into the livery business at Edgerton, Ohio, soon.

—Smith & Parker have been employing a force of from six to thirteen hands for the last two weeks in picking and slaughtering poultry. They have been paying five cents for chickens, and seven cents for turkeys.

—We should judge that old thing had passed away and all things had become new. We remember of hearing a very worthy gentleman, say that no Republican should pass under the old hickory pole, to partake of the hospitalities of the hotel. No sir, "he would take him home first," but alas, he now passes under it and very composedly takes his "grub" there.

W. G K.

A large sleighing party from this place visited Garrett last evening, and were the guests of our excellent friend Mr. Konecht, at the handsome new hotel of that place. He was indefatigable in his attentions, and his accomplished lady contributed largely with her splendid vocal and instrumental music, to the entertainment of the party. The following parties were in attendance: J. J. Littlefield and wife, G. H. Yesbera and wife, D. E. Carruth and wife, J. Abright and wife, T. J. Cuppy and lady F. D. Ryan and wife, D. Gonser and wife, H. D. Benedict and wife, R. Elson and wife, H. H. Stamets and wife, M. Houston and wife, J. L. Davis and wife, F. E. Davenport and wife, J. Rainier and wife, J. E. Rose and wife, Guy Plum and wife, F. H. Benedict and wife, Wm. McIntyre and wife, A. J. Ralston and wife, W. L. Penfield and wife, Miss Clara Walters, Miss Lillie McTighe.

A Model Establishment.

We had the pleasure this week of looking over the large and well selected stock of groceries in the room of Messrs. Cool & Ralston, just west of the Courier office. The enterprise shown by these gentlemen in building up the fine trade they have established, is very creditable, both to themselves and the town. They are accommodating and genial busness men with whom it is a pleasure to deal. If you need anyting in the way of teas, spices, canned or dried fruits, coffee, flour, or in fact anything in their line, look over their extensive assortment and you will be pleased both as to quality and price. The firm also keep constantly on hand a full line of cigars, tobaccos, etc., and of late their oyster trade has been quite large. Give them a call.

Money To Loan.

C. A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, Ind., has now completed his arrangements to loan an unlimited amount of money on five years time in sums of One Thousand Dollars and upwards, at nine per cent. interest payable semi-annually, on first mortgage security on improved farms. He will also make investments for parties having money

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

HARPER'S MAGAZINE,

ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Magazine has attained in its one quarter century and more of existence to that point where it may be said of it, in the words of Dr. Johnson, "It is vain to blame and useless to praise." The lustre is its long-ago attained reputation has increased as the years have passed, and its future seems as bright if not brighter than at any time since the golden hue of prosperity settled around its later and better years.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Harper's Monthly is marked by the same characteristics which gave it circulation from the first with the better class of readers. It combines reading matter with illustrations in a way to make clear and vivid the facts presented. Pictures merely designed to catch the eye of the ignorant are never inserted.—Chicago Journal.

TERMS:

Postage free to all Subscribers in the United States.

Harper's Magazine, one year $4 00

$4 00 includes prepayment of U. S. postage by the publishers.

Subscriptions to Harper's Magazine, Weekly, and Bazar, to one address for one year, $7 00: postage free.

An Extra Copy of either the Magazine, Weekly, or Bazar will be supplied gratis for every Club of five Subscribers at $4 00 each, in one remittance; or six Copies for $20 00, without extra copy: postage free.

Back numbers can be supplied at any time.

The Volumes of the Magazine commence with the Numbers of June and December of each year. Subscriptions may commence with any number. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the first number of the current volume, and back numbers will be sent accordingly.

A complete set of Harper's Magazine, now comprising 53 volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express or freight at expense of purchaser, for $2.25 per volume. Single volumes by mail, post paid $3.00. Cloth cases for binding 58 cents, by mail post paid.

A complete analytical index to the first fifty volumes of Harper's Magazine has just been published, rendering available for reference the vast and varied wealth of information which constitutes this periodical a perfect illustrated literary cyclopedia. 8vo, cloth $3.00; half calf $5.25. Sent postage paid.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper Bros.

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS, N. Y.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court in a cause wherein Solomon Shearer and Allen C. Wilson, plaintiffs, and Eliphalet B. Rundles, Anna Rundles, and Thomas M. Stephens are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of two hundred and twenty-one dollars and ninety-eight cents, with interest on said decree, and costs, I will expose at public sale to the highest bidder on

SATURDAY, the 6th day of January, A. D. 1877, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate to-wit:

Lot eighteen (18) in Rainier and Headley's Addition to Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose at public sale, the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. Clair, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Guy Plum, Att'y for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Dec. 14, 1876. Pr. fee $6,40.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in a cause wherein the State of Indiana on the relation of Isaac Hague, Auditor of DeKalb County, plaintiff, and James E. Rose, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Buss, deceased, Christian C. Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Isaac M. Thomas, Sophia Thomas James E Rose administrator de bonis non estate, Christian Buss deceased, Samuel Buss Lydia Buss, Edward Buss, Elizabeth Buss, Margarett Parish, John Parish, Mary Ann Buss, Clara Buss, Ida M. Buss, Samuel W. Sprott and Caroline Schnieder, are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of four hundred and twenty-seven dollars and thirty-five cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at publics sale to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 6th day of January A. D. 1877 between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the Court House of DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years of the following real estate to-wit:

Lots numbered seventy three, (73) seventy-four, (74) and nine (9) in Western Addition of Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, except the undivided two-thirds of said lot number nine, (9.)

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interests and costs, I will at the same time and place, expose the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs.

Sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

J. C. St. Clair, Sheriff.
By Thos. D. Gross, Dept.

Hicks & Tarney, Att'ys for Plaintiff.
Auburn, Ind, Dec. 11, 1876. Pr. fee $[illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1876.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

THE Brooklyn Fire Marshal has fully investigated the circumstances attending the recent theatrical horror. He finds that there was a lack of proper precautions against fire and no discipline among the employes. The means of exit from the gallery were not good enough in case of fire and panic, and he believes that had the audience been notified when the fire was first discovered by the stage hands they could have got out of the building safely. He thinks that the request of the actors to the people to sit down, however well meant, was very disastrous both to audience and actors. He concludes with a recommendation that all public buildings, schools, churches, hospitals, and theaters be thoroughly overhauled at once.

THE four children of Mr. and Mrs. Ames McGowan, of Round Top, Pa., were recently burned to death. The house caught fire in the absence of the parents, and was reduced to ashes. The children, the oldest 9 and the youngest 3 years, were asleep at the time, and were completely consumed by the flames.... The Charter Oak Life Insurance Company of Hartford has purchased $3,000,000 worth of real estate in Broadway, Wall, and Broad streets, New York.... Ex-Gov. William Cozzens, of Rhode Island, died at Newport last week, of typhoid fever contracted at the Centennial. ....Gen. William F. Bartlett, of Massachusetts, is dead.

THE WEST.

NEWS has reached Cheyenne of a terrible massacre perpetrated in the Big Horn country, as follows: "Recently a party of twenty-six miners started for the Big Horn country, and none have been seen alive since. Mr. John Sheron, who is perfectly reliable, says that weeks ago a company of white men were attacked by a band of Sioux, supposed by the trail to have been a very large band, and it is believed on the first volley the miners fled to the brush, which the Indians fired and then killed their victims. The bodies of eighteen or twenty men have been identified, and among them were Robert Anderson, James Lysight, David Davis, and two men named Spencer and Cook—the latter a blacksmith. These men are well known in the Black Hills."

A NEW and most ingeniously-executed counterfeit silver 50-cent piece has been discovered in circulation in Chicago. It is made of a combination of metals very nearly of the same specific gravity as silver, finished perfectly, and triple-silver-plated, so that by the eye and the hand it is beyond detection. It even has a good ring, only a little duller than that of the genuine coin, and is possible of detection in that way by practiced ears. The fact of its light weight can also be detected by the scales. For general distribution it is a most dangerous work of art. Be on your guard.... They pack more hogs in Chicago now than in all the other large Western cities combined. Over a million have already been slaughtered since the opening of the season.

CHICAGO elevators contain 3,102,377 bushels of wheat; 338,015 bushels of corn; 515,233 bushels of oats; 105,169 bushels of rye, and 1,126,055 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 5,186,849 bushels. Milwaukee elevators are stored with 1,407,276 bushels of wheat, 3,274 bushels of corn, 108,302 bushels of oats, 32,054 bushels of rye, and 231,663 bushels of barley.

THE SOUTH.

A DAUGHTER of ex-Secretary Bristow was seriously, if not fatally, injured by a runaway accident in Louisville, a few days ago.... A fire at Little Rock, Ark., last week, destroyed $150,000 worth of property in the business part of the city. Heavy fires are also reported at Bolivar, Tenn., loss $200,000, and Blackville, Barnwell county, S. C., loss $40,000.

THE Hampton Legislature of South Carolina has elected M. C. Butler to the United States Senate, in place of Mr. Robertson. The Chamberlain Legislature had previously chosen D. T. Corbin to fill the same vacancy.... Little Rock, Ark., was visited by a second disastrous conflagration on the night of Dec. 19. Much valuable business property was burned, involving a loss of about $200,000.

A COLUMBIA (S. C.) dispatch of Dec. 20 says: "The Senate to-day decided, by a strict party vote, to adjourn with the Republican House sine die on the 22d inst. Their tax and appropriation bills passed a second reading in the Senate. The tax levy aggregates seventeen mills, exclusive of local taxes, and is equal to $2,010,000. Resolutions passed in the Democratic House to-day instructing Gov. Hampton to issue a proclamation calling upon the citizens to pay to such persons as he may designate 25 per cent. of the State and county tax for the last fiscal year, and the persons paying such tax shall receive certificates receivable for taxes hereafter."

WASHINGTON.

A WASHINGTON telegram states that the President, in reply to an invitation extended him by a Republican to visit Virginia after his term of office expires, said that he would be glad to do so, but that he intends to leave for Havana, Cuba, in March, and, after spending a few weeks there, sail for Europe, to remain for some time.... There was an encounter with knives a few evenings ago, at one of the Washington hotels, between Col. John W. Fairfax, who was Chief of Staff to Gen. Longstreet, and Francis M. Schell, one of the doorkeepers of the House. The trouble arose from the fact that Schell ordered Fairfax off the floor of the House. Fairfax, his physician says, was very seriously cut. Schell's wounds were comparatively light.

FOUR HUNDRED employes of the bureau of engraving and printing were discharged last week, nearly one-half of the force of the entire bureau. About two-thirds of the unfortunate victims were women, many of them being press girls.... The Naval Commission has reported in favor of abandoning the naval establishments at New London, New Orleans, and Brunswick, Ga.

THE President of the Senate has adopted the following new form of receipt for electoral votes as delivered by the messenger:

VICE PRESIDENT'S CHAMBER, SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, D. C., ——, 1876.—Received of ——, he claiming to be a messenger to deliver the same, a sealed package purporting to contain a certificate of the vote given for President and Vice President of the United States by the electors of the State of ——, alleging to have been elected Nov. 7, 1876.

(Signed) T. W. FERRY,
President pro tem. United States Senate.

MASSACHUSETTS has presented the Capitol with two marble statues of Winthrop and Adams.... The report of the Sioux Commissioner has been transmitted to Washington. It gives in detail their investigations into the subject of the late Sioux war, and finds that the Indians were greatly wronged, and that they were justified in their outbreak by the repeated violations of all treaties made with them.... The Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, as reported by the House Committee, appropriates $1,136,000, or from $30,000 to $50,000 less than the bill passed at the last session.

GENERAL.

THE great railroad war between Vanderbilt, of the New York Central, on the one side, and Garrett and Scott, of the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania roads, on the other, has been brought to a close by the surrender of the first-named, and freight rates between the East and West have again shot upward.... Several merchants from the interior of Mexico arrived at New Orleans last week, and they confirm the news of the capture of Leon, the death of Escobedo, and the capture of the City of Mexico by Gen. Diaz. Iglesias, from Leon, ordered Diaz to hold the City of Mexico and proclaim the Presidency of Iglesias, which Diaz declined to do unless he could name four members of the Cabinet. This was refused by Iglesias, when Diaz proclaimed himself provisional President, and the revolution now continues between these rival pretenders, who are preparing for new struggle.

SEVEN cars of silkworm eggs, valued at $6,000,000, have just been shipped from San Francisco for Europe, via New York. They came from China and Japan.... The dwelling of R. McInnes, of Huron county, Ont., burned one night last week. Four children perished in the flames. McInnes was severely burned while attempting to rescue them.

THE report of Gen. Crook, giving a history of his operations against the hostile Indians during the past year, has been received at Washington. Gen. Crook says that the miners in the Black Hills did not violate the Sioux treaty til long after the Indians had ceased to regard it, and they have not suffered as much from the Sioux since they went to the Hills as they did while living on the border. He seems to think that the Government has treated the Sioux nation with unparalleled liberality, which they have repaid by raiding along the border of the reservations, limited only by the endurance of their ponies.

GEN. MILES, who has been fighting Sitting Bull all summer and fall, and who has recently had two long councils with the great savage leader, gives it as his opinion that the Sioux war is closed, at least for years to come, and that if the Indians are properly treated—i. e., if the treaty obligations are faithfully observed on the part of the Government there will never be another Indian war. Gen. Sherman is credited with concurring in this view.

POLITICAL.

MR. WRIGHT, of Iowa, has introduced in the Senate a bill to establish a court of trial of Presidential election cases. It proposes as an adjustment of the difficulties that, after the count of the electoral vote by Congress in joint convention, either candidate, when dissatisfied with the result, may file an appeal to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who, if he finds the appeal based upon good and sufficient evidence, shall appoint a board of arbitration consisting of several members, of whom he shall be one and the other six chosen from the District and Circuit Judges of the United States, three of each political party. This board shall convene within ten days after the appeal is filed, and the appeal, taking precedence of all other business, shall be heard at once and a decision rendered as soon as possible. If the appellant is not satisfied with this arbitration he may appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, which shall be the final tribunal.... The total vote cast for President at the recent election—counting the votes of Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, as returned by the canvassing boards—is 8,425,977, against 6,457,315 in 1872, and 5,716,788 in 1868. Tilden received 4,290,187; Hayes, 4,042,726; Cooper, 82,926; Smith (Prohibitionist) and scattering, 10,138.

IT is reported that Senator Conkling will retire from public life at the close of his Senatorial term.

FOREIGN.

A BERLIN dispatch of the 18th says: "News received from the conference at Constantinople in high political quarters here maintains that a Russian-Turkish war is inevitable. Russia has not yet completed her preparations, and will endeavor to protract the conference until her southern army is concentrated. Private telegrams from St. Petersburg also state that Russia is unalterably determined to meet immediately the grievances which have been already indulged too long for European peace, but she will not enter the field until she feels able to make an irresistible assault."... Constantinople dispatches announce that the Plenipotentiaries have terminated the labors of the preliminary conference. After making some mutual concessions, they came to an understanding, and referred to their respective Governments for definite instructions. All questions, especially that of occupation, have been examined, but nothing is yet determined. ....The Panama Star and Herald of a recent date says: "A great battle has taken place in Garrapata. The trenches of the revolutionists were taken by our forces, commanded by Gens. Acosta and Camargo. An armistice of three days was asked for by the rebels to bury 2,000 dead of both sides.... A Calcutta telegram says the accounts of the famine received from Madras are worse than those from Bombay. Large numbers of starving people are flocking into Madras.... The Khedive of Egypt is going to discharge all his American officers.

CHARLES BRENT, the Louisville (Ky.) forger, has been surrendered by Great Britain to the United States authorities.... Minister Cushing has arrived at Madrid.... Another colliery explosion, resulting in the death of two or three score of miners, has occurred in Wales.... Much irritation has also been caused in Paris by a dispatch from Prince Bismarck, in which he severely censures the French Government on account of the wrong done to German commerce by the French export duties on iron. This action of the German Chancellor, coupled with the announcement of the treaty with Spain, is regarded as an evidence of unfriendly feelings on his part, and of a desire, perhaps, to test just how far he might push France without provoking resistance, so that he may know exactly what he may expect in the event of war in the East.... The cable reports a railway smash-up in Belgium, resulting in the death of eight passengers.

THE Greek Chamber of Deputies has unanimously passed the bill raising the strength of the military forces to 200,000 men.... A telegram from Constantinople says the appointment of Midhat Pasha as Grand Vizier, is very favorably received by the entire population. The Turkish people, while willing to accept reforms, resolutely object to any concessions detrimental to the dignity of the empire.... Calls for protection by the United States are continually made by Americans in Mexico, who suffer all sorts of robberies and outrages from the lawless "greasers."

Outlaws and Regulators.

A Texas paper relates the following adventure of an official of Milam county: "On Sunday morning last, as Deputy Sheriff Matt Shelton was returning from Cameron, and when within a few miles of Milano, he came up with three men, armed with shot-guns and six-shooters. He was riding faster than they, and, as he passed them, they asked about some horse-thieves, whom they said they were hunting. After a few words one of them lowered his gun upon Shelton, the others at the same time presenting their six-shooters and ordering him to dismount. After dismounting they compelled him to turn over about $20 in money and a fine six-shooter, all the valuables he had about him. They then departed, taking their victim's horse with them, and leaving it about a mile distant, where he afterward found it. Several large parties turned out and scoured the country all day, but could find only one trace of the outlaws—that was at the Brazos ford, where a negro woman saw them dismounted late in the evening. This party is supposed to belong to a regular gang, whose trail runs through that neighborhood. They make frequent visits from beyond the Brazos, and penetrate as far as Burleson and Bastrop. It is supposed that these were returning with the fruits of their last incursion, and took Deputy Shelton in just for the fun of the thing."

A SUPERFLUOUS girl baby, left on the doorstep of an Indianapolis orphan asylum, was found to have been branded with a hot iron. The note accompanying the unfortunate little stranger said her name was "Miss Centennial—'76."

FORTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

Spirited Debate in the Senate on the Louisiana Case.

Mr. Sherman said he could not allow the statement of the gentlemen who represented the Democratic party in Louisiana to be printed with a public document without making a brief reply. He was sorry the signers of the paper presented by the Senator from Missouri (Bogy), known as the report of the Democratic committee, did not consider the question of intimidation. Their whole paper consisted in an array of technicalities to defeat the law of Louisiana. The Democratic committee in their paper alleged that under the law of Louisiana there was no provision for the election of Presidential electors. If that was so no one in that State had ever found it out.

Mr. Sherman then read from the law of Louisiana, and said it was manifest that the Democratic committee had taken a very narrow view of the law. If their construction of the law was true, there was no provision of law in Louisiana for the election of any officer in that State. He denied that the law of 1872 repealed the Election law of 1870, as claimed by the Democrats, and argued that the law of 1872 merely changed the mode of conducting elections. Upon this point the Democratic committee had wasted about a column of their report.

The next objection raised by the committee was that the vacancy on the board was not filled by the appointment of a Democrat. He argued that the question of filling the vacancy was one of propriety, but such vacancy did not affect the legal status of the board. He would not say whether the vacancy should have been filled or not. Had he been a member of the Returning Board he would have been in favor of appointing any Democrat who could be found willing to serve on the board. The Democratic committee also found fault because the whole clerical force of the Returning Board was Republican. He knew of no law requiring the board to employ Democratic clerks. The House of Representatives had turned out every clerk and employe of his (Sherman's) political faith, but the Republicans did not complain.

Mr. Sherman then referred to the charge that the affidavits of Supervisors of Election in Louisiana as to intimidation were not made within twenty-four hours after the election, as the laws of the State required. He quoted at length from the report made by the Republican committee, of which he was a member, and claimed that the affidavits were properly made by the Supervisors. He argued that the Democratic committee did not impeach the fairness of the mode of conducting the count by the Returning Board. In seventeen parishes there was intimidation, and, as to the extent of it, the gentlemen of the Democratic committee dared not commit themselves. He (Sherman) was willing to stand, not only before the Senate, but before the people of the United States, and maintain that there was intimidation in Louisiana to an extent which changed the result of the whole election. There was murder, riot, whipping and violence by organized rifle clubs of the Democratic party. The members of the Senate, as Senators and men, ought to keep their minds cool and deliberate to decide the questions now pending—the electoral vote of three or four States in dispute. As to South Carolina, he believed that if it was conceded by all that the electoral vote was for Hayes and Wheeler.

Messrs. Randolph and Withers denied that there was any such concession.

Mr. Sherman (resuming) said the vote of Florida and Louisiana was in dispute. As to Oregon, he did not think that case would rise to the dignity of a dispute. He believed the Democratic candidate himself would scorn to hold the office of President in pursuance of such a fraud.

Mr. Thurman argued that the document which it was proposed to print presented but one side of the case, when both sides should be before the Senate. Another picture would be presented. He was surprised at the remarks of his colleague (Sherman), and was disposed to answer some of them now, but the matter would be before the Senate again. The people of the country would see that there was another word ending in "ion" besides intimidation. There was such a word as exaggeration. He argued that there should be time to examine both sides of this matter.

Mr. Thurman said, the President, in sending a committee to Louisiana, had acted outside his official duty, and the committee sent by him had no official authority. In sending his committee to New Orleans the President selected the Senator from Ohio and three gentlemen who are members of the House of Representatives; therefore, there was a champion in the Senate to present the President's side of the case, and, he supposed, three champions in the House. Of those Senators on the Democratic side of the chamber who went to New Orleans not one of them attended the sessions of the Returning Board.

Mr. Sherman said there were Senators and Representatives in New Orleans belonging to both parties.

Mr. Thurman said there was no question but there were Democrats in Louisiana, and there had been more Democrats than Republicans in that State for some years past. He argued that it was the duty of the Returning Board to fill the vacancy existing in that board, but it was not filled because the board intended that no Democratic eye should see, or Democratic ear hear, its proceedings when it came to the final issue. The action of the Returning Board, so intensely partisan and unfair, must now be bolstered by his colleague. The American people would not take the assertion of any man, no matter how high he might be, that this thing was fair. They would demand all the facts.

He next referred to the affidavits of Supervisors of Election as to intimidation, and argued that they were not made within the time prescribed by law, but were made after the election, in New Orleans, to count out Tilden and count in Hayes, to count out Nicholls and count in Packard.

Mr. Morton said the great question before the Louisiana Returning Board was that of intimidation, murder, and violence. The country wanted to hear about these crimes. It wanted to hear from the Democratic committee which visited New Orleans in regard to this intimidation. The report of that committee touched the great question of intimidation with a single paragraph not as long as his finger.

Mr. Bayard asked what Governor of any State except Louisiana would have assisted in preparing a compilation which showed not only the miserable condition of his people, but his own criminal negligence in not protecting them. He argued that the effect of the document now before the Senate would be to consign to everlasting infamy the false men in control of that State who had never performed the first duty of honest government in suppressing the crimes they now parade. He did not wish to shut out the truth. Let it come out, and it would show the results of Congressional interference with local State Government.

Mr. Sherman argued that the authorities of Louisiana had done all they could to punish criminals, but a criminal could not be arrested outside a parish where the crime was committed unless the proceedings in the parish should have been commenced against such criminal. In some parishes it was impossible to hold a court. The truth was, the young men of the South were determined that negroes should not exercise rights guaranteed to them by the constitution. A few white men could ride roughshod over a number of negroes.

Mr. Bayard said the Senator from Ohio (Sherman) must be in error in saying that a criminal in Louisiana could not be arrested outside of a parish where the crime was committed. If such a state of facts did exist, who was responsible? What party had been in power in that State?

Mr. Bayard then quoted at length from reports of investigation into Southern affairs, and said he never heard of a single case where a man was assaulted in the South for giving testimony before a Congressional committee.

Mr. Sherman said there would be peace in Louisiana but for the unlawful acts of the Democratic clubs in that State. If this violence and intimidation should be successful in electing a President now, the same violence would soon extend all over the United States, and our Government would be at an end. He did not want to see a war of races, but it would come unless the negroes in the South were given the rights guaranteed them by the constitution. He defended the action of Gov. Kellogg, of Louisiana, and said he was not able to put down these disorders, but did all in his power to do so. The real trouble was an attempt to organize a party on the color-line, and make a man President of the United States who was not the choice of a majority of the American people. He believed the masses of the people North and South were daily going forward to the conclusion that these crimes of the rifle clubs of the South must not be permitted.

Mr. Morton said he desired to congratulate the cause of humanity and justice upon the evidence of progress exhibited in the Senate to-day, and that was the fact that the existence of violence and enormities in the South was no longer denied in the Senate. He argued that the crimes in that section had not been punished because intimidation went into the courts. Assassination awaited both Judge and jurors. This ruffianism would be stopped when a great party no longer exercised it.

Mr. Thurman said of course there had been violation of law in the South, but he denied that the Southern people were a set of assassins. He argued that the Democrats had denounced crime in the South, when crime existed. These charges of intimidation were exaggerated, but they would not cease so long as the vote of a whole State could be overthrown by them. His colleague (Sherman) spoke about the color-line. He (Thurman) was prepared to prove that the responsibility of the establishing of a color-line rested with the Republican party. When the right of suffrage was conferred upon the negro it was openly avowed in the Senate that the Republican party needed the votes of 800,000 negroes. The trouble was, the Republican party did not get them.

He then referred to the use of the army in the States, and said if the elections were to be carried by the army of the United States it was the worst kind of intimidation, and there would be an end to republican institutions. The world had its Cæsar and its Bonaparte, who overthrew republican governments, but a republican government had never been overthrown by this kind of intimidation, which his colleague (Sherman) and the Senator from Indiana (Morton) complained of.

Regular Proceedings.

FRIDAY, Dec. 15.—Senate.—Mr. Windom, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported, without amendment, the House bill to provide for the payment of the electoral messengers. Passed.... The resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the Oregon electoral affair was taken up, and Mr. Thurman addressed the Senate at length in defense of the action of Gov. Grover. The question was further discussed by Messrs. Mitchell and Wallace.... A resolution fixing the compensation of witnesses summoned before the Senate or any of its committees at $3 per day, and 5 cents per mile each way for traveling expenses, was passed, with an amendment providing that witnesses residing west of the 100th meridian be paid 7 cents a mile each way when the place of their examination shall be east of the Mississippi river.... Mr. Edmunds called up the message from the House announcing the passage of the resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to act with a committee of the Senate to devise some method of counting the electoral vote, and submitted a resolution referring the message of the House to a select committee to be composed of seven Senators, with power to prepare and report without unnecessary delay such measure as will secure a lawful count of the electoral vote and the best disposition of all questions connected therewith, and that said committee have power to confer with the committee of the House of Representatives.... Adjourned to Monday, Dec. 18.

House.—The bill to pay the expenses of the investigating committees, reducing the amount for the Senate from $50,000 to $30,000, and increasing that for the House from $21,000 to $50,000, gave rise to some political discussion, conducted on the Republican side by Mr. Hale (Me.), and on the Democratic side by Messrs. Holman and Cox.... The Postoffice Appropriation bill was discussed in committee of the whole.

SATURDAY, Dec. 16.—Senate.—Not in session.

House.—Mr. Schleicher's amendment to the Postoffice Appropriation bill, increasing the appropriation for the transportation of mails on the "star" routes and steamboats, was agreed to—ayes, 90; nays, 66. The bill was then passed without division.... The Speaker laid before the House the telegram received by him from Mr. Morrison, the Chairman of the Louisiana select committee, and that to Mr. Morrison from Mr. Orton, the President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, refusing to produce the originals of the telegraphic dispatches. The dispatches having been read, Mr. Wood (N. Y.) offered a resolution to the effect that the communication be referred to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions to report at the earliest practicable moment what action the House should take in the premises. The matter went over without action. ....Eulogies were delivered upon the late Speaker Kerr by a number of members, at the conclusion of which resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted expressive of the profound sorrow of the House, directing the Speaker's chair to be kept draped in mourning during the remainder of this session of Congress, and the usual badge of mourning to be worn by members and officers of the House.

MONDAY, Dec. 18.—Senate.—Mr. Edmunds' resolution referring the message of the House of Representatives in regard to devising means to count and declare the electoral vote to a select committee of seven Senators, to act with the committee appointed by the House, was agreed to by a unanimous vote, without discussion, and the Chair was authorized to appoint the special committee.... Mr. Wright introduced a bill to establish a court for the trial of contested elections in the offices of President and Vice President of the United States, and at his request it was ordered printed and to lie on the table.... Mr. Wright called up the Message of the President, sent to the Senate at the last session, vetoing the bill reducing the President's salary from $50,000 to $25,000 per annum, and the question being, "Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of the President thereto?" a discussion followed, and the Senate refused to pass the bill over the veto by a vote of yeas, 25; nays, 19—not two-thirds voting in the affirmative.... Mr. Key (Tenn.) delivered a lengthy speech on the Presidential question.

House.—Mr. Knott introduced a bill regulating proceedings in the electoral count for President and Vice President. Referred to the select committee on the subject.... The resolution of inquiry into the action of Judge Bond, in South Carolina, failed for want of a two-thirds vote. Bills were introduced: To promote the education of the blind; to facilitate the negotiation of bills of lading, etc.; concerning expatriation and change of allegiance; to establish the franking privilege; to reduce and reorganize the navy; to promote the efficiency of the marine hospital service; for a Commissioner on the locust plague.... Mr. Frye offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of six to inquire into the manner in which the election was conducted for members of Congress last November in the Sixth District of Mississippi and Fourth District of Alabama, and whether in such districts there was any intimidation of candidates or voters. The House refused to second the previous question, and the resolution went over. ....Mr. Hale offered a resolution for the protection of citizens in the exercise of the right of suffrage. The resolution giving rise to debate, it went over under the rule.... Mr. Banning moved to suspend the rule, and adopt a resolution calling for Gen. Sheridan's report on the removal of Gov. Wells, of Louisiana.... A resolution instructing the Judiciary Committee to report an amendment to the constitution forbidding the payment of war claims to disloyal persons was adopted—180 to 65.

TUESDAY, Dec. 19.—Senate.—A number of bills of a private character were passed.... The Pension bill, as passed by the House, was reported by the committee and placed on the calendar.... Statues of John Winthrop and Samuel Adams were formally presented by Messrs. Boutwell and Dawes, on behalf of the State of Massachusetts.... Mr. Mitchell's resolution in regard to the appointment of Cronin as a Presidential elector in Oregon was discussed by Messrs. Mitchell, Morton and Bogy.

House.—The House proceedings were exceedingly tame. The Fortification Appropriation bill was passed, after which the formalities of presenting and receiving the Adams and Winthrop statues occupied the attention of the members.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 20.—Senate.—The Senate passed a bill to create a new Territory out of the northern portion of Dakota, west of Minnesota, to be called Huron.... The Oregon electoral case was again before the Senate, and Mr. Bogy concluded his speech. The matter was further discussed by Messrs. Morton, Eaton and Sherman.... Mr. Hitchcock introduced a bill providing for an additional Representative in Congress from Nebraska.... The Pension Appropriation bill was passed.

House.—The report of the Judiciary Committee on the question of the power of committees to compel the production of telegrams was made. The report asserts the right. A resolution, offered by Mr. Hurd, from the majority of the committee, makes the same assertion, but requires a description of the telegrams to be given. A substitute for both of the reports has been offered by Mr. Knott the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, declaring that telegraphic communications have no more privilege than oral or other communications and must be produced when called for. A long discussion ensued. Among the notable speeches made was one by Mr. Garfield protesting that the telegraph should be as sacred as the postoffice, and one by Mr. Hewitt declaring that the sanctity of the postoffice was more imaginary than real, as his (Hewitt's) letters had been constantly opened in the New York postoffice. Mr. Garfield suggested that it was the duty of the gentleman (Hewitt) to ask for an inquiry, and he (Garfield) would assist him in it. Mr. Wood (N. Y.) favored the report of the committee, and opposed Mr. Hurd's amendment as being tantamount to a defeat of the Louisiana investigation. Finally Mr. Hurd's resolution, requiring the subpoena to describe the specific telegrams to be produced, was defeated—yeas, 84; nays, 126—and Mr. Knott's substitute was adopted without division. Mr. Platt then asked unanimous consent to offer a resolution for inquiry into the charges made by Mr. Hewitt against the New York postoffice, but objection was made by Mr. Luttrell.... The Irish Centennial address, which the President declined to receive because Sir Edward Thornton, the British Minister, had refused to present it, came up in the House. It was referred to the Foreign Affairs Committee for consideration.... Mr. Chittenden asked leave to introduce and have referred to the Banking Committee a bill for funding legal-tender notes, but objection was made by Mr. Holman.... The conference report on the bill to provide for the expenses of investigating committees was made by Mr. Holman, discussed, and agreed to.

The East India Cyclone.

Appalling as was the calamity at Brooklyn, it sinks almost into insignificance compared with the ravages of a cyclone in the Delta of the Ganges, full particulars of which are now reaching this country. Few catastrophes in history surpass it. The region is subject to inundation by reason of violent influx of the tide of the Ganges, the Brahmapootra, and the Hoogly rivers, and has often been the scene of disaster, but nothing so overwhelming in its destruction ever occurred there as the catastrophe of the 31st of October. That night the population of three large and numerous small islands lying in the lowlands of the Delta—a population amounting to 400,000 souls—went peacefully to sleep. There was not one single warning of the coming danger. In the blackness of the night the river Meghua, formed by the junction of the Ganges with the Brahmapootra, rose suddenly some twenty feet and completely inundated the islands, and in an irresistible flood poured inland for miles. The rush of the impetuous waves was the first apprisal to the slumbering people of the awful danger which environed them. They could not fly to the mountains. There were none. The low roofs of their cottages afforded no safety, and the only escape from the overwhelming floods lay in climbing the cocoanut and palm trees which are found in most of the villages. These were the only refuge. Death was everywhere else. Upon the islands no less than 250,000 persons perished, and along its entire tract the cyclone left dead in the fields full half a million people. All the cattle were drowned, all the boats were destroyed, and, as they were the only means of communication in the district, it was a long time before relief was brought to the survivors. When the waters went down the earth was strewn thick with bodies soon to poison the gale, and to the suffering which so horrible a calamity entailed on the survivors was added the fear of pestilence, which, however, at latest accounts, had not broken out. Immediate preparations were made by the British Government for the burial of the dead, the succor of the survivors, and the maintenance of order. No less than sixty depots of relief supplies were necessary to meet the sudden demand upon the charitable resources of the Indian empire. Twelve years ago some 50,000 persons were thus suddenly destroyed under similar circumstances, and in the same place, and the danger from tornadoes and the capricious action of the net of rivers which form the mouth of the Ganges is ever present, but the richness of the soil attracts a teeming population to these lowlands, and they will continue to find inhabitants though wholesale destruction may at any moment overwhelm them.

A Reminiscence of Cole Younger.

Upon one occasion Quantrell's band encountered a party of jayhawkers numbering thirty or more. A dozen of the jayhawkers were killed and fifteen captured. They were taken to a camp and the question of their fate soon settled. After supper, and while the shades of evening were approaching, Cole Younger got out an Enfield rifle captured that day. It was the first he had ever seen, and its merits and demerits were discussed by the men. Opinions differed as to its superior qualities.

One of the men remarked that he had heard that it would kill at the distance of a mile. Younger replied: "If that is so, the force of the discharge must be terrific." Another banteringly remarked if the new gun will kill at a mile distance, the ball at short range would go through ten men. Younger raised up from the saddle on which he was sitting, and remarked: "That is easy to demonstrate." When the prisoners heard this remark, they thought sure their time had come.

The fifteen prisoners were then placed in line, one behind the other, and Cole Younger took the gun, played with the lock a moment, to "git the hang of it," and then measured off fifteen paces in front of the line formed, wheeled about, looked calmly into the faces of the doomed men, and then fired. The first, second and third man dropped without a groan. Muttering a contemptuous condemnation of the new rifle, Younger, without moving from his tracks, continued his experiments. Seven times the rifle was discharged, each time the guerrilla commenting carelessly upon the merits of the Enfield, and fifteen of the jayhawkers lay in an inanimate heap on the grass.—St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer-Press.

The Drama at Deadwood.

There is a small theater in the Black Hills, known as the Bella Union Varieties. The members of the company can find nothing in the range of dramatic literature that has sufficient realism to be set before an audience made up of pioneers, blackguards, gamblers, and miners, to whom life is real and earnest, and not at all artificial. The actors cannot project themselves into the tragedies of playwrights, so they act out their own tragedies in the presence of an appreciative audience. About the middle of November an ax was thrown upon the stage by the husband of one of the actresses. The stage was cleared, and the assailant assumed an attitude before the audience. Suddenly the avenger appeared at the wings—it was Dick Brown—and fired four shots at the intruder, shrieking as he threw down the revolver, "He has followed me long enough." The audience was wild with delight.

Oriental War Notes.

—The six Russian corps in process of mobilization are to consist each of 63,000 combatants, with 2,500 horses and 100 guns.

—It is alleged that the Jews of Austria are intensely hostile to the Servians, and have made their influence felt in the Vienna press.

—Civil-service reform makes slow progress in Turkey. The Governor of Cypress can neither read nor write, but he has the recommendation of being a brother-in-law of Midhat Pasha.

—The Turks were disposed to send their iron-clads to Burgos, on the Black sea, but they refrained at the instance of the British Ambassador from making that warlike demonstration.

—The Sultan applies himself to public business with great earnestness. He continually visits the arsenals, the hospitals, and the naval and military colleges, and displays considerable intelligence.

—The Mohammedans in the East Indies are taking a deep interest in the Eastern question. It is generally understood that the British Government is less anti-Turkish than it might be, on their account.

—Gen. Klapka, the noted Hungarian, has been received with great cordiality by leading Turks at Constantinople. The sympathy which the Magyars evince for the Turkish cause accounts for this friendliness.

—The two centers of military preparation in Russia are Kischeneff, in Bessarabia, and Odessa, the first being the headquarters of the operating army on the Pruth, the second the place for organizing the defense of the Black sea coast.

—The Emperor of Russia has little taste for diplomatic wrangling. He recently declared that his son was right when he recommended him to declare war against Turkey at the beginning of October. This, he implied, would have put an end to remonstrances.

Silver Currency.

M. Henri Cernuschi, the wealthy French author and politician and chief bi-metallist missionary of Europe, arrived in this country on Saturday. He will make a visit of several months, and comes to propagate his economical views on the silver question. To rescue his old friend silver from suspicion and menace, he has visited every capital of Europe; for he is cosmopolitan enough to be able to chat in a friendly way with Bismarck and Andrassy in their own language, and one may feel assured he must be an extraordinary Frenchman who has the amiability just now, and the linguistic ability at any time, to do that. He firmly believes that the return of the United States to specie payments will depend on the preservation of the silver currency in Europe. For the United States to resume specie payments, M. Cernuschi says they must give the silver dollar the same value as the gold, accept silver at custom houses, and be able to pay European bondholders in silver dollars. But first Europe must become bi-metallic, else European creditors would suffer serious losses by receiving inconvertible dollars. He also insists that the South American states can neither pay their debts to Europe nor buy merchandise in Europe if their mines do not furnish legal tender.—New York Tribune.

Down in the Canebrake.

The Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald says: "Friday, at noon, the mounted police, assisted by the residents of Banning and First streets, burned out the canebrake on the bank of the river between Aliso and First streets. Such a skedaddling of roughs and vagabonds was never seen before. This place has been for a long time a harbor for thieves and rogues, who have committed many depredations in the neighborhood of Los Angeles. The brake being dry, it burned briskly, and for a time the whole neighborhood seemed to be on fire. When the flames had subsided and the ashes were turned over, many articles of camp furniture were discovered, and among the rest were burglarious tools and skeleton keys. The mounted police will watch this rendezvous and prevent any further encampment being formed. The place has become so notoriously infested that the residents were afraid to retire to their beds."

EXPERIMENTERS in diet find that the barn fed rat is pleasant and wholesome.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	7 00 @12 00
HOGS	5 80 @ 6 26
COTTON	12 @ 12¼
FLOUR—Superfine Western	4 85 @ 5 85
WHEAT—No. 2 Chicago	1 33 @ 1 35
CORN—Western Mixed	58 @ 62
OATS—No. 2, Chicago	40 @ 44
RYE—Western	90 @ 92
PORK—New Mess	17 50 @17 75
LARD—Steam	10¾@ 11
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 00 @ 5 35
Choice Natives	4 50 @ 4 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50 @ 3 50
Good Second-class Steers	3 50 @ 3 90
Medium to Fair	4 00 @ 4 25
HOGS—Live	5 00 @ 6 25
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter	6 75 @ 7 50
" Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00 @ 5 75
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring, New	1 19 @ 1 19½
No. 3 Spring	1 08 @ 1 09
CORN—No. 2	44 @ 45
OATS—No. 2	33 @ 34
RYE—No. 2	69 @ 70
BARLEY—No. 2, New	65 @ 66
BUTTER—Creamery	32 @ 35
EGGS—Fresh	22 @ 24
PORK—Mess	16 50 @16 75
LARD	10½@ 10¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 27 @ 1 28
No. 2	1 21 @ 1 22
CORN—No. 2	45 @ 46
OATS—No. 2	32 @ 33
RYE	69 @ 70
BARLEY—No. 2	74 @ 76
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 34 @ 1 35
CORN—Western Mixed	40 @ 41
OATS—No. 2	31 @ 32
RYE	69 @ 70
PORK—Mess	16 25 @16 50
LARD	10½@ 10¾
HOGS	5 25 @ 6 10
CATTLE	2 50 @ 5 60
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT	1 30 @ 1 40
CORN	43 @ 45
OATS	36 @ 39
RYE	80 @ 82
PORK—Mess	16 50 @16 75
LARD	10½@ 11¼
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—Extra	1 43 @ 1 44
Amber	1 40 @ 1 41
CORN	45 @ 48
OATS—No. 2	34 @ 36
DETROIT.
FLOUR—Medium	6 25 @ 6 50
WHEAT—White	1 34½@ 1 42
CORN—No. 2	49 @ 50
OATS—Mixed	38 @ 40
RYE	80 @ 85
PORK—Mess	16 75 @17 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
HOGS—Yorkers	5 60 @ 5 70
Philadelphia	6 00 @ 6 15
CATTLE—Best	5 75 @ 6 00
Medium	4 75 @ 5 00
SHEEP	3 25 @ 4 75

AUBURN COURIER

T. C. MANN, Publisher.

DARK DAYS FOR AMERICA.

Is Constitutional Liberty to be Now Destroyed?—A State that Went for Tilden as Clearly as Ohio for Hayes—How a Condemned Party May Perpetuate its Power—A Momentous Question for the American People to Settle.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.

The Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, Chairman Democratic National Committee:

The Returning Board of Louisiana having this day promulgated as the result of the recent election in that State that the Hayes and Wheeler candidates for electors received a majority of the votes, we who, by invitation, watched the proceedings of the board in opening and canvassing the returns till it went into secret session, deem it our duty to lay before you and the public such facts connected with the election and the returns as will, we think, clearly show that the action of the Returning Board in proclaiming the election of the Hayes electors is arbitrary, unfair, and without warrant of law, and we adopt, as applicable to this canvass, the language of a report made to the United States House of Representatives, in 1875, by Geo. F. Hoar, William A. Wheeler, and William P. Frye, in regard to the canvass of 1874, in which they say: "The so-called canvass made by the Returning Board in the interest of Kellogg seems to us to have no validity, and is entitled to no respect whatever." We also adopt the language of this same report upon the condition of Louisiana in 1875: "In the State of Louisiana there is a Governor in office who owes his seat to the interference of the national power, which has recognized his title to his office, not by reason of any ascertainment of the facts by legal process, but has based its action solely on the illegal order of a Judge.

"In the same State there is a Legislature, one branch of which derives its authority partly from the same order, the other being organized by a majority who have been established in power by another interference of the national Government, and which majority derives its title, not from any legal ascertainment of the facts, but from the certificate of a Returning Board which has unscrupulously exceeded its legal authority."

Nov. 18, 1876, before the Returning Board commenced the canvass of the electoral vote, the candidates for electors on the Democratic ticket presented a protest against its jurisdiction over the subject, or its canvass of the votes relating to the same. This protest was summarily overruled by the board, without affording an opportunity for argument. No legal proposition in our opinion is clearer than that the board was mistaken as to its powers, and that it had nothing whatever to do with the electoral vote. The constitution of the United States declares: "Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in Congress, but no Senator or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector."

The Legislature of Louisiana has either directed the manner in which the electors in that State shall be appointed, or it has not. The election law of 1872 and amendments, under which the Returning Board is created and acts, makes no provision as to the manner of appointing electors of President and Vice President, whether by the Legislature or by a vote of the people, nor whether by the State at large or by Congressional districts, nor does it contain any provisions as to the qualification of electors, the place where they are to meet, nor for filling vacancies. Section 71 of that act declares as follows: "That this act shall take effect from and after its passage, and that all others on the subject of election laws be and the same are hereby repealed." This is not an implied but a direct repeal of all prior election laws to which it refers, and if it repeals the previous act of 1868, revised in 1870, providing for the appointment of Presidential electors, it repeals the whole of it and all its provisions, and there is no law of the State on that subject, and of course the board would have no jurisdiction to canvass votes cast for such officers. If, on the other hand, the act of 1872 does not repeal the law of 1870, the Presidential electors must be appointed and the canvass of the votes thereof must be made in accordance with the law of 1870, and the Returning Board has no jurisdiction over the subject, as will be seen by reference to some of the provisions of the act of 1870, which are as follows:

SEC. 2,824. Every qualified voter in the State shall vote for electors as follows: Two persons shall be selected from the State at large, and one person shall be chosen from each Congressional district in this State; and in case any ticket shall contain two or more names of persons residing in the same district (except the two chosen from the State at large), the first of such names only shall be considered as duly voted for.

SEC. 2,825. No person shall be considered a qualified elector who is not a qualified voter in the district for which he is chosen, or in case of being selected for the State at large, then of some parish of the State.

SEC. 2,826. Immediately after the receipt of a return from each parish, or on the fourth Monday of November, if the returns should not sooner arrive, the Governor, in the presence of the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, a District Judge of the district in which the seat of Government may be established, or any two of them, shall examine the returns and ascertain therefrom the persons who have been duly elected electors.

SEC. 2,829. The electors shall meet at the seat of Government on the day appointed for their meeting by the act of Congress—the first Wednesday in December—and shall then and there proceed to execute the duties and services enjoined upon them by the constitution of the United States, in the manner therein prescribed.

SEC. 2,830. If any one or more of the electors chosen by the people shall fail, from any cause whatever, to attend at the appointed place at the hour of 4 p. m. of the day prescribed for their meeting, it shall be the duty of the other electors immediately to proceed by ballot to fill such vacancy or vacancies.

It is immaterial, so far as affects the jurisdiction of the Returning Board, whether the act of 1870, relating to the appointment of Presidential electors, is repealed or not. If repealed, there is no law in Louisiana for the appointment of Presidential Electors; if not repealed, then the canvass of the returns cast for such electors must be made by the Governor, in the presence of the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, a Judge of the district in which the seat of Government may be established, or any two of them, as required by the act of 1870, and in making such canvass they would be confined to an ascertainment of the persons elected, according to the returns, without authority to reject votes. In no event can the Returning Board have jurisdiction of the returns of the electors of President and Vice President, and their canvass of the same is therefore a nullity, and entitled to no respect from any one. In another aspect it may be important to determine whether the act of 1870 is repealed, for if it is the statutes of the State provide no mode of filling vacancies in the Electoral College, and it is understood that two of the electoral candidates on the Republican ticket held offices of trust or profit under the United States at the time of the election, and could not therefore be appointed electors.

Other objections were made to the jurisdiction of the Returning Board. That it was anti-republican; that it was in conflict with the constitution of the State, in that it undertook to exercise judicial functions, and in that with only four members it was not legally constituted.

The Election law declares: "That five persons, to be elected by the Senate from all political parties, shall be the returning officers for all elections in the State, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum, and have power to make the returns of all elections. In case of any vacancy by death, resignation, or otherwise, by either of the board, then the vacancy SHALL be filled by the residue of the Board of Returning Officers."

The present board consists of only four members, to wit: J. Madison Wells, T. C. Anderson, G. Casanave, and Louis M. Kenner, one of whom, T. C. Anderson, was a candidate for the State Senate at the recent election on the Republican ticket. All are members of the Republican party. They are the same persons who constituted the Returning Board in 1874, and [illegible] the election canvass of that year, and of whom a committee of the House of Representatives of the United States, composed of Messrs. [illegible], Wheeler, Frye, Foster, Phelps, Marshall and Potter, after careful examination of the [illegible], said: "We are constrained to declare that the action of the Returning Board, on the whole, was arbitrary, unjust, and, in our opinion, illegal."

The vacancy in the board, occasioned by the resignation of Oscar Arroyo, in December, 1874, has never been filled, although repeated applications by the representatives of the Democratic-Conservative party of the State and its candidates have been made to the board to fill the same. The foregoing committee of the House of Representatives, commenting on the failure of the board to fill the vacancy in 1874, when it occurred, said: "Your committee think the law as to the constitution of the board was not complied with." If this view be correct the board is not so constituted as to have authority to act at all.

The entire clerical force appointed by the board at its present session to compile the votes cast is also Republican, and the board refused an application to appoint any clerk or to allow any person of the opposite party to be present to witness the compilation, and even excluded the United States Supervisors of Election under the act of Congress.

The laws of Louisiana require a registration of voters every two years by officers appointed by the Governor of the State—the registration to commence the last Monday of August preceding the general election in November. The Election law of the State contains the following provisions for conducting the election, making returns, etc., to-wit:

SEC. 26. Be it further enacted, etc., That in any parish, precinct, ward, city, or town, in which, during the time of registration, or revision of registration, or on any day of election, there shall be any riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influences at any place within said parish, or at or near any poll, or voting-place, or place of registration, or revision of registration, which riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influences shall prevent, or tend to prevent a fair, free, peaceable, and full vote of all the qualified electors of said parish, precinct, ward, city, or town, it shall be the duty of the Commissioners of Election, if such riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influences occur on the day of election, or of the Supervisor of Registration of the parish, if they occur during the time of registration, or revision of registration, to make in duplicate under oath a clear and full statement of all the facts relating thereto, and of the effect produced by such riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influences in preventing a fair, free, peaceable, and full registration or election, and of the number of qualified electors deterred by such riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influences from registering or voting, which statement shall also be corroborated under oath by three respectable citizens, qualified electors of the parish. When such statement is made by a Commissioner of Election, or a Supervisor of Registration, he shall forward it in duplicate to the Supervisor of Registration of the parish; if in the city of New Orleans, to the Secretary of State, one copy of which, if made to the Supervisor of Registration, shall be forwarded by him to the returning officers provided for in section 2 of this act, when he makes the returns of election in his parish. His copy of said statement shall be so annexed to his returns of election by paste, wax, or some adhesive substance, that the same can be kept together, and the other copy the Supervisor of Registration shall deliver to the Clerk of the Court of his parish for the use of the District Attorney.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That it shall be the duty of the Commissioners of Election at each poll or voting place to keep a list of the names of the persons voting at such poll or voting place, which list shall be numbered from one to the end; and said list of voters, with their names and numbers as aforesaid, shall be signed and sworn to as correct by the Commissioners immediately on closing of the polls, and before leaving the place, and before opening the box. If no Judge or Justice of the Peace, or other person authorized to administer such oath, be present to do so, it may be administered by any voter. The votes shall be counted by the Commissioners at each voting place immediately after closing the election and without moving the boxes from the place where the votes were received, and the counting must be done in the presence of any bystander or citizen who may be present. Tally-lists shall be kept of the count, and after the count the ballots counted shall be put back into the box and preserved until after the next term of the Criminal or District Court, as the case may be; and in the parishes, except Orleans, the Commissioners of Election, or any one of them selected for that purpose, shall carry the box and deliver it to the Clerk of the District Court, who shall preserve the same, as above required; and in the parish of Orleans the box shall be delivered to the Clerk of the First District Court for the parish of Orleans, and be kept by him as above directed.

SEC. 43. Be it further enacted, etc., That immediately upon the close of the polls on the day of election, the Commissioners of the Election at each poll or voting-place shall proceed to count the votes, as provided in Sec 13 of this act and after they shall have so counted the votes and made a list of the names of all the persons voted for, and the offices for which they were voted for, and the number of votes received by each, the number of ballots contained in the box and the number rejected, and the reasons therefor, duplicates of such lists shall be made out, signed, and sworn to by the Commissioners of Election of each poll, and such duplicate lists shall be delivered, one to the Supervisor of Registration of the parish, and one to the Clerk of the District Court of the parish, and in the parish of Orleans to the Secretary of State, by one or all of said Commissioners in person within twenty-four hours after the closing of the polls. It shall be the duty of the Supervisors of Registration within twenty-four hours after the receipt of all the returns for the different polling-places, to consolidate such returns, to be certified as correct by the Clerk of the District Court, and forward the consolidated returns with the originals received by him to the returning officers provided for in Sec. 2 of this act, the said report and returns to be inclosed in an envelope of strong paper or cloth, securely sealed and forwarded by mail. He shall forward a copy of any statement of any violence or disturbance, bribery or corruption, or other offenses specified in Sec. 26 of this act, if any there be, together with all memoranda and tally-lists used in making the count and statement of the votes.

SEC. 2. Within ten days after the closing of the election said returning officers shall meet in New Orleans to canvass and compile the statements of votes made by the Commissioners of Election, and make returns of the election to the Secretary of State. They shall continue in session until such returns have been compiled. The presiding officer shall at such meeting open, in the presence of the said returning officers, the statements of the Commissioners of Election, and the said returning officers shall, from said statements, canvass and compile the returns of the election in duplicate; one copy of such returns they shall file in the office of the Secretary of State, and of one copy they shall make public proclamation, by printing in the official journal and such other newspaper as they may deem proper, declaring the names of all persons and officers voted for, the number of votes for each person, and the names of the persons who have been duly and lawfully elected. The returns of the elections thus made and promulgated shall be prima facie evidence in all courts of justice and before all civil officers, until set aside after a contest according to law, of the right of any person named therein to hold and exercise the office to which he shall by such return be declared elected. The Governor shall, within thirty days thereafter, issue commissions to all officers thus declared elected, who are required by law to be commissioned.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, etc., That in such canvass and compilation the returning officers shall observe the following order: They shall compile first the statements from all polls or voting-places at which there shall have been a fair, free and peaceable registration and election. Whenever from any poll or voting-place there shall be received the statement of any Supervisor of Registration or Commissioner of Election, in form as required by section 26 of this act, on affidavit of three or more citizens, of any riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance bribery or corrupt influence, which prevented, or tended to prevent a fair, free and peaceable vote of all qualified electors entitled to vote at such poll or voting-place, such returning officers shall not canvass, count or compile the statements of votes from such poll or voting-place until the statements from all other polls or voting-places shall have been canvassed and compiled. The returning officers shall then proceed to investigate the statements of riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery or corrupt influence at any such poll or voting-place; and if from the evidence of such statement they shall be convinced that such riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence did not materially interfere with the purity and freedom of the election at such poll or voting-place, or did not prevent a sufficient number of qualified voters thereat from registering or voting to materially change the result of the election, then, and not otherwise, said returning officers shall canvass and compile the vote of such poll or voting-place with those previously canvassed and compiled; but if said returning officers shall not be fully satisfied thereof, it shall be their duty to examine further testimony in regard thereto, and to this end they shall have power to send for persons and papers. If, after such examination, the said returning officers shall be convinced that said riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence did materially interfere with the purity and freedom of the election at such poll or voting-place, or did prevent a sufficient number of the qualified electors thereat from registering and voting to materially change the result of the election, then the said returning officers shall not canvass or compile the statement of the votes of such poll or voting place, but shall exclude it from their returns [illegible] person interested [illegible] within the time allowed for the forwarding of the returns of said election.

Under section 3 of the foregoing provisions, it will be seen that the duty of the Board of Returning Officers is similar to that of State Canvassing Boards in most of the other States of the Union—simply "to canvass and compile the statements of the Commissioners of Election," and proclaim the result; and this is the whole duty of the Returning Board, unless the Commissioners of Election or the Supervisor of some parish impose upon it a further duty, as provided [illegible]. In commenting upon the powers of the Returning Board we avail ourselves of the able argument of Judge Spofford made before it.

No one has the right to attack the returns from any poll, ward, or parish in the State on account of undue influence, intimidation, or other acts of violence, unless the foundation therefor be first laid by the statement of the Commissioners of Election at the particular poll, if the acts occurred on election-day, or of the Supervisor of Registration of the parish if they occurred during registration, as provided in sections 26 and 43. The board has no legal authority to receive or give effect to statements of outside parties, till the proper Commissioners of Election and Supervisor have spoken.

Nor has the board been invested with the power to institute complaints against any poll, ex-officio, or of its own motion. It cannot blot out or fail to count a solitary vote returned, unless a legal foundation has been laid for inquiry by the Supervisor of the parish where the vote was cast, or by one of the Commissioners of Election reporting through that Supervisor; and even they—the Supervisor and Commissioner—can only lay a foundation for inquiry in the board by making and forwarding in the prescribed manner their official "statements" contemporaneously with their returns, and in the very form set forth by section 26 of the act in question. Challenging the votes of whole cities and parishes, by unofficial persons, even though they are candidates, is a startling and lawless innovation.

No outside protest can be entertained; because even a Supervisor's "statement" can receive no consideration by the board, but must be wholly disregarded, unless made at a time and in a manner which no outside party could possibly comply with. His "statement" (or that of his subordinate Commissioner) must form an integral part of his return and official report; it cannot be made up at a different time and place from the return, to which the law requires it to be attached by "paste, wax, or some other adhesive substance," and a duplicate thereto must be lodged by him with the Clerk of the Court of his parish; it must be made under oath; it must be "a clear and full statement of all the facts and of the effect produced thereby."

Such a statement so annexed and sent by mail is the only kind of statement the board can notice at all so as to institute an inquiry into the intimidation, etc. The intent of the law is plain and indisputable, that all the Supervisors should be engaged simultaneously, in their several parishes, in completing their returns and statements on the spot where the election was held, without communication with each other, or with persons beyond the parish, and before they can obtain information of what has been done in other parishes, or of the general result.

And the reason for these minute, mandatory, and imperative provisions is equally obvious. It was precisely to shut out from consideration by the Returning Board all such ex post facto complaints as have been trumped up and illegally thrust in here at the last moment by Mr. Kellogg, Mr. Packard, Mr. Brewster, and even by some of the Supervisors themselves. The law has not been complied with; most of the Supervisors who have put in complaints have not written them at the proper time and in the proper parish; they have not annexed them to their returns, sealed and sent them by mail; they have brought down their returns to this city with no statement so annexed, but have patched up statements here at an improper place. They could only fulfill their duties according to law by finishing their returns, attached statements and all, and mailing them, sealed up in one envelope, at one of their parish postoffices, within the time required by law.

It is appalling to think that statements thus made contrary to law, after the result of the election through the State was known with approximate accuracy, made as an afterthought by disappointed candidates and their friends, with an evident view to cast a drag-net of suspicion over parishes enough to reverse the emphatic verdict of the people, made, too, at so late a day and so great a distance from many of the parishes struck at, that it is impossible to have any fair investigation, should receive consideration.

Commenting on the foregoing provisions of the Louisiana statute, Messrs. George F. Hoar, W. A. Wheeler, and W. P. Frye, in their report made Feb. 23, 1875, said:

> Upon this statute we are all clearly of opinion that the Returning Board has no right to do anything except to canvass and compile the returns which were lawfully made to them by local officers, except in cases where they were accompanied by the certificates of the Supervisors or Commissioners provided in the third section. In such cases, the last sentence of that section shows that they would ordinarily exercise the grave and delicate duty of investigating charges of riot, tumult, bribery, or corruption, on a hearing of the parties interested in the office. It never could have been meant that this board, of its own motion, sitting in New Orleans, at a distance from the place of voting, and without notice, could decide the right of persons claiming to be elected. * * * There is no more dangerous form of self-delusion than that which induces men in high places of public trust to violate law to redress or prevent what they deem public wrongs.

These references to the report of the Congressional Committee upon the action of this same Returning Board in 1874, and its construction of the statute, are made that the public may know how this board and its rulings were regarded by prominent gentlemen, one of them a candidate for Vice President at the recent election, at a time when its decision did not affect a Presidential election.

We regard it as indisputable that the Returning Board has no jurisdiction to inquire into and reject the returns of any voting-place in the State on account of intimidation, acts of violence, or other cases mentioned in the statute, unless the foundation for such inquiry and rejection is laid at the time and in the manner provided by the statute.

In no case did the Supervisor of Registration deliver to the Clerk of the Court of his parish, as required by section 26, a duplicate statement made and sworn to by the Commissioners of Election, and corroborated by three citizens, of any riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation and disturbance, bribery, or corrupt influence, and of the facts relating thereto, occurring on the day of election, nor any like statement of his own that any such acts occurred during the time of registration or the revision of registration. When the returns were opened by the Returning Board, such statements were found among the papers in a few instances, but not in relation to the parishes of either Ouachita, Morehouse, East Baton Rouge, East or West Feliciana, and such were the manifest efforts on the part of the officers of election to conceal their acts, and confuse and mislead persons interested in a proper investigation of the facts relating to the election, that it was impossible to determine whether any such statements had been made by the Commissioners of Election or the Supervisor of Registration and attached to the returns of the Supervisor in any parish in the State at the time and in the manner required by Secs. 26 and 43.

This fact leaves the Returning Board without jurisdiction to inquire into acts of violence, etc., at the election or during registration, and with no other duty to perform except to canvass and compile the votes returned, as the returning officers of any other State would do; and, as the returns opened by them show a majority for the Tilden electors, it ought to be an end of all controversy on the subject. But as the board, in the face of these facts, has come to the extraordinary conclusion to declare that the Hayes electors have a majority, it is proper to look further into its action.

The first meeting of the board attended by us was held Nov. 20, at which application in behalf of the candidates on the Democratic-Conservative ticket that all the proceedings of the board should be public, and that interested candidates should have leave to be present, by themselves or counsel, at the opening of the returns, with the right to inspect the same, was refused and certain rules were adopted, against several of which protests were filed, and particularly against rule 8, which declared that: [illegible] had at some poll, requires investigation; but the returns and affidavits authorized by law, made by officers of election, or in verification of statements as required by law, shall be received in evidence as prima facie."

Under this rule several hundred ex-parte affidavits were prepared and sworn to in New Orleans charging intimidation and other illegal acts in distant parishes, were then put into the envelopes inclosing the Supervisor's consolidated returns, which had been brought to the city of New Orleans and kept open for the purpose. This was done [illegible] intimidation or [illegible] by Supervisors long after their consolidated returns had been made out and sworn to as correct and filed with the proper District Clerk without any protest or allegation of intimidation or other acts of violence.

The proceedings of the board in executive session, to which we were admitted, consisted in opening the returns from each parish and examining the votes for Presidential electors. If no protest or objection appeared among the papers and there was no [illegible] from any one the returns were sent to a private room to be tabulated by the clerks, all of whom were Republicans, who kept their action secret. If any protest was found among the papers, or from outside parties, the returns were laid aside, to be afterward considered by the board in secret. In the few cases in which there were charges of fraud, intimidation, or other illegal acts, the candidates or their attorneys were permitted to take copies of the charges, and testimony taken on written interrogatories was submitted in regard to such parishes.

Dec. 2, after all the returns had been opened, the board went into secret session, and we were not permitted to see the compilation of returns already made, nor to know what rules the board adopted in passing upon contested cases, nor the processes by which it arrived at results.

We have been furnished a triplicate, or a certified copy of the duplicate, statement of the Commissioners of Election at each voting-place in the State, from which has been compiled a consolidated statement of the entire vote of the State for Presidential electors.

From this statement, which we believe to be accurate, the majority for the highest Tilden elector over the lowest Hayes elector is 8,957, and the majority for the lowest Tilden elector over the highest Hayes elector is 6,300.

The returns in our possession correspond precisely, in most cases, with those opened by the Returning Board. The difference in the aggregate arises mainly from the fact that the board did not have all the returns before it. The Supervisors, all of whom were Republicans, many of them employes in the Custom House in New Orleans, some non-residents of the State, and one of them under indictment for murder, withheld the statements of the Commissioners of Election in some instances where Democratic majorities were given, amounting in the aggregate to about 1,500 votes. The Returning Board refused to receive certified copies of the duplicates of these missing returns filed in the office of the Secretary of State and the Clerks of the District Courts, or take any effective measures to procure the originals.

The Returning Board, in proclaiming the result of the vote for electors, makes no statement of the votes cast in the several parishes, but simply announces the aggregate vote for each elector in the State, giving the Hayes electors majorities varying from 4,626 to 4,712. To accomplish which they disfranchised 13,250 Democratic and 2,042 Republican voters. This announcement is made in the face of the facts that the statements made by the Commissioners of Election showed a majority ranging from 6,300 to 8,957 for the Tilden electors. No attempt is made to give a reason for this arbitrary action of the board, nor is there any statement to show what votes were counted and what rejected. As well might the officers canvassing the returns of the election for Presidential electors in Ohio or Massachusetts declare the Tilden electors in those States elected, in the face of the fact that the returns showed a majority for the Hayes electors.

We have shown that it is questionable whether the Legislature of Louisiana has made provision for the appointment of electors at all; that if it has made such provision, it has not vested the Returning Board with authority to canvass the returns of the votes cast for such officers; and that if it were possible to construe the statute as conferring such authority on the Returning Board, then the same statute limits the authority of the board to the canvass and compilation of "the statements of votes made by the Commissioners of Election," without authority to reject any on account of intimidation or other acts of violence, unless the foundation therefor be first laid as provided in the statute; that the evidence does not disclose that such foundation was laid in any instance. There is, however, evidence of attempts surreptitiously to lay such foundation after the consolidated returns were completed, and that the Supervisors of Election in many instances unlawfully withheld their returns for that purpose, and interpolated among them ex-parte affidavits, taken in secret in New Orleans, before a United States Commissioner, which the board has no jurisdiction to consider.

The evidence taken on both sides, so far as it has been accessible to us, discloses a state of lawlessness in certain parishes, not in the State generally, about the cause of which parties are not agreed. The Democrats attribute it to the inefficiency and imbecility of the State Government which they allege to be a usurpation, resting wholly for support on the Federal army, without the confidence or respect of the people, and without the disposition to prevent or punish crime which they can pervert to political uses. Such a state of things, as might be expected, has led to disorder, and, in some instances, to the most shocking barbarities.

The Republicans, on the other hand, attribute the lawlessness to the hostility of the white against the colored race, and as largely due to politics.

The murders and outrages which have been brought to our notice are frequently committed by persons of the same race upon each other, and in a large majority of cases have no political significance.

Many such cases were brought to the notice of the board by ex-parte affidavits, without regard to the time of their occurrence and when they did not have the slightest connection with the recent election. Strangely enough, it is assumed by the Republicans, who have had complete control of the State Government for years, that, if they could show that lawlessness prevailed in certain localities, and crime went unpunished, those facts furnished a reason why they should be continued in power, notwithstanding the large majority of ballots cast against them.

Another assumption of the Republicans is that all the colored men in the State are necessarily Republicans. This is by no means true. We were visited by a large number of colored persons, from different parts of the State, including the alleged disturbed districts, who made speeches and took an active part in the canvass in favor of the Democratic ticket, and who gave, among other reasons for so doing, that they had been deceived by Republican officials, who had proved dishonest and corrupt, had robbed them of the school money, and burdened them with unnecessary taxes, and they believed it for the interest of the colored race to unite their fortunes with the whites, whose interests, like their own, were identified with the State.

It is certain that thousands of colored persons voluntarily and actively supported the Democratic ticket. The entire vote of the State, at the recent election, is about 15,000 greater than ever before; and, even in the parishes where intimidation is charged, it exceeds in the aggregate any previous vote. The Congressional committee, which, it is understood, will soon visit the State armed with authority to send for persons and papers, and inquire into all the facts connected with the recent election and the action of the Returning Board, will have greater facilities for arriving at the truth than we possess; but with the law and such facts before us as have been disclosed by the action of the Returning Board, we do not hesitate to declare that its proceedings, as witnessed by us, were partial and unfair, and that the result it has announced is arbitrary, illegal and entitled to no respect whatever.

Fifteen years ago, when Fort Sumter was fired upon by men who sought a disruption of the Union a million patriots, without regard to party affiliations, sprang to its defense. Will the same patriotic citizens now sit idly by and see representative government overthrown by usurpation and fraud? Shall the will of 8,000,000 people, constitutionally expressed, be thwarted by the arbitrary and illegal action of an illegally-constituted Returning Board in Louisiana, whose wrongful action heretofore, in all respects similar to its present action, has been condemned by all parties? It is an admitted fact that Mr. Tilden received a majority of a quarter of a million of the votes at the recent election. The majority is ready and willing to submit to the rule of the minority when constitutionally entitled to demand such submission, but is it willing that by an arbitrary and false declaration of votes in Louisiana the minority shall usurp power? These are dark days for the American people when such questions are forced upon their consideration. If it were true, as some insist, that neither the white nor the colored voters have in all instances been afforded an opportunity to give free expression to their wishes at the ballot-box, shall we, by sustaining a fraudulent and illegal declaration of the votes cast, stifle the voice of the millions of voters who have freely expressed their choice, and thus seek to correct a great wrong by committing another immeasurably greater wrong?

Can we sanction such action of the Louisiana Returning Board, and thereby form a precedent under the authority of which a party once in power may forever perpetuate its rule, and so end constitutional liberty? Shall such be the fate of this republic at the beginning of the second century of its existence, is the momentous question now presented for the determination of the American people.

JOHN M. PALMER,
LYMAN TRUMBULL,
WILLIAM BIGLER,
GEORGE B. SMITH,
GEORGE W. JULIAN,
P. H. WATSON.

DEATH.

The Sensation of Different Modes of Dying—Some Curious Facts.

[From the New Haven Register.]

The popular ideas relative to the sufferings of persons on the point of death are undoubtedly to a certain extent erroneous. The appearance of extreme agony, which is often presented under these circumstances, is due to mere muscular agitation, independent of any extraordinary sensation of the nerves of feeling. Those who die a natural death in the very last stages of existence are scarcely conscious of bodily suffering—not more than they frequently are of the attentions and solicitude of friends.

Those who die by violence or accident undoubtedly experience a degree of pain proportionate to the event of the bodily mutilation. Hanging is doubtless an unpleasant mode of death, but few, after all, "shuffle off this mortal coil" more easily than those who are suspended by the neck. It is akin to drowning in this respect. The blood immediately seeks the head and soon deprives it of all consciousness. The effort to inhale the air, which are kept up for some time after the cord is attached, and which cause such violent movements of the chest and extremities, arise from the influence of the spinal marrow, whose sensibility is not so often destroyed by the congestion of blood as that of brain.

Persons who die by decapitation most probably suffer more, though their pain is only momentary; this is the case with those who blow out their brains. The sensation produced by a ball passing through the body would be difficult to describe by one who has never experienced it, but it is something singular in this case that those who are shot, although the "leaden messenger of death" may not have penetrated any essentially vital organ, immediately fall to the earth, apparently under an irresistible feeling of their approaching return to dust, exclaiming, as it were, involuntarily, "I am a dead man!"

A dagger wound in the heart, for the few moments which are consumed in the ebbing of life, must occasion unutterable feelings of agony, independent of the mere sensations of pain in the parts sundered by the entrance of the blade. The rushing out of the blood at each convulsive pulsation of the heart must seem like the actual spectacle of the flow of life.

Those who are crushed to death may not expire instantly unless the cranium happens to be involved in the casualty. Where the skull is not fractured there is probably an inconceivable agony for a few seconds—a flashing thought of home, friends and family, and all is over. Those who are cut into by a heavily-burdened railroad carriage must experience some similar sensations.

If the neck is broken low down the person does not necessarily die on the instant. His situation is the most distressing of any which can be imagined. He may live and have a being for days, but he cannot move. His face may express all the passions, feelings and emotions; but beyond the motions of his breast and countenance his energies do not go. His arms are pinioned at his side; his legs are lifeless; and he essentially sees his body in the grave, while he is yet in the full possession of his faculties. The least disturbance of his position is liable to launch him at once into eternity.

In taking laudanum a person exists in a state of insensibility for a length of time, a melancholy spectacle to his friends. In poisoning from arsenic a great amount of suffering is undergone. The sensibility of the stomach is exceedingly acute when inflamed, and the effect of arsenic is to produce a fatal inflammation of the viscus. Prussic acid is rapid, and acts by paralyzing the brain.

In reflecting on the horrors which death presents under the different aspects of violence the mind becomes satisfied with disgust. We cannot do better than turn to the contemplation of its features in the milder course of disease, where, if the mind be at ease, the final exit is made without any of those revolting exhibitions of bodily suffering.

THE Christmas dinner of modern days is, as most of our readers know, a gathering together of generations, an assembling of Israel by its tribes. Contrast with this modern Christmas dinner—as well as with the high festival of [illegible]—the dreary picture of a Christmas day and dinner [illegible] of the Puritans, as given in his diary, by Pepys, the chatty Secretary to the Admiralty, "1668, Christmas day. To dinner," thus he writes, "alone with my wife, who, poor wretch! sat undressed all day until 10 at night, altering and lacing of a noble petticoat; while I, by her, making the boy read to me, the 'Life of Julius Cæsar' and 'Des Cartes' Book of Music.'"

BURNED THEATERS.

[illegible]

It is sixty-five years since the Richmond theater was burned, [illegible] 1811. From that time until the Brooklyn disaster no calamity of equal horror has occurred to any theater in this country. By it it was supposed at least 120 persons lost their lives.

In the "Historical Collections of Virginia," by Mr. Henry Howe, now of Cincinnati, published in 1845, is a detailed account of this disaster, together with an engraved representation of the scene. The building was a three-story structure, plain as a Quaker meeting-house, standing on an open lot detached from all other buildings.

An Episcopal church, called the Monumental Church, was subsequently erected on the spot, to commemorate the event. The remains of some of the unfortunate victims were deposited in a marble urn which stands in the front portico of the church.

Among those who perished in the flames were George W. Smith, the Governor of Virginia; A. B. Venable, President of the Bank of Virginia; Lieut. J. Gibbon, of the navy, "in attempting to save Miss Conyers," and many others of the very choicest citizens of Virginia.

The editor of the Richmond Standard was in the theater at the time of the disaster, and in his paper of the next day he gave these details:

"Last night the play-house in this city was crowded with an unusual audience—not less than 600 persons. Just before the conclusion of the play, the scenery caught fire, and in a few minutes the entire building was in flames. The editor of this paper was in the house. He is informed that the scenery took fire in the back part of the house by the raising of a chandelier; that the boy who was ordered by some of the players to raise it stated that if he did so the scenery would take fire, when he was commanded, in a peremptory manner, to hoist it. He obeyed, and the fire at once communicated to the scenery.

"The boy gave the alarm in the rear of the stage, and asked some of the attendants to cut the cords by which the combustible materials were suspended. The person whose duty it was to do this fled panic-stricken. This unfortunately happened when one of the actors was playing near the orchestra, and the greatest part of the stage with its horrid danger was obscured from the audience by a curtain.

"The flames spread with almost lightning-like rapidity, and the fire falling from the ceiling upon the performer was the first notice the audience had of their danger. Even then many supposed it a part of the play, and were a little time restrained from flight by a cry from the stage that there was no danger. The performers and their attendants in vain endeavored to tear down the scenery.

"The editor of this paper was among the first to escape. No words can express his horror when, on turning around, he discovered the whole building to be in flames. There was but one door for the greatest part of the audience to pass. Men, women and children were pressing upon each other, while the flames were pouring upon those behind.

"The editor went to the different windows, which were very high, and implored his fellow-creatures to save their lives by jumping out of them. Ignorant of their danger, they were afraid to leap down, while those behind were seen catching on fire and writhing in agony. At length, pursued by the pressing flames, they pushed those nearest the window, and the people began falling upon each other with their clothes on fire, some half roasted. * * *

"The people outside were seen wringing their hands, beating their heads and breasts; and those that had escaped seemed to suffer greater torments than those enveloped in flames. All of those in the pit escaped and had cleared themselves from the house before those in the boxes could get down, and the door was for some time empty. Those from above were pushing each other down the steps, when the hindmost might have got out by leaping into the pit.

"The loss of a hundred thousand friends on the field of battle could not touch the heart like this. The most savage barbarians will mourn our [illegible] happy lot."

Perfidious Man.

A breach of promise just instituted by a young Boston woman, the daughter of the keeper of a fashionable boarding-house, against a young man who now lives in Syracuse, N. Y., is just now attracting considerable attention. They became engaged ten years ago, when the girl was 16, and the youth, then a boarder with the girl's mother, gave the orthodox engagement ring and an endowment life insurance policy for $3,000 in the Charter Oak company, of Hartford, Ct. In 1869 they quarreled, but didn't break the engagement, and in 1871 they made up again. But the perfidious lover had meanwhile fallen in love with a fair Maine girl, and, last month, quietly married her. Our Boston girl was wild when she heard of it a few days ago, but, with an eye to business, she went to Hartford, had papers served on the insurance company to secure the payment of the $3,000 policy, and has now brought suit for $15,000.

OF all times in the year the Christmas-tide is that at which hearts and purse-strings should open widest in thoughts and deeds of charity. Those should give who never gave before, and those who are charitable always should at this season give the more. Some of our overflow of happiness should not fail to reach the poor and miserable, whom Santa Claus, an aristocratic fellow, is otherwise apt to slight. "To give is more blessed than to receive," especially when with so little so much happiness may be brought about. The most of those best able to give, who are [illegible] with misery and the [illegible] for its relief, will do well to distribute their bounty through the [illegible] organized charities, which reach all classes.

A young Chinaman has been admitted to the collegiate institute of Napa, Cal., without opposition from the students, who treat him as well as though he was of their own race. He has parted with his queue, and dresses like an American.

REMOVAL of the
Auburn Fruit House
To the New Room east of THE BANK.

Give us a call at OUR NEW ROOMS!

GREAT REDUCTION

Read the Following list of Discounts:

FRUITS AND CONFECTIONERY.

2 lb Table Peach 16c, former price 18c,
3 lb " " 22c, " " 25c,
2 lb Whortleberries 18c, former price 20,
2 lb Strawberries 20c, " " 25c.
2 lb Peas 15c, " " 20c.
2 lb String Beans 12½ " " 20c.
2 lb Blackberries 15c " " 20c.
6 lb Pie Peaches 30c " " 35c.
2 lb French Peas 25c " " 35c.
3 lb Quinces 25c " " 35c.
1 qt Queen Olives 45 " 75c.

A Deduction of from 5c to 10c per can on

Bartlett Beans, Cherries, Tomatoes, Salmon, Lobsters, Clams, Table Sauces, Chow-Chow, Gherkins, Mixed Pickles, Olive Oil, Cup Sauce, "Irish Bullin's" Celebrated Punkin Pie Timber, Canned Plums of all kinds, Flavoring extracts of all kinds Raisins, from 15c to 18c. worth 18 to 25c, Cultivated Cape Cod Cranberries 12½c worth 15c, Mince-meat Halibut, Cod Fish, Salmon by the pound.

ALL AT SLAUGHTERED PRICES.

French Prunes, Zante Currants, Dried Blackberries, Peaches, Apples Nuts of all kinds.

GROCERIES.

TEAS! TEAS!! TEAS!!! TEAS!!!! TEAS!!!!!

Young Hyson from 55c to $1.00, Japan from 45c to $1.00, Oolong 85c to $1.00. Japan Tea formerly sold at $1 00 now sold at 50 cents.

Having bought a large stock of CANDIES and HOLIDAY GOODS before the advance in prices I am enabled to offer them at unusually low figures.

In a word, all goods sold at

Reduced Prices

To avoid moving. Everybody is invited to call and examine goods and prices. My goods are all warranted to be fresh and pure, and cannot fail to please the purchaser, both in quality and prices.

TERMS STRICTLY CASH.

E. E. WILLIAMS.

HO! FOR SANTA CLAUS!

Look out for Low Prices!

Just Received a large Assortment of

TOYS, TOYS, TOYS.
AT
R. Zacher's!

For the Holidays.

Also a large stock of LAMPS vey low. Chimneys of all kinds. Queensware very cheap. Also a new stock of

GROCERIES.

CANNED FRUITS, NOTIONS, etc

FINE WHISKY AND BRANDY!

Always on hand at.

ZACHER'S.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

IN SELECTING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

Don't Forget to call at

HOUSER'S BOOK STORE!

In addition to the extensive stock of Standard and Miscellaneous Books. He has a fine selection of

JUVENILE BOOKS.
TOY BOOKS,

Gift Books Bibles, Albums, Card Cases, Writing Desks, Stereoscopes, Pocket Books, Chromos, Pictures, Picture Frames, Sterescopic Views, Chess, Checker, Chess Boards, Dominoes, Games in great variety.

Johnson's Celebrated Gold Pens & Pencils.

Wall and Window Paper'

Window Shades a Fixtures a specialty, and a host of other useful and beauti saticles, Main-st., Auburn, Ind.

PARLOR STOVES.
J. L. DAVIS.

HAS AN IMMENSE STOCK OF

Parlor and Heating Stoves!

OF THE LATEST PATERN EMBRACING

FIFTY DIFFERDENT STYLES!

Persons wishing to purchase Parlor or Heating Stoves should not fail to call and see our display. Also a fine line of

HARDWARE STOVES

always on hand at lowest prices

LUMBER

Lath, Shingles, Doors, Sash, &c,

The largest stock brought to Auburn. We are selling at the Lowest Bottom Prices!

and Defy Competition.

Lumber by the WAGON or CAR load

ALWAYS ON HAND!

YARD ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET.

F. N. WRIGHT & CO.

Geo. De Wald & Co

FORT WAYNE, IND.

Have always on hand the largest and best stock of Dry Goods Notions and Ladies Dress Goods in the city. Our citizens when visiting Fort Wayne, should not fail call and examine their stock of

DRY GOODS.

They can make it to the interest of every person who trade with them. They buy for cash and sell for cash, keep the best goods and sell for one price. Also agents for the Domestic Paterons

Their store is located at No. 1 Columbia Street.

GEO. DEWALD & CO.

RAIL ROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern RR
Air Line Division

On and after April 16th, 1876, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Butler.	1:45 p m.	2.40 a m.	3.05 pm
Waterloo	2.05 "	3.00 "	3.24
Sedan	2.15	3.07	3.37
Corunna	2.20	3.15	3.43

GOING EAST.

Corunna	2.52 pm	x 12.08 a m	6.53 a m
Sedan	2.35	11.45 "	6:38 "
Waterloo	2:25 "	11.30 "	6.23 "
Butler	2.20	11.20 "	6.15 "

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Divisina Su

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Dec. 4th, 1876.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 30 pm	9 00 am	2 00pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 40 am	10 15	3 14	7 25
Alliance	3 55	12 50 pm	5 55	11 00
Orrville	4 43	3 32	7 48	12 55 pm
Mansfield	6 55	4 40	9 50	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	10 25	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	10 30 pm
Forest	9 25	7 40	11 56
Lima	10 45	9 20	1 05 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20pm	12 10 am	3 25
Plymouth	4 00	3 20	5 40
Chicago	7 20	7 20	9 20

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	10 40 pm	8 20 a.m	5 35 pm
Plymouth	2 40 am	11 25	9 00
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 10 pm	11 45
Lima	8 55	4 05	1 50
Forest	10 10	5 20	3 05
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 40
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 20 am	6 10am
Mansfield	12 35	7 44	5 2[illegible]	6 55
Orrville	2 30	9 38	7 12	8 15
Alliance	4 10	11 15	9 00	12 20
Rochester	6 25	1 20 am	11 10	2 00pm
Chicago	7 35	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. MRYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line Between

Michigan and the South.

Time card in effect Dec 10—run by Chicago time.

Going North.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Louisville	7 10pm
Cincinnati	7 00pm
Indianapolis	4 15am		7 30a
Ft Wayne	10 25 "		3 50p
Auburn	11 20 "		5 23
Waterloo	11 40 "		6 00
Summit
Pleasant Lake
Ar Angola	12 48 pm	5 40	7 00
Reading	1 45 "	7 10	7 52
Bankers	2 00 "	7 20	8 08
Jonesville	2 18 "	7 35	8 20
Jackson	3 25 "	9 00	9 25
Detroit	6 15 "	5 4[illegible]	3 30a
Grand Rapids	6 45am	4 45	9 45
Lansing	9 15 "
Saginaw
Bay City

Going South.

Stations	Exp.	Accom.	Mail
Bay City			2 35p
Saginaw	7 25 a m		7 25
Lansing	10 13
Grand Rapids		11 15a	8 20
Detroit	7 00 "		10 15
Jackson Dep	11 46 am	4 00p	6 45a
Jonesville	12 47 pm	5 15	7 55
Bankers	1 02 "	6 25	8 13
Reading	1 15 "	6 50	8 27
Ar Angola	2 10 "	8 15	9 24
Pleasant Lake
Waterloo	2 48 "		10 10
Auburn	3 00 "		10 38
Auburn Junction
Fort Wayne Arrive	4 00 "		12 10p
Indianapolis	9 35 "
Cincinnati	9 00 am		9 40
Louisville	8 30 am

All trains daily except Sunday.

P. H. LOOMIS, Pres't
S. K. HOOPER Gen. Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT DECEMBER 12, 1876.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Express	Ac. & E.	Express.
lv New York	8 55pm	8 35am	12 55 pm
Philadelphia	12 45am	12 15pm	4 15
Baltimore	7 00	4 30	8 00
Washington	8 35	6 00	9 25
Wheeling	10 45pm	8 05am	11 02 am
Bellaire	11 30	*8 45	11 30
Barnesville	12 35am	9 56	12 44 pm
Cambridge	1 40	10 56	1 44
Zanesville	2 50	12 10pm	2 50
lv Columbus	1 10	12 40	12 40
New Aark	4 35	2 00	4 10
Mt Vernon	5 58	3 00	5 15
Mansfield	7 30	4 28	6 48
Shelby	8 05	4 50	7 18
Chicago Junction	8 50	5 30	7 58
Tiffin	10 15		9 08
Fostoria	10 45		9 37
Deshler	11 43		10 35
Defiance	12 38pm		11 28
Auburn			12 56 am
Auburn Junction	2 06		1 15
Garrett	2 35		1 28
Avilla	2 50		2 38
Milford Junction	4 19		3 51
Walkertown Junction	5 12		6 30
Chicago	8 10

GOING EAST.

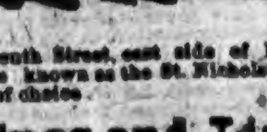
STATIONS:	Express	Ac. & E.	Express.
Chicago	8.52am		5 06 pm
Walkertown Junction	11 23pm		8 36
Milford Junction	1 45		9 51
Avilla	2 58		10 03
Garrett	3 20		11 25
Auburn Junction	3 27		11 32
Auburn			1 00 am
Defiance	4 54		1 56
Deshler	5 45		2 59
Fostoria	6 47		3 27
Tiffin	7 15	9 00	4 35
Chicago Junction	8 30	10 08	5 09
Shelby Junction	9 13	10 40	5 36
Mansfield	9 49	12 15pm	7 08
Mt. Vernon	11 42	1 20	8 00
Ar Newark	1 00am	3 18	9 35
Lv Zanesville	3 20	4 25	10 35
Cambridge	4 17	5 34	11 44
Barnesville	5 16	6 50	1 00 pm
Ar Bellaire	6 25	8 25	2 25
Wheeling	7 35	12 00n	6 35 am
Washington	9 10pm	1 40pm	8 30
Baltimore	10 30	*6 50	1 15 pm
Philadelphia	3 10am	10 14	5 05
New York	6 25

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

JOSEPH BEUGNOT,

PROPRIETOR OF THE

BILLIARD HALL AND SALOON.



On Seventh Street, east side of Bank, where will be known as the St. Nichols Saloon. All kinds of choice

Wines and Liquors

ALWAYS ON HAND

CHICAGO ROCK ISLAND
AND
Pacific Railroad.

The Direct Route for

JOLIET, MORRIS, LA SALLE, PERU, HENRY, LACON, PEORIA, GENESEO, MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, DAVENPORT MUSCATINE, WASHINGTON, IOWA CITY, GRINNELL, NEWTON, DES MOINES,

Council Bluffs and Omaha

WITHOUT CHANGE OF CARS.

Where it joins with the Union Pacific Railroad for Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and

All Points West of the Pacific Coast.

Trains leave daily as follows:

Omaha, Leavenworth & Atchison Express, [Sundays excepted]	10 [illegible] a m
Peru Accommodation [*at ex]	5 [illegible] p m
Omaha Express [Sun ex]	10 [illegible] p m

KANSAS LINE.

The Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. have now opened their Southwestern Division between Leavenworth and Chicago, connecting at Leavenworth with Kansas Pacific and Missouri Pacific railroads and at Atchison with Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Central Branch, Union Pacific and Atchison and Nebraska railroads, for all points in Kansas, Indian Territories, Colorado and New Mexico.

This company have built a full complement of Palace Drawing room and sleeping cars, which for external beauty and interior arrangements for the comfort, convenience and luxury of passengers are unexcelled if equalled, by any other cars of the kind in the world.

Through Tickets for sale at all General Railway offices in the States and Canada.

HUGH RIDDLE, Gen Supt.
A. M. SMITH Gen Pass Agent

WABASH FAST MAIL ROUTE

Now controls and operates the following Lines:

TOLEDO to ST. LOUIS,	434 Miles
TOLEDO to HANNIBAL,	[illegible] Miles
TOLEDO to QUINCY,	471 Miles
TOLEDO to PEORIA,	[illegible] Miles
TOLEDO to BLOOMINGTON,	[illegible] Miles

CONNECTING IN UNION DEPOTS AT

St. Louis, Hanniba', Quincy, Keokuk

PEORIA AND BLOOMINGTON,

TO AND FROM ALL POINTS IN

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, ARKANSAS KANSAS, TEXAS, NEBRASKA, COLORADO AND CALIFORNIA,

And forming the leading Thoroughfare between the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys and

New York, Boston

And all other Points in New England.

Enabling Passengers who travel by the

"WABASH FAST LINE"

To reach the principal cities in the East and West many hours in advance of other lines.

No change of cars between Cleveland and St. Joseph and Atcheson (510 miles), and between Toledo and Kansas City (700 miles.)

All Express Trains of the Line are fully equiped with Pulman's Palace Sleeping Cars, Westinghouse's Lately Improved Air-Brake, and Miller's Platform and Coupler, rendering a serious accident almost an impossibility.

LORDIER,

THE FORT WAYNE,

FINE BOOTS & SHOES Store

Is the popular place for all kinka of

BOOT & SHOES

All kinds of these goods kept constantly on hand, and at extremely

LOW PRICES

Custom work done the best manner, and all kinds of repaing promptly attended to.

Remember place

At the Fort Wayne Shoe Store next to Kahn's Clothing House.

CARPETS,

FOR 1875.

Are offered at prices lower than have prevailed for many years. Our stock fo all grades is large, well selected and we invite inspection. We have added to our stock and the line is unusally fair.

Wall Paper

Terrys,
Reps,
Gimps,
Fringes and a general line of Upholstery Goods with Shades,
Lace Curtains,
Oil Cloths,
and Mattings
in great variety. The manufacture of Lambrequins a specialty.

ELSWORTH, ANDREWS & CO,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

THE
AUBURN COURIER

Microfilmed for:
ECKHART PUBLIC LIBRARY
Auburn, Indiana

STARTS WITH

JAN 1 1874

MICRO PHOTO DIVISION
BELL & HOWELL COMPANY

IL